As for the remaining 21 acres, now owned by the city, do they expect it as a municipal gift — which would seem appropriate in view of the thousands of dollars and hours the Yardmen have spent already on the project — or do they merely want a good price?

Mayor Russell Scott indicated that a request for the land and cost of future maintenance of the site would have to be put on the ballot of the December 4 municipal election if the Yardmen make those requests of the city.

But the property owners turned down a proposal for a $1.3 million community centre four years ago. And now the Yardmen appear to be asking community support for a project that may cost ratepayers much more.

How much more?

* * *

We now know what the Yardmen have to offer. It's good, worthwhile project and deserving of community support.

But we should also be informed what the Yardmen need and how much help they expect.

Coach Robb Burrowes of the Belleville midget all - star hockey team is begrudgingly ask himself: "Who is Harry Sinden and why is he saying those terrible things about me?"

For the second time in a month, Team Canada coach Sinden has made the Belleville midgets the brunt of facetious remarks about his hockey team's playing ability.

Monday, it was the Globe and Mail story from Stockholm in Team Canada's 4-1 Saturday exhibition win over the Swedish national team that gave Belleville hockey fans unwanted and undeserved publicity.

* * *

"We spent the first period playing like the Belleville midgets," coach Sinden described Team Canada's performance for the benefit of reporters. "We couldn't move the puck and we felt we didn't know that the bell we were doing."

In itself, that was bad enough, but August 31st, two days before the opening game of the Canada - Russia Series, Sinden told Montreal Gazette sports editor Ted Blackman: "We'll beat them because we're better, as long as there are five guys who are willing to work and check.

* * *

Coach Burrowes and assistant Jerry Murphy are pondering letters of protest. They point to their team's enviable record of 1971, which included the grand championship of the prestigious Orillia midget tourney.

The Belleville midgets won three games in that tournament than Team Canada has in its brief, but disastrous history.

* * *

In the wake of recent events, the midget all-star coach could be entitled to tell some of his more erratic tryouts they'll fare worse than Yvon Cournoyer on a breakaway against Vladislav Tretiak.

Our sympathies are extended to the bereaved families of honorary Ontario Amateur Softball Association president Harry Sullins and former Belleville Minor Baseball Association president Garth Bradshaw.

Both men were active workers, and important, loyal supporters of their respective sports in this community.

Taking Cover

John Henry covers up an error by Lorne to Lord as Ron Begley attempts to nail sliding teammate Paul Soule in a practice session of the Mead Johnson squirts. The Belleville minor softball team will be gunning for the first OASA provincial win in this city for the past 15 years, when they face either Sarnia or Grantham in Lou Ontario finals. They have a string of 10 consecutive OASA wins still intact.

Bobcats Have 13 Signatures

The Belleville Bobcats continued to take on a "new look" for the 1972-73 Toronto Metro Junior B season with the signing of three more rookies. Forwards Mike Watt and John Masterson and forward-defenceman Wayne McGeachy became the 11th, 12th and 13th players to sign with Bellerville this season.

Watt performed at left wing and centre with Belleville's Blake Kerr Imperial midgets and is currently slated to see wing duty with the Bobcats. "He's a hard worker and he plays his position well," notes coach Moe Hunter.

Masterson, a left winger had a chance to attend the Oshawa Generals' training camp this season but elected to stay in Belleville. He impresses Hunter as, "a good skater, and he's got a good shot." Also also performed last season with Blake Kerr.

McGeachy, a centre or defenceman, is a graduate of the Trenton Juveniles who attended Junior "A" training camp in St. Catharines this season. He was reported to have signing with the Bobcats. "He handles the puck well and he's aggressive," says Hunter of the latest addition to his defence corps.

The Juniors are scheduled for another workout tonight at 7 p.m. and an 11 p.m. practice Wednesday night.

Squirts May End Drought

By ERIC EMERSON
Sports Staff

Mead Johnson squirts hope that they won't keep the public waiting. After all, 15 years seems long enough for any city to wait for an OASA provincial title.

The squirt all-stars could give Belleville its first provincial softball championship since 1957, when they face the winners of a Sarnia - Grantham series in the Ontario finals.

Belleville's fourth, and last, OASA win came from the power-"A"'s in '57 with other provincial winners including "AA" in 1956, intermediate "A" in '56 and a Junior "A" championship in '45.

Meads gained their finals berth the hard way, staging a 13-13 comeback win over Barrie Sunday after bending down 4-2 in the opening game. It was the fifth series sweep for Belleville en route to their title shot as they ousted Napanee, Peterborough, Fabian and Oshawa before blitzing Barrie. The team has lost only three games this season in eight tournaments.

Pitching and defence have been the big assets Herb Coltman's club, although they weren't evident in their last 12-13 win. A better indication of Meads play this season is this five tournament titles they've won in seven tourney appearances. In addition to the wins in Richmond Hill, Oshawa and Markham they managed to win the "B" section at Bobcaygeon. They were A champions as well, at the Belleville Squirt Tournament in June.

Six players from this year's team have a special interest in capping provincial honors. They were members of the 1971 SACO entry that was ousted by North Bendale in the semi-final round.

The starting Belleville infield includes Bob Hagen at first, Ron Begley at second, John Henry at third and Andy Rozell in shortstop. Darrelle Coltman will be handling the catching for Rozell and Tim Soule.

Meads will begin finals play on Saturday, Sept. 30 with the opening game at the Alemite. The second encounter will be October 7 in either Sarnia or Grantham.

Waite Needs Bounce Despite No-hitter

Ted Waite was using his head Monday night, as was Dwight Rathwell. The result was a 1-0 win for Rollins in the opening game of the Commercial Softball League finals.

Waite mixed his pitches almost perfectly to record a no-hitter through seven innings. However it took a weird bounce, off Rathwell's head, to give Rollins the win.

The Rollins moundsman and Sinod Ehlker of Howard and Robert were locked in a scoreless duel until the bottom of the eighth. Wayne McTaggart managed a successful steal of third before Al Ferguson flied out to centre for the first to second on the play. Third baseman Ehlker threw it through to second in an attempt to nail Ferguson but Rathwell and not Robert shortstop on the cranium, bringing McTaggart home with the game's only run.

It was a tough three-hit loss for Ehlker. Both harlers struck out a dozen batters in the course of the nine - inning game. Waite allowed three walks, while Ehlker gave up two free passes, one of them intentional.

Hitting safely for the winners were Ralph Place, McTaggart and Waite, all with singles. Second game in the best-of-seven series is scheduled for 8 p.m. Thursday at the Alemite.

The winner for Rollins is set for a crucial OASA meeting with Grantham tonight. The Constantinonen dropped the opening game of their Intermediate "AA" series 3-1 in Barrie Saturday and face possible elimination in tonight's 6.15 tilt at the Alemite.

Hildebrand in Lacrosse Hall

VANCOUVER (CP) — Three of the most prolific scorers in lacrosse history headed the five premier list of 16 of the sport's most greats who were inducted into the Canadian Lacrosse Hall of Fame Monday.

Jackie Nothrop, who starred for 16 seasons with New Westminster Adanacs and Victoria Shamrocks; Ted Bradbury, a colorful and determined performer for Adanacs before and after the Second World War; and Joe Hildebrand, who started his 18-season career with New Westminster Salmonbellies in 1901 before moving to Ontario to star with Mimico and Peterborough, were honored along with seven others at the seventh annual Lacrosse Hall of Fame dinner.

The other 1972 inductees are, from the West, Jimmy Gent of Vancouver representing field lacrosse, although he also gained national reputation as a box lacrosse referee; Dr. T. S. Pervett of Vancouver, in the builder category; and George Friend of New Westminster, who trained Salmonbellies for many years, also in the builder category.

Joining Hildebrand from the East are: Bill Mollis of Brampton, Ont., box lacrosse; Neil Felker of Toronto, field; and Colin Crisdale of Cornwall and Edwin Landon of Wallaceburg, Ont., both builders.

West Leads

NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C. (CP) — The strong New Westminster Salmonbellies came up with a big effort in defeating Bradford Warriors 13-8 Sunday in the opening game of the best-of-seven Mann Cup senior lacrosse final, but both coaches are expecting a tighter game Monday.

The Salmonbellies had just come out of a tough seven-game series with Vancouver Burrards to win the right to represent Western Canada in the senior final and were playing their third game in as many nights Sunday.

The Salmonbellies started quickly and opened up a 10-3 lead in the second period before tiring and allowing the Ontario club to come back.

The Salmonbellies are hungry for a win against the Warriors, having lost two straight to Brantford in last year's Mann Cup final.

PCO's 3 Up

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP) — A play devised in the dressing room at the end of the second period was instrumental in Peterborough's PCO's 15-11 victory over Richmond Road Runners in the Canadian Junior A lacrosse championship here Monday.

The win gave PCOs a 3-0 stranglehold over the British Columbia team in the best-of-seven series for the Minto Cup. The fourth game will be played here Wednesday.

Brampton Wins

BRAMPTON, Ont. (CP) — Brampton Excelsiors opened the President's Cup series with a 21-18 win over a tired New Westminster Blues Monday as the Canadian senior lacrosse championships got underway.

The Blues, who arrived only four hours before the game, were outplayed throughout but still showed signs that the series is far from over.

Trevino Near Rich Encore

NEW YORK (AP) — Lee Trevino, winner of the $30,000 top prize in the St. Louis Golf Classic Sunday, has moved closer to a second straight $200,000 season on the pro tour.

Trevino's third tour victory of the season has pushed his earnings this year to $300,166, the Tournament Players Division of the Professional Golfers Association announced Monday.

No changes took place among the top 10 money-winners. Jack Nicklaus, idle last week, remained in first place with winnings of $300,662. George Archer, who tied for third at St. Louis, ranked third with $249,166.

Huck Has Photo Finish

KINGSTON (Special) — Ambro Huck was willing to stick with a winning formula in the second division of the $2,000 Glen Lawrence Construction Invitational pace at Frontenac Downs Sunday.

The eight-year-old pacer edged Bret Flicks in a photo finish similar to his win by last week's first dividend race. Paul Barkley guided Ambro Huck to an identical 2:02.4 performance, matching his own track record.

Norm Jones was a second with Bret Flicks. He also won the first race with Nia Ros Susie and the sixth with Armored Mac.

The daily double of Nia Ros Susie and Wee Sister returned $17.76. Other race winners were Warspite (third), Lil Buck (fourth), Hiland Jimmy (fifth), Nibbles L a s s (seventh), Phillaurie (eighth), and RB Dikon (tenth.

Waldheim Wants UN To Combat Terrorism

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — A plea from Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim to act on international terrorism, big-power conflict on Korea and Bangladesh and renewed money worries against the UN opened the 27th session of the General Assembly opening today.

The question of pollution of the world's environment is also expected to be a major topic of delegates from 132 countries begin a three-month meeting.

Foreign Minister Adam Malik of Indonesia, president of the 1971 assembly, is to begin the new session at 3 p.m. EDT and Deputy Foreign Minister Stanislaw Trepczynski of Poland will be elected president of this year's session.

Trepczynski is the unopposed candidate of Eastern Europe, which gets the presidency this year under the council's rotating system.

With him on the podium will be Austrian Kurt Waldheim, the new secretary-general, and Bradford Morse, a new undersecretary-general for assembly affairs.

Canada will have a new ambassador this year to Saul F. Rae, who has replaced Yvon Beaulne. Rae was Canadian ambassador to Mexico from 1967 until his appointment here this year and previously served as Canada's representative at the UN's Geneva offices.

The assembly will devote most of its first three weeks to a general policy debate for foreign ministers and other heads of delegations.

External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp of Canada will address the assembly Sept. 28 and is expected to meet several foreign ministers during his one-day stay.

Among the most difficult questions facing this assembly is an appeal from Waldheim to find "measures to prevent terrorism and other forms of violence which endanger or take innocent human lives or jeopardize fundamental freedoms."

Waldheim, enraged at the Munich killing of Israel's Olympic athletes, submitted the appeal on his own initiative, asking the UN "cannot be a mute spectator" to the growing wave of terrorism.

A preview of the difficulties the assembly will meet came in the last week in the Security Council. The Soviet Union and China vetoed attempts to link the Munich killings with "the reprisal" strikes that Israel launched against Syria and Lebanon. The United States then cast a veto, only its second ever in the council, to block a resolution it said made no mention of terrorism in calling for a Middle East ceasefire.

Waldheim has submitted a broad request which would cover kidnappings of diplomats and other attacks.

Indians Must Pay Income Tax On Money Earned Off Reserve

OTTAWA (CP) — Indians must pay income tax on money they earn off their reserves, the revenue department says in one of a series of interpretation bulletins.

Income Indians earn on the reserve is exempt from taxes the bulletin adds.

A spokesman for the department said Monday that the bulletin does not represent any change in taxation policies.

But George Manuel, president of the National Indian Brotherhood, says it as an answer to a resolution passed last month by the brotherhood's general assembly.

The assembly agreed that all income earned by Canada's 250,000 registered Indians should be tax-free. It said that Indians have earned this favored position by giving up title to their lands.

The national brotherhood as well as several provincial brotherhoods now are in a dispute with the revenue department over the tax status of their employees.

The 28 employees of the national brotherhood are not paying income taxes on grounds they are providing a service to Indians on reserves. But, the brotherhood is putting aside in trust the taxes the revenue department says is due to it.

Officials of the Ontario Union of Indians say they will go to jail rather than pay income tax.

The brotherhood themselves are non-profit groups and not liable for taxes.

Inflation Controls Advocated

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Chamber of Commerce agreed Monday that the government should have a contingency plan for imposition of price and wage controls to combat periods of serious inflation.

But the chamber, the voice of business across Canada, sidestepped for a time at least a suggestion that inflation already has reached a crisis stage and that such controls should be applied now.

The Greater Victoria Chamber of Commerce argued that controls should be applied now, "not as a permanent feature of Canadian economic life but as a means of immediately controlling further inflation while an acceptable solution is found to regulate wages and prices in such a way as to be non-inflationary."

Victoria's resolution was sent to the chamber's national directors for further consideration.

The chamber stand, as approved at a policy session of the annual convention, is that controls are unlikely to succeed "unless a real crisis exists and unless there's a national consensus in their favor."

But it said the government should have a standby plan for use under such conditions.

Terry Farmer, president of the Victoria chamber, said his group feels a crisis situation already exists.

"When hundreds of thousands of Canadian people on fixed incomes find their money devalued by inflation to the point where they are living a substandard existence.

"When a businessman is forced to raise prices of his services or products to meet increased costs and finds he has priced himself out of business;

"When the rate of inflation continues at a level in excess of four per cent, and yet unemployment continues at record high levels;

"When labor unions can demand and obtain increases twice as high as the rise in cost of living.

"We have reached a crisis situation."

Bahamians Vote Today

NASSAU (AP) — Bahamians elect a new government today after a campaign marred by violence and fought over the issues of independence from Britain and a faltering economy.

At stake is the fate of the first black Bahamian government in history and the 700-island country's future course in foreign affairs, its own defence and the attraction of foreign investment.

Voters decide whether to return Prime Minister Lynn Pindling and his Progressive Liberal party to office or give the Free National Movement, a combination of dissident PLP members and the old white-dominated United Bahamian party—the needed majority of 18 assembly seats to form a new government.

"The PLP has adopted an anti-foreign attitude which has damaged this country immeasurably," said Arthur Foulkes, a former Pindling associate, who has become one of the administration's harshest critics.

Lewis Gives NDP View

Separatist Win Would Not Be Final Verdict on Quebec

MONTREAL (CP) — The new Democratic Party rejected the use of force to keep Canada together, NDP Leader David Lewis said Monday.

But Mr. Lewis made clear, at a news conference and on a further open-line radio program, that he would not accept election of the separatist Parti Quebecois as a final decision by Quebecers to separate from Canada.

The NDP leader, here for a day of election campaigning concluded between stops in the Maritimes and the West, was questioned by reporters on the separatism issue and relations of the federal NDP with its Quebec wing.

Mr. Lewis maintained that his differences with Quebec party leaders touching on separatism had been "regularized".

The differences arose over the program of the Quebec party, made public in June, which Mr. Lewis repudiated on grounds that it laid too much stress on the possibility of Quebec independence and delegated too many powers to the provinces.

A revised program, drawn up by Quebec NDPers Sept. 19 but not yet made public, was accepted by Mr. Lewis as representing a commitment to keep Canada together.

"The basic disagreement on the question of one Canada was resolved," Mr. Lewis told the news conference, which was attended by Quebec NDP President Raymond Laliberte.

Published reports have said the revised provincial program states that it is at provincial elections, not federal, that "Quebecers should demonstrate their wishes with regard to independence."

Asked Monday whether this accurately reflected his own view, Mr. Lewis said his understanding was that the statement says instead that the independence issue is being "argued in Quebec on a provincial level."

Mr. Lewis said earlier that he had not seen the revised version of the offending passages, but they had been read to him over the telephone and he agreed with their "tone".

He denied that he had shown "hesitancy and vagueness" in dealing with the question in order to avoid a split between the federal and Quebec parties.

"The differences have been regulated and have disappeared. The new program is acceptable," he said.

Mr. Lewis said his party believes that Canada can be kept together by reason. "I reject the idea of force to keep it together.

"But the mere election of the Parti Quebecois in Quebec would not spell to me a decision on the question of separation."

Mr. Lewis said on the radio program—and repeated at the later news conference—that he would not rule out the idea of a referendum to help determine Quebec's wishes. However, he intimated that he had no great enthusiasm for the idea.

PC Organizers Are Unhappy With CBC Coverage to Date

VICTORIA (CP) — Organizers of Robert Stanfield's campaign for the Oct. 30 federal election are unhappy with coverage by CBC Television during the first week of the campaign. They have been particularly irked by the differences between the way CBC is handling Prime Minister Trudeau's campaign forays and the treatment given the Conservative leader.

A spokesman said Monday the dissatisfaction started right after Mr. Stanfield opened the campaign in his native Nova Scotia early last week. After watching the CBC National news Sunday night, he said he thinks some of the complaints have registered with the corporation and things are improving.

The only items used nationally by CBC from Mr. Stanfield's Nova Scotia tour in Halifax, Sydney and Yarmouth were film clips of him during his formal speeches—with no indications of the crowds or how his statements were received. Nothing was used on such things as his "malnutrition" in his Halifax riding.

The Sunday night CBC news showed film taken Saturday as Mr. Stanfield travelled by bus through the southern Saskatchewan grain belt. The film caught the flavor of these small meetings, where Mr. Stanfield usually gives a short statement and then circulates among the people, shaking hands and chatting.

A spokesman said this was "a heck of a lot better" than the coverage seen before

Not Matter For Quebec Alone--PCs

MONTREAL (CP) — La Presse says Progressive Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield has rejected the theory that Quebec by itself has the right to decide on separation from the rest of Canada.

The newspaper says that in an interview in Fort QuAppelle, Sask., during the weekend, Mr. Stanfield said that Canadians have lived together for more than a century and the other provinces have an interest in the question of Quebec's independence.

The PC leader is quoted as saying the question of separatism is only a hypothesis and rejecting the possibility of Quebecers deciding on separation by referendum.

"We have made certain agreements together and we have a life to live together."

Northern Is Under Lewis Fire

MONTREAL (CP) — Continuing his attack on what he calls the "corporate welfare system," New Democratic Party Leader David Lewis said Monday Northern Electric has laid off nearly 3,000 workers in 1½ years while receiving more than $36 million in government grants.

At the same time, Mr. Lewis told a news conference, Northern Electric has paid an effective tax rate of 9.8 per cent and enjoyed $14.1 million in tax deferrals.

Mr. Lewis said that of the 4,925 workers laid off by Northern Electric a wholly-owned subsidiary of Bell Canada—3,300 were in Quebec. The figures did not include further layoffs at the company's suburban Lachine plant announced last week.

The grants to Northern Electric came under four dife ent federal programs, the largest being $23,790,311 for defence industry production, and over-lapping government programs.

"In addition, a Northern Electric subsidiary, Microsystems International, received an interest-free loan of $12 million from the federal treasury in July 1969.

"In a gesture of thanks to the Canadian taxpayer, Microsystems announced in May 1970 that they had built a new assembly plant in Masaya, about the same time 50 people were laid off in Ottawa where Microsystems has an assembly plant."

A spokesman for Northern Electric said Mr. Lewis is currently waging a political campaign, but we have no interest in adding any fuel to his political fires."

"The figures he quotes with regard to employment at Northern are accurate, but they have been public information for some time."

What the Stars Say

By JEANE DIXON

Aries (March 21-April 19): Improve your public image and your income level! Important people are more open to suggestion than usual. Be flattered while shopping.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): A seldom-noticed facet of human nature is there for your education. Whether you look among strangers or familiars. Be alert.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Inspiration comes from distant sources, perhaps in religious rituals. Sharing plans with family brings possible conflicts to be resolved to light.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): It's an excellent time for coming to terms with neighbors, making arrangements, but not for starting a major venture or a new job.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): There is no easy way out. Either discretion requires definite choices, diligent effort. An early start helps if you can't have some time alone.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Be ready with a coherent opinion on expected questions. Real estate or property deals or contracts are favored.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Settle misunderstandings with other people. Decisions on business or work problems may have to be reached without delay.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21): Prompt response to communication is your key to success in business. Collaboration is more from you and less from others.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Share your favorite sports or pastimes with others of like interests. Entertainment brings favorable side benefits.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Be content with an average day and moderate results. Your activities should include a look at yourself and your habits.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Bringing others into your planning might not be the wisest course. If you must do so, wait until the last minute.

To Your Good Health

Victim of Angina Unlikely to Faint

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My regular checkup showed, I have angina pectoris. I am taking my medication and feel fine, but my friends tell me that the author I can expect fainting spells or blackouts and should not drive a car.

I read everything I see on heart conditions but have not seen any mention of blackouts. Am I worrying needlessly? — R. B.

Another case of the calamity writers trying to scare us all much they know — but actually succeeding in showing how much they don't.

Faintness and blackouts can occur with an original attack, but they are not common, and many friends are not content to themselves in the facts when they say you can "expect" them.

It is true that, if you use nitroglycerin pills when you have attacks, you may momentarily feel giddy and flushed, but that is a far cry from fainting or having a blackout.

I would judge that you are indeed worrying needlessly. To set your mind at rest, next time you see your doctor, ask him about driving. If he sees some other reason why you should curtail your driving, or stop, so be it. But if he sees no reason to stop driving, be guided by what he says instead of what your friends say.

Incidentally nervous tension under certain circumstances while driving (or nervous tension when not driving (sometimes) but not varicose.

It is not unusual for second-story varicose veins to appear following a stripping operation, but these are usually superficial and can be corrected by injections.

However, the tissue breakdown may imply trouble in the deeper veins and should be investigated. Local treatment of the skin breakdown also is in order — and possibly supportive hosiery may be necessary.

Opening lead—five of spades

All kinds of oddities occurred in the Olympiad. Every hand each session was played at 38 tables, and inevitably there were occasional flights of fancy in the bidding or play that either led to irregular results or became the basis for amusing — sometimes hair-raising — tales.

Thus, there was this deal played by Pete and Switzerland. The Peruvian South got to three notrump and Jean Besse, famed international star, led a spade.

Declarer took the ace and—realizing that if the diamonds were divided 3-3 the contract could not be stopped — led a low club to the queen.

East won with the ace and shifted to the jack of hearts, which declarer ducked—Besse signaling with the four. Declarer next ducked the king, on which Besse played the two, and took the next heart lead with the ace.

Having lost three tricks—and aware that West had the queen of hearts — declarer decided to lead a low diamond and duck it into East's hand so as to overcome a 4-1 diamond division if that was the condition that existed.

Accordingly, he led the deuce of diamonds. When Besse played the four, declarer played the three from dummy so that East would be forced to win the trick. But East was unable to oblige, for he had no diamonds, and Besse found himself unexpectedly winning the trick with the four of d'amonds! He quickly cashed the queen of hearts to put South down one.

Of course, Besse should have reached for nine instead of the four, and declarer should have played dummy's seven, not the three, but the fact is that neither of them did.

However, par on the hand—down one at three notrump—was achieved, though in a peculiar manner. Homer nodded not once but twice, but the odds cancelled each other out.

Tomorrow: Great Britain vs. Italy.

Kingston Professor Appeals

EDMONTON (CP) — City travel agent Bob Neville could have been murdered by an Italian, defence lawyer Cameron Steer told the Alberta Supreme Court of Appeal Monday.

The court was hearing the first day of the appeal against the non-capital murder conviction of Kingston, Ont., professor Louis Lalla, 44. The appeal hearing is expected to last all week.

Mr. Neville, a separate school trustee, was found shot to death on the floor of his travel agency June 13, 1971.

Mr. Steer also told the jury wrapped in a sketch of the downtown area which was let-

The key inside the map was for a union list depot locker where a map of Italy and a newspaper, bearing Lalla's fingerprints, were found by police.

Mr. Steer is attempting to introduce "new evidence" from an expert witness that the map could only have been inscribed by an Italian or by someone with an intimate knowledge of the language. Evidence at the original trial indicated Lalla doesn't speak Italian.

However, Mr. Justice H. C. Johnson, one of five judges on the appeal bench, said the evidence now available at the time of the trial and therefore was not admissible at the appeal.

Mr. Steer also is attempting to introduce further "new evidence" by way of an affidavit from Harry K'Capence, a representative of London Life Insurance Co. in Kingston.

Evidence at the trial indicated Lalla stood to gain $75,000 insurance money if Mr. Neville, his former partner in Neville World Travel Services Ltd., died an unnatural death.

Again, Mr. Justice Johnson didn't agree that the Italian's affidavit qualified as new evidence.

Mr. Steer also argued that Chief Trial Justice J. V. H. Milvain's definition of "reasonable doubt" in his charge to the jury was incorrect.

New Friends Seen After Leader's Job

WELLAND, Ont. (CP) — A forlorn-end battle for leadership of the federal Progressive Conservative party is causing former Liberals to join the Tories, Robert Stanbury, minister of communications, said Monday night.

"Frankly, I don't think I would feel too comfortable if I were (Conservative Leader) Robert Stanfield," Mr. Stanbury told about 500 at a Liberal nomination meeting in Welland riding.

"How would you feel, with Paul Hellyer on your left, Allan Lawrence on your right, and Claude Wagner crowding on the rear," asked Mr. Stanbury. "They are leaders in search of a party."

Heavy Water Need

Atomic Energy Pleas Likely to Be Resisted

OTTAWA (CP) — Demands by Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd. that the government start shortly on new heavy water plants are expected to be resisted by the science ministry.

A recent science ministry study favours nearly quadrupling AECL recommendation for work to start on the new plants within 18 months.

The study says no new production facilities are needed until the 1980s for heavy water, used in producing nuclear-generated power. That would mean deferring a decision on more production capacity for two years or more.

The study has not yet been made public.

Science ministry sources say the need now is one's consultation with AECL, a Crown corporation, and the department of energy, mines and resources.

It is known that the study also recommends any new heavy water production plant being be based on a new manufacturing process.

In this respect, the science ministry study is in step with last week's AECL announcement of an agreement with Polymer Corp., Ltd. to work on two such new methods.

Polymer, another Crown agency, is to take the lead in development work and build and operate experimental facilities at Sarnia.

"Expenditures in the order of $2 million to $3 million a year are expected if the processes being developed continue to appear attractive," AECL said last week.

As well, the science ministry study recommends a decision be made now on construction of a new large-scale nuclear power plant that uses heavy water only as a moderator and not as a coolant, too.

Canada has developed its own nuclear power reactor, the Canada—for Canadian deuterium-uranium—which uses natural uranium as fuel and heavy water to slow down the speed of neutrons released during fission of uranium atoms.

This allows uranium new uses to maintain a self-perpetuating chain reaction, producing continuous heat to operate steam turbines and thus produce electricity.

As well, in most Canadian reactors, the heavy water is used to absorb heat from the fission and help convert ordinary water to steam.

Heavy water occurs naturally, but only in a ratio of about one part in 7,000 parts of a given of ordinary water.

It looks and even tastes just the same as ordinary water but it weighs about 10 per cent more and is about 33 times as efficient a moderator for nuclear fission.

Heavy water now is separated from ordinary water with the aid of hydrogen sulphide, AECL sources say.

Two new processes planned at the Sarnia plant have potential advantages of lower capital costs, lower energy consumption, smaller equipment, less corrosion and no need to use hydrogen sulphide, a AECL news release said.

AECL has 17 nuclear reactors either operating, under construction or committed by 1975, but these have been plagued by shortages of water.

J. Lorne Grey, AECL president, told a Commons committee earlier this year that an extra $30 million has been paid since 1966 to run plants despite short water.

More than 2,300 tons have been supplied by nuclear plants in Canada including the U.S., the Soviet Union and Britain, AECL said.

Costs run about $30 a pound higher than prices expected if Canadian plants had been operating as scheduled.

Canada's shortages were compounded by failure of a heavy water plant at Glace Bay, N.S., to go into production as scheduled in 1968. The plant, originally built by Deuterium of Canada, Ltd., a private firm, was taken over by the government and never has been licensed to AECL.

It now is expected to be operating by 1975.

There also have been problems with a plant at the Canadian General Electric plant at Port Hawkesbury, N.S., now operating at 85 per cent capacity.

An AECL plant near Kincardine, Ont., is expected to be operating late this year—"if labor disputes with Ontario Hydro are settled," says an AECL source.

L. R. Hayward, vice-president of AECL, said in July that new heavy water plants will be required by 1985.

Half the power needs will be supplied by nuclear plants within 30 years, he said. And it also is a growing market overseas for nuclear reactors, which Canada can supply if it can guarantee supplies of heavy water, he said.

Reactors have been sold to Japan and Pakistan. AECL is bidding to supply a Candu reactor to Argentina and hopes that month it will submit a proposal to Taiwan.

AECL is bidding Links with Quebec Hydro on the possibility of a 600,000-kilowatt plant near the present Gentilly nuclear power station and a decision is expected in a month or two, sources say.

Levesque Says Army Labor Spy

MONTREAL (CP) — René Levesque, Parti Québécois MNA, said Monday the Canadian Armed Forces has a file on the political activities of a Montreal labor leader.

A defence department spokesman confirmed the file on the Confederation of National Trade Unions was already a compilation of what had appeared in "public sources" such as news reports.

He denied that any segment of the Canadian military establishment directly collects information of the kind contained in the document released by Mr. Levesque at a news conference.

Need U.S. Markets to Finance Development

TORONTO (CP) — The development and marketing of natural gas from Canada's North is possible only if large-scale markets open up in the United States, a Toronto consulting economist said Monday.

E. C. Sivewright told delegates to the Canadian Chemical Engineering Conference that marketing of frontier gas from the Mackenzie Delta will require costly pipelines.

The northern pipelines are economically feasible on the basis of the annual movement of one trillion cubic feet of natural gas, he said. However, this volume represents Canada's total annual gas needs.

He said experts of Canadian oil and gas to the U.S. currently represent less than five per cent of the U.S. supply.

Mr. Sivewright said a key fear of U.S. energy officials restricts the supply of energy.

"If we are to maintain exports to the U.S. at current levels and achieve any significant increase, synthetic and frontier oil will be needed in a few years," he said.

George Bevan, general manager of corporate planning, Shell Canada Ltd., Toronto, said Canada may be the only country to have exportable energy surplus during the next 30 years when the world's consumption of energy could triple.

The greater demand will result in a five-fold increase in oil exports from Middle East countries, he said.

"The implications of this are sweeping for ship-building and port construction facilities," he said. The world's tanker fleet would have to be doubled by 1980, he suggested.

Sewage Disposal Program Poor

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail reports that an inquiry group appointed by the federal government says that sewage disposal in Canada is seriously under-financed, often badly planned and waste, millions of litres.

It says the report, submitted to Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. in December, 1970, warns that at current rates of capital spending on treatment systems, "the over-all quality of the environment is deteriorating and regressing."

"At this rate, even a rudimentary level of water quality will never be achieved nationwide," the newspaper quotes the report as saying.

15 Senior Citizen Units Recommended in Madoc

MADOC (Special) — Madoc Village Councillor Kel Kincaid announced that a report has been received from the Ontario Housing Corporation recommending the development of 15 one-bedroom senior citizen units in the village.

In 1969 application was made through Vern Burnside, the reeve at that time, and C. T. Rollins, Hastings MPP and the council, for a survey of the need and demand for senior citizen housing to be carried out in the village. The response to this survey was insufficient to justify the construction of any units in the municipality. In April, 1971, the council and Reeve T. C. Barton requested that OHC conduct a second survey of need and demand for Ontario housing for senior citizens.

Over 80 questionnaires were mailed from the municipality during May to persons over the age of 60 listed on the assessment rolls. Those persons who had returned their questionnaires by July 1 were considered in the survey.

On the basis of the information given in their report, OHC made the recommendation.

The 1971 assessed population of Madoc was 1,251 and 12.5 per cent increase since 1966. In 1970 persons over the age of 65 comprised 13.5 per cent of the total population, as compared with 14.8 per cent in 1966. The provincial average for senior citizens in 1970 was 12.7 per cent.

Single-detached houses formed 71.2 per cent of the 1966 housing stock as listed in the census, and 17 per cent were apartments. There are a few small apartment buildings but the majority of rental units are of converted houses.

Of the 13 persons contacted in the survey, 11 were considered very interested and needy. Also, one of the persons who could not be contacted was considered as very interested and needy from the information given on his questionnaire. Thus there is a clear effective demand for 15 senior citizen units in the Village of Madoc.

Of the 14 persons contacted and found to be very interested and needy 12 were single and two were couples. Two of the single persons and one of the couples receive less than $200 per month income. Only two were homeowners. Three of the single persons and one couple are living in rooms. Eight of the 14 heat with a space heater and one has only a wood stove and no hydro. One of the couples and one single person use an outdoor toilet. One couple and three single persons shared bath-room facilities. Present rents range from $20 a month to $90 a month. The average Ontario Housing rents would be $62 a month for couples and $41 a month for single persons.

Each of the units to be built will contain a kitchenette, living room, bedroom, bathroom and storage room. One large laundry room and a recreation room with a kitchen will be included in the one-level building. Rent may run as low as $38 a month, and will be calculated on a geared-to-income basis. Included in the rent is heat, hydro, water and sewer; leaving the tenant only the telephone and food to pay for.

The council was generally disappointed that more citizens did not interest in this project, as not only will the senior citizens be receiving much better living accommodations with more conveniences at a lower rent rate than most of them are now paying, but the municipality will also benefit. It is the responsibility of OHC to purchase the property and they will also own the building. With this, OHC will be assessed and will pay taxes on their property the same as any other village homeowner.

As the village now has 11 interested and needy applicants, it is evident that if senior citizens from the surrounding municipalities of Marmora, Huntingdon and Rawdon Township wish to take advantage of this housing, the proposed 15 units would be inadequate. However, these municipalities were approached by letter from the village council invited them to show their interest. Village Clerk, Miss O. G. Ashe, said that approximately rural municipalities are not eligible for their own OHC development. The township mentioned are required to pass a resolution in council that a request be made to OHC to conduct a survey in each of their municipalities to determine their need for such, and if enough interest is shown, then expansion will be necessary on the Madoc Village development.

Councillor Kincaid, on talking to MPP Charles Rollins, pointed out that in the not too distant future this development for senior citizen housing could exceed 75 units in Madoc, once the people see the units and are properly informed on its advantages. He pointed out, however, that the initial 15 units will be a credit to this community.

A site for the building of the units is still under consideration by the council. Mr. Rollins said he hopes construction will begin this fall.

Larger Tickets Coming

Frank Becker, supervisor of passenger sales for Canadian National Railways holds the new tickets that will be used by CN beginning Nov. 1. The larger ticket enables a closer check to be made on passenger loads using a computer analysis of ticket stubs. No increase in cost will result from the new tickets nor should there be any drastic schedule changes as a result of the ticket.

Girl Makes History

TRENTON (Staff) — Trenton's first woman letter carrier had a short-lived career of seven days, but she may be back for a return engagement.

Earlier this month, the Trenton Post Office, hard-pressed for new carriers, put part-time postal sorter Debbie Hansen on the street with a mail bag over her shoulder.

The 18 - year - old Roseland Acres resident pleased post office officials, who informed The Intelligencer today, "she did an excellent job".

But school beckoned and Debbie turned in her mail bag for school books. Officials report she worked for only two days, but when the workload increases . . . especially at Christmas and Easter, she may be called back.

Miss Hansen, who has worked as a sorter during Christmas rushes, is a grade 13 student at East Northumberland Secondary School.

CN Rail Tickets To Be Computerized

A new ticket to be introduced by Canadian National Railways Nov. 1 will not affect cost or service to the customer but provide the means for closer scrutiny of traffic flows and peak passenger service times, says Frank Becker, supervisor of passenger sales.

The multi - part ticket, larger in format and clearly resembling an airline pass, allows one portion to be sent to a computer while the remaining portion carried by the passenger is collected and retained by the conductor.

Tickets will no longer be punched.

Once the computer portion has been programmed, the second portion from the conductor is matched to it.

Mr. Becker said this morning, "in this manner we can determine exactly where customers are loading and unloading and we can create a realistic picture of day - to - day trends."

The purpose of the exercise is to distribute trains where they are most needed, making for a more efficient system.

In the old system this was a difficult task, he said.

"From time to time we would thoroughly check passenger statistics and try to establish when the peak hours were and provide trains, he said.

"There was no way of knowing that one day in the week would be the same as the corresponding day in the following week from a survey taken much earlier," he said. "Now we will have a continuous picture from the computer."

Belleville, sales personnel will begin a training period in the next two weeks to prepare for the switch.

Case Could Set Precedent

No longer can government department heads retire employees between the ages of 60 and 65 without giving a reason, a Public Service Alliance of Canada release declared Friday.

The statement was commenting on a Federal Court of Appeal ruling last Thursday, on the case of John Robertson of Belleville, who was dismissed last year from his job in the customs and excise branch of the department of national revenue.

The ruling, by Chief Justice W. R. Jackett, said that an order-in-council passed by the federal Cabinet in 1968 giving deputy ministers the discretion to retire public servants at 60 was beyond the Cabinet's powers.

The PSAC said the Public Service Superannuation Act was a "method prescribed" for governments to get rid of employees between the ages of 60 and 65 without having to justify to an independent tribunal their reasons for such dismissal.

Mr. Robertson was a collection officer in the Belleville federal building when he was told in January, 1971 that he would be retired six months later at the age of 61.

Using PSAC counsel, he sought reinstatement in the Federal Court's trial division where a judge found in his favor.

The government then appealed to the court's appeal division, the decision of which was announced Thursday.

The Crown has 60 days to which to appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada.

There is much appeal in made. Mr. Robertson will be reinstated effective on the date he was dismissed. He will be entitled to receive back pay for the time he is away, less his earnings as a temporary clerk with the Unemployment Insurance Commission.

Pleased with the decision, Mr. Robertson said: "I'm only the guy in the middle. I'm lucky for an alleged lack of competence, not for reason of age as stated by the customs and excise deputy minister in his dismissal notice. The minister claimed PSAC received his information from Mr. Robertson's supervisor.

The alliance felt Mr. Robertson should have been given an opportunity to defend himself before an appeal board established by this public service commission.

The department, however, refused to allow the Belleville man an opportunity to defend himself before a neutral authority and chose instead to terminate his employment under a section of the same commission act that did not allow Mr. Robertson the right to a hearing.

A spokesman for the PSAC did not know how many persons are in the same predicament as Mr. Robertson. The union expects to hear from many of them in the near future.

Test cases designed to find out the effect of Chief Justice Jackett's ruling will be brought in, the PSAC statement said.

It added that apart from questions of reinstatement and damages, one of the greatest benefits that might accrue would be improvement in superannuation allowances.

Medical Centre Meeting Tonight

MADOC (Special) — Tonight everyone will have an opportunity to meet with the Medical Centre Directors to view the building plans and to discuss the progress to date.

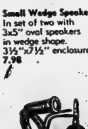
The decision to hold this public meeting was made following a joint meeting of the Madoc Kinsmen Club and the Medical Centre Directors last Monday evening at the Kinsmen Centre. Several questions were raised by the Kinsmen and it was felt that many people in the area would like a chance to see the plans and talk matters out with the directors.

Accordingly, the public is invited to attend an open meeting at 8:00 p.m. in the Kinsmen Centre.

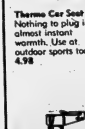
Other business completed at last week's meeting included the signing of the legal papers incorporating the Centre Hastings Medical Centre; discussion with the Kinsmen regarding the legal transfer of the building site; future canvassing plans; and other fund-raising undertakings.

Tom Sandford presented the directors with a cheque for $1,700, being the initial contribution of a $5,000 pledge from the membership of the Madoc Branch and the Women's Auxiliary of the Royal Canadian Legion No. 382. This cheque, along with other contributions from Madoc and area, raised the fund total to over $13,000 for the week. Canvassing is still continuing and is not expected to be completed 'until the end of the month. donations may still be turned in to the Toronto - Dominion Bank Madoc, until the end of the month.

Following receipt of the centre's charter, applications may be made to the federal income tax department for designation as a charitable organization and, when this has been received, official receipts for income tax purposes may be issued.



The directors wish to publically express their appreciation to the Kinsmen Club of Madoc for their invitation to dinner last week; for the donation of the property'site for the building and for their efforts to raise building funds on their behalf.



It is only with the full support of the public and their organizations that such a venture could be successfully completed. The directors were informed that additional inquiries from practitioners have been received and this, of course, was the prime motivation for the undertaking.

Letter-bombs Sent To Sixteen Israelis

Quebec Bomb Found

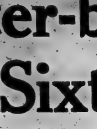
MONTREAL (CP)
The Montreal police bomb disposal squad defused a letter bomb today in a city park after removing it from the Israel consulate where it was discovered by Consul Pinchas Shaanan.

Mr. Shaanan said the letter arrived in the mail today and was addressed to him. It bore a Dutch postmark, he said.

"It was like one of those that hit Israel. It was addressed to me personally. It contained explosives so we gave it to the police bomb disposal squad and they took it away."

The consul said the letter was a "small regular letter with an airmail sticker on it."

"It was a normal white envelope but it was a little thicker than normal. I realized immediately it must be one of those letters so I gave it to the police."



Detective-Sergeant Robert Cote of the anti-terrorist bomb squad said the bomb was transferred to a park about two miles from the McGregor Avenue consulate.

The letter bomb was the first such device discovered in North America since the current spate of mailing explosive devices to Israeli offices began.

Players' Wives Off to Moscow

TORONTO (CP) — Two jet planes full of support for Team Canada, who start a four-game hockey series against Russia Friday, took off from Toronto for Moscow Tuesday night.

The jets carried 191 persons, the wives of the hockey players, guests, and a group of university students.

Device Like Those Used on Viet Cong

LONDON (CP) — Ingenious letter bombs, similar to the one that killed an Israeli diplomat in his London embassy Tuesday, were mailed to more than a dozen Israeli officials in London, Paris, Geneva, Jerusalem and Montreal.

Eight letter bombs were discovered in London, two in Paris, three in Geneva and two in Jerusalem, including one addressed to Israeli Transport Minister Shimon Peres, and one in Montreal. Bomb experts rendered them harmless.

The exact nature of the explosive was not known. All eight bombs found in London were in buff-colored envelopes, measuring about six inches by three inches, slightly thicker than normal letters. They were addressed by hand to various individuals at the embassy.

Police said all the mail bomb envelopes were sent to Scotland Yard for checking by bomb-disposal experts. Photostat copies of the handwritten addresses were sent to authorities in Amsterdam, the Netherlands, and police forces throughout Europe in a bid to trace the bombers.

Sources reported the letter bombs found in London contained thin strips of plastic explosive sandwiched between two thick sheets of cardboard.

The devices — reckoned by experts to be the most sophisticated murder weapon used by the terrorists — are only about two inches square and can be easily concealed in innocent-looking small envelopes.

There was speculation the killer weapon was the type used by U.S. forces in Vietnam against the Viet Cong. That device, code-named Gravel, is sprinkled on roads and tracks along jungle trails used by the Communists. It contains tiny pellets of plastic explosive.

The newest Arab sabotage — the flurry of letter bombs, one of which killed Dr. Ami Shachori, agricultural attache at the Israeli embassy in London—brought a warning from Israeli Foreign Minister that terrorists will get what is coming to them.

Shachori, 44, was killed by a booby-trapped letter he opened at his desk.

Only 24 hours after Shachori was killed, two letter bombs arrived in Jerusalem, police said.

The first was addressed to Transport Minister Peres and the second to Simcha Sorocker, director general of the ministry of posts and telegraph, police said.

Post office sorting offices already had been warned to take extra precautions in handling all suspicious mail.

Police have warned the public to be on guard against all parcels sent both from abroad and in Israel, especially since this is the Jewish New Year holiday season and many gifts are sent by post.

Police said they defused three letter bombs received at the Israeli diplomatic mission in Geneva Tuesday.

A fourth envelope suspected of being booby-trapped, turned out to be harmless, police said.

The packets were posted in Holland and were addressed to Ambassador Shaltiel Rimmon, First Secretary Moshe Melamed and to two other members of the mission, which is accredited to the European headquarters of the United Nations.

Seven other Israeli diplomats were marked for death by booby-trapped envelopes, a spokesman for the Israeli embassy in London said.

He gave no names, but sources said two of the diplomats were Deputy Ambassador Edgar Rapin and Consul-General Mati Degan.

Three other letter bombs were discovered in the embassy's mail and were taken away by explosives experts. All had gold and leather tags addressed to the Israeli embassy in Paris, had Dutch stamps and post marks.

Another four letter bombs addressed to officials at the Israeli embassy in London were found at a London postal sorting office late Tuesday night.

One of the three unexploded letter bombs found at the embassy was understood to have contained a note from the Black September Arab guerrilla organization, the group involved in the Munich killings of 11 Israeli Olympians.

Growth Under Estimate

TORONTO (CP) — Community college enrolment of 4,800 below estimated figures has caught some colleges in Ontario by surprise. With early applications coming in faster than expected last winter, the 20 colleges increased their growth-rate predictions to 25 per cent from 14 per cent. A government telephone survey conducted Monday and Tuesday showed an actual enrolment increase of 13 per cent — the same as last year's increase.

No Help Needed

EDMONTON (CP) — The Mackenzie Valley pipeline can be built using Canadian credit granted through the Bank of Canada, Social Credit Leader Real Caouette said Tuesday. There is no need to seek American capital and its resulting foreign control, Mr. Caouette said in an interview at Edmonton's International Airport.

Flavor Additive Harmful

WASHINGTON (AP) — Babies may be exposed to the risk of brain damage if fed foods containing the flavor enhancer monosodium glutamate, a St. Louis researcher testified Tuesday. Dr. John W. Olney of Washington University School of Medicine said "an industry-arranged whitewash affair" was responsible for allowing the additive "to be used freely in any foods, in any amounts and for any age group."

Bahama Landslide Vote Favors Independence

NASSAU, Bahamas (CP) — Prime Minister Lynden Pindling's Progressive Liberal Party won a clear mandate to take the Bahamas into complete independence in a landslide general election victory Tuesday.

The PLP overwhelmed a coalition of dissident members and the old white-dominated United Bahamian party to win at least 27 of 38 seats in Parliament's House of Assembly. The PLP held 21 seats in the old House.

The PLP was leading and expected to win in two other contests while the opposition won seven seats and expected to pick up one more. One contest resulted in a tie and a runoff will be held.

The victory, Pindling said, came as "a clear mandate" to continue with his timetable for complete independence from Britain by July 10, 1973.

The opposition Free National Movement had attempted to promote the independence issue as a drastic, unnecessary step which would ruin the country's economy by scaring away foreign investors.

Force Invading Uganda Said Completely Routed

KAMPALA (Reuter) — A Ugandan military spokesman warned today the Uganda army and air force would strike at fresh targets in Tanzania if the need arose.

In a statement broadcast by Radio Uganda, the spokesman said the government was aware that Tanzania had moved 1,500 troops to its border with Uganda, together with 55 tanks and artillery pieces.

"This movement of Tanzanian troops should not worry the public at all," the spokesman said. "Our armed forces are capable of handling every kind of situation.

"Targets have been located, and the Uganda army and air force are ready to strike should it be necessary."

The Ugandans said the invading force, which thrust into the southwest from Tanzania on Sunday, had been "completely routed."

A Uganda military spokesman said Tuesday 300 of the invading force, whose strength was put at around 1,500, had been killed and 20 captured.

Civilian casualties were estimated at 150, including a white teacher, not yet identified, who was killed in fighting at Mbarara, 160 miles east of Kampala.

In Nairobi, the U.S. embassy reported in American Peace Corps member, Louis Morteo, has shot dead, and another, Robert Freed, wounded when they were by chance caught up in the crossfire from Tanzania on Sunday, had been "completely routed."

The Uganda military spokesman said the invaders were "completely dispersed and scattered" in the area around Masaka, 80 miles west of Kampala.

The Ugandan border village of Mutukula, last of the six towns occupied by the invasion force, was recaptured on Monday night, the spokesman said.

The invaders, claimed to be made up of anti-Amin guerrillas and Tanzanian soldiers, had planned a series of killings if the insurgents had succeeded in seizing power, the spokesman said.

He said that on the death list were President Amin, all members of the Uganda cabinet and all people in key positions in government and army, along with members of the armed forces who came from the Bagisu, West Nile, Karamoja and the Teso districts of Uganda.

In some of these districts the rebels had planned massacres of the whole civil population, the spokesman said.

Peace Has Inside Track In Mideast Despite Bombs

BEIRUT (AP) — Passions ignited by the Munich tragedy will take a long time to subside, and more violence is likely in the Middle East. But the general impetus is toward peace, not war.

In the weeks before Arab terrorists struck at the Israelis' Olympic headquarters, Egypt accepted a new interest in reaching a negotiated settlement of the 1967 war.

Egypt fundamentally altered the strategic equation in July by expelling thousands of Russian troops and military advisers. Without them and without new Soviet arms, Egypt would be virtually powerless in a new war with Israel.

Until the expulsion, war in some form seemed inevitable. Now it appears much less likely, but this does not mean that peace is just around the corner.

The thorny, seemingly insoluble problem of Palestinian refugees and the guerrillas who fight their cause—still continue to upset peace efforts, as they did at Munich.

Israel has warned it will strike at the terrorist organizations wherever we can," as in the retaliatory air raids in Lebanon and Syria this month. But Premier Golda Meir added: "The terrorists cannot weaken our desire for peace. They will not alter our peace policy."

Thus although Munich has thrown up a roadblock to peace moves for a while "the dust will settle and we can start up," an official in Tel Aviv said.

Troops at Hospital Await IRA Attack

BELFAST (CP) — British soldiers stationed at Belfast's largest hospital, the Royal Victoria, were on the alert today from a threatened attack by Irish Republican Army guerrillas.

The army post is on the grounds of the hospital, about 100 yards from the main buildings, where most of the victims of the daily violence in Northern Ireland's capital are treated.

The IRA has accused the army of taking advantage of the hospital to lure out the neighboring Falls Road, a militant guerrilla stronghold.

Early this week it warned that as of midnight Tuesday night the post would be a legitimate target for IRA attacks. Several hours after the deadline there was no sign of guerrilla activity in the area.

The army station often has been fired on by snipers, and nurses have had to lie low as bullets whipped through their quarters.

But army officer at the scene said the IRA threat did not necessarily mean attacks would start immediately.

Business, Labor, Government Urged to End Adversary Roles

OTTAWA (CP) — The new chief spokesman for Canadian businessmen today suggested formation of a business advisory council for closer liaison between business, labor and government.

A. John Ellis, a Vancouver banker making his first major speech as president of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, said:

"The old adversary system between government, business and labor must end. All three segments of our society have a solid challenge in working together to fight our biggest problems—inflation and unemployment—and to keep Canada competitive in our domestic and international markets."

He told the final day of the annual chamber convention his proposed council would meet the prime minister and cabinet as often as necessary "to discuss social and economic issues and legislative matters."

Mr. Ellis, 57 years old, executive vice-president of the Bank of Montreal, said federal lawmakers are making a "sincere effort to improve the lot of our populace."

However, I believe, that at times they lack adequate information on which to base their conclusions. Consequently, a lack of understanding of realities is sometimes reflected as the white papers produced and the legislation that is enacted."

Assessment Errors Worry Separate School Board

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

A surprising switch in re- ligious alliances has separate school officials here worried. Even such well-known Roman Catholics as Msgr. J. F. Sullivan of the Church of St. Michael the Archangel and Rev. Charles Gauley have done over to the other side- steps at least.

Both turned up as non-Catholics and therefore public school supporters on the assessment rolls this year — two of thousands of mistakes appearing on the new assessment rolls across the province.

The situation is far from amusing, because the confusion mean that Roman Catholics listed as public school supporters will be denied a vote for separate school trustees in December's election and the separate school board will lose their taxes.

Brian Cluney, assessment officer for the Hastings - Prince Edward separate school board, faults the new method of gathering information for programming the regional assessment office's computer.

In the past, when a husband was listed on assessment rolls as a Roman Catholic, he was automatically assessed his wife was also Catholic and her religion was not asked. But with computer programming, the blank space in the form was translated into non-Catholic by the machine, and the family automatically became public school supporters. In all cases, of mixed marriage, real or apparent, the non-Catholic takes precedence for tax purposes over the Catholic.

(In the case of a genuine mixed marriage, one spouse can lease his or her interest in a jointly owned home to the other for school support purposes. However, the couple must be split between the two school systems.)

Mr. Cluney is now combing the assessment records of all municipalities within the five counties in a search for assessment errors of about 100 so far in Belleville.

The case of the two clergymen is different.

In former years, assessors, in listing a Roman Catholic rectory, have not bothered to fill in the religious affiliation on the ground that it was self-evident. Again, the blanks on the cards were translated into non-Catholic by the computer and Msgr. Sullivan, separate school trustee, lost his vote for the separate school board, as did Rev. Gauley, a member of the separate school's authorized team.

In many cases, the errors will be caught when enumerators prepare the voters' lists for the coming municipal and school board elections. If they are overlooked, Mr. Cluney's search of the records will reveal the errors and they can be corrected by the assessment officer under provincial legislation.

But separate school supporters are urged to check their assessment notices and contact Mr. Cluney at the separate school board office if errors are found. Otherwise, many Roman Catholics may be disappointed on polling day and the separate school system will lose revenue this year.

Rezoning Proposal To Be Publicized

TRENTON (Staff) Copies of a by-law for the rezoning of a portion of Centennial Park in permit construction of a senior citizen drop-in centre, accompanied by a site plan of the proposed centre, will be circulated to residents in the immediate area of the property.

Strap Is OK As Last Resort

Trustees of the separate schools in Hastings and Prince Edward county decided last night to permit corporal punishment in the schools. But they don't recommend it.

In a statement written into their policy book at the September board meeting the trustees said they do not favor strapping, but "unfortunate situations do arise in which the only solution appears to be judicious use of corporal punishment."

Although many school boards in Ontario have abolished strapping, the policy in both the public and separate school systems here is to permit strapping as a last resort, but to discourage the practice.

Town council Tuesday night gave third and final reading to the rezoning bylaw.

However, although a recent public meeting attracted no more than four interested persons, council feels there will be objections raised to the project, necessitating the holding of a public meeting.

Mayor Duncan McDonald emphasized there "should be no misinformation" given to the people so they will know exactly what the land will be used for."

There were also concerns regarding parking facilities, to which Councillor Ted Parker recommended 29 parking units would be adequate.

Spokesmen Explain UIC Unrest

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

Described as an emotion-filled situation, more than 100 Unemployment Insurance Commission workers at the "bowling alley" in Belleville kept pretty much in the dark as to when they will be laid off.

While union officials consider the situation inhumane to keep workers ignorant of their future employment or lay-off, several management people would not put employees in that sort of situation.

In the same telephone interview with Mr. Coddy, "The Intelligencer was told, "we have to think he knows more about management than management does. I don't think he does — and it is your prerogative if you want to take the facts and figures."

Mr. Coddy had no facts and figures to offer.

"Everything is sort of a flexible arrangement — and it is unfortunate to use people where we need them," said Mr. Coddy.

The union reports that there are 11 temporary positions in the regional office that could be offered to the people from the bowling alley and 11 people will have a chance at positions in the direct mailing department.

"These 11 will be supported by about that same number people," said Mr. Hockley. After November when the load gets bigger the 4 will be increased to about 130.

For the moment the only thing that has saved the retraining 100 at the bowling alley is an error that has turned up 5,000 terminated claims that must be processed.

"Once this is done the staff will be out the door," said Mr. Hockley.

Former Liberal member of parliament for the old riding of Hastings South, Frank E. Follwell this morning threw his hat into the election ring. He announced that he is seeking the Liberal candidacy at the nomination convention Sept. 27 at 8 p.m. at Centennial Secondary School.

"I'm seeking the nomination because I believe that we're going to have a return of the Liberal government under Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau," said Mr. Follwell this morning. "I also believe that the riding of Hastings should be represented by an experienced, active parliamentarian who will have a strong voice in the House of Commons."

Mr. Follwell, a city realtor, has been active in politics in Belleville and has a long and impressive record of public service. He was a school trustee, member of parliament for eight years, a city alderman for four years and mayor of Belleville for three years.

Mr. Follwell served on the board of governors of Belleville General Hospital, is a past director of Belleville Kiwanis Club, was chairman of the harbor commission, member of the public utilities commission, chairman of the Belleville Real Estate Board for a number of years and is now president of the Chamber of Commerce.

"It is, as indicated by the Prime Minister the integrity of God and conscience this means simply the happiness and welfare and contentment of all the people of Canada and particularly of the people of this great county of Hastings."

I believe it is in the best interests of the voters of Hastings to send a representative to act as a member of the Trudeau government team."

Mr. Follwell stressed that the Liberal convention next Wednesday will be "an open, democratic session."

"The Liberal party has always been a party of the people and everyone in the riding is invited to attend the convention and take part in what has been termed by the Prime Minister as participatory democracy."

Mr. Follwell said the riding association is actively wants to involve new, young voters.

"We want them to attend this convention and cast their first vote as an informed member of a political party."

Surplus Explained

TRENTON (Staff) — Bert Kenny, planning director for the Quinte Planning Board, has replied to a Trenton council query concerning a $16,000 surplus in the 1971 budget.

On Sept. 2, Councillor Peter Aziz questioned how such a large amount could have been overlooked.

Mr. Kenny informed council the planning board's budget in 1971 was $168,000 — $168,57, an amount used to pay operating expenses at the end of the year.

He said the board wants to retain a similar figure but any amount over this, would be calculated and applied as a reduction of the monthly payments of the four participating municipalities in the board, in the latter part of the year.

The planning director said the financial position of the board will be reviewed at the upcoming October meeting, and promised "you will be contacted subsequent to that meeting regarding payment for the remainder of the year."

He said 1972 costs had been estimated at $171,171, including salaries of two additional planners and a draftsman, none of whom have been hired rental costs for new accommodations, which have yet to be leased actual photographic paper and if which has been purchased new office equipment which has not yet been bought, additional consulting fees which were not committed and funds for summer students, only part of which were used.

The surplus was not put to use because of a rift between the board's member municipalities and the other four, which form the board.

Councillors thought the future of the board was uncertain, inasmuch levy charges were unaltered, pending word from the ministry of treasury, economics and intergovernmental affairs.

This slowdown resulted, in an excess surplus, which has subsequently been invested in short-term certificates rather than lie dormant.

Mayor Duncan McDonald last night said he has been advised that the member municipalities may receive a rebate, which may total two months' charges.

Councillor Aziz, who originally queried the surplus, said the answer was "satisfactory for the present. Let's wait and see just what happens in the future."

Arts Council's Role Defined

Live radio came to the Four Seasons Hotel Tuesday evening when a trio of CJBQ's best broadcasters staged a show for the arts.

Bill Johnston, moderator of the "down-in-program What Do You Think," was again talking calls, but this time from an audience of 190 persons who had come to hear organizations around the city.

With him was station manager Frank Ryan and the first president of the Quinte Arts Council, hosts for the evening.

The purpose of last campaign is crystal clear," said Mr. Follwell in announcing his aspirations. "It is, as indicated by the Prime Minister the integrity of God and conscience this means simply the happiness and welfare and contentment of all the people of Canada and particularly of the people of this great county of Hastings."

I believe it is in the best interests of the voters of Hastings to send a representative to act as a member of the Trudeau government team."

Mr. Follwell stressed that the Liberal convention next Wednesday will be "an open, democratic session."

"The Liberal party has always been a party of the people and everyone in the riding is invited to attend the convention and take part in what has been termed by the Prime Minister as participatory democracy."

Mr. Follwell said the riding association actively wants to involve new, young voters.

"We want them to attend this convention and cast their first vote as an informed member of a political party."

"I think the mass don't realize what they're missing if they don't get involved."

"I think we need professional assistance on our staff. Volunteers can't get to the far reaches of Northumberland and Lennox and Addington counties."

He admitted the council may have been too ambitious when it set out to serve these areas as well as the immediate Quinte region at its inception in 1967.

Vice-chairmanative of the newly - formed Madoc Arts Council said her organization had been greatly assisted in its formative stages by the Quinte organization.

Questioning the council's composition, the vice-chairman Ron Evans, a teacher at Moira Secondary School, stated: "We've found that in the schools, people who want to do things will do them. I don't think you need to drag them in."

"But I do think we need a co-ordinating body."

CJBQ vice-president Manfred Koechlin added that without the arts council, productions such as the Neptune Theatre never would have appeared in Belleville.

Highlight of the events planned for 1972-73 is a mid-spring will be bigger and better, Mrs. Kirkwood, according to chairman Ernst Kneisel.

As usual, a problem for the arts council is financing, prompting Frank Murray to suggest members should encourage patronage by "seeking out those in the community who are wealthy."

The council also passed a bylaw enabling it to borrow funds up to $1,000.

Dead Man Delays Seniors' Housing

TRENTON (Staff) — Plans for a proposed 36-unit senior citizens housing complex for Wyngil Street, soon to be renamed Cresthill Drive, are being held up by the objections of a dead man, town council was told Tuesday night.

The project, initiated at least two years ago, was held

Street Closing Jams Bridge

The closing of Bridge Street between Front and Chestnut streets Thursday for the installation of storm and sanitary sewers, is resulting in the new Dundas Street bridge over the Moira doing double duty.

Rush hour motorists who normally use the lower bridge yesterday afternoon and again this morning found themselves waiting at lengthy lineups on Coleman Street waiting to get on or off Dundas Street as their customary route was cut of use.

The downtown traffic disruption will extend along Bridge Street to Pinnacle Street as the work progresses.

up because of the unapproved Trenton official plan. The land on which the building would stand is a former mill and the property requires rezoning before construction can begin.

It now that the official plan has been approved, work could commence immediately, deputy town clerk Arden Royce told council.

However, the unidentified complainant registered his objection and the Ontario Municipal Board indicated a hearing into the rezoning of the property would be necessary. Councillor Ted Parker said since that time, the objector had died and efforts to reach his widow had been unsuccessful.

According to Mayor Duncan McDonald, the man's executor can sign a release and work could proceed immediately. The matter was left in the hands of deputy clerk Arden Royce, to investigate.

Interviewed following the meeting, Councillor Parker told The Intelligencer this rather unusual delay situation was a perfect example of how detailed planning methods can get bogged down in red tape.

"I think planning in the province should be streamlined," he said.

Roads Commission Outlines Plans

Construction of a half-million-dollar grade separation over the CNR on the Wallbridge - Loyalist road and improvement of the suburban road between Burnley's Corners and Highway 14 west of Foxboro are the two main priorities of the Belleville and Suburban Roads Commission.

This was indicated Monday by Suburban Roads Commission chairman Harry Morrow as he filled the city traffic committee members in on commission plans for the near future.

Mr. Morrow and Joseph Farquhar, city representative on the commission, were invited to the traffic committee meeting after committee members felt there was lack of communication between the two bodies.

Mr. Morrow said the design for the CN overpass was now approved but the current problem was how the structure could be financed during construction.

He said the suburban roads share of the estimated half-million-dollar project would be about $45,000.

Mr. Morrow explained the road commission's annual finances were based on one-half mill of the province's provincial equalized assessment, which was matched by the county of Hastings.

The provincial government subsidizes suburban roads at 50 per cent and bridges at 80 per cent. The total annual budget of the commission for construction and maintenance of its 22 miles of road is just over $114,000.

Mr. Morrow said reconstruction of the Wallbridge - Loyalist Road between Highway 14 and the CN double trestle has had taken up most of the commission's budget over a three-year period.

The result was that last year it had little funds to go ahead with future planning.

Maitland Drive reconstruction from Highway 401 north on Sidney Street and east to Plain's Road at Highway 14 is being held up as result of property acquisition problems, Mr. Morrow said.

He said there were still three or four owners who had not signed and expropriation proceedings were being undertaken.

City traffic committee members at their last meeting had expressed interest in knowing suburban road commission intentions as they would be in a better position to plan roads for the alleviation of the city's traffic problems.

Mr. Morrow said reconstruction of Wallbridge Road between Highway 14 and Tuck's Corners, together with the construction of the proposed grade separation over the CN double tracks would provide a direct link to the west of Belleville for motorists travelling south on Highway 14.

Finishing the north end of Wallbridge Road was being considered with last construction of the CN overpass could possibly still be two years away.

North Front Traffic Study Is Released

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

Location of traffic signals at Valleyview Crescent and at Donald Street and Tracey Street along with the banning of bicycles are recommendations for the immediate improvement of traffic conditions on Belleville's busy North Front Street.

These are two of the short-term recommendations included in the North Front Street traffic study carried out by the Belleville police department during the summer.

The lengthy report on the problem, giving traffic volumes and the nature of the increasing number of accidents on the busy stretch of roadway, was presented to the city traffic committee by Police Chief Douglas Crosbie at its regular meeting Monday.

Discussion on the report was deferred until the next meeting, or at some such time that a representative from the Kingston district office of the ministry of transportation and communications can be present.

One long-term recommendation in the report calls for the building of a bicycle path along the north side of Sidney Street to Quinte Mall as the forerunner of a city-wide bicycle pathway system.

Other long-term recommendations are construction where possible, of a fifth lane for left turns, incorporation of special entrance-exit design for businesses and the alleviation of only one curb cut on North Front Street for both Mac-Donalds take-out and the Pizza — both for right turns only.

An entranceway and exit for both MacDonald's and the Park Plaza onto Donald Street is recommended.

Still another long - term recommendation is to expand Sidney Street into a major artery to handle the overflow of traffic on North Front St. This, it is said, would greatly help alleviate the problem at North Front Street and Colleges Street by increasing the use of Bell Blvd.

The North Front street study was ordered because of the steadily increasing number of accidents on the artery as the population of Belleville grows.

In addition to the taking of traffic counts and the recording of accidents and the causes, the study included interviews with business operators and private residents in the area.

Complaints about present conditions and suggestions for improvements were noted.

The report showed that a large proportion of the 4 to 6 deals related to turning movements, while there was a high involvement of non-residents in accidents, particularly at College and Bell Blvd. Drivers and Highway 14 west of

The report showed that a large proportion of the 4 to 6 deals related to turning movements, while there was a high involvement of non-residents in accidents, particularly at College and Bell Blvd. Drivers

Complaints with drivers exceeding posted speed was said good except on the hill at Donald and Craig Street where only 5 per cent of the southbound traffic exceeded the 50 m.p.h. limit. Sixty-three per cent of the northbound traffic complied with the 30-mile-an-hour speed limit at Donald Street.

Further north, 82 per cent of the traffic complied with the posted 40 mile an hour limit at Tracey Street, and 81 per cent of the northbound traffic obeyed the speed limit.

Speed variations of as much as 40 miles an hour were recorded with the average difference being 26 m.p.h. over the study period.

The average speed of cars in the 40 zone was shown to be from 22 to 42 miles per hour, while in the 30 zone, the average was from 20 to 36 m.p.h.

Out of the short-term recommendations for improving traffic conditions was to increase the presence of marked police vehicles on the route and to increase speed enforcement.

Paper for Recycling To Be Picked Up Here

City-wide waste papaer recycling will get under way Oct. 4, 5, and 6, with regular pickups scheduled by the city's waste disposal contractor.

The recycling project was initiated by PACE, People Against a Contaminated Environment, with a trial run in the Park Dale area in the spring.

Quinte Sanitation, the company with the city's garbage contract, has offered its cooperation and will pick up waste paper on the first Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of each month.

All paper, except waxed paper, will be accepted. Paper with a waxed finish includes that used in soap boxes and cereal cartons. Garry Rock of PACE says that the waste paper should be tied up and set on the curb for regular garbage, regardless of rain or snow. Water doesn't hurt the waste paper for the recycling.

Quinte Sanitation will continue the pickup for a six-month period. It expects Belleville will produce about 10 tons a week.

The pickup days work out this way. If your garbage is collected on Monday, paper day will be the first Wednesday of each month. If your garbage is picked Tuesday, paper day s he first Thursday of each month and if your first garbage collection day of the week is Wednesday, paper will be collected the first Friday of each month.

Quinte Sanitation will sell the paper to a Belleville jobber who in turn will resell the waste paper to Miller Brothers paper mill in Glen Miller. The garbage contractor hopes to make enough money from the sale of paper to pay for the collection.

But waste paper pickups are only part of the recycling story, says Mr. Elliot Krever, vice-president for the central region of the Canadian Secondary Materials Association says creation of a public demand of recycled paper products is essential.

He told a meeting of the Waste Management Association in Kingston that many mills are reluctant to be associated with waste paper — they push an image of a virgin product.

Modern technology often makes recycled paper superior to first-time paper from wood pulp, says Mr. Krever. In fact, it cheaper to use trees for first-time paper than to gather, transport and process used paper. Paper companies are planning more efficient and interesting and will have a source of wood for a long time to come.

The main purpose of recycling, says Mr. Krever, is to avoid waste. And this can only be accomplished by creating a public demand for recycled paper. Every consumer should have the option of buying products packaged in recycled containers and should exhaust his rights known in store managers.

PCs Pledge Pollution Control

TORONTO (Staff) — In order to help combat the growing pollution problem, the Conservative Party has pledged to enforce federal pollution laws, and make available low interest loans to industry and municipalities, Prime Minister - Hastings MP George Hees said here Monday.

Mr. Hees, who was Monday returned as candidate by the Conservative Association in his riding, was addressing the annual meeting of the Canadian Association of Plumbing and Heating Engineers at the Holiday Inn.

"We believe that the time has long passed when industries and municipalities can be permitted to pour their waste materials into our air, land and water," Mr. Hees said, emphasizing that by doing so, Canadians are denied "the healthy enjoyment of these fundamental natural resources".

He reminded those present that parliament two years ago passed a bill giving the government power to control waste discharges.

But he stated, with the exception of Ontario, pollution of the environment has not been checked to any great extent.

Mr. Hees said the Conservatives are prepared to offer low-interest loans to help industry and municipalities install expensive anti-pollution machinery, at an approximate rate of five per cent a year.

He cited the success of the United States government, which two years ago made available a $1-billion fund for this very purpose. The results should have been spectacular," he said, estimating a conquering fund of $100-million for Canada's efforts.

Hastings PC Meeting In Madoc Tuesday

Hastings County Progressive Conservatives announced today the nominating convention will be staged Tuesday, Sept. 26 in the auditorium of Centre Hastings Secondary School.

Guest speaker for the convention will be the Hon. George Hees, MP for Prince Edward - Hastings.

The doors open at 8 p.m., allowing more than half-an-hour for delegates and an additional 900 to 999 alternate delegates, along with the general public to swell the auditorium designed to hold 1,100 people.

Purpose of the meeting is to decide who will be the man that PCs across the riding will place their trust in at the polling booths Oct. 30.

The three delegates who have formally announced their contention for the nomination are Max Smith, Jack Ellis and Donald Soulter.

Each delegate has the opportunity to address the body for five minutes in an attempt to convince delegates he is the man for the job.

After the speeches, the process begins of voting and eliminating aspirants.

With three nomination seekers, two separate votes will be necessary. One to eliminate the low man, and the second to make the decision between the remaining two.

If someone steps forward during the convention announcing his contention for the PC ticket, more votes will be needed.

Ray Gunsolus, secretary of the Hastings PC Association, administering the convention will last no more than two hours and suggested that this nomination was the best time for the public to see the competitors in action.

"There will be excitement, at this late stage we want everyone to come," he said.

Turner to Speak

PORT HOPE (Staff) — The Hon. John Turner, federal minister of finance, will be the guest speaker at the Oct. 7 nominating convention of the Northumberland - Durham Liberal Association.

The convention will be held in Cobourg, with each of the polling subdivisions in the riding entitled to five voting delegates.

It is expected that Liberal candidate Russell C. Honey will be returned to contest the riding in the upcoming Oct. 30 federal election.

Rodgers May Run

Former reeve of Sidney and 1968 Hastings county warden, Donald W. Rodgers is "seriously considering" offering himself as a candidate at the Progressive Conservative nomination for Hastings riding to be held in Madoc next Tuesday.

Mr. Rodgers said he had "stayed around" with the idea of running as a candidate in the event that Les Grills might not run.

Now that Mr. Grills has decided to resign, Mr. Rodgers said today that he still hasn't made up his mind but expected to make a decision either today or Thursday.

"I think there should be some representation from the county," he said.

This far three Belleville men have announced their intention of seeking the nomination as the Progressive Conservative candidate for the riding.

Welfare Officer Defends System

PICTON (Staff) — Sophiasburg reeve George Hepburn clashed with welfare administrator Hazlett Smith at the county council meeting Tuesday, declaring some welfare recipients don't they earn more money unemployed than when on the job.

He said he had been unable to hire tomato pickers this fall and demanded to know how much money a welfare recipient receives while earning $75 a week picking tomatoes.

Mrs. Lagroix replied the beneficiary's welfare payments would be reduced after the loss of his family allowance and his exemptions had been considered.

She said welfare recipients do not receive more money when employed than when working "unless they are very slow pickers."

Mrs. Lagroix further noted such working man would receive an exemption of $25 for himself, $12 for his wife and $15 for each child. She added these figures are maximums.

All employable Prince Edward welfare recipients now are working and canning factories have provided special seating facilities for older persons and other peelers handicapped by back injuries or foot problems.

Welfare payments dropped by $11,000 this month.

Mrs. Lagroix invited him and any other interested members of council to examine her files which she said would be explained to welfare recipients now working.

PC Nomination

The retirement of veteran Hastings MP Lee Grills and what shapes up as a three-cornered fight for the Conservative nomination in the riding represents the start of an interesting new trend in politics locally and one which may be repeated in other contests in the current election.

Change is in the air and here in Hastings it manifests itself in the retirement of Mr. Grills at the age of 68 and a bid for the PC nomination by three men who though comparatively young are nevertheless politically experienced.

First to indicate an interest in the nomination was Mr. Soulter who has been a resident of Belleville for the past six years and who in addition to his work on council is active in several other spheres of community endeavor. Entry into the contest of Mr. Smith and Mr. Kills followed shortly afterward.

All three men have been active in a wide circle of community affairs and all are eminently qualified to seek the nomination. Indeed it is seldom that three men so able and so suited to political life find themselves contesting a nomination.

The decision of Mr. Grills to step down ends a long career of parliamentary service. Mr. Grills has been an earnest and dedicated representative of the riding since 1957, a period interrupted between 1963 and 1965 when the seat was held by Liberal Robert Temple. It was a dedication mellowed by bluff good humor and marked by a genuine interest in the welfare of his constituents whatever their political leanings.

The people of Hastings expressed their confidence in their member by electing him for terms extending over a period of 13 years. Mr. Grills has had strong support for a renewed effort, but his decision to retire at this point is understandable. His wife, a staunch helpmate in all his endeavors, is in Belleville hospital suffering from a heart condition. We join in expressing the hope that Mrs. Grills will make a complete recovery and that both she and Mr. Grills will be a part of the Belleville scene for many years to come.

Government Easily Fences Off Stanfield Questions

By FARMER TISSINGTON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—The call-back of the Commons to deal with the West Coast longshoremen's strike was billed as an emergency measure by the government. But there was little sense of emergency among the MPs as they gathered in Ottawa just before the Labor Day weekend.

In fact, the members were in a relaxed, friendly mood and there was little of the tension and the bitter fighting that usually marks pre-election sittings of the Commons.

The New Democrats sported red carnations in recognition of their party's victory in British Columbia and they gave their leader, David Lewis, a big round of applause when he entered the chamber and again when he rose to ask his first question. This struck some observers as odd, as they weren't aware Mr. Lewis had made any significant contribution to the success of the B.C. wing of the party.

The Tories went through the same display of enthusiasm when Robert Stanfield rose to lead off the question period, but his following performance was a disappointing anti-climax. It was a typical Stanfield-to-the Commons, bumbling, hesitant and his questions were phrased in such vague and general terms the government had little difficulty winning the exchange manner.

By a strange oversight, the Liberals neglected to give Prime Minister Trudeau the same cheek-pounding reception when he first rose. Maybe the back-benchers felt PM got enough plaudits in the normal course of his daily rounds. Social Credit leader Real Caouette came in for his tribute and several members of other parties joined in as recognition that he had undergone an operation and had been convalescing since the Commons last met. Mr. Caouette looked thinner and weaker, but aides insist he will be able to undertake a full election campaign providing he gets his regular rest periods.

If the government is as vulnerable as the opposition claims as so many times, there was little sign of it in the opening question period. The most indignant-sounding MP was a Liberal, Norman Cafik from the riding of Ontario. He queried Transport Minister Don Jamieson in rather stern and menacing fashion about letting citizens have their say in the Toronto hearings into the contentious Pickering airport matter. But Mr. Cafik has a habit of speaking forcefully and dramatically in the House and he seemed reasonably satisfied with the answers.

Perhaps the whole thing can best be summed up by the comment of a Conservative MP from the Atlantic region outside the House. He was asked his view on his party's election chances in the East Coast provinces, including how the two Cape Breton MPs, Bob Muir and Donald MacInnis, would fare.

"Anybody who can get the floor in the question period of an emergency sitting of the Commons to ask about Lynch's salary has got to be pretty safe," was referring to a question from the popular Bob Muir who presided over the Economic Expansion Ministry into March and is also now looking forward the lay-off of 70 workers at a Cape Breton factory. Typed Lynch as quite satisfied with Mr. Marchand's answer.

That's the kind of a day it was

"Progress" Hits Trees

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

What is "progress"? Is it man living, enjoying, and bettering his environment, or is progress what we've been seeing happen around Belleville the past few years?

One reason my husband and I decided 12 years ago to settle and raise our family here, was Belleville's greenery. So, it about broke me up today to see "progress" in the form of man and his machine virtually wiping out 100 years growth of beautiful trees on West Dundas.

Now, I know that fair stands the "Dutch Elms" go, but for a strip of cement, all those maples too?

It's been going on for some time, you, but to see them taking them down in front of OSD was the final straw. It seems cruel and if that is "progress" we want no part of it.

That highway was a tourist attraction, but will soon be just another junkyard for cars; and to think they say cars will be outdated in a few years. Who will replace our scenery then — those great "powers that be"? They could even take sometimes I think once they get into their offices they lose all natural feeling.

Yes, I'm bitter, I love nature: I love history; I love to think of the future — but without our trees — no!

While I'm on this subject, for we older bicycle fans and our children, a bicycle path is a better be provided as well, as when that horrible highway is finished, we don't want to be finished also (in the name of "progress")!

Yardmen's Proposal

While the Belleville Yardmen's proposed $5 million sports complex has been taken another step forward there are several unanswered questions. As was pointed out the other day, finance is the principal issue along with the degree of public involvement that may be anticipated.

It is a tantalizing prospect, a sports complex that would expand the city's existing facilities greatly without necessarily conflicting with them. It could be an important setting for also in bringing new industries to the city, giving further momentum to the encouraging progress of recent years.

But these are all matters for further discussion. Council undoubtedly will want to go into the full ramifications and so too will the public at large. It has been indicated a plebiscite will be required on the full lot of the municipal elections in December, this in connection with the possibility of donating city-owned land to the proposed site as well as with such other taxpayer responsibilities as maintenance.

As of now the complex is something of a pipe dream and it is necessary to proceed with caution. At the same time Belleville is now fully aware of the need also for a degree of boldness in its endeavors to move with the times. The Mail is a classic example. We have to look ahead and additional sports facilities, whether in this or some other form, are bound to come.

Politeness Pays

Holding a door for anyone in these impersonal and liberated days can be a frustrating and disillusioning experience. As often as not the beneficiary will sail through without a word of acknowledgment. It was a pleasant surprise therefore to encounter three notably polite young people at the Mall the other day. Two girls and a youth, the first girl said "thank you" and the young man (they were all in their early teens) grasped the door himself and said "after you sir." Good on you kids, as the saying goes!

Farm Course Popular with City Dwellers

Kitchener - Waterloo Record

More and more people live in cities, but it is not always because they want to. The heavy course in farming offered this autumn at the University of Guelph is providing proof that a lot of people who find themselves trapped in urban living wish they weren't.

The course consists of two-hour lectures once a week for 16 weeks. Part-time students have been flocking to register; at last count there were 158 enrolled and the applicants were still coming. The university's extension department, to cope with the overflow, is going to conduct the course at three places.

One of them, naturally, is Guelph. Where are the other two? Both of them, believe it or not, are in Toronto, which is not exactly the locale you would choose for raising beef steers on pasture or planting a big acreage of corn for silage.

What kinds of people want to spend money for tuition fees and time in class to learn farming? Dr. Mark Waldron of the university faculty summarizes the list as doctors, lawyers, businessmen, dentists. Those may be the ways in which they are earning a living, but they really want to know about, it appears, is how to farm.

This leads one to wonder about how to make a go of it on the open spaces outside the cities will make any professional farmer chuckle quietly. People who have spent 50,000 hours learning the hard way how to extract a living from the soil still aren't getting wealthy at it. They won't see much hope for the beginner who tries to get a grasp of the subject in 18 two-hour sessions.

The instinct that drives the city-dweller to try to gain contact with rural living is deep-seated and natural, though. It is not normal for the human animal to be hived into a crowded complex of concrete and asphalt. It is necessary, because there are getting to be so many of us, but it is natural that the overwhelming trend toward urban living should start up a counter-trend.

It is highly improbable that many of the city people who are enrolled for the U. of G. course will become successful farmers, but if their studies help their dreams that in itself is a benefit.

Palestinian Arab Atrocities Plague World Scene

THE WORLD TODAY
By JOHN D. HARRISON
Foreign Affairs Analyst

The tragic murders of Israeli athletes at the Munich Olympic Games by members of the Palestine National Liberation Front is one more indication that Israel and her Arab enemies must sit down and negotiate some kind of peace.

PNLF killings, bombings and kidnappings are inexcusable, but because of the nature of their methods, they cannot be dealt with summarily. Any attempt to rush the PNLF killers who bypassed the Olympic Village apparatus, for example, could have meant instant death for all the Israeli Olympic team.

At the same time, the scope of the Munich outrage is so wide—global in effect—that the Olympic murders necessitated some response. Thus the German Chancellor Willy Brandt and a crisis meeting of the Israel cabinet.

In Canada, a few weeks ago, we had the disgusting spectacle of rabble-rousing union leader Michel Chartrand going to the Middle East as a "guest" of the PNLF and expressing the Arab-biased opinions about this acceptance.

Nor should we forget the horror in the desert in 1970 when the PNLF planned the hi-jacking of several big jets, threatened to blow them up in the desert if they did not accidentally with no loss of life to crews and passengers.

The threat from the PNLF is no longer contained in the Middle East. Technically anyone who flies, or any Israeli or his lawful business in the world, politician, businessman, diplomat, athlete, can die in their hands. Why does the PNLF flourish?

The old round of course, is what has become the most contentious early postwar problem of all, the expulsion or flight whichever was the reason, of Palestinian Arabs from their lands and homes before and during the first Arab-Israeli conflict, 1946-48.

"Every other global crisis of these early post-war years, Berlin, "the cold war" has either been resolved in a way satisfying to both sides, or changed by events. The plight of the Palestinian Arabs has never been negotiated and events have made it worse.

The PNLF itself is clearly beyond any kind of negotiation and the bulk of its members, refugees born and raised in the festering refugee camps are beyond reconciliation. Their hatred for Israel is all-consuming and implacable.

At the same time, both Israel and the Arab nations must in the light of the Arab refugees, swollen by an additional generation born and raised in the test camps, is insoluble, Israel has always claimed the Arab refugees fled their Palestine homes of their own accord.

The Arab states, cynically ignoring the fate of what are now one million stateless Arabs, refus to absorb any of them and say their fate is an Israeli problem.

And both sides are wrong. Israel now has a large Arab population as a result of her conquest of Arab lands in 1967. Absorption of some or all or some of the Arab refugees would not constitute an internal threat as once claimed. Indeed, more Arabs in the Tel Aviv press and the Knesset are now saying that must negotiate with any Arab state mildly interested in taking terms, such as Jordan.

The cause is equally on Arab states, moderate ones like Jordan, Tunisia and Morocco do make a move from their side. It is the rich and indulgent Arab princes and military dictators who still have the Arab refugees on their consciences.

Today In History

Mohandas Gandhi, the late Indian leader, began a death fast of six years ago today—in 1933—to dramatize his campaign for an end to discrimination against the so-called Untouchables. The fast ended six days later when the Pact of Poona permitted the Untouchables to attend public schools as well as schools and use all roads in India.

1906—The SS Mauretania was launched.

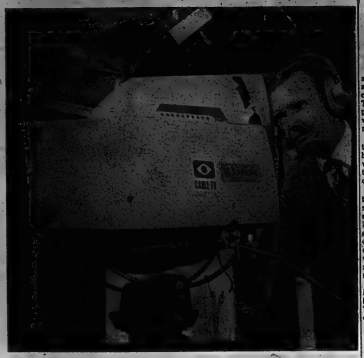
Religious Education

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

An item in the paper recently made me wonder what's happening to the human race. It concerned a protest by parents of schoolage children who do not want the Bible read in schools or even the Lord's prayer recited. Apart from saying these early days are the standard through the ages for the young, and a moral guide, why do parents who supposedly desire the best for their children want to ban it from their education?



Instead of taking away, they would all the help they can get to grow into responsible citizens which this world is in need of.

The future generation will be what they are at home and at school, primarily the home.

Meeting Scheduled Thursday

Await Policy on University Research

OTTAWA (CP) — A federal science policy statement on research funds, for universities could follow shortly after Thursday's meeting between presidents from universities involved in research and science ministry officials.

During the closed meeting, the presidents are expected to hear ministry philosophies and views and will be able to give their reactions before any final decision is made.

Dr. Aurele Beaulnes, secretary to the ministry, Tuesday said in an interview that last month's announcement of a policy which called for government departments to contract out more research instead of doing it within departments, was the first of an expected series of science policies to meet current national needs.

The ministry has been working on several aspects of policy for universities, including "over-all costs, centres of specialization or excellence, basic research policies and several other issues," Dr. Beaulnes said.

It is likely the presidents will be told federal investment in university research, about $150 million annually, needs some direction and co-ordination.

For example, all universities can't develop in all disciplines and there is a need for some agreement on which one will develop in which areas.

Another issue is the over-supply of research and teaching personnel who cannot find jobs.

Dr. Beaulnes said that, as well as over-supply of research manpower in some areas, there is "under-production of earth scientists and ocean scientists."

"Federal governments and provincial governments have to become very complementary participants," Dr. Beaulnes said.

Along these lines, some observers, not with the ministry, suggest the federal government needs an office for education and the provinces all need a minister in charge of science policy.

One thing the university presidents probably need not worry about is research budget cuts. Under federal policy, more research is likely to be farmed out and some of it can go to them.

No Bad Clams Here

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada is free of American clams and mussels poisoned by toxic red tide algae off the New England coast, a health department spokesman said Tuesday.

Dr. A. B. Morrison, assistant deputy minister in the health protection branch, said Canadian officials closed the border to shipments of the seafood Friday night and immediately began a pick-up campaign of retail imports.

Affected clams or mussels were found in some Toronto retail stores and restaurants and in some retail and wholesale outlets in Quebec. These stocks have been destroyed.

The rest of the country is free of the bad clams and mussels. There have been no reports of any sickness.

Over 100 Problems Facing UN

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — With a new president at its head, the 27th UN General Assembly turns today to decide what priority should be given many of the contentious items on its agenda.

The 25-country steering committee meets today and Thursday to sort out the 100-plus items which have been formally proposed for assembly consideration. The task of the committee is to decide whether the proposed items should be discussed in one of the assembly's seven major committees in the main assembly itself — or discussed not at all.

Among the leading questions the committee will face are Korea, international terrorism, financial disagreements, the Middle East, and environmental matters such as sea rights and pollution.

The session opened Tuesday with the election of Stanislaw Trepczynski, a deputy foreign minister of Poland, as assembly president. Trepczynski delivered an inaugural address that spoke optimistically about some areas of world diplomacy but came down hard on the U.S. role in Indochina.

Trepczynski, only the second Communist to be elected assembly president, said the Vietnam war "cannot be justified any longer on logical grounds by any stretch of the imagination."

Trepczynski also was dismayed because there have been "no signs of a lasting peace" in the Middle East.

Malawi Offers Shelter

BLANTYRE, Malawi (Reuter) — President Kamuzu Banda of Malawi said Tuesday he has offered to take in British Asians being expelled from Uganda.

The president told a news conference that 500 application forms for temporary resident permits have been sent to Uganda as a start.

Snowmobile Clubs Would Let Four-year-olds Operate Machines

TORONTO (CP) — Children as young as four years old should be allowed to operate snowmobiles if they can pass a test, an Ontario legislature committee was told Tuesday.

Gerry Pringle, director of the Ontario Federation of Snowmobile Clubs, said many children are better able to handle a snowmobile than adults.

However, he conceded to the Committee on all-terrain vehicles that only adults 18 years or older should be permitted to drive snowmobiles on designated secondary roads. Children should only be allowed to drive the machines in off-road areas and with parental consent.

"I have a 14-year-old who has never put a scratch on his machine, but I have a mine," he said later in an interview.

"We shouldn't be looking down on youngsters. They are taught safety in the schools and they are more responsible than many adults."

Mr. Pringle's federation represents 84 clubs with a membership of about 12,500. There are 150,000 snowmobiles in the province.

Among the federation's proposals was one that operators be licensed after being given approved instruction on how to drive the machines.

Mr. Pringle said the system would be the same as now exists for gun handling, where the buyer is instructed on how to use the weapon before receiving a permit.

The federation also proposed before the committee by Rick Franks, of Alliston, Ont., a professional snowmobile racer who presented a brief on behalf of the Ontario Snowmobile Racing Federation.

Mr. Franks said he has four children who drive snowmobiles. They are all in my opinion, competent snowmobile drivers. In fact, I would have to think that my 13-year-old is a more competent driver than the awful lot of adults.

Mr. Pringle's federation represents 84 clubs with a membership of about 12,500. There are 150,000 snowmobiles in the province.

Among the federation's proposals was one that operators be licensed after being given approved instruction on how to drive the machines. Mr.

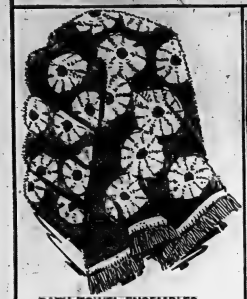
Replying to Bud Germa (NDP—Sudbury), Mr. Pringle said the snowmobile industry would be badly hurt if the committee were to restrict the vehicles to specific trails and areas.

H. D. Campbell, an Ontario Hydro executive, told the committee hydro uses 319 snowmobiles on maintenance and patrol duties.

Restrictions on off-road travel would seriously affect hydro's operations, he said.

Landfill Method Tested

TORONTO (CP) — A chemical process said to turn industrial wastes into non-polluting landfill is being demonstrated here this week at the Canadian Chemical and Process Equipment Exhibition.



The process was launched a year ago in the United States by the Chemfix Corp. of Pittsburgh, Pa., and is marketed in Ontario by Ontario Liquid Waste Disposal Ltd. of Guelph.

Government experts say the principles of the process looks good, but they are adopting a "show-me" attitude pending studies in the field.

Federal and provincial government observers have been invited to see an application of the process at the Sun Oil Co. in Sarnia, Ont., starting Oct. 16.

Trudeau Defends Policy

Refugees from Uganda Not Guaranteed Jobs

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP) — Uganda Asians refugees are not being guaranteed jobs "and certainly won't get them ahead of Canadians," Prime Minister Trudeau told a high school audience in this southern Ontario community Tuesday.

"They are coming here and taking their chances as the rest of Canadians," the prime minister said during a question and answer period as he resumed campaigning for the Oct. 30 general election.

Mr. Trudeau said he was sure the Asians from Uganda would find it difficult to settle in Canada as had refugees from Tibet accepted some time ago.

But he rejected the argument from one student that Canada, because of its high unemployment rate, should not allow the refugees to come here.

If Canada were to open its doors only when it was easy to do so, then "we don't have much merit as a government and Canadians don't have much heart if that is their attitude."

In fact, said the prime minister, if Canada accepted immigrants "only in times of zero unemployment," many new Canadians would not be here today.

Mr. Trudeau also said that the Uganda refugees would take jobs that Canadians now will not accept.

He said he had been told that a number of jobs in Atlantic Canada where unemployment is a chronic problem, "now are going begging" because Maritimers would not work at them.

The same was true in such jobs as picking tobacco and jobs in the fruit industry in Southern Ontario, he said.

"It's a fact that there are some jobs that Canadians don't like to do or don't want to do, and perhaps they will be taken by the Asians who want to settle here," Mr. Trudeau stated.

Mr. Trudeau hit the campaign trail Tuesday after a two-day break in Ottawa. Mrs. Trudeau remained at home.

Friendly crowds greeted the Prime Minister in Peterborough, St. Catharines and Windsor in brief visits to the Ontario communities.

In Peterborough he helped Hugh Faulkner, Liberal MP for the area in the last Commons, to open his campaign by telling a large crowd in a hotel ballroom that Canadians earned, spent and saved more since he took power in 1968.

Canada's higher standard of living meant that they could become more choosy over what industries located in the country and the amount of foreign investment the country would allow.

The country now was in "the intermediate stage" and the government must strike the balance between creation of jobs and protection of the environment.

And perhaps in 20 years time, the underdeveloped parts of Canada would join with other regions in rejecting all foreign investment.

MacDonald Shuns Wage, Price Curbs

SARNIA, Ont. (CP) — Jack Cullen of Sarnia was nominated Tuesday to represent the Liberal party in the Sarnia-Lambton constituency in the Oct. 30 federal general election.

Mr. Cullen held the riding for the Liberals in the last Parliament. He was not opposed for the nomination.

Donald MacDonald, minister of energy and resources, was named speaker and promoted a planned development program for Canadian energy and resources.

In an earlier interview, Mr. MacDonald said wage and price controls suggested by the opposition parties are frightening. He said the only way to enforce such controls would be the establishment of a large bureaucracy.

Caouette Says Levesque Is Playing Politics Again

EDMONTON (CP) — René Levesque, leader of the separatist Parti Quebecois, is playing politics by claiming the armed forces have a file on the political activities of a Quebec labor group, Social Credit Leader Real Caouette said Tuesday.

"When one is not afraid of himself and is not afraid for his actions, he would not care too much about such reports because reports are made throughout Canada on different activities," Mr. Caouette said in an interview.

Mr. Levesque and Marcel Pepin, president of the Canadian federation of National Trade Unions, had criticized the armed forces for having a role in part on the CNTU. They called it an unwarranted intrusion of the military into civilian affairs.

Mr. Caouette said Mr. Levesque "is trying again to play politics with his good friend Marcel Pepin, and those people who are trying to break Canada will find anything suitable to them to try and play politics with it."

NDP Capitalist Says Chartrand

MONTREAL (CP) — The Montreal council of the Confederation of National Trade Unions adopted a resolution Tuesday urging its 60,000 members to spoil their ballots in the Oct. 30 federal election.

Michel Chartrand, president of the council, said in a speech to a general meeting of the council that no federal party favors socialism or Quebec independence, therefore none qualifies for support of the council.

"All parties, including the NDP, are capitalist parties," Mr. Chartrand said.

The Library Corner

By O. D.

Bowers, J.K. — MUNICIPAL COUNCILLORS' HANDBOOK — Mayors and reeves, councillors, aldermen and councilmen, school trustees and municipal officials as well as concerned citizens, will find this handbook an indispensable guide and reference manual to local government administration. The book is designed to help officials acquire an insight as possible, some general knowledge of the laws relating to their own duties and responsibilities as local government officials. A section on regional municipalities has been added along with comments on federal and provincial grants, and the relationship of councillors to citizen's groups. A chapter on schools is also a feature of this second edition of the handbook.

Powell, Clay M. — ARREST AND BAIL IN CANADA A Commentary on the Bail Reform Act, 1971.

A Canadian committee on corrections, formed in 1965, submitted in its report, two chapters on arrest and bail. A bail reform bill, which closely followed the recommendations was introduced in the House of Commons in 1970. This new Bail Reform Act imposes a duty on the police not to arrest without a warrant in those circumstances where there are reasonable and probable grounds to believe that the public interest may be secured by some other means. Mr. Clay Powell, who is with the Ontario Department of Justice, has brought his broad knowledge of criminal law to this handbook on the Bail Reform Act.

Gottesman and Geduld — GUIDEBOOK TO FILM — ELEVEN - IN - ONE REFERENCE

The most comprehensive guidebook available to anyone who wishes to make films, or read and study about films which already exist. This is a guide to books and periodicals which record, evaluate and explain films; a list of theses and dissertations about films. A directory of museums and archives, and of film schools is included. A listing of equipment and supply sources in the United States and of distributors is also included. Bookstores, publishers and sources for stills. Also of interest are film organizations and services — festivals and contests — and awards.

Chilton, John — WHO'S WHO OF JAZZ Storyville to Swing Street

This is an anthology of biographies dealing with over 1,000 musicians whose names are part of jazz history. All the musicians and vocalists who were given individual entries were born before 1920. Only musicians who were born or raised in the USA are included. Some musicians born before 1920 are excluded because most of their professional successes happened after the decades of "Swing Street". The author plans a further volume to cover the later period. In the meantime this is a very thorough coverage of jazz history.

Nicholson, G.W.L. — THE GUNNERS OF CANADA The History of the Royal Regiment of the Canadian Artillery, Vol. II, 1919-1967

Volume One of this work was published five years ago. Here is a large, fully documented and lavishly illustrated record of Canadian and Canadian gunners from the end of the First World War to the present day. Their story as related here encompasses the depression, the terrible but magnificent experience of the Second War, the work of the artillery in Korea and its contribution in Canada's International role in past years.

The reference department now has postal directories for Eastern Ontario, Saskatchewan, Manitoba, Alberta, and If you want to find out a postal code on your mail going to these parts of Canada, a call to the library will check it for you.

Copies of the new Guide to Services, 71 - 72 compiled by the Community Services division of the Department of the Provincial Secretary and Citizenship are also available at the library.

Questions and Answers On Highway Travel

QUESTION: We would like to visit the Hershey Chocolate plant, Hershey, Pennsylvania. Please give us some information on this and a fast route down.

ANSWER: Hershey is Chocolate Town, U.S.A. Located in Central Pennsylvania, it is a memorial to its founder, Milton Snavely Hershey. It must be true that "life began at 40", because in 1903, when Hershey was 46, he returned to his birthplace to begin the large-scale manufacture of milk chocolate products and to found the town that bears his name.

Today the Hershey plant covers over more than 2,000,000 square feet of floor space and Chocolate Avenue, and every year tens of thousands of visitors tour the giant factory. Open May to October 8, 1972.

Hershey created a town that is a model community. Overlooking the town is Hotel Hershey and four golf courses have helped give it the name golf capital of Pennsylvania. But it is the rose gardens and arboretum covering 22 acres in front of the hotel that makes the hotel's setting beautiful. Over the years, millions of garden lovers have marvelled at the beauty of its 120,000 plants.

Hershey Park has picnic facilities, amusement rides, boating, swimming pools, ballrooms and free band concerts. The zoo in Hershey Park has birds and animals from various parts of the world.

Fast route: Take 401 to Ivy Lea Bridge. Interstate 81 to route 743 south to Hershey. This is about 15 miles east of Harrisburg, Pennsylvania. Mileage from Belleville to Hershey is about 641 miles.

In the event of an accident, be sure to get the licence number of the other car, and the home address and telephone number of the driver. It is also a good idea to take the names of witnesses to the accident, as their statements are helpful in determining the facts. Call the police and wait for an on-the-scene investigation, as a report will be filed. Notify your insurance company as soon as possible after the accident by telephone and letter.

To have repairs made and collect from the insurance company, get an itemized estimate of the damages and the cost of repairs from a garage you choose. Show them to the claims adjuster assigned by the company. If he agrees with the cost, the car owner can start repairs knowing his claim will be paid.

Having repairs done before agreement with the insurance company is reached is risky, as payment for all or part of the damage may be denied.

Police Seeking Voice on Paroles

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Association of Chiefs of Police has taken a tough line against liberalization of the parole system, arguing that parole is a privilege rather than a right and that society's rights must prevail over those of an individual.

In a brief to the Senate legal affairs committee, adjourned until Parliament resumes later this fall, the association said practical, realistic changes in parole law could only be made after consultation with them and others "in the field."

"Extreme care must be exercised in evaluating what is humanitarianism for one individual in the light of society in general. . . . It should never be forgotten that democracy is not the right of the individual but the right of society as such."

The brief is one of several already submitted to the committee and a Senate spokesman said another 15 or 20 are expected before the committee makes its report on the parole system. The police chiefs' brief will be presented to the committee when it resumes later this year.

The association makes a number of recommendations concerning the parole system, including one that would eliminate "any and all privileges of subsequent parole" to a convict breaking out of jail.

It suggests that "Tarcefol" education offers be made by authorities and such groups as the John Howard Society to "establish means whereby it would be virtually impossible for a parolee to go wrong."

"All too often . . . the parolee remembers 'easy street' on the bad side of society and little effort is made to 'brainwash' reality into him."

MR. AND MRS. ALLAN KIRK

Kirk – Irish

Emmanuel United Church, Foxboro was the scene of the candlelight wedding ceremony on September 9 of Maureen Lynda Irish and Allan Roy Kirk. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Irish of RR 4 Stirling and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert F. Kirk of Streetsville, Ont. Rev. Abel Parsons performed the ceremony and was assisted by Rev. Murray Stacey (uncle of the bride). Glen Parsons rendered organ music and accompanied soloist, Miss Jennifer Jaynes, of Foxboro.

The bride, given in marriage by her mother and father, wore a floor length gown of satin peau accented by an empire waist, a wedding band collar and long sleeves which were gathered tightly at the wrist. Her gown was enhanced by an overall design of guipure lace created in a chain design. The cathedral length train fell from her waist while a four-tier shoulder length veil of pure silk illusion was caught to a headpiece of guipory lace flowers and trimmed with seed pearls. The white Bible which the bride carried and her mother carried on her wedding day, was crested with pink rose, white stephanotis and streamers intertwined with ivy.

Mrs. Gloria Stacey of Quaideville, Ont., aunt of the bride was the matron of honor. She selected a floor length gown of deep pink polyster crystaletle featuring an empire waist, daisy trim, trailing daisies in the back of the gown and long sleeves gathered tightly at the wrist. She carried a white crocheted umbrella which was adorned with pink roses, white carnations and trailing ivy. Matching flowers adorned the matron of honor's hair.

The bridesmaids were: Miss Cindy Myers, of Stirling a cousin of the bride; Miss Debbie Johnstone of Toronto, cousin of the bridegroom; Miss Diane Kleinsteuber, of Stirling, and the junior bridesmaid, Miss Elizabeth Anne Irish, sister of the bride were all dressed identically to the matron of honor.

Miss Lorlee Stacey, of Quaideville, as flower girl was a miniature bride. She wore a white floor length polyester crystaletle gown with ruffled lace on the puffed sleeves, and neckline. A shoulder length veil was caught to her headpiece of pearls and surrounded it. She carried a crocheted umbrella of pink roses white carnations and ivy.

Best man was Mr. David Kirk, of Streetsville, brother of the bridegroom. Ushers were: Douglas Irish, of Stirling, brother of the bride; Andy Kirk of Streetsville, brother of the bridegroom; Douglas Johnstone, of Mississauga cousin of the bridegroom and Russell Jeffrey, of Foxboro, cousin of the bride.

For the reception which was held in the church parlours, the bride's mother received guests wearing a floor length gown of mauve Swiss eyelet brocade with an empire waist, elbow length sleeves and silver accessories. Mauve flowers adorned her hair and a white gardenia corsage accented her gown.

For the wedding trip to the Pocono Mountains, Pennsylvania and eastern United States, the bride donned a green and white flowered polyester jersey dress with green vest. Brown accessories, and a pink sweetheart rose corsage enhanced her outfit.

Upon their return, Mr. and Mrs. Kirk will reside at 67 29 Street, Long Branch, Ontario.

Social

AT HOME

Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Goodman will be "At Home" to friends, relatives and neighbours on September 24 from 2 to 4 p.m. to mark the occasion of their 40th wedding anniversary, to be held at their summer residence in Black Creek.

* * *

Prior to her recent marriage, Mrs. Allan Kirk (nee Maureen Lynda Irish) was honored at several miscellaneous showers. One was held in the home of Mrs. Mel Dempsey with Mrs. Lorne Smith as co-hostess. Another miscellaneous shower was given by Mrs. Clayton Johnstone on Trent River. Mrs. Don Reilly of Stirling gave a shower with Mrs. Bob Corbitt as co-hostess. Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Williams of Foxboro, gave a combined dinner party and pantry shower for the bride and bridegroom. A corn roast and presentation was given by fellow employees of A and P Store (Plaza) in the home of Mrs. Marg Craig. A miscellaneous shower was held in the home of Mrs. Harold Detlor of Oak Hill with Mrs. Farley Linderfield as co-hostess. The Marsh Hill women attended. A trousseau tea was given by the bride's mother in her Oak Hill home. The bridegroom's parents gave a rehearsal dinner in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Johnstone. At this time a presentation was made to the bride and bridegroom of a United Empire Loyalist cake plate.

Engagement Notice

The engagement is announced of Judith Eileen Chaplin, daughter of Mrs. Armour Chaplin, Belleville, and the late Mr. Armour Chaplin, to Robert Sheldon Morine, son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Morine, Willowdale, Ontario. The wedding will take place at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, on October 21, 1972 at 4 p.m.

St. Andrew's Guild Holds Annual Antique Show

What originally began as a Centennial Year project for the St. Andrew's Women's Guild in 1967 has become a successful annual endeavor.

Yesterday afternoon and today, the sixth annual antique show consisting of exhibits from 18 authorized dealers from various communities in Ontario, is on display in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church.

"This year, there is more furniture," said Mrs. Kay Robertson, convener for the show which provided those who are interested in antiques, a variety of relics all under one roof.

From cow bells to clocks, there is an assortment of antiques, including jewelries, quilts, lamps, ornaments and silverware to purchase or view.

There's also a chance for those having antiques at home to learn the name and value of these family treasures from the qualified antique experts there.

Ann Landers

'Distraught Widow' Should Have an Escort

Dear Ann Landers: My husband is a highly-placed executive. I worked for nearly 20 years in another organization where I did well. I quit to take life easier and do the type of home entertaining that Brad feels is vital in his career.

A certain woman who worked as Brad's secretary for five years is giving me some sleepless nights and quiet nights, too. He promised her to assist and lead officer a few months after her husband died. I was surprised (as well as disturbed) because the man who should have had the promotion was skipped over. Brad said he did it because the "distraught widow" needed more money and an emotional boost. Every now and then Brad will let slip he took "an distraught widow" to lunch because she seemed depressed. (He has no idea how these little knishes depress me—and I'd never let on.)

We are giving a large party soon and Brad wants to invite this woman. The thought of it burns me to a crisp. Yet if I refuse I might reveal my apprehension which is the last thing in the world I want to do. Please tell me how to play this.—Looked Up In Kalamazoo.

Dear Kal: Invite "the distraught widow" and find an attractive, unattached man to be her escort, dummy.

Dear Ann Landers: I was in hospital having my fourth daughter when I read in your column that the male determines the sex of the child. I clipped it out and am saving it for my mother-to-be. When she comes tomorrow...I will hand it to her—with pleasure.

The first voice I heard when I came out of the anesthetic was hers. She said: "Don't feel bad, dear. You are still young. Maybe next time you will give us a grandson." I told her there wasn't going to be any "next time," that it was not so simple—finally—that three Caesareans, I have had it with the joys of motherhood and I let her know it. She looked hurt, as if I had let the family down.

Now that you've made it clear that I am not "to blame" I feel better than I have in years.—Clarkson.

Dear C: A woman who has produced four daughters needn't feel that she has let anybody down. Four queens don't a bad hand in anybody's game.

Dear Ann Landers: Recently you said the frequently-repeated statement that vodka and gin do not produce hangovers even when "a lot of malarky." You are correct about this. However, please be aware that vodka is plain ethyl alcohol whereas bourbon whisky and some fortified wines contain a number of amyl alcohols called fusels, somewhat similar to the barbiturates. It is a chemical fact of life that ounce for ounce, whiskies, \bourbons, wines and so on are more apt to produce hangovers than vodka—as anyone who has tried them all will tell you.

So watch it, Ann.—Hung at Hoover

Dear Han: I don't have to watch it, bub. Tomato juice on the rocks is my drink.

That well-touted beverage that is supposed to leave you "breathless" can also render you senseless. And this, it seems to me, is more important than whether or not you wake up hung-over.

Near-deaf Child Attends Regular School

By DORIS CLARE

When our deaf daughter began school she was 11. There had never been a deaf child in the school.

The principal and I agreed on a home briefing program. I still felt as if I owed the teachers some help.

"Please do not think I am being presumptuous when I say let me know if I can help you," I said. "This child is hard of hearing. Her speech and reading level won't be up with the other children.

"I will come and talk over problems at your convenience. I know you do not have the time to give her everything she will need, but she must learn to live in a hearing world. I appreciate your trying with her more than you know."

My daughter's teachers have taken the job as an interesting challenge. She is making marked progress and gets along reasonably well with the other children. The that smile on her face."

My verbal assurances of help gives ahead of time, seems to have been an encouraging factor in my daughter's school life. — from Vital Reviews.

Dear Doris: I am a pitiful case of a teen-ager (14 years).

(1) I am unpopular with the girls in my class, being immature in speech (at times) and action. Is there anything that can be done?

(2) There is a barrier between me and my folks. Is there any way I can break it?

(3) Is it right for a girl to ask a guy to come over to her home? We have a pool table down in our basement and I have been wanting to ask him over but I'm shy. — Lonely.

Dear Lonely:

(1) Fourteen is an in - between age. Mothers hate to see their little chicks grow up you know, and may encourage your baby-talk. If you find yourself talking in a babyish way, clear your throat and start over again.

(2) Barriers between parents and teen - agers are a dime a dozen. Try the direct approach: ask your mother to help you grow up.

(3) With discretion, yes. The invitation should be backed up by your parents; and you should invite not just one boy but one or two other couples to join in your pool game.

Mother should show her face occasionally, perhaps with a soft drink and some cookies or fruit. Being hostess in your own home is a great way to bun shyness in favor of friendliness.

Dear Doris: Have heard there is a noted tuberculosis sanitarium in the Adirondack Mountains. Is there any way I could get to know about it?

I am sure your column helps an unknown number of people. — A Reader.

Dear Reader: Long before today's wonder drugs, the deadly scourge of tuberculosis depended largely on rest and specialty treatment for a cure — a cure discovered accidentally by one of its victims. Sanitariums were built providing outdoor sleeping porches where patients breathed clear open air summer and winter.

The Trudeau Sanatarium at Lake Saranac, New York, has a world-wide reputation for the success it achieved.

I am told that today's treatment (a combination of drugs and rest) achieves improvement much faster, although the incidence of tuberculosis has not changed a great deal. It is still a disease of the undernourished. $

QMSA Meets in Trenton

Thirty-seven medical secretaries attended the 2nd QMSA dinner meeting held at the Red Lion Hotel on Wednesday Sept. 13.

After dinner, the meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Diana Maxwell.

The Medical Secretaries were reminded of the next meeting, which will be an election night. They were also asked to bring at least three baked dishes for the bake sale to be held at the Quinte Mall, Saturday, October 7. Kingston Medical Secretaries have asked members to attend a Clinic Day to be held at the Hotel Dieu Hospital, October 14, but registration is limited and all are asked to get cheques and registration forms mailed immediately. An invitation from the National Secretaries to attend a fashion show on Wednesday, Sept. 27 has been received and those wishing to attend were to contact Mrs. Diana Maxwell for tickets.

The next meeting will be held at Education Hall, Belleville General Hospital, October 11, 1972 at 8 p.m. sharp, when presentation of committee reports and election of officers will be held. It is also the Quinte Medical Secretaries Association month birthday.

The executive of the QMSA had met previously at the summer home of the president at which time future events were discussed. Nominating committee for the new slate of officers to be held on October 11 was appointed as follows: chairman, Mrs. Mae Calcart, with assistants, Mrs. Jean Ling, and Mrs. Danny Kocchin.

Mirror of Your Mind

by JOHN CONWELL

Are bosses becoming more humane?

RESPONSIVE is the word, rather than humane. (Modern bosses cannot be Simon Legrees.) Many executives today are shifting their attention away from profits and production in efforts to keep employees more contented. The results have not only increased profits and production but have made many bosses feel that dealing with people can be just as satisfying as trying to keep on the right side of the bookkeeping ledger.

Do older children want to lead?

YES and no. Older children love to be looked up to; the casual air when they excel in a sport, the gestures of sophistication as they try to act grownup are all for the benefit of the younger children. Of course, there are drawbacks to being an older child idolized by younger boys and girls. Favorite, as a case in point, have the awful knack of "spoiling down" an older child just when he is beginning to think he is almost an adult.

Should a wife be slow to forgive?

NO. No matter how deeply a wife has been hurt, if she still loves her husband, she should not wait until he tries to make up before she forgives him. Even though she may think it makes her appear overly submissive to have her husband beg, if the wife really loves him, she will want him to know she knows that he knows she feels that way. Perhaps here and there a husband will then avoid doing anything that requires her forgiveness.

Song Writer Feels She's Living A Lie

LIVING A LIE — Monique Brunet, who won first prize for a composition at the international song festival in Belgium in 1967, now works as a secretary to a member of Parliament in Ottawa. "I now am living a lie," she says. "I am not the person I would have wanted to become. For me, life must be divided between my music and my husband." (CP Photo)

OTTAWA (CP) — Monique Brunet, who won first prize for a composition at the international song festival in Belgium in 1967, has spent the last few years reflecting.

"I now am living a lie," said Miss Brunet whose composition, En Pariant de Lui, won her the award at the age of 21 at the song festival in Spa.

"I am not the person I would have wanted to become. For me, life must be divided between my music and my husband."

She continues to write poems and songs of love and nature in her spare time. And she has done some television work and has been approached to make a film for which she already has written the theme song.

But Miss Brunet, who was born in the small French-speaking community of Embrun southeast of Ottawa, has curtailed her artistic activities somewhat since her triumph in Belgium.

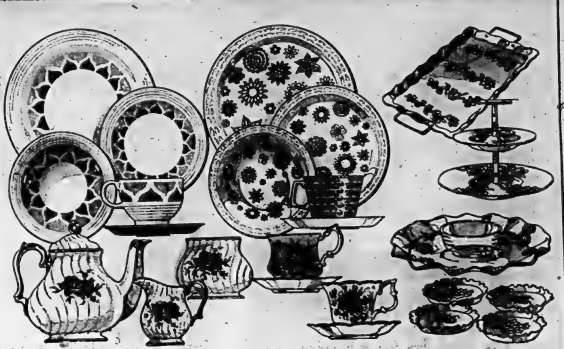
Miss Brunet returned to her parents' home after her overseas excursion to rest and write songs. She has about 200 compositions in her desk.

Married to a student, she now makes her home in Ottawa, but she admits that living away from Montreal prevents her from keeping up her contacts with that city's colony of artists. And it makes it more difficult for her to obtain working engagements.

Miss Brunet has been active in radio and television broadcasts since the age of 13. When she was 18, she gained recognition for her successful appearance on the show Jeunesse Oblige, a talent program on CBC French-language television.

Miss Brunet recalls with nostalgia the times in her life when she was able to devote herself completely to music and song.

She has begun some projects. One of them, a four-part television series, has been completed. Recently, she did an open-air show at Camp Fortune in Gatineau Park in Quebec.



She admits that she dreads social events and feels ill at ease in a crowd. But she loves to spend her leisure hours playing the piano, having once dreamed of becoming a classical pianist.

The urge to compose melodies is overwhelming, and she is hopeful that before long she will once again be launched on a career in the theatre, and sing her songs in public.

STUDY SCHOOL YEAR

FREDERICTON (CP) — A special committee is studying the possibility of keeping open on a year-round basis all of New Brunswick's schools. The committee has been ordered to study all aspects of the proposal and make recommendations for the future of the school year, which currently runs between September and June. The report is expected by October.

WEDDING

GILCHRIST — SUTTON

FRANKFORD — Trinity Anglican Church, Frankford, was the scene of a late summer wedding when Debra Lee Sutton exchanged marriage vows with Campbell Gilchrist of Frankford. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Sutton, R.R. 1, Frankford and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Gilchrist of Cayuga, Ontario.

Rev. C. Staples was the officiating clergyman at the double - ring ceremony while Mrs. Joyce Forst played traditional wedding music and accompanied the soloist, Miss Janet Bauer.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor length white crepe gown with A-line skirt and long full sleeves, which were trimmed at the wrist with mauve flowers. The rounded neckline was trimmed the same as the sleeves. Her waist length veil was held by a garland of lily-of-the-valley in her hair and she carried a bouquet of yellow daisies centred by an orange orchid.

Maid of honour was the bride's twin sister, Miss Gail Sutton, who wore a floor length moss crepe purple gown with long full sleeves. The empire waistline was trimmed with purple velvet ribbon and she wore matching velvet ribbons in her hair. Bridesmaids, Miss Cindy Sutton, sister of the bride and Mrs. Diane Cooke were floor length moss crepe, mauve gowns styled the same as the maid of honor, but with mauve velvet ribbons in their hair. All attendants carried bouquets of yellow daisies.

Attending the bridegroom as best man was John Yarwood, of RR 3 Cobourg and ushering the guests were James and Perry Williamson both of Frankford.

For a reception held in the Anglican Parish Hall, the bride's mother chose a floor length crimplene printed gown in autumn shades with white accessories and a corsage of golden daisies. The bridegroom's mother wore a floor length gown with blue skirt and white top with white accessories and a gold daisy corsage.

Mr. and Mrs. Gilchrist took up residence at 38 Belleville Rd., Frankford, on their return.

U.S. Drags Feet On Lakes Accord

WASHINGTON (CP) — The Great Lakes water agreement signed by President Nixon and Prime Minister Trudeau in Ottawa last April may be jeopardized by foot-dragging on the part of United States agencies, says a congressional report released Tuesday.

The report criticizes the U.S. government's long delay in issuing regulations controlling the discharge of sewage from vessels and adds that joint action with Canada on common boundary waters, such as the West Coast Puget Sound and Strait of Juan de Fuca, are "essential in preventing and controlling oil spills."

It noted that the Environmental Protection Agency had "a 12-month delay" in promulgating vessel-sewage standards. The U.S. Coast Guard, which also must agree on standards before they can be issued, has only set a "target date" of January, 1975, for public hearings.

The report said should take steps to speed its work "so that the United States will not break its solemn agreement with Canada," it says. "Such an occurrence would not bode well for the success of the agreement, so far as Great Lakes water quality is concerned."

Stanfield Pledges To Protect North

YELLOWKNIFE, N.W.T. (CP) — A Progressive Conservative government would protect the delicate northern ecology from hasty development, Leader Robert Stanfield said Tuesday.

Mr. Stanfield laid down the Conservative policy on the north during a surprise one-day campaign stop at the Northwest Territories' capital.

He had been scheduled to spend most of the day in the arctic settlements of Inuvik and Tuktoyaktuk, but his plans were washed out by foul weather. So he stayed here, visiting area mines and meeting voters during midtown strolls.

His new deal for the north statement promised improved transportation to help here more employment capital, settlement of native claims by negotiation, and fast action to bring true self-government to the territories, still largely under federal jurisdiction.

The challenge of the Canadian north is to "strike the right balance between economic and social development, conservation of the environment and recognition of the moral and legal rights of the native peoples," he said.

"I believe this can and must be done."

Mr. Stanfield said the Liberals' election timetable should not be allowed to dictate development policy. The Trudeau government has been "deliberately ambiguous" about proposals to build a pipeline along the Mackenzie River Valley to deliver oil and gas to southern markets.

"The only certainty is that any decision it might take at this point would be tarred on political gain rather than on adequate, objective information."

He also said a Conservative government would consult "unqualified Canadian sovereignty" over Canadian arctic waters.

The Liberal government had legislated strict anti-pollution controls for any ship entering Canadian arctic waters. However, waters outside the normal territorial limit were left as international waters.

Improved radio and television service by the CBC in the north also was called for in the policy statement. "This must mean development of a good regional news service, rather than just improved delivery of southern programs, he said.

Also, a study would be launched on the economic potential of native reserve lands in the north. The idea would be to create a capital fund to finance "promising development projects."

Western Premiers Back Lewis' Charges

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

New Democrat Leader David Lewis said during a Regina open-line radio program that Jean Marchand, minister of regional economic expansion, is using federal grants to buy votes in Quebec.

A few hours later, Mr. Marchand announced a $3.3-million grant for a linerboard plant in Cabano, Que. He denied the grant is being made for political reasons.

In Regina, Mr. Lewis was joined by NDP premiers Allan Blakeney of Saskatchewan, Ed Schreyer of Manitoba and Dave Barrett of British Columbia, all of whom agreed to a joint statement declaring:

"A primary reason for the failure of federal fiscal policies to reduce unemployment has been their emphasis on special tax relief for the corporate sector in the false hope that these concessions would result in job creation by corporations."

Liberal speakers invited Lewis later in the campaign but NDP premiers did not support Mr. Lewis's charges of a corporate tax ripoff.

Turner Denies Saying Food Prices to Climb

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister John Turner has denied forecasting that food prices will continue to climb and that there is little the government can do about it.

He flatly says that I said anything on or off the record about the trend of future prices in Canada, nor did I say there was nothing the government could do about it," he said in a statement issued Tuesday.

Mr. Turner had been quoted as saying Monday night at the meeting where he was renominated in Ottawa-Carleton as the Liberal party candidate:

"I'm afraid we're in for higher prices—that's all there is to it. . . . It will have to work itself out over the long term."

In his nomination acceptance speech text, Mr. Turner called rising food prices a world-wide phenomenon and ruled out wage and price restraint as a sure-fire answer.

"On the price front, the issue is primarily food," he said. "We are all being hurt by what it costs for our weekly food bill.

"It is no consolation for Canadians to learn that rising food costs are a world-wide phenomenon.

"They hurt in the U.S. They are particularly bad in Europe, particularly France—in fact worse than here at home.

"Price and wage controls would mean food rationing," President Nixon has controls in the U.S. and food prices are rising rapidly there. Price controls over food would mean that we would have to have food rationing as well, and I ask myself whether people in Canada would put up with rationing in peace time."

Asians Coming

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — At least 30 Uganda Asians are scheduled to settle in the Windsor area and another 30 or 40 in Sarnia, Ont., over the next few weeks, spokesmen for the Canada Manpower Centres in the two communities said Tuesday.

Mahoney Hits Lewis Stand

CALGARY (CP) — Pat Mahoney, minister of state with responsibility in finance, said Tuesday the basic purpose of the federal system for taxing business "is not corporate welfare but human welfare."

Mr. Mahoney, seeking re-election in Calgary South, told a service club meeting that corporations are the chosen vehicle of the free-enterprise system.

Mr. Mahoney was referring to comments on "corporate welfare bums" made by Mr. Lewis while campaigning for the Oct. 30 federal election.

Mr. Lewis has focussed his criticism on deferred taxes which he says is a system that gives "giant corporations interest-free loans at the expense of the average Canadian taxpayer."

Mr. Lewis announced his resignation last week to run for the Progressive Conservatives in the riding of Northumberland-Durham. The riding nomination meeting is set for tonight in Cobourg.

Mr. Lawrence's formal letter of resignation from the cabinet was presented to Premier William Davis, who accepted it without comment.

The premier last week said he regretted losing the justice secretary, but was excited about the contribution Mr. Lawrence could make to federal politics.

Mr. Davis has not yet announced a replacement in the cabinet for Mr. Lawrence, whose formal letter of resignation as a private member was delivered to Speaker Allan Rest-ler.

Both resignations are effective immediately.

Lawrence Formally Quits Legislature

TORONTO (CP) — Allan Lawrence formally resigned Tuesday as Ontario's justice secretary, saying he is joining Prime Minister Trudeau's great army of the unemployed.

The tongue-in-cheek remark came in a prepared statement announcing his resignation from the cabinet and as a member of the legislature for Toronto St. George.

Mr. Lawrence's only other reference to his candidacy for the federal election was that his own "job prospects" would be better after voting Oct. 30.

You Ain't Seen Nothing Yet!

by

Maurice Switzer

Sports Editor

PETERBOROUGH — If you're one of those hockey buffs who think expansion and new rivalry for the National Hockey League have watered down the caliber of the pro game, you ain't seen nothing yet.

Not unless, of course, you take an evening jaunt up to Peterborough to watch the New York Islanders in action.

The Islanders, along with Atlanta, will swell the ranks of the National Hockey League to 16 teams this winter, and paid $11 million for the privilege. In return, they got 39 players in the expansion draft, seven of whom have since jumped to the World Hockey Association.

Of their initiation fee, $3 million was an outright gift to New York Rangers for territorial rights. The Islanders' rink, the Nassau Coliseum on Long Island, is only 20 miles from the Rangers' Madison Square Garden stamping grounds.

Tuesday-night, the Islanders played their third pre-season exhibition game, and their first at their Peterborough Memorial Centre training quarters.

Minnesota North Stars, a respectable NHL team last year by no means world, or even Russian beaters, booked like Sunday Cup winners in easily handing the Islanders a 6 - 3 setback.

New York coach Phil Goyette paced behind a bench filled with faces even the most learned hockey fan might have trouble placing. A Peterborough press box regular assigned to cover the Islanders had to phone down to the timekeeper's box to locate a name for one New York starter.

The average age of the Islanders is a mere 23.7, with former Russian Bruin Eddie Westfall, at 31, the grandfather of the Islander skaters. Goalie Dennis Dejordy, 34, is a veritable antique in such company.

They did have Bart Crashley (Los Angeles Sharks), Gary Peters and Norm Ferguson (New York Raiders), Ted Hampson (Minnesota Fighting Saints), John Schella and Ted Taylor (Houston), and Larry Hornung (Winnipeg Jets) before they skipped to the fledgling WHA.

The Islanders will likely imitate Punch Imlach's expansion approach in Buffalo, building a team around prize rookies and draft choices he gets by finishing near the bottom of league standings for the first years of the team's existence.

Harris was one of the few players on the ice Tuesday in Peterborough who didn't look out of place in NHL company, working in well on a line of left-hand shots. Harris played right wing on a unit composed of centre Dave Hudson, and left-winger Germaine Gagnon, the player whose name eluded press box observers. The trio got one of the three New York goals, and threatened on several other sorties against the North Stars.

It doesn't exactly run like a wish with the Islanders.

Nonetheless, the Islanders claim to have sold 8,000 season's tickets in advance of their first NHL season, probably since of them to rabid New York hockey fans who would not otherwise get a chance to see the Rangers play.

As for Canadian hockey fans, seasoned to expect the best in ice entertainment, expansion is not much of a drawing card.

There were only 812 paid admissions in Peterborough Tuesday, a far cry from the 4,000 Toronto Leafs would draw for exhibition games in the days Punch Imlach put them through their training camp paces in the Liftlock City.

In recent weeks, Team Canada has learned that even the pick of the NHL litter is not what we expected it to be.

But with such pro expansion of expansion, teams like the New York Islanders will make the Russians look better and better.

Winner On Way

Paul Gouldfellow rounds third with the winning, and only, run of Tuesday's OASA Intermediate "AA" game with Barrie. The Rollins Construction shortstop opened the tenth inning with a single and scored on Al Ferguson's clutch hit to give Belleville a 1-0 win.

Quintes Sign Rexe, Slate Exhibitions

The familiar Rexe name will be in the Belleville's Quinte's lineup Saturday night despite the fact that last year's MVP is still attending Los Angeles Sharks' training camp.

Mike Rexe, who has performed in front of brother Steve for the past two seasons as a Belleville defenceman has been signed by the Quintes for his third term. The red headed rearguard, who applies some devastating hip checks from time to time, scored four goals and assisted on a dozen more in an injury - abbreviated 29-game outing last season.

He, along with the rest of the Quintes, will face a touch exhibition opponent in the form of the Tabla Oilers from the Central Professional Hockey League. The game is 8 p.m. Saturday at the Memorial Arena.

The Quintes' second pre-season tune-up will come Tuesday when the Kingston Aces travel here for an 8.30 p.m. encounter.

Rollins Alive

Fergy Good on 4th Try

By ERIC EMERSON
Sports Staff

A hot pitcher and a cold batter kept Rollins Construction's OASA hopes alive Wednesday.

Ken DeMille blanked Barrie Lakeview Dairy for nine innings, but still couldn't record a win. He blanched them again in the tenth and that was enough, as Al Ferguson delivered a clutch single in the bottom of the inning to give Rollins a 1-0 win. They had lost 2-1 Saturday in the opening game of the best-of-three series.

Ferguson's hitting during the regulation nine innings had been colder than the weather, which had the 189 Alemite spectators huddled beneath blankets or heavy coats. Pitcher Lee Belcourt had chalked the big first baseman as his private pigeon, striking him out in three consecutive plate appearances.

He came to the plate in the tenth with runners on first and second and two out. Pilot Gouldfellow had opened the inning with a bloop single to centre, while Carl Boomhower's sacrifice bunt attempt went for yet another single. Belcourt then appeared to pitch his way out of trouble by fanning Wayne McTaggart and Dale Duvall, before Ferguson destroyed the Barrie pitcher's three-hit shutout by cracking a frozen rope to right field that scored Gouldfellow.

DeMille allowed only two hits over the 10 innings, striking out 14 batters and walking three. He was particularly tough in the clutch, not allowing a ball to be hit out of the infield when one of the five Barrie baserunners were aboard.

"His drop was beautiful in the early innings," lauded Rollins catcher Carl Boomhower, "but once he got a little tired it seems like he can throw his upshoot as well as ever, so we switched to that in the late innings. He pitched a great game."

Belcourt also pitched exceptionally well, allowing only Ralph Plaxo's infield single during the regulation nine innings. That came in the first inning when Barrie shortstop Corby Adams misplayed Plaxo's slow grounder to second. It was scored a single and an error on Adams' wide throw to first that allowed the Rollins' centrefielder to take second.

The Barrie righthander completely handcuffed Belleville batters from that point on. He struck out 13 batters and walked only one, Belcourt's single in the third and a double by George Hines in the fourth were the losers only hits.

Tigers Trounce Madoc

Defence was the order of the day for Trenton in the opening day of Bay of Quinte COSSA football action.

"Our offence was spotless a bit, but the defence played well," advised Trenton Junior coach Joe Di-Green. "They held Centre Hastings to about three or four first downs," he noted of the defensive squad that returns eight of 12 starters from last season.

Mark Petrie on a 30-yard off-tackle burst and Jacques Belanger on a 6-yard reverse were the Trenton touchdown getters. Bob Oliver kicked two converts and a single while Steve Dubard recorded a safety.

"If don't really think we played that well, but Centre Hastings was having a pretty rough time of it," summed up senior coach Tom Nigro of the 39-0 win. "Inexperience seemed to hurt them, although they showed a few flashes of good play. We've already got our exhibition game, while they've been trying to get some players out for a scrimmage," said Nigro of Trenton's opponents.

The Tigers built a 24-0 halftime lead behind the standout running of halfback Don Armstrong and some good play misfiring from quarterback Roger Mountford and Dave Harvey.

Joe Norman counted the longest Trenton touchdown on a 69-yard run-and-run play, while Duncan Armstrong and Steve Dubard led the scorers with two touchdowns each.

Staley's White Steed Starts from Outside

For starting from the outside will be a mysterious white steed, just like the kind Prince Valiant used to ride on his way to the crusades.

The white horse is owned by Larry Staley of Wolfe Island and has been making quite a bit this year both at Connaught Park and Ridean-view Raceway. Gerry Larush trains pacer Betcha for Staley and he'll be battling four others in the ninth race which goes for a purse of $458.

Yankee Jed (Bernie Hunt), John's Prince (Vern Moulton) and Dandy Way (Hugh Wemp) and Dandalion Lad (Gerry Walsh) are the other pacers and drivers set to run in the fastest race of the night.

It will be a night for not only race fans, but horse scrivners alike as Betcha, described as one of the most beautiful animals ever to race at the Downs, leads the five-horse field.

Gerry Walsh it will be Ladies Night with all women admitted free of charge.

Sergeant Shoo-in On No. 3

Hartlen's winning 78 - stroke total included a hole-in-one on the 161-yard, par-three third hole.

Hartlen, who used a seven-iron to can his ace, was playing in a foursome with Major N. D. Sayer, Jim Hodson, and Ron Clarke.

Crookston Bats Still Hot

After a whirlwind Sidney-Thurlow softball finish that carried them from a 3-1 deficit to the championship, Crookston continued by holding Campbellford to a 2-2 exhibition draw Tuesday.

Second game in the three-game exhibition series will be played in Campbellford Sunday at 7.30 p.m.

Ferguson Gives Ottawa Show

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ottawa hockey fans didn't know what they were missing until Tuesday night.

The 20-year-old winger finally made it in the Canadian capital, but as a member of Toronto Maple Leafs, and notched the winner in 5-1 score over Philadelphia Flyers in National Hockey League exhibition play.

In other NHL action Tuesday, Syl Apps clinched a 3-2 victory for Pittsburgh Penguins over California Golden Seals in his hometown of Kingston, Ont., Minnesota North Stars stomped New York Islanders 4-1 at Peterborough, Ont., Boston Bruins beat Detroit Red Wings 4-2 at London, Ont., and Montreal Canadiens edged Chicago Black Hawks 3-2 in Halifax.

The Toronto-Philadelphia game, before 4,000 fans in the 6,000-seat Civic Centre, bordered on mayhem with 88 minutes in penalties being called in the pre-season opener for both teams.

Stan Gilbertson and Joey Johnston were the California marksmen while Ron Snell and Al McDonough scored earlier for the Penguins.

Minnesota had little trouble with the expansionist Islanders who, in earlier games had lost and tied to Atlanta Flames, another new NHL franchise.

Jude Drouin and Barry Gibbs scored two each for the Stars, veterans Murray Oliver and Dean Prentice adding one each. Craig Cameron, Dave Hudson and Lorne Henning were the New York scorers.

The Bruins, with only six of last year's Stanley Cup champions in the lineup, broke a 1-1 deadlock with two second period goals to hand Detroit its second exhibition loss.

Rookies Chris Oddleifson, Doug Roberts and Fred O'Donnell and veteran defenceman Dallas Smith tallied for Boston. Chris Rochefort scored both Detroit markers.

Both clubs get a chance to look at a lot of new faces with many of their personnel with Team Canada in Moscow. The Bruins in Europe—Bobby Orr, Phil Esposito, Wayne Cashman, Don Awrey and Ed Johnston—were in the company of Red Wings Marcel Dionne, Red Berenson, Mickey Redmond and Gary Bergman.

Garrett New Hawk

ST. LOUIS (AP) — St. Louis Blues said Tuesday they have retained rights to centre Danny O'Shea by sending minor league goalie Ioben Garrett to Chicago Black Hawks of the National Hockey League. O'Shea was obtained last February from the Black Hawks in exchange for centre Chris Bordeleau, who this summer signed a contract with a World Hockey Association team.

Name Coach

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League have named Ottawa native Gerry Moore as coach of their Tulsa farm club in the Central Hockey League. Moore, 46, replaces Marcel Pronovost who quit the Leafs' organization to take a coaching position with Chicago Cougars in the World Hockey Association.

Flash in the Pan?

Peter Mahovlich of Team Canada slips the puck under Russian goalie Vladislav Tretiak in the third period of game in Toronto to score Canada's third goal of the game. Mahovlich's goal came when Pat Stapleton was in the penalty box. Canadians recorded a 4-1 win, their only one to date in the 8-game series that resumes Friday night in Moscow. (CP Photo)

Patterson Pushing His New York Luck

NEW YORK (AP) — Muhammad Ali returns to Madison Square Garden tonight for the first time since losing to heavyweight champion Joe Frazier when he meets Floyd Patterson, who has never lost a Garden fight.

Ali was the overwhelming favorite—there was no betting line—to win the scheduled 12-round fight which was to be shown on closed-circuit television at 125 locations in the United States and Canada.

Two ex-lightweight champions also were on the card. Ken Buchanan of Scotland and Carlos Ortiz of New York were set for a 10-rounder which also was scheduled for closed-circuit television, preceding the main event which was to start about 10:30 p.m. EDT.

Ali and Patterson met once before, with Ali, who was then champion, stopping Patterson in the 12th round at Las Vegas, Nev., on Nov. 22, 1965.

Since losing a 15-round decision to Frazier on March 8, 1971, for his only loss against 28 pro victories, Ali has won seven straight. He has won four times this year and in his last fight he stopped Al "(Blue) Lewis in 11 rounds July 19 at Dublin for his 38th knockout.

Patterson, 37, and seven years older than Ali, has won all nine of his fights in the previous and current Gardens. In his last Garden appearance the only man ever to win the heavyweight title twice outpointed Oscar Bonavena in 10 rounds last Feb. 11, and in his last fight he stopped Pedro Agosta in six rounds on July 11 for his ninth straight victory.

Patterson has a record of 55-7-1. He has won by knockout 40 times and lost by knockout on four occasions.

FLOYD PATTERSON

A Happy Ending For Harry's Book?

STOCKHOLM (CP) — Harry Sinden, who came out of retirement to lead a group of Canadian professionals in what was supposed to be a conquest of the Soviet Union's amateur hockey team, now is writing a book about the experience.

Team Canada's efforts against the Soviets so far, and against the Swedish national team here, have been anything but a conquest. But that will all be in Sinden's book which he is putting together with the help of Boston author Bill McDonough.

"We hope to have it out by November," Sinden said after a team practice Tuesday. "He should have the first half covering the in-Canada part done by the time we get back.

"I'm doing tapes here and mailing them home. It may be we're sacrificing quality for speed, but if it isn't pretty good I won't let it come out."

Sinden said the book would appear in both hard-cover and paperback but that no title has been selected yet.

Sinden and his squad of National Hockey League stars opened a new chapter in their adventure today when they left for Moscow for the remaining four games of the Canada-Russia exhibition series.

The games in Moscow are set for Friday and Sunday and Tuesday and Thursday next week. A game against Czechoslovakia in Prague, Sept. 30, wraps up the team's tour.

After acquiring a win and a tie between two losses to the Soviets in the four games in Canada, Team Canada beat the Swedes 4-1 here Saturday and tied 4-4 Sunday.

"There seems to be a new spirit on the team," said Sinden.

"In Canada we tried to fight off the feeling that we were two-to-three-goal favorites. Now the feeling is we are underdogs by a couple of goals."

"To win this series we are going to have to play 30 per cent better than we did in Canada to get the edge in Moscow."

CBC Wants WHA Time

MONTREAL (CP) — The Gazette says CBC and World Hockey Association officials will meet in Toronto Friday to negotiate television rights to twelve WHA games this season.

The newspaper, in a front-page story, quotes Don Goodwin, head of the English-language sports department of the CBC, as saying the network may be interested in carrying up to six WHA games this season.

"We're only interested in the four Canadian cities—Quebec, Ottawa, Winnipeg and Edmonton—and we'd like to get into each city at least once when, as with the opener, there's another Canadian team in there," Mr. Goodwin said.

It was previously announced that the CBC would carry the league's Oct. 11 opener in Ottawa between the Nationals and the Oilers.

Hayes Dislikes Jug Format

"It's 1972, not 1927," said the Canadian trainer of Strike Out and Alley Fighter, two of the starting field of 12 in the second leg of pacing's Triple Crown at the Delaware County Fairgrounds.

The jug traditionally is raced in heats, with the entire field returning for each one until a horse wins two heats for the over-all victory.

"We've got to get away from two-heat races," he said. "If we're going to have two heats, let's have two divisions or six eliminations. Bring back only the first four in each."

Hayes also thinks it's wrong to call the Jug a $198,000 race.

"You can't call it that," he explained, "when the basis go for as much as the first.

"Let's have the eliminations and then race for $198,000 at once."

The Jug starting gate can handle only eight horses abreast in the front row, another point that upsets Hayes.

"I don't know who drew post position No. 12, but he's got to be a sick son-of-a-gun.

"Everyone who makes all the payments to put his horse in a race should have the right to be on the gate, not in the second row."

Hayes revealed his position after Strike Out, favored along with Jay Time and Hilarious Way, drew the pole position.

Jay Time, who has posted an unprecedented six miles under two minutes as a three-year-old, was the eighth favorite at 5-1, to 3-1 for Strike Out and 4-1 for Hilarious Way.

Strike Out and Alley Fighter, the only stable entry in this year's Jug, were linked with Dad's Time as the mutuel field. Dad's Time will be handled by Jens Weller, the first woman to drive in pacing's Triple Crown.

Other horses entered include 9-1 Lyndon Rye Rye, 8-1 Entrepreneur, 10-1 Cory, 10-1 Fast Chip, 11-1 Barry Hanover, 12-1 Goodbye Cannabon and 13-1 Skipper Thorpe.

Hilarious Way, who leaves from the No. 10 position in the second tier, took the first leg of the Triple Crown at Yonkers Raceway May 19. The final leg is the Messenger Nov. 11 at Roosevelt Raceway.

Carrousel Rewards Backers

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP) — Carrousel, a 70-to-1 longshot, returned $288.30 on a $2 win wager in the fourth race at Garden City Raceway Tuesday.

The four-year-old mare finished ahead of eight other entries in the mile trot with a time of 2:06 3-5. Her best previous mark was 2:11 3-5.

A daily double of Jimmy Nemo in the first and Jugler Hobert in the second was good for $53.80. The fourth-race pericella paid $352.80.

The exacta in the sixth race featured a double pay-off due in a dead heat for first place between Happy Time and Adios Ken for returns of $66.70 and $32.50. The 10th-race exacta paid $367.20.

Albatross Cuts Time

DELAWARE, Ohio (AP) — Albatross established a world pacing record over a half-mile track Tuesday in registering a time of one minute, 32 3-5 seconds for the mile at the Delaware County Fairgrounds.

Albatross, driven by Stanley Dancer in the $2,000 non-betting, free-for-all race, broke the former record of 1:37 set by Bret Hanover in the 1965 Little Brown Jug over the same track.

Albatross, owned by Amlable Stable of Hanover, Pa., pushed his career earnings to $1,086,200. He will be retired to stud at Hanover Shoe Farms Inc., this fall.

Quarter times for Albatross were 36 3-5, 69 and 1:32 4-5.

Albatross also holds the world record for pacers in a regular race over a mile track, with a clocking of 1:54 3-5 in July at Chicago's Sportsmen's Park.

Boston Winners Without Playing

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The winner of this mad, mad, mad American League East pennant chase obviously will be the team that manages to play fewer games than the others in the final two weeks of the baseball season.

Boston was back on top of the pack today, thanks in a measure to friendly clouds that dumped enough rainwater on Fenway Park to force postponement of Tuesday night's scheduled game against Baltimore. The postponement meant the Red Sox couldn't lose — something Detroit Tigers and New York Yankees did quite thoroughly. Detroit, which had nothing the best the night before thanks to an open date on the schedule, dropped a doubleheader to Cleveland Indians 3-2 and 6-4 to slip into a second place tie with Baltimore, one-half game behind Boston. Fourth place New York lost to Milwaukee Brewers 7-2, but with the Tigers losing twice, the Yankees actually gained a half game on Detroit and remained 2½ games out of

Elsewhere, in the American League, Minnesota Twins topped Texas Rangers 3-1, Kansas City Royals trimmed California Angels 7-2 and Chicago White Sox beat Oakland Athletics 8-7 in 15 innings.

Montreal Expos dropped Chicago 10½ games behind in the East by whipping the Cubs 7-2; St. Louis Cardinals stopped Philadelphia Phillies 2-1 on 36 innings and San Diego Padres turned back Los Angeles Dodgers 3-2 in other National League action.

Bob Bailey tripled home a run and Tim Foli ripped a two-run homer as Montreal defeated Chicago and 26-game winner Ferguson Jenkins before 1,363—the smallest baseball crowd at Wrigley Field since April 25, 1967.

Four Reds' Magic Number

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Four is Cincinnati Reds' pennant-winning magic number.

The irrepressible Reds continued to roll toward the National League West pennant by beating San Francisco Giants 5-4 Tuesday night.

"I said in the spring that we would win it," said Cincinnati manager Sparky Anderson, "and I still think so. I don't consider it over yet, though. We're going to have to go out and win those games."

The Reds, with a juicy, 7½-game lead, need a combination of four victories and—as Houston Astro losses to secure their second division title in three years.

And Anderson has had news for the second-place Astros.

"I feel as though we're starting to put our game together," said the Cincinnati skipper.

The Astros kept their slim pennant hopes alive by beating Atlanta Braves 5-3. In the East, Pittsburgh Pirates trimmed New York Mets 3-1 and clinched a tie for their division.

After beating Mickey Lolich on the opener, the Indians completed the sweep as Graig Nettles tagged his 17th homer of the year in the nightcap.

After batting Rajah Davis and batting the last-place Brewers put the slug on New York. But the scoreboard, with its news of Detroit's double defeat at Cleveland, was the only place

Oris to win it for the Sox after Oakland had come from behind twice—once on a two-out, two-run single by Joe Rudi in the ninth inning and the other time on a two-run 13th inning homer by Dave Duncan.

PCOs About to Lift Title

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP) — As far as Peterborough PCOs are concerned, there is nothing about a three-game winning streak that wouldn't be improved by a four-game winning streak.

The Eastern Canada junior lacrosse champions plan to keep that thought uppermost in their minds tonight when they take the floor for what they intend to be their final meeting of the year with Richmond Roadrunners, the Western champions, when they host the three times in the Minto Cup series.

Still fresh in the memory of many of the PCOs is last year's national final, which went to seven games before the Roadrunners won the title in overtime.

"We have to win in four," said John Grant. "It's four or nothing. Any other way would just balance things off over the two years."

Peterborough goaltender Greg Thomas also feels he still has something to prove.

Last year the Roadrunners

Morgan Still Brightest Star

TORONTO (CP) — Charles Morgan of Tampa Bay, Fla., continued atop the fleet of 36 boats here for the North American Shaw sailing championship.

He won Tuesday's only race, his second victory in three starts of the best-five-of-six series this week which ends Friday.

Mario Inocco of Brazil held second spot followed by Rey Trendle of New Orleans and two Coopers Bay, N.Y., yachtsmen, David Oberg and John MacLaurland.

borrowed Ted Gennacy from Burnaby, B.C., and, by common consent, the pickup netminder outshone Thomas throughout the series.

For one thing, he wants to score a goal. He did it once this season, on a penalty shot, and has come close on other occasions, storming up the loor in the dying seconds of play.

His opportunity may be limited tonight. Peterborough coach Ben Floyd plans to start second-string goaltender Tim Barrie to give him experience for next year, when Thomas will have graduated from junior ranks.

The coach soothed his disappointed goalie by promising to put all his last-year players on the floor in the closing stages of the game if the PCOs are ahead, to ensure that they take an active part in nailing down Peterborough's first Minto Cup.

Liske Ready for Eagles' Home Opener

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Quarterback Pete Liske is expected to be ready for the Philadelphia Eagles' 1972 National Football League home opener against Cleveland Browns Sunday, but head coach Ed Khayat is readying a couple of new backups just in case.

The 26-year-old Liske, former Calgary Stampeder quarterback back in the Canadian Football League, is undergoing whirlpool and other treatment for the injury and will take it easy in practice drills.

Khayat said free safety Bill Bradley and strong safety Steve Preece, former college quarterbacks, would practice taking snaps and making handoffs as a precautionary measure.

Thomas' Holiday Expensive

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Running back Duane Thomas joined San Diego Chargers Tuesday, 39 days after being suspended for failure to report to the National Football League team.

The fines for refusing to report total $3,300.

Theismann Still Out

Gabler to Handle Argos

TORONTO (CP) — Normally Joe Theismann's absence from the Toronto Argonaut lineup would be enough to send head coaches frolicking to their desks in sheer anticipation of their next victim.

Such is not the case for tonight though when the East-ern Conference Argos are host to British Columbia Lions of the Western Conference in a scheduled Canadian Football League interlocking game.

Toronto coach Leo Cahill confirmed Tuesday what had been expected for several days, Theismann went back on the injury list for at least another two games. He broke his ankle in the Argo opener against Montreal on Aug. 5.

In his place will be Wally Gabler, the nomadic veteran passing his second stint with the Argos in three years. Since being acquired from Hamilton Tiger-Cats last month, Gabler has been a pillar of consistency.

Tonight's game, scheduled for 8 p.m. EDT, will be carried on the full CTV network.

With Gabler, who has developed poise and maturity since his first tour in Toronto, Cahill was confident Argos would be in capable hands.

"His play, execution and leadership have been great," said the Toronto coach.

He didn't think R Pale to Gabler quarterback was encountered only one bad quarter in three games. That was the final 15 minutes against Hamilton when he threw three interceptions and the Tiger-Cats won 23-12.

Of the two in camp, Don Moorhead is the more experienced though Keys specialist in his play calling than newcomer Don Bosco.

Moorhead has hit on six touchdown passes to two for Moorhead in half as many throws, but his interception ratios is one to 7.1 passes to 3.61 for Moorhead, second best in the CFL to Edmonton Eskimo Tom Wilkinson's 23.8.

One key problem Keys has faced in compiling a 1-7 record this year is the 21 new faces in the starting lineup com-plemented another 12 who saw in only their second season with the Lions.

Foreign Investment Needed - - MacNaughton

TRENTON (Staff) — Charles MacNaughton, newly appointed provincial minister of treasury, economics and intergovernmental affairs, yesterday told guests at the opening of a new Trenton food processing plant, Canadians should recognize the importance of foreign investors.

Minutes before he officially opened the million dollar Robin Hood Multifoods plant on Sidney Street, Mr. MacNaughton stressed the importance of establishment of a set of foreign investment guidelines, designed both to help Canada grow with aid of outside capital, at the same time maintaining true economic nationalism.

"For many years we have in Canada, our policy has been open-door and we have been inviting foreign capital to welcomed investment from all quarters," he said.

He has attended to "dispel some of the innuendoes that have been raised by some of the critics of foreign investment," plus attempts at radical Canadianization, Mr. MacNaughton stressed that Canadians must appreciate the "efforts, sacrifices and risks that have been associated with the establishment of Canadian operations by foreign investors."

He said studies into moderate central policies are being conducted by a provincial select committee.

"The climate for Canada is complex and changing. How do we relate economic nationalism to our rapidly expanding labor force and the need for additional job opportunities . . . or the, new international scene which includes a tougher bargaining stance by the United States and a new common market association for the United Kingdom?

"It is my belief that there will be general acceptance among investors from outside this country of our desire to increase Canadian ownership and control," he said, emphasizing the fact that this would be done "without infringing on the outside investment that already has been made, in good faith, in this country."

Mr. MacNaughton predicted a bright future for Ontario, quoting Queen's Park economists' figures which predict potential to double gross provincial product by 1980, the value of annual production of goods and services rising from $40 billion to over $80 billion.

Applying the province's aim at provincial growth, the provincial treasurer told guests the new Trenton plant represents a portion of the $3-billion investment in plant and machinery being undertaken by the province this year.

"This plant is a symbol of our determination to revive an economy that has suffered from a mild dose of uncertainty and some unfortunate discouragement over the past two years," he said, later drawing attention to the Ontario performance loan of more than $250,000.

He cited this figure as "a major factor in influencing the company's decision to locate in this community".

Since 1968, 13 Trenton companies have received more than $2.3 million in such loans as fact MacNaughton said is expected to result in $50 additional jobs within the next few years.

Robin Hood Multifoods Trenton plant, which employs 37 workers, is the company's first attempt at marketing a frozen food line. The Stouffer Foods company in the United States, bears that brand name. The recipes are identical to those used in the States.

Plant officials predict the product will be available by early October.

In a lighter vein, Mr. MacNaughton told guests he and his wife have participated in the Robin Hood Multifoods test distribution of the Stouffer brands in London, Ontario.

"So far, our favorites among the entrees are short ribs of beef and lobster newburg. And we've fund of the cauliflower and broccoli au gratin."

Convenience Foods New Plant's Line

Robin Hood Multifoods' million dollar plant on Sidney Street, near Highway 401 was officially opened yesterday by the Hon. Charles MacNaughton, treasurer of Ontario and minister of economics and intergovernmental affairs.

Employing 37 people — in their newest of 25 plants and offices in Canada, Robin Hood Multifoods are taking their first step into the production of a frozen, prepared food line. These dished foods, numbering 28 at present are being marketed under the lizard name Stouffer Foods, after the Salon, Ohio, company from whom the licence for production was obtained, plus the recipes being used in Trenton.

Earlier, at a pre-luncheon press conference at the Four Seasons Hotel in Belleville, Logan R. Brown, president and chief executive officer of Robin Hood Multifoods, Montreal, explained the Stouffer brand products in Canada . . . everything from Macaroni and Cheese at 59 cents, to Lobster Newburg at $1.89 and Short Ribs of Beef at $2.49 . . . is geared to single dish servicing. Asked to elaborate, he explained this type of packaging gives everyone the chance for a different meal, with side dishes either prepared by the family cook, or use of vegetable selections also available under the Stouffer brand name.

The brands, sold throughout the U.S. by the founding Stouffer firm, which began as a small lunch counter and branched out into a multi-million dollar corporation, have been test marketed in London, Ontario, that city experiencing a 70 per cent freeze, packaged food sales increase in the past year, according to Robin Hood Multifoods officials.

One of the home economists present for the press conference asked if ethnic foods, now becoming increasingly popular would be added. Mr. Brown replied foods such as Lasagna, marketed in the U.S., could possibly be made available in Canada. He added the 20 varieties to be sold initially in Ontario and eventually throughout Canada, are part of a family of 38 available below the border.

Added lines will depend on popularity, which officials say they have no doubt of. The Minneapolis parent company president claims they are "the best-tasting, high quality entrees in this country."

Mr. Brown told guests the Stouffer brand has a shelf life in excess of one year at zero degrees fahrenheit, with no noticeable loss of flavor.

These laboratories have been installed in the 28,500 square foot Trenton plant. Everything from analysis of butterfat content in milk, to taste-testing kitchen laboratories are maintained.

The line consists of 12 main dishes, including shrimp newburg and Welsh rarebit, five side dishes such as spinach souffle and potatoes au gratin, plus three meat pies, beef, turkey and chicken.

Although not inexpensive . . . Brown says the product is geared for $8,000 - a year income families . . . they offer a delicious variety, attested to by guests who attended a post conference luncheon of the Four Seasons and those who took samples home following the opening.

Robin Hood Multifoods, better known for their flour, oats and cake mix lines, claims to be Canada's 91st largest company, employing 1,400 Canadians. They also claim $100-million annual sales, plan assets of $52-million in their 25 plants and offices.

Trenton Arena To Be Studied

TRENTON (Staff) — Acting on a request from the Department of Labor, Trenton town council Tuesday night recommended to the recreation committee that a qualified engineer be retained to study the Trenton Community Gardens for structural strength.

The letter from the department of labor suggested such an examination is necessary to ensure the arena meets the requirements of the National Building Code for snow loads in the area.

Special Education Cost $1 Million

Hastings county board of education spends "more than $1 million a year on salaries for people engaged in teaching children with learning handicaps.

And this figure doesn't include the cost of operating and staffing its three schools for the mentally retarded.

School board administrators outlined special education facilities in the county at a meeting of members of the Council for Exceptional Children and the Association for Children with Learning Disabilities that drew more than 200 people to Quinte Secondary School last night.

Director of education Eric Runacres said the basis of education in this county is the self-sufficient school, one in which the principal assesses the needs of the community and plans a program for his school to cope with them.

The individual teacher in the classroom is in the frontline in recognizing the special needs of the children," he said.

If a child needs special attention for a learning problem, an "improvement teacher" is called in who assists the teacher in classroom work by giving individual attention to specific children in the class, or children with problems in a class for special instruction.

If the problem persists it is necessary, segregated classes of low learners may be established in the school.

"Support people" are attached in pairs of associate groups — four teams to serve the eight secondary schools and their feeder elementary schools in the county.

In the support teams are psychologists and such experts as speech correction teachers.

The board, said Superintendent T. W. Morris, is committed to expansion of services through expansion of staff. But because of the shortage of special education teachers in the province, the board must train its own teacher, in special education. Due to cooperation with the ministry of education it ran a summer course last year, and a night school course last winter. As a result, the board expects to have about 120 teachers with special education qualifications "of one degree or another" this year. The number in 1968, before county - wide boards were formed, was 24.

The county board also offers home and hospital instruction for the physically handicapped and is now moving in the direction of home instruction of pregnant teenagers.

Although the board's new policy toward pregnant teenagers is unofficial and unpublicized, it resulted last year, a secondary school principal confided, in "saving" at least five of his students from becoming permanent dropouts.

Although some teachers offer enrichment programs, county schools as yet have not established segregated classes for their brilliant students. Morris said.

A parent in the audience asked if a concerted effort is being made to acquaint classroom teachers with the symptoms of learning disabled children.

"I have found myself in the ridiculous position of explaining to my child's teacher about brain - damaged children," she said.

Parents Express Concern

By LENNY WILLIAMSON

A secondary school teacher of learning - handicapped students claimed last night that a "breakdown in psychological services" has made it impossible for him to get information on his students.

William Kwait, an occupations teacher, said lack of coordination in psychological services has led to a programme that will have a long - term effect on special education in the county.

He made his comments in the final moments of a question period at Quinte Secondary School called by two groups devoted to the learning handicapped — the Council for Exceptional Children and the Association for Children with Learning Disabilities.

He directed his comments at a panel comprised of Burke Summers, principal of Macaora St. Public School in Trenton; E. T. Morris, superintendent responsible for special education with the Hastings county board of education; Donald Williams, chairman of the board and Eric Runacres, director of education.

In rebuttal, Mr. Runacres said the method of organizing consultants and psychologists in the past was wrong, and the present reorganized system "put co-ordination closer to you."

The discussion of the confirmation field of special education revealed dissatisfaction on the part of everyone involved.

School board administrators said they were dissatisfied with the service provided at the provincial government level.

Mr. Morris said there was "departmentalization" at the provincial level and asked the boards of education should supply psychologists.

"Are they not para medical personnel who should be paid by the department of health?" he asked. He also noted the need for after medical personnel such as physiotherapists and speech pathologists and mobile clinics to bring such personnel to Hastings county.

Parents in the audience complained of inadequate teachers, lack of supplies and equipment for special education programs and the open-concept school.

Mr. Runacres was frank in admitting there are some policies teachers in the system.

"We have some poor parents too," he observed.

One mother complained that a child who was a slow learner was allowed to work on her own, while another child, exceptionally bright, has attention concentrated upon him. And the slower child's teacher made a practice of calling out all marks as she returned assignments and exams.

"That is a most dreadful thing," agreed Mr. Runacres. "It makes me want to curl up and die, because we're not in the business of hurting children."

Another parent complained that budget restrictions penalized small schools with four or five teachers.

Small schools, she said, don't have equal opportunity to buy special equipment and materials for teaching the learning disabled.

Mr. Runacres denied a problem with lack of supplies in county schools.

Lyle Langabeer Will Stand

Interest in Belleville's municipal election on December 4 is being pushed into the background as result of the more immediate federal vote, but potential candidates continue to make their intentions known.

The latest is public utilities commissioner Lyle Langabeer who today announced that he would again seek re-election to the commission.

Mr. Langabeer had been a member of the utilities commission for seven years and also has 31 years experience on the Belleville school board.

New Plant on View

When CKWS-TV in Kingston cancelled Sesame Street, because, according to station manager Allan Brooks, of Canadian content laws the children of Kingston made it clear they were not happy about losing their favorite program. Blacks Demand More Involvement civil rights official criticized Hollywood Tuesday for what he termed "black exploitation," demanding that movie studios submit scripts involving blacks to special review boards and

Roy Innis told a news conference the Congress of Racial Equality also wants black consultants to "pre-edit" all black movies before they reach theatres.

He also said blacks must be given a large "piece of the action" financially in such ventures, and while producers using blacks on screen should be required to pay for black education programs in film-making and other areas.

Should the demands be refused, Innis said, CORE would take all action necessary to stop these films from being produced."

He spoke of possible boycotts and legal action, but said CORE would deplore any violent action by militants against the studios.

He cited for criticism such recent box-office hits as Shaft, Superfly and Come Back, Charleston Blue.

Mitchum Acting Natural

There was a time when the big handsome actor seemed to be involved in more romantic and frolic misadventures off the screen than on it. Some of his critics predicted he was to boisterous to last as a movie star.

But time has calmed Bob down, and now that he he made some 50 pictures in nearly 20 years—his latest is Wrath c God—he has become one of th most durable box-office names in an industry which celebrity is often increasingly transient.

Directors like to work with Mitchum, and rate him as one of the best and most dependable actors in films. Bob Mitchum, himself, who once worked in an aircraft factory and talks as though he regards acting as a temporary source of livelihood.

"This business has robbed me of my initiative," he said, smiling. "It's so easy to do. There are only two hard things about it—wiping off the makeup at the end of the day and pulling on and pulling off your boots while you're making a Western.

"I think I'd like ditch-digging just as well. You just take a shovel and do as you please."

But Mitchum, despite a lifelong skepticism of people and their professed motives, is no goldbrick. On the set, he is known as a hard and conscientious worker.

"I think life is largely a matter of survival," he said. "The mere continuance of life is the own purpose. You have your duty to people, of course! That's duty to people, of course. That's what it's all about—people. But the best you can do in the best you can do, and I don't think everybody even does that. He always keeps a rescue outlet—that's his instinct for survival.

"I take life myself pretty much as it comes. I've never been bored. I could sit in a closet and be placated. I like my day as it comes."

Mitchum has pretty well lived down the public's image of him as a heavy-drinking, rough, tough playboy.

"I don't know what my public image is—there have been so many versions," he remarked. "Worrying about that could drive you into schizophrenia. But I think the most dangerous thing for an actor to do is to try to live up to any public image ed him.

"My friends say I've changed over the last 25 years. I haven't. I have kept the same values. The best value, I think, is honesty. You always have to keep searching yourself to see whether your motives are clear —or whether you're kidding yourself."

Liz Taylor Withdraws Diamond

PARIS (Reuter) — Actress Elizabeth Taylor has withdrawn her huge $1.5-million diamond from a jewelry exhibition opening here Friday after receiving threats from Palestinian Arab guerrillas, exhibition officials said Tuesday.

A spokesman for the leading French jeweler, Cartier, on whose stand the 69-carat diamond was to be exhibited, said Miss Taylor's New York lawyers had asked that the gem be kept in a Paris bank safe instead of going on display at Europe's biggest jewelry show.

After they calmed down Bob Tessier, 21, and John di Lunzio, 18, the officers Monday demanded to know the cause of the trouble.

There was no trouble, the pair replied, waving scripts. They were trying out for roles in a local production of Thornton Wilder's play, The Skin Of Our Teeth, which calls for a number of loud arguments.

The story was being used by the Westminster Community Theatre Youth Group for auditions. Jess Newman, director of the group, said later: "Tessier and di Lunzio got the parts, of course."

What the Stars Say

By JEANE DIXON

Thursday, Sept. 21

Aries (March 21-April 19): Distraction with others' problems could lead to a minor but difficult-to-correct error. Be thorough in all that you do.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Adventurous spirit brings great optimism. Speculation in finances is irresistible, to be done only if you know how much you can part with comfortably.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): What had been scheduled to be paid off in terms or at some later date is suddenly due. Parity nonetheless and your solution.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Overexertion is a possibility. You will be more successful by remaining moderate, well-balanced in habits and choices.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): No body is going to tell you the full story. Do your own careful estimates, be resolved to go without details, think big.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): The need for exact delivery of what has been promised you gives all concerned some discomfort, as nothing fits expectations.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Pace your efforts to avoid fatigue; conditions are hindered by old methods, mechanical in efficiency. Expecting favors is unreal.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Life has both sunshine and shadows, with more of the darker ones likely today. Face up to disappointment without recriminations.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Keep your mind on issues rather than personalities. Restrictions on your expansion may exert settled up further difficulties.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): The wise will listen for that word today, finding it in mixed implications or tell-tale discrepancies of figures or quasi-likes.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Projects will be out of line with present conditions. Spend the day factfinding, making comparisons, then sleep over impulse.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Promises are easy to make, hard to redeem. Your projects may be caught in between conflicting claims for your attention.

Discharge Normal If Not Continuous

By G.C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 18 and have had a whitish vaginal discharge for three or four years. I am a virgin so I never worried about venereal disease. Should this be treated, and if so, exactly what is it I have?—S.L.

A common question from girls, but also a question that can't be answered positively on the basis of information in a letter. Here's an appropriate guideline that ought to help.

Some discharge can occur normally at the time of ovulation, that is, at mid-cycle, or between periods, at the beginning of one period and the beginning of the next one. This is a mild, transient discharge, and isn't irritating. Nothing needs to be done about it.

If, however, the discharge is more continuous, rather than just for a few days at mid-cycle, then it ought to be checked by a doctor.

One frequent cause is a parasitic infection by a microscopic organism called trichomonas. This has nothing to do with whether you are being "a good girl," as we used to say. That is, it can be passed back and forth by sexual contact, but it also is contracted without any sexual aspect.

The discharge can become irritating and if the doctor finds that that is the cause of the discharge, the sooner it is treated the sooner you are rid of it.

There can be other causes of discharge—venereal disease among them, of course. But there can be irritation of the lower vagina with two million cases of gonorrhea a year, and I forget how many unwanted pregnancies. I think it's time for somebody to speak out occasionally against the "free-and-easy sex habits of high school kids." Not that I'm all for "talking down" to them, as be-

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I cannot talk to my father about sexual matters, so I'm asking you. When should a boy wear an athletic supporter for swimming? I am 13 and a good swimmer, and go off the diving board frequently.—T.C.D.

This isn't really a sex matter. It's a matter of personal comfort (and of protection, in contact sports).

Many swim suits have built-in supporters. If yours doesn't, you'll probably be more comfortable if you wear a supporter.

Meantime, don't be too sure that you can't talk to your dad about sexual questions. I'm speaking as an older man who didn't—and once I was 13 years old, too, as I can see a little of both sides.

Lots of fathers don't know how to bring up sex subjects because they don't know just what their sons want to know—and they don't like to cross down the young folks' throats things they already know or don't care to hear about.

If the sons will give the father a hint, most dads will cope with it. So if some particular question is bothering you, just ask your father about it casually, and see if you don't get the ice broken.—

Note to J.S.: You are entitled to your opinion, of course. But it, but it's time somebody tried to impress upon them that sex can be handled with a certain amount of knowledge and understanding, and it's up to them to learn something about it. If that's contributing to the Opening lead — king of spades.

In the 27th round Great Britain met Italy and inflicted a one-sided 19 to 1 victory point win against the Blue Team, perennial winners of the world championship.

Avarell was a great battle of wits between Avarelli and Priday in this deal, where two brilliant exchanges occurred in the play — the laurels finally being divided equally.

Avarelli as South got to four hearts doubled. His sacrifice bid was well judged, for Priday (West) would have made three notrump, vulnerable, quite easily.

Priday cashed the K Q of spades, shifted to a low club to partner's ace, and took two diamond tricks with the A Q when East (Rodriguez) returned that suit. Then Priday made an unusual but farsighted — play when he returned the queen of clubs, knowing full well that declarer had the king.

Avarelli was with the king and, not to be outdone, countered with a well-hoarded bit of play of his own. He returned the jack of trumps, acting like a man who had lots of trumps including the K-J-10.

Priday followed low, which dummy did also, and was somewhat abashed to see partner follow suit with the ten. He now saw that he could have assured himself a trump trick had he covered the jack with the queen, but it was too late to do anything about it.

However, Priday got the trick back when Avarelli led a trump to the ace and then had to solve the problem of returning to his hand to draw the last trump. Finding it impossible to believe that Priday would have led the queen of clubs if he had a lower club to return, Avarelli opted to ruff one of dummy's spades. So Priday made his queen of hearts, after all, and the battle of wits ended in a tie.

Tomorrow: Italy vs. Great Britain.

J. C. McRuer Says People Need Municipal Watchdog

TORONTO (CP) — The provincial government should retain control over municipalities to protect residents from irresponsible local politicians, J. C. McRuer, former Ontario chief justice, said Tuesday.

He told a legislature committee studying the Ontario Municipal Board that the people need a watchdog on municipal officials and politicians.

Under the current structure of municipal government, he said, residents are often denied an opportunity to oppose controversial projects such as Toronto's Spadina Expressway.

The OMB gives people a chance to protest these projects over the heads of local politicians who have been known to ignore residents' wishes, he said.

Phillip Givens, Liberal member for York-Forest Hill, asked him to elaborate and the former chief justice shook a finger at the former Toronto mayor and said: "You know perfectly well what I'm talking about."

He said municipal politics is full of "behind-the-scenes dealing" in which council members lobby each other for support with promises of backing on future issues.

Planning Said Now Necessity

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Planning in the area of the environment was a luxury in the past but today it is a necessity, Walter O. Macnee, deputy minister of natural resources, said Tuesday in a panel discussion during a conference of Ontario conservation authorities.

Food Dearer

OTTAWA (CP) — Consumer prices rose last month in all the principal cities for which separate statistics are kept, ranging from one-tenth of one per cent in Toronto to 1.3 per cent in St. John's, Nfld., Statistics Canada reported Tuesday.

Food prices rose in all cities more rapidly than the general consumer price index, the statistics bureau said.

The indexes, based on 1961

Plan Free Vote

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario's university students will be asked to vote next month on a free strike to protest increases in education costs.

Eric Miglin, an executive member of the Ontario Federation of Students, told a news conference Tuesday the referendum on a tuition fee boycott has been scheduled for Oct. 11-22.

Church Sells Rio Zinto Shares

LONDON (AP) — The Church of England has sold its major shares, worth $3.67 million, in Rio Tinto Zinc, the international mining and smelting corporation.

The church said Tuesday the decision was taken because of the firm's plans to mine uranium in South Africa against United Nations advice.

Beef Too High

TORONTO (CP) — Retailers of beef should adopt a "more responsible" policy by reducing the price of beef, Charles Gracey, Toronto manager of the Canadian Cattlemen's Association, said Tuesday.

Mr. Gracey, who said last week that producers and consumers are being victimized by pricing policies of supermarket, said live cattle prices have dropped by $4 a hundredweight in Canada — the last month while retail prices generally were holding steady or going up.

GM Prices Remain Same

TORONTO (CP) — General Motors of Canada said Tuesday prices for its 1973 cars will not increase from 1972 levels.

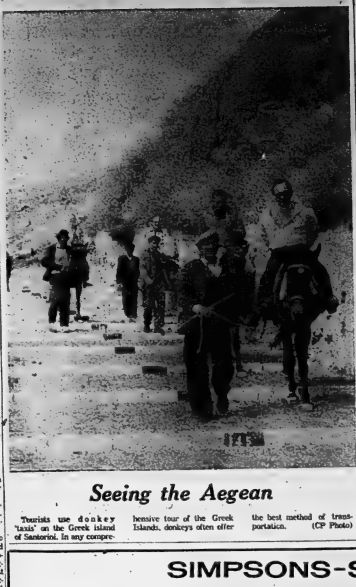
Ford of Canada Ltd. and Chrysler Corp. of Canada said no decision has yet been reached on pricing of their 1973 lines. Ford's 1973 models go on sale Thursday and new Chrysler lines will go on sale next Tuesday.

Plan Vote



WINNIPEG (CP) — Justice Minister Otto Lang said Tuesday a free vote will likely be held in the Commons later this year on the issue of capital punishment.

The five-year suspension of capital punishment except for slaying of on-duty policemen or prison guards expires at the end of the year.

Two Threats

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian businessmen were told Tuesday that inflation and increasing demands for corporate involvement in social matters are two major threats to the competitive enterprise system.

Ronald S. Ritchie, a Toronto oil company executive, said business should not duck its social responsibilities. But he suggested that companies must place first priority on production of goods and services at reasonable prices.

World Currency System Cracked

LONDON (CP) — Canadian economist A. F. Wynne Plumptre says the post-war world currency system is "deeply cracked" and predicts that any future system will involve more frequent changes in major exchange rates.

The former assistant deputy finance minister who recently completed a seven-year stint as principal of Toronto's Scarborough College reached these and other conclusions in a special report to be circulated among Commonwealth finance ministers meeting here today.

Plumptre, in his extensive study which likely will play a central role in the two-day Commonwealth meeting, maintains that the 1971 Washington arrangements involving devaluation of the U.S. dollar and adjustments in other major currency rates "effectively papered over some of the cracks."

But he argues that the system is still "crisis-prone" and that developing countries may have even more to lose from a system breakdown than industrialized countries which appear to be engaging in competitive exchange-rate cuts in the struggle to win trade and build up currency reserve surpluses.

Sentences Extended For Shopping Spree

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — A two-month period and the night before his arrest had visited a wine store in the shopping centre and returned with a 12-bottle case.

On every shopping occasion, he said, the runners returned to the institution's farm annex.

Judge Baker said the manner in which convicts can leave the annex with very little effort is not a matter for levity.

The judge was astonished that convicts "could secure clothing to match the surrounding terrain, green for the green fields and gold clothes at harvest."

Distinctive clothing for the convicts has been ordered by the department of the solicitor-general and A. J. Deerhacs, deputy warden at Collins Bay, said it would be difficult for the general public to know that escaped convicts are shopping at the shopping mall.

Nationalism Ending Hands-across-border Tradition

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (CP) — Rising economic and cultural nationalism in Canada is marking the end of traditional hands-across-the-border relations with the United States, Calvin G. Rand, president of the Niagara Institute for International Studies, said Tuesday.

A new mood toward the U.S. has developed in Canada, he told a Rotary Club meeting.

"It's almost a national pastime now among Canadians to question the degree of Americanization of their country and propose ways of reducing it.

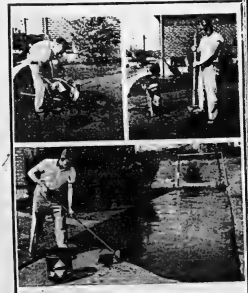
"The mood in Canada today is for a much more independent Canada, a new Canadian, nationalism, both economic and cultural, and a Canada that can compete on its own terms with the United States."

Mr. Rand, a Buffalo, N.Y., native who has lived in both countries, heads the Niagara Institute founded a year ago at Niagara-on-the-Lake, Ont., as a forum for Canada-U.S. affairs.

He said Canadian history has had periodic outbursts of nationalism and U.S. tail-twisting, especially at election time, but since the late 1960s there has been a "new outpouring of Canadian culture and soul-searching."

"It's all very well to talk about interdependence and continentalism, but the disparity in population and power between Canada and the United States makes partnership a one-sided affair.

Army Interest Called Normal



QUÉBEC (CP) — It is perfectly normal for the armed forces to be interested in society's problems, Economic Expansion Minister Jean Marchand said Tuesday.

Mr. Marchand was answering reporters' questions on a statement by Parti Québecois Leader Rene Levesque that the Canadian Armed Forces has a file on the political activities of the Confederation of National Trade Unions.

An armed forces spokesman said Monday the report is compiled from public sources and is part of a program of information-gathering used to brief senior officers being transferred to other parts of the country. It is not a report to or from the government, he said.

Canada Blamed For U.S. Hassle

WASHINGTON (CP) — Two United States senators have accused the Canadian wheat board of instigating criticism of the recent U.S. – Soviet grain deal. Canadian officials say they don't know what the Americans are talking about.

Senator William Saxbe, an Ohio Republican, fired the first volley at the wheat board Wednesday, saying in a statement that "this flap has primarily been brought about by representatives of the Canadian wheat board."

Senator Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania, Republican leader in the U.S. upper house, joined the fray later in the day, saying in a Senate speech: "The people who started to criticize, the people furnishing the information to enable some people to allege that grain exporters got some unwarranted advantage, were themselves people associated with the Canadian wheat board."

One of these persons, he said, had formerly been associated with the U.S. department of agriculture.

Asked for comment, officials in Ottawa and Winnipeg both had the same comment: They did not know what the U.S. legislators were talking about.

A spokesman for Otto Lang, minister responsible for the wheat board, said in Ottawa there is no trade connection between the U.S.-Soviet wheat sale and the Canadian wheat board.

The wheat board's chief commissioner, N. G. Vogel, was in Winnipeg he did not know the source of Scott's information and added that at no time during negotiations for the sale to the Soviet Union did the wheat board have any comment to make.

Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz testified earlier before a House of Representatives committee looking into the deal that economist John A. Schnittker was a U.S. agriculture department official who became a consultant to the Canadian wheat board.

Schnittker now heads his own consulting firm here. He was ill and unavailable for comment Wednesday. But an associate said Schnittker no longer has any connection with the wheat board.

Three Quit Team Canada

MOSCOW (CP) — Three hockey players, pleading "we're not doing any good here," resigned from Team Canada today on the eve of the resumption of the Canada-Russia series. There were reports that others might follow their example.

Left wingers Vic Hadfield and Rick Martin and Jocelyn Guevremont complained to head coach Harry Sinden when their names were not included on the lineup for the first game of the four game series.

"Harry couldn't guarantee they'd play, so they made the decision to return home," said Alan Eagleson, director of Hockey Canada and executive director of the National League's players' association.

"None of them was cut," Eagleson said.

"They came to me and asked me to arrange their tickets home. I have done that and they will fly out on the first flight tomorrow.

"There are one or two others who say they are unhappy at not being played enough and they might ask to leave also," Eagleson said.

He declined to name them.

Gunfight Follows Terrorist's Capture

BELFAST (AP) — British troops killed a gunman and wounded three others in a fire-fight at a Roman Catholic stronghold of Belfast early today, the army announced.

The shooting broke out shortly after soldiers captured Eddie Campbell, 34, the commander of the Ardoyne Battalion of the Provisional wing of the Irish Republican Army, a British army spokesman said. He said Campbell is one of the IRA's top Belfast planners.

Campbell apparently was recognized by soldiers in the street, chased into a house and then gave up without a struggle after the building was surrounded.

Troops have captured at least 20 Provisionals in the last few days, including Jim Bryson, an other battalion commander. Officials said Martin Meehan, one of Campbell's company commanders and a top IRA gunman, was captured last month on the same street where Campbell was sighted.

Two soldiers died Wednesday, boosting the confirmed death toll in three years of strife to at least 567.

Nearly Fifty Bombs Found

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A world-wide security alert was on today as officials played a deadly "underground chess game" with terrorists waging a murder-by-mail campaign against Israeli diplomats and officials.

With one Israeli diplomat already dead when a letter bomb exploded at his desk, post offices and security officials were busy trying to uncover more of the deadly letters, which have reached North America and spread to Africa. World-wide, the total discovered so far is nearing 50.

Two letter bombs were intercepted in Montreal and Ottawa Wednesday and three in the main New York post office.

The Canadian post office ordered a check of all mail contained for Israeli embassies, trade commissions and consulates in Canada. A spokesman said mail destined for such points will be isolated, checked and police called in if suspicious packets are found.

In Jerusalem, Israeli police today discovered 10 booby-trapped letters, all posted in Amsterdam, an official announcement said. Most of the letters were addressed to rabbis or Jewish officials. Four were discovered Wednesday in a Tel Aviv post office.

Israeli's foreign ministry announced three letter bombs were discovered at the Israeli embassy in Kinshasa, the capital of Zaire, the former Belgian Congo. They were found in the embassy's postal delivery box.

Ami Shachori, an agricultural attache in the Israeli embassy in London was killed by one of the bombs Tuesday. His body was returned to Israel Wednesday.

Police reported some of the letter-bombs contained leaflets of the Black September Palestinian guerrilla group, which claimed credit for killing 11 members of the Israeli Olympic squad in Munich Sept. 5.

Dutch officials said although the bombs found thus far had been mailed from Amsterdam they did not think any of the guerrilla group was actually operating in Holland.

"We are working on the theory that somebody came in from outside the country, mailed the letters in Amsterdam and then went away," a police spokesman said.

Police in various cities said the bombs were all made from explosive strips that are thinner than a ball point pen.

The Montreal bomb was discovered by Israeli Consul Pinchas Shaanan, who said the letter arrived in the mail Wednesday and was addressed to him. It bore a Dutch postmark, he said.

"It was a normal-white envelope but it was a little thicker than normal. I realized immediately it must be one of those letters so I gave it to the police."

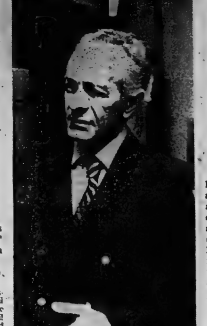
The police would not comment on the bomb's composition—"because it might encourage others to build similar devices"—but it was known the "very sophisticated" device was orange in color and about one-eighth of an inch thick. The explosive substance was moulded to fit inside the flap of the envelope.

Police bomb experts opened the envelope on the "safe" side with a pendulum and found a letter written in either Arabic or Hebrew. "Remember Black September" was part of the message.

The Israeli embassy in Ottawa said a letter bomb was found among six envelopes addressed to Ambassador H. E. Theodor Moran and other members of the mission. Police removed the bomb and found the other five envelopes "clean."

An embassy spokesman said it was due to the alertness of the embassy staff that the envelopes were immediately singled out as being suspicious.

Yigal Allon, Israel's deputy premier, said in Jerusalem a "systematic" new phase in the anti-guerrilla struggle is now in effect. No Arab country, Allon added, "will enjoy immunity as far as our counter-terrorist actions are concerned."



Explosives experts sifted every circular, letter and package addressed to Israel's missions in the United States.

Wellington Farmers Pioneer New Silo

Two Prince Edward county dairy farmers are among the first to erect an expensive glass-lined silo designed to be self-regulating and to eliminate spoilage. The bright blue structure, 68 feet high, is on the farm of Donald Simpson and Douglas Watt and is one of only two in the county. Right, in front of the base of the silo, are Douglas Watt and 3-year-old Scott Simpson. See story on page 2.

Chief Justice Is Arrested

Eyewitnesses said they saw him being led away, handcuffed, by Ugandan military police.

The East African Court of Appeal, which began sitting soon afterwards, adjourned as soon as it was informed of his arrest.

Two weeks ago President Amin warned that certain senior government officials in the Masaka area of southwestern Uganda, home of Chief Justice Kiwanuka, a former prime minister of Uganda, were opposing the government's policies.

U.S. Planes Mine Rivers in Vietnam

SAIGON (AP) — The U.S. command disclosed today that American planes have placed mines in the rivers and canals of the northern sector of South Vietnam to slow the flow of war materials to North Vietnamese army units.

Spokesmen said that in their recollection it is the first reported time waterways inside South Vietnam have been mined.

They said the mines were placed in some rivers and canals in northern Military Region One which is Quang Tri province, South Vietnam's northernmost sector that borders the demilitarized zone to the North, Laos to the West and the South China Sea to the East. Although the South Vietnamese recaptured Quang Tri City Saturday, the North Vietnamese still control roughly a 20-mile stretch of Quang Tri province northward to the DMZ.

The Command would not disclose specifically which rivers were mined, but other sources said they included the two big ones—the Ben Hai, which divides the DMZ into the northern and southern sectors, and the Cua Viet.

Sudan Blocks Libyan Airlift

From AP-REUTER

Uganda and Tanzania have warned each other against taking any new aggressive action that could blow up into a full-scale war between the two countries. The Sudan kept Libyan strongman Muammar Kaddafi from flying planes to help the Ugandans.

President Idi Amin of Uganda said at a memorial service Wednesday for Ugandans killed after Sunday's invasion from Tanzania that he would order new bombing raids on Tanzania to head off another invasion.

President Julius Nyerere of Tanzania warned that his forces would be taken off a defensive footing if Uganda launches any new pre-emptive strikes against the Tanzanians.

Strengthened Tanzanian forces deployed along the northwestern frontier were under orders not to cross into Uganda.

But Prime Minister Rashidi Kawawa of Tanzania, during a tour of the border region, said they were prepared to fight back if attacked.

"Our army is quite capable of guarding the motherland," he said.

President Amin said Tanzania had sent 10,000 troops to the Ugandan border.

"We must stop them before they penetrate into Uganda," he said. "And the only way to do it will be by striking at them before they enter the country."

Speaking in Kampala, the Ugandan capital, Amin said he would "instruct the Uganda air force and the infantry movement to destroy Tanzanian camps where the enemy is planning to launch another invasion of Uganda."

He said Sunday's invasion was the work of guerrilla supporters of former president Milton Obote, based in Tanzania

Glass-lined Silo Now Used in Prince Edward

WELLINGTON (Staff) — Two Wellington farmers, Donald Simpson and Douglas Watt are among the first in Prince Edward to erect a glass silo described as a Harvestore system.

The modern structure, measuring 28 feet by 68 feet, almost totally eliminates spoilage through a system that retains feed quality by halting fermentation when the feed is at its best.

Mr. Simpson, who has been keenly interested in the Harvestore system for several months, explained this is the major advantage of the expensive new silo.

The Harvestore is constructed of glass fused to steel and comes substantially more than a poured concrete or stave silo. No distributor is needed with the glass silo because it is centre filling.

Mr. Simpson said the silo's glass lining permits hay to slide down easily in the winter months there is no freezing on the inside.

The farm worked by Donald Simpson and Douglas Watt specializes in dairy cattle and 46 head are now being fed by the Harvestore. Later this year, 70 head will be winterfed.

Mr. Simpson said the Harvestore system is not actually new since it has been used in western Ontario and in the United States. In Prince Edward, however, the concept is being introduced at the Simpson-Watt farm. One other glass silo has been erected in the Wellington area at Centre.

One of the remarkable features of the Harvestore is the breather-bag system which consists of tough, vinyl bag suspended inside the roof and vented to the outside.

On hot days gases inside the structure expand and force air out of the breather bag. The gases cool and contract at night, causing the bag to fill with air. By controlling the in-and-out flow of air, the system can compensate for pressure changes inside the structure. The air is trapped in the bag, providing maximum protection against spoilage.

Prince Edward County agricultural representative Larry Mathews said yesterday the Harvestore has not become popular locally, chiefly because of its high cost. The bright blue steel silo towering over the Wellington farm represents a pioneer venture in Prince Edward for Douglas Watt and Donald Simpson.

Jack Costain, superintendent of public works (background) and Goldie Reid of the same department, met with safety representative Carsten Hagen yesterday at the Four Seasons Hotel to see how quiet an air compressor can be. The compressor, designed and distributed by Atlas Copco, reduces noise levels at construction sites which have led to impaired hearing for workers. The machine sells for 14 per cent more than the conventional, unmuffled counterpart.

Ticket Ruling Appealed

The Attorney-General's department has appealed an Ontario Supreme Court ruling that cast doubt on the validity of the province's uniform traffic ticket.

Three judges of the appeals court of the Ontario Supreme Court will hear Belleville lawyer Peter Ticktin and Darwin Wait of the Attorney-General's department restate the arguments they presented to Mr. Justice Maurice Lacourciere Sept. 5. The Supreme Court judge, sitting in weekly court, declared the ticket "duplicitous" and "confusing" in a statement published last week.

The latest hearing will take place in Toronto at either Oct. 3 or 4.

Doubt has circulated since the legality of the ticket — used by all police forces in the province — was first questioned by Ticktin last July in provincial court. At that time, Judge T. Y. Wills ruled the ticket valid and sentenced Peter Fry of Trenton to a $100 fine for careless driving.

Ticktin appealed the decision to the Ontario Supreme Court, the decision of which was announced last week by Mr. Justice Lacourciere.

"I understand there's a bit of a mix-up in Toronto and in other communities," Ticktin said.

"Some judges are dismissing cases, some are suspending them pending the outcome of the new appeal, and some are allowing the ticket to amend the ticket."

In the latter case, prosecutors have told the court they are ignoring the portion of the ticket used for signing and are proceeding only on the count written by the police.

Ticktin gives credit to his client, Mr. Fry, for seeing the case through.

"He's really interested in a point of law. It's not very often you see that."

Should the court again rule against the ticket, the case could be appealed to the Supreme Court of Canada.

Jackhammer Runs Quietly

Over the next four years, the Workman's Compensation Board estimates it will pay out approximately $128 million in benefits to construction workers who have lost their hearing on the job, due to excessively noisy equipment.

At least one company has a spent a lot of time and effort updating equipment, particularly air-driven machinery, and making a safer working environment for the construction hand.

A conventional air compressor, selling for about 1800, belches and blurts its way through the day creating enough noise to make it practically impossible to speak near it.

Muffler boxes are placed around the machine, completely encasing it, trapping the low frequency noise that is the most injurious to the operator.

The muffled machine sells for 14 per cent more than the conventional model.

Silenced machinery is not an unnecessary frill but a requisite that is enforced in large cities.

Toronto has legislation that requires contractors to use silenced machinery or they will be fined.

Canadian National Railways have had men killed in recent times when their hearing was unable to hear an approaching train.

Jackhammers, traditionally associated with a lot of noise, can be modified to become as quiet as the compressor.

"You can't tell that the noise from construction but you can maintain it, refine it and make it safer for everyone," said salesman.

Employees of Belleville Public Works took interested looks at the equipment, trying the jackhammers in front of the hotel dining room window but said, after, it is not so widely involved in construction that these tools are necessary."

A spokesman for CN claimed some of the silenced equipment is already in CN hands and more will be coming.

"The changeover will be a gradual thing because you can't expect builders just to throw away their equipment," said Gerry Berger, representing Atlas Copco.

Legislation is in the books to make ready for the change and contractors will have to begin thinking about it," he said.

"What our company is doing is educating people early about the idea becomes a law," he said.

Officials from Nairobi said that Secretary General Nsa Chanda of the Organization of African Unity called on Kenya to mediate the Uganda-Tanzania dispute and head off a clash between their two armies.

Official Ugandan figures have said that 150 civilians have been killed in the fighting so far, and many more have been made homeless. The invasion force is said to be dispersed in an area 80 miles west of Kampala.

Kyerere said his country would not put up with more bombing and he questioned how Tanzanian troops could be kept sitting at the border while civilians were being killed by bombs.

Speaking to correspondents in Dar es Salaam, he said further tragedies would have serious consequences on peace between the two countries.

Ugandan planes which attacked the northern town of Mutukula, 20 miles inside Tanzania, on Monday and Tuesday were officially reported to have killed nine civilians.

Kyerere told a group of Scandinavian journalists President Amin was a "lunatic and a murderer."

The Tanzanian leader already has notified the Organization of African Unity of the "revil and disgrace" in peace.

In Khartoum, Reuter correspondent Granville Watts reported that Sudanese officials kept watch for a screened Libyan airlift to fly men and supplies to Uganda today as nearly 600 Libyan troops forced to land there Wednesday were being sent home.

Corabel Penfold Told It Like It Is Yesterday To 140 Senior Citizens

Senior Citizens Hear Pep Talk

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

Pensioners are concerned and that is what the meeting was all about yesterday afternoon, with more than 130 senior citizens wedged into their clubroom in the recreation department building on Pinnacle Street.

Corabel Penfold, described as "a terrible old gal," by a recreation department spokesman, showing few signs of her years, mounted the podium and drew applause, laughter and concern from the group as she outlined the plans of the Pensioners Concerned Organization.

Describing herself as a Toronto widow and available to any interested men, Mrs. Penfold was one of the five founders of the organization, born in 1969.

"There is nothing for you to join and there are no dues to pay," she told the crowd time after time. "We are not militants," she stressed, "but are attempting to improve our living standards through the right channels."

Mrs. Penfold, has made two trips the length of Canada spreading the word and last week spent an hour with Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau, discussing the situation of pensioners and fixed incomes.

"What I talk about is the almighty dollar but for most of us (call in what you will, old people, pensioners or senior citizens) we should be talking of the lack of the almighty dollar," she said.

"We can no longer be content to allow our friends or ourselves to sit and wait for the final curtain.

"We have to fight for better times," she emphasized to the audience.

Powerfully, Mrs. Penfold laid down in words what senior citizens have to do, saying, "we have paid our dues in this country, now let us live in it in a dignified way."

A key topic was the question of school tax and property tax.

Mrs. Penfold suggested that instead of asking pensioners to pay "exorbitant" school tax, the school tax should be subtracted from the property tax they pay.

This has already been instituted in Canada's smallest province, Prince Edward Island.

Mrs. Penfold, in her fight, carries the banner of free health services on a nationwide scale.

"Politicians do hear our complaints and have in the past increased our personal exemptions on income tax," she said.

"To hold our heads up to our fellow man we have to fight harder," she said.

Mrs. Penfold suggested that all concerned people write letters to their representatives at all levels of government, telling their story just the way it is.

Mrs. Penfold closed saying, "We do mean business in a kindly manner."

Provincial Study Shoots Down York River Development Plan

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

Results to be derived from the proposed York River Development in North Hastings would not be sufficient to warrant the expenditure of $7- to $8-million dollars of public funds.

This is the finding of a joint feasibility study conducted by personnel from three Ontario Ministries — Tourism and Information, Natural Resources, and Agriculture and Food.

The report was presented on Wednesday to members of council who expressed their disappointment that the project for which they had high hopes might not get off the ground.

But council will not take the report as a final word and named a committee consisting of Wardo Earman Gibson, Administrator Carl Rateman, and MPP Charles Rollins to take the matter up with the appropriate provincial department with a request for a review.

The York River proposal is the brainchild of the York River Development Association which entertained the construction of a 2,000-foot-long dam across the York River in behalf to create a lake of approximately 16,000 acres.

The project, the committee felt, would be of immense economic value to the north end of the county, both through the construction industry that would create, and continuing benefits through tourist activities and attraction to the tourist trade.

Projected benefits included improved habitat for waterfowl and game fish, a boost to the trade created by the manmade lake would create much sandy beach area for cottage development.

But against the cost would far exceed the capability of the local area, the committee sought ARDA grant cost for the project. ARDA in turn refused to consider the project for the province for the feasibility study.

But the high expectations of the development committee were not justified in the feasibility study report.

Natural Resources studies indicated that any major improvement in waterfowl habitat would take place only on Papineau Creek, a tributary of the York River.

It was agreed that the proposed new lake would allow better fish population and provide spawning grounds for largemouth bass, but it was doubtful if many lake trout would survive as the new body of water would be primarily a warm water lake.

It was also agreed that much of the new lake shoreline would be unsuitable for development as beach areas. But much clearing would have to be done and access roads would have to be constructed.

Neither did the report justify the expectation that the new lake would provide needed cottage sites.

Industry and Tourism questioned the demand for such cottage lots.

The reason for this thinking was stated to be that development on cabin sites already in the area is low, with much undeveloped shoreline available on lakes like Baptiste, Weslemkoon, Kamaniskeg, Bark, Papineau and Salerno Creek which are suitable for development.

The report said that studies indicated that cottagers from the Toronto metropolitan area travel only an average of 181 miles with more than two-quarters travelling less than 150 miles.

"These findings strongly support the notion that demand for cottage sites along the new lake is indeed suspect," said the report.

The report went on to say that the major impact of a recreational development becomes only when such development is on a four-season basis.

It said a review of maps and available facilities for four-season development suggests that the York River resource base is of low quality for winter use.

"There appears to be little or no natural capability to provide ski facilities in the York Valley. While snowmobiling has demonstrated rapid growth in the province recreation activity, the locational characteristics of demand for the sport are such that it will not induce significant new economic activity in the York River area."

Research by snowmobile clubs has shown that 97 per cent of snowmobiling trips taken by Toronto residents are within the 100-mile radius of Toronto.

Much of the same principle could be applied to power boat enthusiasts, it was stated. Coupled with lack of access it is doubtful if many tourists would be attracted to the area for this purpose.

Turning to immediate work benefit, the report said any employment associated with the clearing of the reservoir area would be on a short-term temporary basis and would naturally phase out as the project was completed.

Further, the removal of the timber with the future possibility of regeneration eliminated, would reduce the opportunities for continuing employment in the lumbering industry.

"It would appear that no continuing employment on a long-term basis would be created."

Also employment as a continuing basis in the private sector connected with cottage development was extremely doubtful, it was stated.

The estimated cost of the proposed project was given as $7.68 million, including $280,000 for land acquisition, $4.9 million reservoir clearing and $2.5 million for dam construction.

Nonetheless was that although there would be some disappointment in recreation and fish populations it would be sufficient to warrant the expenditure.

Industry and tourism in its study of water use, Projection and projections to 1980, indicates that the demand in Hastings is not to warrant such a major expenditure and said that from a tourist point of view it could be concluded that the Trenton Valley is not likely to be a major attraction in the Eastern Ontario region, nor even for the east of the Eastern region's tourist visits and the demand is insufficient to warrant such a major expenditure.

The addition of one more lake was not likely to change this outlook substantially, according to the report.

Even if full utilization of existing lakes was realized and other development costs in the private sector were not considered, the benefit-cost ratio of the project was in the approximate ratio of .85 to 1.

The full benefits of the project would not possibly be realized until full development of cottage lots, park area, boating facilities and access roads was completed at considerable further cost above the $7,680,000 figure for manmade development.

As a result, much of the benefit anticipated could hardly be tied up for 5 to 10 years before any benefits would begin to be realized, the report concluded.

He disputed the report statement that there were many undeveloped cottage sites on lakeshore and other lakes in the north.

Stoneham Lake, he said, was actually jammed all around with cottages.

And Herschel Reeve Frank Peever agreed with Mr. Carr that there was something wrong somewhere.

He said he knew for a fact that when land in North Hastings was offered for sale it was gobbled up in a hurry.

He said it was very disappointing to think that the project would be dead to act up a meeting with provincial department officials to have the York River project reviewed.

Councillor Carr and Steves Horace Casey of Thurlow moved that the special committee be set up to ask a reassessment of the proposal.

Rats A Marmora Problem

They have infiltrated the east side of the village since the former dump on the old Stirling Road was closed Sept. 7. Without new food at the dump, the animals are deserting the site and making their way into residential areas.

Several have been killed in gardens and around homes, and one woman found one clinging to the screen of her front door. A number have been reported in the area of Marmora Senior School and some have found their way into the school.

Reeve Jack Reynolds says that a contract was signed some time ago with an exterminator to eliminate the rats when the disposal site was closed. But the exterminator did not place poisoned bait until last Thursday — not until after hunger had driven the rats out in search of food.

The matter was discussed by council in again, and he reported that the bait at the dump has been set out and that in two or three days to become effective.

Government regulations governing the closing of disposal sites also require a large amount of fill to be placed over the garbage and this will be done later.

The new disposal site, two miles east of the old one, has an important dicadvantage. Burning of waste is banned under new pollution control regulations and it is necessary to use much more fill to cover the waste, a costly operation.

However, someone set fire to the dump Monday and the Marmora Fire Department was called following a complaint from Mr. and Mrs. George White. They opposed the site when it was first proposed on the grounds it would be a health hazard, a fire hazard and a family camp and an eyesore.

Pastor Inducted

The new pastor of Wesleyan Methodist Church in Belleville, Rev. F. S. Irish, was inducted in a service Sept. 8.

The service was conducted by district superintendent and a former pastor, Rev. J. S. A. Spearman, assisted by Rev. M. J. McKnight, pastor of Brockville Wesleyan Church.

Mr. McKnight addressed his message to the new pastor and Mr. Spearman spoke to the congregation. Refreshments were served following the service.

County Council Hall May Require A Balcony

Two-tier government could come to Hastings county sooner than is expected.

But the move would be caused by a lack of space in the county council chambers rather than by a switch to any proposed regional government setup.

Wednesday, Administrator Carl Bateman said that extension of the municipal franchise adding 18-year-olds and others to the list will result in an increased council membership of approximately 30 per cent in 1973.

But the sticker is that the council chambers were built with the idea of the present 34 members in mind and the problem will be where to put the nine or 10 additional members.

At one way suggested, this might be the time to institute two-tier government.

Mr. Bateman said under the present legislation there was nothing council could do about the matter except expect the extra deputy reeves.

The problem arose as the result of election act changes which will boost the number of registered voters in many municipalities to more than 1,000, which calls for a deputy reeve to be elected.

Mr. Bateman said that the villages of Frankford, Tweed, Deseronto and Stirling would almost certainly be entitled to a deputy reeve, while there was also a possibility that Marmora township, Madoc village and Madoc township, and Marmora and Lake would also be entitled to the additional representation at county council.

And Reeve Delmont Card of McClure, Wicklow and Bangor, said his municipality would also likely elect a deputy reeve this year.

Mr. Bateman said there was now no time left this year for county to seek a private bill in the legislature limiting the number of county councillors under the election act changes.

This had been done by the counties of Simcoe and Victoria, with 2,500 registered electors set as the point whether a deputy reeve is required.

However, later, after checking with Queen's Park, he said there might be a possibility the legislature may add amending the general legislation.

The announcement by Mr. Bateman prompted a lengthy discussion resulting in a recommendation to refer the matter to the council's municipal reform committee before passed, then rescinded and another motion approved.

The last recommendation was for Premier William Davis to be petitioned for a general amendment of the election procedure setting the number of voters required for the election of a deputy reeve at a realistic figure more in line with that in the Simcoe and Victoria county private bills.

Under the previous election regulations, about five county municipalities, including Bancroft village, send deputy reeves to council, while two townships, Sidney and Thurlow, because of their larger populations, were entitled to additional votes.

The right of the extra votes, however, has never been exercised by the two townships because of "possible hard feelings."

But Reeve Barbara Allen of Tweed didn't figure it that way.

She said the two townships, in fairness to their residents, had an obligation to use their extra voting power. Thurlow has the right to three votes and Sidney to four votes.

At the evening session, council approved of Reeve Barbara Allen's recommendation, referred to the municipal reform committee, but after it was learned that a general amendment of the new regulations might be possible, the mover of recommendation was withdrawn in favor of one by Marmora and Lake Reeve John Wilkes to petition the Ontario premier.

Arts Extravaganza

A giant workshop where artists and art lovers can mingle and muse is planned for Belleville next summer.

Patterned on the successful Hamilton happening It's Your Bag, Belleville's exhibition — under the same name — will involve the city's ethnic groups, theatre enthusiasts, craftsmen, artists, musicians — virtually anyone who wants to take part.

And the beauty of this party is that even those not directly affiliated with cultural groups can join the fun, either as spectators or as participants.

For instance, chef members will let you have a spin on their pottery wheels and thousands of "all types are being invited to roam the grounds.

"It's a public participation day," said Manfred Koechlin, vice-president of the Quinte Arts Council which is sponsoring the event.

It's Your Bag, Hamilton version, has been going on for two years now and last summer drew 150,000 persons.

"They got an absolutely fantastic response," said Manfred, exactly what he predicts for Belleville.

Planned are demonstrations of dances and costumes from around the world. Theatre experts will show acting techniques and apply makeup to anyone in the mood for a change of face.

All manner of beads and weaving material will be on hand, with the area's finest craftsmen nearby to lend assistance and show examples.

Planned

And musicians in groups of one to 100 are welcome to fill the air.

Frank Murray, newly elected president of the arts council, said a group would leave soon to visit the Hamilton arts council executive to find out more about staging an event of this magnitude.

Service organizations, industry and unions all played a part in managing It's Your Bag there.

Still in doubt is a location for the one-day summer festival, although Mr. Murray said the Four Seasons Hotel might be available.

"In that case, we'd bring in a rock group such as Crowbar to the Mad Mechanic for the young people" he said.

The show is planned for a Sunday.

World Unrest

Maybe it was some kind of a joke, say by a prankster, that bomb which went off in Hay River in the Northwest Territories the other day. Or was it the work of the FLQ as was mentioned in some quarter?

The FLQ ?But isn't it supposed to be pretty dead, after briefly and tragically revealing its ugly head late in 1960? We cannot be certain, but one thing we do know is that security forces in Canada must be on continual alert these days.

All over the world the forces of hate are going with their deadly business and you don't know who to trust anymore. Back in July a 37-year-old German divorcee and mother of twins, the daughter of an art historian who died when she was five, her family kin clergymen and intellectuals, was arrested on charges of helping lead a gang that tried to terrorize West Germans and overthrow the state. Her name: Ulrike Meinhof.

Subsequently there was the airport massacre at Tel Aviv, the work of three Japanese in the pay of Palestinian terrorists. Then came the Olympics in Munich, so full of hope and promise that were shattered in an instant by terrorism. More recently there have been bomb explosions in Sydney, Australia, linked with the Croatian (Yugoslav) secession movement. Such incidents involving Yugoslav factions in Australia actually go back almost a decade. There is that other tiresome confrontation of course in Ireland and in recent days there have been the letter bombs addressed to Israeli officials in various cities.

Canada has had its share of similar unhappy events, principally in Montreal over the past decade and to some extent in Toronto. But by and large we remain one of the most stable and trouble-free countries anywhere. Let us keep it that way. To do so will require constant vigilance. We trust that even as we write postal authorities and police are checking the mails — particularly the diplomatic mail to Ottawa.

Liberal Candidate

A city realtor, Mr. Follwell has an enviable background in municipal and national politics. He was Liberal member for the old Hastings South riding for eight years, a city alderman for four years and mayor of Belleville for three years. He can be counted upon to run a strong campaign for the Hastings seat.

As of now three candidates have been announced on behalf of the Conservatives — Former Belleville mayor Jack Ellis, school trustee Macdonald Smith and city alderman Donald Souster. This in itself is an interesting contest which is destined to be decided at the forthcoming nomination meeting in Madoc.

Stung!

Driving to O'Hara's Mills just north of Madoc can be as dusty an experience as exploring the surface of gravelly rural roads, but once there, all is quiet at this end-of-the-season period. Well . . . almost!

We were there one day last week, with a visitor from Belleville of all places. There was the old log schoolhouse built in 1861, once located in Elzevir township, maps of the British Isles and this continent on the walls inside and we had shoved down pop to the stream and were having a look at the mill and the photographs inside when they struck.

"They?" A nest of wasps that is, one of them peeling off and stinging the visitor from Belfast on the ankle and neck.

Well really, you would think the poor man had had enough of rough times at home of late without coming out here for a holiday and running foul of a wasp at O'Hara Mills for heaven's sake.

Success for Willy Brandt

West Germany and Poland Resume Diplomatic Ties

By JOHN D. HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

Before this month is out, Warsaw, the city for which the Wehrmacht and SS had a marked penchant of destruction which they carried out in the fall of 1944, will welcome a German ambassador.

The last German ambassador Adolf Hitler's envoy left as the Germans invaded Poland, bombed Warsaw and attacked the Baltic Westerplatte without warning.

Among all the bitter enemies of the Second World War, Germany and Poland were surely the most bitter of all. The German occupation of Poland not only levelled Warsaw and almost obliterated Poland's literati, but resulted in the extermination of six million Poles. Half of the six million Jews murdered by Nazi Germany were Polish.

Poland today is the only country in Eastern Europe which places the silent, unbelievably tragic, but thoroughly-restored death camps on tourist schedules. The Poles, Communist or otherwise, never want the world to forget what Poland had to suffer not only from Germans, but from Russian occupation as well.

West Germany's anti-Nazi Chancellor Willy Brandt who spent the war as a German exile in Sweden and Poland's realistic Premier Edward Gierek have worked for months over a formula for exchanging ambassadors.

Gierek, like Brandt is a political realist. He is the premier who took power after the disastrous riots in the Baltic shipyards in 1970 over low wages, bad living conditions and poor food. Gierek quickly promised to remedy all three using the limited resources of Poland to do so.

Inevitable problems based on tragic German-Polish events of our times held up the final exchange of missions. The chief of these was Polish permission for remaining citizens of German ancestry living in Poland to be allowed to immigrate to West Germany.

The exchange of ambassadors has been a slow, tedious process and was preceded by a Bonn-Warsaw Agreement in 1970 which Brandt had some difficulty getting through the Bundestag.

At the same time other unpredictable events developed. Krupp, Germany's former name for its huge munitions firm of two world wars, major user of slave labor in the second war including thousands of hapless Poles, had signed a huge deal with Polish state industrial and chemical corporations to build a plant and share technology with Poland.

In fact, the pace of economic boom in West Germany became a point of discussion between Bonn and Warsaw when it looked as though skilled Polish industrial workers wanted permission to work in the West where salaries are higher and housing is decent.

The resulting Germans in Poland will come home. Bonn will place a limit on Polish workers permitted into West Germany.

And two leaders who both were anti-Nazi fighters, will lead their nations in a difficult era of reconciliation.

Shadow of a scream

Press Under Fire Over 'Conflict' Issue

By DON O'HEARN
From The Intelligencer's Queen's Park Bureau

Some people are taking shots at the press in the Bales-Mckeough controversy.

These critics are the press as gestation-mongering when it discovers and plays up this type of story dealing with personal conflict-cases in government and politics.

Even those of us in the business can be a bit taken aback at some of the things that come out in the press from time to time.

Because of these waste, sight should not be lost of the fact that the press is doing its job, and an extremely important one, when it serves in an apparent "scandal" in public affairs.

For there are some areas in which politicians themselves aren't diligent watch-dogs and the final protection of the public interest rests with the press.

Though this may be hurt to reconcile in light of the fact so position is the basic of politics, politicians aren't really very good at protecting this interest when it comes to personal matters such as conflict of interest.

For instance, in the past twenty years pretty well every matter along this line that we have seen in Ontario has first been broken by the press.

This includes the Police Act battle of the '50s, which brought it wasn't a matter of conflict of interest was the most dramatic political issue of that period.

Perhaps there is a point beyond which we shouldn't expect too much from our politic ans.

They may be too much of a club to be ardent self-critics. (A point of interest along this line. A rule, most politicians should report election spending is generally ignored here. A study by an election committee found at the same situation prevails pretty much throughout the world).

Whatever it is, there is a job which it seems only the press can do.

LBJ's Hair 'Liberated'

Boston Globe

The picture the other day of former President Lyndon Johnson with his gray locks dangling below his collar conjures up wild images of the liberated man. Is this the image of an older statesman cut loose from the confines of bureaucratic conformism? Or does it mean that Lady Bird has left town, along with the ex-President's barber?

The flowing mane and the steely squint are more reminiscent of Britain's Bertrand Russell in his later years than of such heroes of the Alamo as Jim Bowie and Sam Houston, who were close-cropped compared to the wig-hose of the Pedernales. And perhaps the literary life is behind it. Certainly there is something of a new traveler in Mr. Johnson's hairstyle.

Flamboyance was never a bad word with the former President and doubtless long hair suits his personality. But one shudders to think of Sen. George McGovern trying to match set with the new wave. On President Johnson, long hair looks terrible. On would-be President McGovern, it would be a disaster.

Mr. Davis laid down a fourth rule that ministers can't be party-to-day participants in a business or profession.

But this has little, if anything, to do with conflict.

It is more a matter of cabinet discipline, and one can suspect was put in by Davis mainly as a reassurance to the public at this time of low faith in his government.

Of the rules that do apply to conflict the one that is noteworthy is the prohibition against land speculation.

The condition regarding private companies is merely repeating existing law.

And other jurisdictions, including the U.S. Congress have the trusteeship requirement on stock-holding.

But the land speculation edict has a special significance.

It may or may not be completely novel, an entirely new concept. Chances are that though not specifically named it could come under the prohibitions of other legislation.

However, this is incidental to this point of main consequence.

And this must be that the government here has finally come down to earth about land and is willing to recognize that land per se has become a social problem.

This is one observer could be the most significant element of the new rules in the long term.

Davis Guidelines Bring No Hurrahs From Writer

By DON O'HEARN
From The Intelligencer's Queen's Park Bureau

Premier Davis' new guidelines on conflict of interest have been widely acclaimed.

Not really knowing what is done in the rest of the world (a position which, it is to be suspected is shared by most other people here, including the premier) there will be no hurrahs by the writer.

No praise for leading Canada, the continent or the rest of the world, in what we have given.

The rules, as you probably know by now, essentially, about conflict, do three things:

They ordain that in future cabinet ministers can't buy land for speculation; must put share-holdings in public companies in a trust, and if a participant in a private company then that company can't do business with the government.

Life Span Is Up But Only Slightly

Brockville Recorder and Times

One hears a great deal about the extent to which modern medicine has increased the lifespan of today's Canadians. Some interesting statistics compiled by a researcher don't support this belief. In fact, with all our wonder drugs and new medical and surgical marvels, life expectancy in the last 100 years has been increased only a mere 0.01 percent a year.

It has been a common fallacy, apparently, for people to believe that their ancestors had a much shorter life span and one often reads that people at the time of Renaissance stood little chance of surviving their allotted three score and ten years. In fact we have been led to believe that 30 and 35 years was a more realistic life span in those far off days.

The statistician who arrived at the figure of 30 to 35 years had erred. They were including those who died in infancy in their averaging of lifetime statistics. We can thank the special projects editor of Executive Magazine for this enlightening information. Not that it is expected to make many people more hopeful but it does sort of set the record straight.

The writer, John Kettle, in working with his set of figures came to the conclusion that the lifespan of Canadians 100 years ago was little different than it is today. And this despite the fact that infancy is a less hazardous period of life now. He computed the life expectancy of a 20 year old man in the various years since 1871 and discovered that he lived 67.9 years in that particular year, 68.0 the next year and so on to 1951 when the figure reached 70.8 years. His prediction for this year is slightly better than 72 years, thus making the Biblical prediction about accurate.

His findings, however, reveal that 100 years of medical, social and economic advances which have taken us completely from pioneering to industrial affluence, have increased the life expectancy of a 20 year old male by a slight 3½ years.

'Summer Of 1816

Editor,
The Intelligencer,

The following article appeared in a special vacation edition of a newspaper in the Lake of Sound district and was brought to the attention of the Marmora Herald by Mr. Ames Caverly.

Eighteen hundred and sixteen is the year that is known as the Summerless Summer.

Snow began to fall in the middle of June and by the middle of August was a foot in depth. The earth remained under her winter blanket until the following summer.

Everything nothing in the way of harvest was garnered and the people lived on hay and roots rotted in the ground.

People lived on meat and fish. There were no vegetables and there was no flour. It was venison and fish for supper and venison tomorrow. Cattle were slaughtered in great numbers because they should be used. Hay had to be shipped from Ireland to Montreal and sold for $45 a ton. Flour sold at $11 a barrel and potatoes a penny a pound previously unheard of prices.

This year was called "eighteen hundred and froze to death". The cause of the cold was believed to have been sun spots which were so large that, for the first time in history, they could be seen without the aid of a telescope. The following spring corn was $2 a bushel, wheat $2.50, rye $2, oats and beans $3.

Today In History

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The loss of the Canadian destroyer Ottawa was announced 30 years ago today — in 1942—after a German submarine sank her in the Atlantic convoy. The toll was 213 officers and men dead or missing. The Ottawa was one of six modern destroyers with which Canada entered the Second World War. She was one of the escort destroyers which saw George VI and Queen Elizabeth cross the Atlantic convoy to Victoria during the 1939 Royal visit.

1964—Malta became Independent.

1963—The Place des Arts opened in Montreal.

1782—The French Assembly voted to abolish the monarchy.

As for conflict of interest, now that there are rules (guidelines) in writing there will be a constant reminder to ministers (and members) of their special position of trust.

And there should be some reassurance to the public.

Venality, of course, will still always be a threat.

As Davis himself said, and many others have echoed, there is no law you can write that will keep out crooks.

Brief Urges County-wide Plan

By MARGARET HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — Prince Edward urgently needs a county-wide plan and assistance is required from the municipal planning department to amend the draft plan with specifics for certain proposals instead of "the present vague generalities."

County council's economic development committee Tuesday presented a brief titled Design for Development, Prince Edward County, urging that growth should not be "totally haphazard" and stressing control and planning as keys to "a healthy, diversified economy."

Urban renewal for parts of Picton, the county seat, also was advocated strongly.

The report was prepared by director of economic development William Duggan in response to a request by council in July for a brief detailing the types of development needed and the senior government's role in assuring it. The request followed Georges Vanier provincial treasurer, Darcy McKeough's release of Design for Development for the Lake Ontario Region.

This brief emphasized the urgency of specific planning for a new centre for Ameliasburg, where extensive residential development can occur in a planned location where piped water and sewage system is provided.

Definite proposals for the growth of Wellington and Bloomfield and the services which should be provided in these communities were suggested.

A clear definition of recreation areas between tourist locations, public access locations, resort residential locations and hazard lands was advocated in the report. It was noted specific proposals for the development of the existing potential industrial sites also are required.

Prince Edward should be given "financial and other assistance" in purchasing, developing and operating an industrial park.

Concern was evidenced in the brief involving construction of an apple packing and storage plant near Trenton last year. It was observed undertakings utilizing agricultural products should be located and encouraged in this area. Construction of new facilities outside the county offers few advantages.

Joint training programs for local tourist operators were suggested as a method of boosting local tourist potential.

Funds should be allocated specifically for the development, expansion and modernization of area tourist facilities "on a basis identical to that presently offered to the manufacturing industry."

Specific plans also were urged for the utilization and development of the deep water harbor.

Prince Edward's Loyalist background could be emphasized through construction of a pioneer tourist attraction similar to Upper Canada village.

Signs indicating Prince Edward County and Picton are needed on Highway 401 and it was suggested Highway 33 could be extended north up the present Wooler Road "at least to its junction with the Macdonald - Cartier freeway "to create the normal business and travel entrance to the county from the west."

A bypass constructed from Highway 33, west of Picton, passing north of the town and joining Highway 49 to the east also was recommended to eliminate heavy industrial traffic on Main Street.

The brief outlined the need for specific support for a planned population increase of 25 per cent during the next five years. Picton, Ameliasburg, Wellington and Bloomfield were named as the largest growth centres. It was suggested Picton would increase its population by 1250 persons in the next five years.

Costs for the development of Prince Edward were discussed in the brief and it was noted the requirements of the proposals "do not create financial problems which would be shrieked under a 'no development' plan."

Local opinion solicited for the brief showed most residents agreed no particular type of development should be emphasized at the expense of others.

The Lake Ontario Region was described as "too large and diverse" to plan for a complete entity. Prince Edward is "a compact, natural area, ideal for an intelligent plan." Confusion in planning and development exists locally because of "a plethora of bodies" dealing with the same area apparently under very different names.

Further industrial development should be promoted in a controlled way, keeping it compatible with the tourist and agricultural areas of the county.

Four active local industries and a harbor at Picton which handles the second largest annual tonnage in Lake Ontario have developed the area industrially. A large, fully serviced industrial site exists at the former Camp Picton with possibilities for development.

"It is not considered that further industrialization should be indefinitely expanded but should be sufficient, first, to provide gainful employment for our young people, secondly to provide jobs closer at home for those who must presently travel up to 120 miles a day, and thirdly to administer to the financial and other needs of a community expected to grow to 30,000 people in the next decade," stated the report.

Local opinion generally shows further purchase of land, particularly waterfront land, for public parks or conservation areas should be restricted. Campers coming to these areas do not boost the county's normal tourist industry and very little revenue results. "Pollution and crime in the immediate vicinity" were suggested as possible drawbacks in such areas.

The brief, in conclusion, stated, "the county of Prince Edward is able and willing to pursue the development goals advocated in this brief. It is unable to do so while the present period of uncertainty exists. No advantages at all are apparent if decision is postponed and the area continues to stagnate until larger plans are known."

It was observed "the broad front development envisaged is not beyond the capacity of the area and will not require large investments of capital."

Local residents were declared "practically unanimous" in rejecting continued stagnation by neglect, concentration on the recreation industry alone with the potential bankruptcy of the county at an early date or a plan for Lake Ontario Region including the county as "an afterthought without any deep appreciation of its particular needs, aspirations and advantages."

Allan Lawrence Is Nominated By Northumberland-Durham PCs

COBOURG, Ont. (CP) — Allan Lawrence, former Ontario Progressive Conservative justice secretary, easily defeated a man half his age Wednesday night for the federal Progressive Conservative nomination in the Northumberland-Durham riding.

Mr. Lawrence, 61, who left the Ontario cabinet Sept. 5, won the nomination over 34-year-old chemist David Gray on the first ballot.

In a short speech, broken seven times by applause from a standing-room crowd of about 300, Mr. Lawrence attacked the Trudeau government's record of a number of issues.

The country was less unified, less prosperous and poorer, foreign relations had deteriorated, the West had become more alienated and the tax system less understandable, he said.

"It is essential that the whole Trudeau government be toppled—out—the whole kit and caboodle."

Mr. Lawrence also made a joking reference to speculation that he had left provincial politics with the eventual aim of replacing Robert Stanfield as leader of the Conservative party and eventually trying to become prime minister.

"I earnestly desire to be your MP—and I want to mention these initials in the right order."

Mr. Stanfield, back in Ontario after a cross-Canada tour, spoke briefly after Mr. Lawrence's nomination. He welcomed Mr. Lawrence to the "conservative team" but urged party faithful at the meeting "not to take anything for granted."

Labor Leaders Are Opposed To Suggested Work Permits

TORONTO (CP) — Union leaders opposed Wednesday any system that would require work permits as a condition of holding a job in Canada.

They were responding to comments by Prime Minister Trudeau, who said on an open-line radio program here that work permits might be necessary to prevent foreign visitors taking jobs away from Canadians.

Dennis McDermott, Canadian director of the United Auto Workers, said work permits would require massive bureaucracy and would serve no good purpose.

"They would run counter to our traditional freedoms and would be a first step toward a police state," he said.

David Archer, president of the Ontario Federation of Labor, said he could not believe that shame in Canada were serious enough to warrant creating the bureaucracy needed to administer a system of work permits.

"I would consider it an unnecessary and undesirable step," said Mr. Archer.

Extra Inspectors Check on Abuses

Trudeau Says Many Jobless Don't Want Work

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau raised the possibility Wednesday of the government introducing work permits to stop illegal immigrants to Canada from taking jobs away from Canadians.

As distasteful as they might be to Canadians, the work permits might be the only answer to persons coming to Canada as visitors and then taking jobs, Mr. Trudeau told a caller during an hour-long appearance on Toronto radio station CHUM's open-line program.

The prime minister also said that unemployment is not the big issue that opposition party leaders believe it is in the federal election campaign.

He said many Canadians seem to agree with him that many of the people now on the unemployed lists could find jobs if they were not so selective.

Many of them preferre d to abuse the unemployment insurance plan and the government had hired a number of extra inspectors to seek these people out and prevent them from accepting jobless benefits, the prime minister said.

Mr. Trudeau said his cabinet twice discussed a work permits scheme and that a study had been done by the manpower department.

If introduced, it would be mandatory for all Canadians to get permits to work. The scheme might be only a year away, he said.

Ad Curbs at Election Time Opposed

QUEBEC CITY (CP) — The Canadian section of the International Press Institute asked Wednesday for abandonment of proposed federal legislation that would restrict political advertising during election campaigns.

The semi-annual meeting of the Canadian section made the request in a resolution which said the federal government, by scrapping the advertising clause in amendments proposed by the Canada Elections Act, can avoid the appearance of attempting to restrict free flow of information.

The legislation died when Parliament was dissolved Sept. 1 for the Oct. 30 election. It was designed to curb election spending by parties and individuals.

Among other things, it would have restricted paid advertising by candidates or parties to between 29 days before the election and two days before the election.

The legislation was redrafted in June, a month after it was introduced, to include the advertising restrictions.

The June amendments contained a section of the original legislation that would have forbidden articles, announcements and editorials in newspapers of a "partisan political character" on election day and the day before.

The Canadian Managing Editors Conference objected to this provision because it said it restricted freedom of the press.

MR. AND MRS. J. L. BUTTON

Button — Rupert

College Hill United Church was the setting for the recent marriage ceremony when Claudette Lynn Rupert daughter of Mrs. Dinah Rupert of Belleville became the bride of Laurence J. Button, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Button, also of Belleville. Rev. Alfred Poulter officiated at the ceremony.

Given in marriage by her uncle Jim Scriver, the bride wore an a-line length white taffeta gown with high empire waistline and the bodice featuring sleeves with the French cuffs and high neckline edged with lace. A bouffant shoulder length veil was caught to a matching pillbox headdress and she carried an arm bouquet of red roses highlighted with wide white satin ribbons.

The maid of honor Miss Phyllis Cronkright wore a floor length mauve A-line gown with white daisy trim, and the junior bridesmaid Miss Tammy Rupert, sister of the bride was similarly attired but in sky blue shade. The bridesmaids Christie Button, sister of the bridegroom and Louise Rose of Cobourg were gowns of flowered material in shades of white, pink, sky blue and mauve. Each carried an arm bouquet of gladioli, — and wore white picture hats.

LESLIE ANN WINGATE, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. G. Wingate, Belleville recently graduated from the Edith Cavell Regional School of Nursing. Miss Wingate has accepted a position on the nursing staff at Belleville General Hospital.

Few Women Promoted In Educational Ranks

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto board of education is looking at its promotion procedures partly to find out why few women hold senior jobs in its ranks.

A special committee set up to study the problem is also considering tax bias in text books and in the standards applied by guidance counsellors.

The motion that started it was proposed last spring by a man, trustee Graham Scott.

He said in an interview: "I can't remember ever, having an idea that women have certain roles and that men have others. I don't remember ever seeing a distinction in their abilities."

Mr. Scott has been a computer programmer, a high school mathematics teacher and now works with the Ontario Institute for Studies in Education.

"When I became a teacher, it was obvious there was some process working that prevented women from rising to the supervisory positions men had. The process also ruled out certain classes of men and men of certain political opinions.

"This was not entirely a discriminatory effort by a group of officials, but a social standard accepted by most people."

He says after he was elected trustee and first mentioned the subject, a year and half ago, he was told few women qualified or were willing to qualify for promotion.

He says he decided to test his conviction by checking the ratios of men to women at various levels.

He began with the best qualified teachers, those with equivalent experience, courses, certificates, and found the ratio two to one. At the next level, jobs such as department head, the ratio of men to women is four to one.

"At the next level, vice-principal, it goes to 14 to one. And at that point intervenes the method of selecting people to go to principals' courses. That's in the hands of the officials of the board, and you select your own kind, males and males like yourself. I was tired of the perpetuation your own kind. That's the level at which the selection process becomes obscure.

"Take academic schools, for instance. There is no sex bias in who teaches mathematics or history, but the 28 senior positions are all filled by males.

"To me this was clearly an indication that there were processes in operation, unlimited possibilities for women."

A controversial post secondary education report by the provincial government of Ontario was G. A. Wishart's topic for discussion at the NSA's dinner meeting. Seen above referring to suggestions which the committee made are; Mrs. Joan Neuman, vice president, of the Bay of Quinte Chapter of the NSA; Miss Bonnie Burley, corresponding secretary, Mr. Wishart and Miss Marjorie Cross, president. Mr. Wishart told the secretaries that the opportunity for post secondary education is there and available for secretaries.

'Boss of the Year' Speaks at NSA Meeting

"I'm optimistic and confident regarding education in Ontario for personal development and career opportunity," remarked G. A. Wishart, guest speaker at the National Secretaries Association (International), Bay of Quinte's Chapter meeting Tuesday evening at Sun Luck Gardens. Mr. Wishart, the Boss of the Year for 1972-73 also said at the dinner meeting that as technology increases, the life expectancy of skills, trades and professions decreases. In speaking to the association on furthering education for secretaries, the guest speaker referred to a draft recommendation report of the provincial government of Ontario on post-secondary education.

The feasibility of continuous education for all, whether 26 or 30 years old; an allotment of time off work for the employee to further her education and the creation of a University of Ontario was suggested in the report.

Following Mr. Wishart's remarks on post secondary education, Mr. Harold J. Butterill, Director of Extension at Loyalist College, addressed the group. Pamphlets were distributed which listed the courses available for those interested in furthering their education. Extension courses through Loyalist are available in four area counties.

The business meeting followed Mr. Wishart and Mr. Butterill's addresses. Guests were welcomed from Trenton, Cobourg, Codrington, and Colborne. The evening's chairmen gave their reports on future plans for the upcoming fiscal year.

Mrs. Betty Jeffery, chairman of the ways and means committee reported on the upcoming fashion show the NSA is sponsoring in co-operation with Jackson Metcalfe and Shalimar shoes on Wednesday evening, September 27, at BCIWS. The models, members of the NSA, have chosen their own outfits which will be fashionable ensembles for office, casual wear and dress wear. All sizes will be modelled.

Research Done On Taped Programs

TORONTO (P) — Ten Toronto women have been busy since January doing research, writing and producing 16 video-taped programs which give a woman's view of subjects ranging from historical events to the life of a waitress.

The group, known as Women's Involvement Program, has been operating under the Local Initiatives Program with $62,000 for salaries and $7,000 for overhead.

The 10, paid $180 a week, say they believe that women are tired of being told what they are by men. They believe that the programs, which will be aired by individuals or groups, will alter that.

April Stanley, a university graduate in English, said she felt "for a long time that the communications media are very much a man's world and the woman-story wasn't being told."

"I don't want to become a CBC producer," she said, "but I do want to work in the media—TV, print."

Michelle Marcil, a graduate in radio and television from Ryerson Polytechnical Institute, said: "The medium is secondary to the idea of having a means by which women can speak for women."

The women have done research on historical events to get women's point of view and have completed a series of programs dealing with the struggle of women trying to gain equal educational opportunities.

Other programs deal with abortion, socialization, birth control and day care.

The Experts Say

Auction Sure Way to Make Cash

By JEAN SHARP
CP Women's Editor

The first Collector's Choice auction held in 1964 to raise scholarship money for the National Ballet School, cleared about $28,000. The last one cleared about $35,000.

Mrs. D. F. Barrett says it takes about two years to organize the auction, and about 600 to 800 items. This year's auction is being held Oct. 17.

Mrs. Barrett says she got interested in the auction idea after she became a one-woman committee in search of scholarship money for the ballet school. The school takes students who audition across the country, and then there is full-grade school and high school education as well as ballet training.

"I found there was no scholarship money available from corporations and foundations because they're geared for college level. On an individual basis I found people sometimes didn't want to risk money on a child who looks good at age seven, but might grow too tall or too heavy or not look or feel right 10 or so. It's one reason they are given a good education, so they aren't in a dead end."

CAME ON IDEA

She searched for a way to raise funds less directly, and came on the auction idea.

"I thought, surely it's easier to give a thing from your house that you mightn't want, than it is to give money. It's no common sense that it doesn't seem odd, but it did then. People told me no one would give us anything worth having."

The first auction drew a 19th-century copper wine ever that sold for $50, an early Canadian part dinner service in ironstone that sold for $800, a Nova Scotia cherry Pembroke table that sold for $250, paintings and sketches including some Group of Seven.

"You can auction about 100 items in two to three hours. If you're Sotheby's dealing in million-dollar diamonds, you might sell more. We aim at 2½ hours, because people begin to leave.

"We decided that unless an object was worth over a certain amount, there is no good taking up the time to auction it. Time equals money, so we prefer not to auction anything less than $35."

Before the first auction, a working committee was formed, the women's committee of the National Ballet School Scholarship Fund. A committee of experts also was pressed into service to help appraise the value of the items donated. Owners are not always aware of the current market value of the things they offer.

Mrs. Barrett says they have been given receipts for income tax deductions for the amount the item sold for.

She says the 100 best items are chosen for the auction, not necessarily the 100 highest priced. The remaining items are divided into two categories and sold during the 10-day auction preview period.

Mrs. Barrett says they have been able to borrow stores and, once, a vacant house for the previews. Volunteer labor plus one moving crew have moved the things from there to the auction room.

Expenses include insurance, security guards, the carefully-chosen auctioneer. The auctioneer receives a $5 fee to get into the auction partly to defray expenses, additional to the sure most of the people there have a real interest in buying something, and for not taking up valuable seating space just watching.

Women's Institutes

TWEED — After four years pastoring the Northbrook and Kaladar United Church Charges, Rev. and Mrs. G.A. Bombay said farewell to their parishioners recently. The joint congregations together with friends, held an evening atable supper in the Kaladar Community Hall at which time Mr and Mrs. Bombay were presented with a gift of money.

The Bombays are retiring to live in Owen Sound, having been in the ministry for many years.

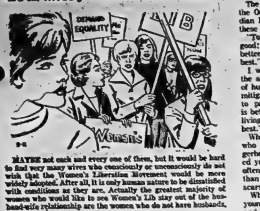
Mr. and Mrs. John Mewton from Kingston have already arrived and will serve over the pastorate of the two churches.

Manor Auxiliary Resumes Meetings

A good attendance met in the Library of Bayshore Manor when the Auxiliary held the first meeting of the fall season.

Mrs. Bertrand, the president, welcomed everyone back after the summer vacation and after opening the meeting with a prayer, conducted the business when various reports were given. There were 14 visits made and 14 flower bowls sent to patients in Belleville General Hospital.

Reports of the convention held in Toronto, September 10 - 13 were given. The delegates were Mrs. Bertrand and Mrs. Holmes. Plans were completed for the bazaar and tea to be held in the Manor, October 18 at the Manor. The craftroom supervisor requested volunteers to assist in the craftroom on the day of the bazaar and also solicited like donations of old stockings, crimpeene and wool scraps. There is to be a bingo for the enjoyment of the residents during the coming week.



Birthday cards for October are to be sent to residents by Auxiliary members and Wall bridge LOBA. At the birthday party, following the business meeting, August, and September birthdays were celebrated. The oldest residents celebrating birthdays in August were John Ellis, 81, and Mrs. Evelyn Rice, 83; and for September Mr. Fred Empey, 78, and Mrs. Adine Ish, 88.

Lunch provided by the Auxiliary, was under the convenorship of Mrs. G. F. Hurley and her assistants were Mrs. Jeanne Harnden and Mrs. Mayell.

Mirror of Your Mind
by JOHN CORTRELL

Do all wives yearn for Women's Lib?

MAYBE not each and every one of them, but it would be hard to find very many wives who consciously or unconsciously do not wish that the Women's Liberation Movement would be more widely adopted. After all, it is only human nature to be dissatisfied with conditions as they are. Actually the greatest majority of women who would like to see Women's Lib stay out of the business-side relationships are the women who do not have husbands.

Should an egotist be squelched?

NO. Curb an egotist, re-channel his efforts in live constantly in the spotlight; but don't permanently squelch him. He won't wither away, nor will he change—though some of those who have had to put up with him might wish he would. A horrible prospect—for the egotist as well as for his "victims"—is that the forcibly suppressed egotist could develop personality traits that would make him more obnoxious.

Can you be hostile and not know it?

DEFINITELY. Plan something; watch it turn out exactly the opposite, and your hostility unconsciously grows even as you tell everyone what a nice person you are. Your son, for instance, might be showing signs that he has a talent of his own. That beautiful 20in you had pictured for him is rapidly fading from your dream world. You are a little sharper with him, trying to keep your hostility from your son—and from yourself.

Successful Living

To Promote Happy Living Is Best

By DORIS CLARK

The 1921 Annual Report of the Ontario Division of Canadian Red Cross Society used these words as their slogan:

"To mitigate suffering is good: to prevent disease is better; to promote health is best."

I would like to paraphrase the above and in the interest of human relations, say: "To mitigate heartbreak is good; to prevent misunderstanding is better; to promote happy living (and mental) health is best."

When we find two people who have been living at logerheads for 10 or 15 anguished years, we social workers often wish we could do more than patch up a few of the sores and make life tolerable.

When we are able to help a younger couple, or a mother and daughter, to communicate and keep explaining themselves, keeping the lines clear that understanding may grow we like that better.

But if we can manage to get in touch with mother and child while each is just beginning to grow in understanding the other, or steer the newlywed young couple to a pre-marriage course where they can learn about good mental health in marriage, we feel best of all.

And so do they — for a lifetime.

Dear Doris: I am married to a loveable optimist. Four years ago we bought a farm. We were full of enthusiasm and energy. We were assured of success by all sorts of facts and figures.

The barn proved to be an almost a total wreck, the house not much better. Still it died without warning. All kinds of misfortunes occurred. Result: overdue accounts, no money to pay, I worried all the time and my husband tried full time working in town a day during farrowing and calving time. We have four children.

My problem is depression. Sometimes tears just roll down my face and I wish I could die. I feel trapped, angry — at anyone, everyone — especially the rich. My husband says some day we'll have a new house and new barn and enough stock to operate efficiently and all will be fine. And I weary or is he? — Lost All Hope.

P.S. I belong to the church choir. I almost die every time I have to face all these critical eyes, conscious of all my mistakes and certain they notice.

Dear Lost: You wouldn't be human if you didn't feel depressed at times but nonsense to go wrong. Good. I bet that the menopause is behind you on you. Is he complicate things? I'm sending you my booklet "Facts of Facing Forty", just in case it might help.

Your lovable optimist is a nice sort of person to be married to; go along with his kind of craziness rather than your own. Yet he may need some sound financial advice. Persuade him to talk things over with someone like the bank manager or a successful farmer.

As for those critical eyes, try believing in those people you sing the Lord's hymns with.

Confidential to Leaving Him: The question of where to go and how to get there after a day has stopped many a woman from walking out and taking her children with her.

Perhaps there is a relative, or perhaps your two employed girls could provide a temporary shelter until a legal aid resource obtains from him the support which is coming to you. Your husband has been unfaithful, cruel both mentally and physically, as I see it, these things can be established in court.

He will then be required to contribute regularly to the support of you family.

VON Visits Increased In August

Reports given at the recent meeting of the Quinte Branch VON held in the board room at Trenton Memorial hospital showed that there was an increase of visits as compared to last year. This was 1301 in August 1972 as compared to 699 in August 1971.

No meetings were held during July and August, but the staff remained active during the summer months. Visiting patients consumed most of the time but numerous to go wrong. Could it be that the menopause is behind you on you. Is he complicate things? I'm sending you my booklet "Facts of Facing Forty", just in case it might help.

Reports Given at B and P Meeting

Discussion during the business portion of the Business and Professional Women's Club meeting held at the Sun Valley Motor Inn on Monday evening centred around Business and Professional Women's Week to be held October 15-22.

Following the summer recess various reports were given by committee chairman with the meeting conducted by president of the club Marion McFaul.

As program chairman Charlotte Lockyer outlined tentative plans for future programs and specifically mentioned district director Freda Wilson's official visit in November. A special speaker is planned for the meeting in October which occurs during Business Women's week.

Various suggestions were brought forth by Bettie Anderson, chairman of the ways and means committee. A discussion ensued and a number of ideas were given for the floor.

Quite some discussion resulted following a report by Dorothy Flack, chairman for the Business Women's Week program. A church parade will take place on the opening day October 15, with as many members as possible to attend Bridge Street United Church in a body, with brunch later at Hotel Quinte. Guests are invited to the regular meeting on the Monday evenings at the Sun Valley Motor Inn and plans are in the making to arrange for an in-

A proclamation by the Mayor will appear in the local paper and a display depicting various activities of the club will be featured in the window at McNabb's Ladies Wear during this special week. Among other suggestions was a wine and cheese party and perhaps further advertising to entice new members.

A comprehensive budget report was given by chairman of the budget committee Eleanor Roblin.

President McFaul announced that a district certificate will be held in Trenton on October 22 at the Legion Hall and as many members as possible are urged to attend. The president will attend as a delegate.

At the conclusion of the meeting Mrs. McFaul gave the highlights of the national convention held in Toronto in July to which she attended as a delegate; with several members of the club also in attendance.

Ann Landers

Adjustment to Loss Not Quite Complete

Dear Ann Landers: Four years ago when I was 15 I lost my leg in an accident. I was a champion skater and loved to dance. Knowing I would never again excel in these areas was a blow. In a few months, with the help of a good counsellor, I managed to accept my limitations. But what drives me to crazy is that when I decide not to wear my artificial limb (it gets uncomfortable after a while) people stare, or gasp, or turn their heads away, as if the sight of the stump makes them sick.

I've made my adjustment. Why can't people who are fortunate enough to have both legs make theirs? Why must they make me feel like some sort of repulsive freak? — The Chap.

Dear Friend: There will always be insensitive clods in the world, but you seem to have an uncomfortable desire to punish them — perhaps because you have suffered so much.

I hope you will resume your counselling and get rid of your anger. You "adjustment" isn't complete.

Dear Ann Landers: I just read the letter from "It's What's Up Front That Counts," and I must respond. "Front" complained about the tasteless jokes she got while wearing her pregnancy.

I, too, worked through my pregnancy — and I was big as a house — absolutely enormous. It was comical to watch people's faces when they saw me. They tried not to stare but they just couldn't help it. I'd finally make the observer comfortable by saying, "Biggest thing since the Graf Zeppelin — isn't it?" This never failed to crack them up and from then on everyone was relaxed.

However I stepped into an elevator I'd take bets as to whether or not we'd make it. I figured it was better to come right out and say what they were thinking.

Those Women's Libbers are crazy. I wouldn't trade places with any man. This is the one thing we can do that they can't. — Real Female.

Dear Rap: I won't debate the merits of Women's Lib, but how many men do you know who envy a woman the ability to get pregnant? I'll say it's the one thing a woman can do that a man can't. I agree, but it's also the one thing that most men are darned happy can't happen to them.

Dear Ann Landers: It's obvious you are no bridge player. You told the woman who wrote about fighting with her husband over the card table to "throw it on the deck" — permanently. That advice stank.

Throwing in the deck is an admission of defeat. No one ever became a good bridge player by giving up. Better advice would have been to keep the rule book at the table. When an argument starts about who should have done what, look it up and settle the blooming thing then and there. Of course it slows up the game, but everyone will learn from it. Even a dumbbell like you.— Miami

Dear M: Not me. I'm no card player. But as for your suggestion — it sounds like a sure way to hatch another argument. If Gertie says one thing and Becker says another, you've got another hassle on your hands.

Hellyer Would Impeach Cabinet for Deceit on Jobless Pay

TORONTO (CP) — The entire federal cabinet should be impeached for declaring the public about the real cost of the unemployment insurance program, Paul Hellyer, a former Liberal cabinet minister, said Wednesday.

Mr. Hellyer, who is Progressive Conservative candidate in Toronto Trinity, estimated the real cost of unemployment insurance could be between $400 million and $800 million, which could cost every working Canadian $160 in taxes.

He said about 600 Conservatives at a PC Businessmen's Club luncheon that because of the program "it now is more profitable for thousands of Canadians to stay at home rather than accept regular employment."

A former Liberal defence and transport minister, Mr. Hellyer said he knew a 25-year-old Vancouver fisherman who made $43,000 in net earnings and owns his own boat. After the fishing season, he took his wife to Mexico for a vacation and returned to collect unemployment benefits during the winter, he said. . . .

He cited other cases of persons who all made at least $10,000 for part of the year and collected unemployment insurance during the winter.

"These people were not breaking the law, but you must admit that a law which permits this kind of abuse is a stupid law," he said.

To applause and table-thumping, Mr. Hellyer said the government's withholding of the cost of the unemployment insurance program "is a fraud of such monstrous proportions that the entire cabinet should be impeached."

There were several Ontario cabinet ministers at the luncheon to hear Mr. Hellyer, who referred to himself as a "convert." He resigned from the Liberal caucus in 1971 to sit as an independent Liberal because of dissatisfaction over several issues.

Mr. Hellyer said he tried unsuccessfully for six months to get the number of persons carrying unemployment insurance on Jan. 30 and Feb. 29. He said he suspected the reason he could not get the information was because there were more persons collecting unemployment insurance than the total reported unemployed.

Caouette Spanks Assorted Provincial Premiers

GRANDE PRAIRIE, Alta. (CP) — There were no sacred cows Wednesday night when Real Caouette addressed a meeting of the Chamber of Commerce in this northwestern Alberta city.

The leader of the Federal Social Credit party took issue at various points with the federal government and then aimed a few pokes at several provincial administrations, mostly on their financial attitudes.

He was highly critical, especially of Premier Robert Bourassa of Quebec, when he told about 250 persons that too many Canadian governments go to the United States for development funds.

"Bourassa is there every week; he's a pilgrim. Your new premiere [Peter Lougheed of Alberta] started doing the same thing not too long ago."

Mr. Caouette quoted NDP Leader David Lewis as saying: "They (Americans) are controlling our economy and we have to send them back 'cause because those people are working against the Canadian people; they are corporate welfare bums."

"And at the same time," said Mr. Caouette, "exactly the same day, two ministers of finance—one from Manitoba's NDP government and the other from Saskatchewan's NDP government—both were in the United States borrowing credit to develop their natural resources.

Mr. Caouette said federal legislation incorporating the Bank of Canada had made it virtually impossible for the provinces to borrow money. He said the Bank of Canada Act, as revised in 13 and 30, provides for provincial governments to borrow up to 25 per cent of their annual budget but only for a period of six months.

He said this doesn't give the provinces even enough time to arrange contracts with developers.

"Perplexities, confusion and distrust in Canada arise not from defects in our constitution of Confederation, not from want of honor or virtue so much as from downright ignorance of the nature of coin, credit and circulation."

"We will reach unity when each province can be herded.

"Everyone has his own personality, his own aptitudes, no two are alike. Each one wants to be free and independent and yet each one wants to remain in the family.

"The day . . . we will organize Canada as an average Canadian family, that's the day the provinces will have more freedom, the provinces will have the right to decide by themselves, remaining in one great country."

Turner's Talk Mailed Out To Businessmen

OTTAWA (CP) — A speech by Finance Minister John Turner, which includes a direct attack on the "corporate welfare bum" theme of the NDP election campaign, has been mailed to businessmen at public expense by the finance department.

Dennis Orchard, information director of the finance department, said Wednesday the mailing list includes a direct hundred businessmen." He said the department is justified in distributing the speech because "the minister was speaking as much in his capacity as minister as anything else."

"The speech dealt with the tax system and criticism of the tax system," said Mr. Orchard.

Indian States Case Against Snowmobile Curbs in North

TORONTO (CP) — An Indian leader pleaded with an Ontario legislature committee Wednesday not to put restrictions on the use of snowmobiles in the far North where Indians regard them as "a means of survival."

Andrew Rickard of Moosonee, executive-director of the 30,000-member Union of Ontario Indians, said snowmobiles are vital to Indians for trapping, fishing, hunting, transportation and "general survival" in remote, isolated areas.

He said regulations that would force an Indian to qualify for a car-driving license to operate a snowmobile would make many of them useless. Indians should also be permitted to carry firearms while travelling on snowmobiles in desolate areas as a means of protection against attacks by wolves.

Replying to committee member Bernt Gilbertsan (PC—Algoma), Mr. Rickard said he had no knowledge of wolves ever attacking a snowmobile, but warned the threat was still real.

Alex. Carruthers (PC—Durham), chairman of the committee which is studying the impact on society of snowmobiles and all-terrain vehicles, assured Mr. Rickard that members are more concerned with encouraging the proper use of the vehicles than in banning them.

Chief Fred Plain of Sarnia, union president, said all people of the far North, not just Indians, should have free use of snowmobiles.

Mr. Plain also said there were reserves on Lake Huron and Lake Superior which are isolated from urban areas, and where snowmobiles are "a dire necessity."

The committee has heard briefs calling for snowmobile operators to be licensed in the same way as motorists.

Mr. Rickard, replying to Thomas Wardle (PC—Toronto Beaches-Woodbine), said all-terrain, or hover-craft vehicles, would not be acceptable to Indians because the cost would be "A little too high for our budget."

In another brief, Joan Lidster, secretary of the Golden Acres Snowriders of St. Thomas, was sharply critical of the increase in snowmobile registration fees this year to $10 from $2.

This brought a response from Mr. Gilbertson who said: "If you can afford to pay $1,800 for a snowmobile, you can afford $20."

Mrs. Lidster agreed, but said snowmobilers couldn't understand why the percentage increase was so great "at this time."

Tale of Terror Told by British Newsmen Back from Uganda

LONDON (AP) — North Americans and Europeans rounded up by Ugandan troops and secret service agents during a "black hole of Calcutta" jail cell with African prostitutes, thieves, thugs and two lunatics.

That was the tale of terror told today by seven British journalists released by the Ugandan Wednesday after they were held several days in Kampala's central police headquarters as "British spies".

The British journalists withheld their reports until they knew the other newspaper men held by the Ugandans were freed. That group, including Associated Press correspondent Andrew Tarchia, was released late Wednesday night and flown out to Manchester on a British airliner.

Daily Mail reporter Lewis Watkins, freed Tuesday night, was arrested in the Grand Hotel by seven Ugandan agents and marched to prison with a sub-machine-gun jabbed in his back.

He was stripped and searched and found himself branded a spy because investigators found a note from his five-year-old son in his pocket. It read: "Good luck daddy. Come back safe and soon. Love, Simon."

Watkins said his interrogators screamed at him: "This person knows you are a dangerous assassin."

After more interrogation, he screaming Ugandans, Watkins and other journalists were thrown into a barracks room measuring 40 feet by 70 feet with about 30 other fore-faces, including a pregnant Scottish woman and two small boys aged four and two.

Fred Romanik, 36-year-old Canadian tourist from Windsor, Ont., was among a group of 30 freed Tuesday night. He told of his ordeal Wednesday after his arrival in Nairobi, Kenya.

Romanik said that from the time he was put in the room on Sunday morning until Monday afternoon they had been given no food.

Watkins reported "ugandan happy gunmen" were "drunk while interrogating and threatening businessmen, journalists and high commission officials branded as suspects."

The journalist said young British women, wives of officials and businessmen, were forced to watch as President Idi Amin's "Special Branch" tortured a man.

The foreigners said held by Ugandans "are in a desperate situation," Watkins said. "They are in a cell complex in which 70 people exist with only four toilets. The smell is choking."

"While I was there a bleeding toilet overflowed. Slop was unavoidable due to the nausea and slobbering of people held without trial."

One man, his said, cracked under the strain and stumbled terrified round the crowded cell mumbling. "They are going to shoot us." But he said most of the foreigners, even the children and women, were forced to watch torturers batter an African with clubs for an hour, kept their heads.

"Everyone lived with the fear of being thrown to the crocodiles — which has happened when big daddy Amin's executioners have forgotten to kill the victim first."

Women and children, he said, were held captive alongside prostitutes, drunks, thugs and thieves. Two lunatics, shouting and dancing hysterically, were in one cell at the "King Georgey Hotel," Wise said.

The captives slept on the bare urine-smeared concrete floors, without bedding. Drinking water came from a rubber hose lying in a drain running through the grimy cell block.

Cold food came at irregular intervals, the freed journalists said. For the first two days most prisoners had nothing to eat. Thirsty children, frightened by the screams and the prison horrors, wept.

The greatest fear, Wise said, was the realization that "nobody outside knew where we were and there was no rule of law to protect us."

Israeli War on Terrorists May Serve To Improve Mideast Peace Prospects

BEIRUT (AP) — An angry and frustrated Israel has declared war in the bitter end against Arab terrorists and the governments that support them.

The violence which many in the area now think is inevitable may set back peace efforts but is unlikely to shatter them.

The Israeli manhunt against Arab terrorists may—while satisfying an emotional desire for revenge—actually improve peace prospects.

Israel believes Arab governments are unable or unwilling to tackle the Palestinian guerrilla movement and the small, hardcore terrorist elements. Israeli leaders evidently believe it is better to stamp the guerrillas out now than let them run loose, lest one day they torpedo a peaceful peace agreement with Egypt or Jordan.

After the killing of 11 Israelis at the Munich Olympics, the Israeli government said in a statement: "Israel will persevere in its struggle against the terror organizations and will not absolve their accomplices from responsibility for terrorist actions."

Since then Israel has conducted a bombing raid in Syria and a military raid into south Lebanon, saying both operations were aimed at wiping out guerrilla bases tolerated by the Syrians and Lebanese.

Israel's duty, Premier Golda Meir has said, is "to fight the terrorist organizations to the very end . . . to strike at the terrorist organizations wherever we can."

She has said this campaign would "not alter our peace policy." Israel had directed several peace feelers at Egypt and Jordan before the Munich tragedy.

Foreign Minister Abba Eban said much the same thing, but his remarks underscored the Israelis' determination to wipe out the guerrillas.

Correspondents covering Eban's recent news conference could not remember his ever being so angry as when he said: "Peace isn't the question in my mind today. The question is how to eliminate this scourge (terrorism)."

He made it quite clear that the Munich killings had pushed the search for peace into the background, and he added that, in all future meetings with foreign government officials, "I would not talk to them about anything except this—terrorism."

First Lady Driver in Brown Jug Passes on Women's Lib

DELAWARE, Ohio (AP) — June Walker, who became the first lady to drive in the Little Brown Jug today, will pass when it comes to women's lib.

"I started driving before all of that stuff," recalled the veteran of 35 racing seasons before the start of the middle jewel of pacing's Triple Crown at the Delaware County Fairgrounds.

Mrs. Walker, however, didn't give her highly-raced Dad's Time a chance against 11 other top flight three-year-old pacers in the $104,816 event. The Invervies were Jay Time, Strike Out and Hilarious Way.

Others entered were Cory, Berry Hanover, Alley Fighter, Fast Clip, Skipper Thorpe, Lynden Rye Rye, Goodbye Columbus and Entrepreneur. The winner had to grab two heats for the Jug triumph.

Mrs. Weller, 50, thinks Dad's Time is better than his credentials: four victories in seven starts for $1,325 and a 2:06 3-5 mile this year.

"I trained him in 2:05 on an off-track last week and he worked a real good half mile here," she said.

She rated her Jug start right along with Red Dunnion's 1:59 4-5 mile trip in 1957 at Vernon Downs as the highpoints of her long career.

Mrs. Weller has worked a Jug start for years but waited until "I raised one I thought was good enough to race here."

Jay Time was the 5-2 favorite in the 37th Jug with Strike Out, trained by John Hayes Sr. of Beaverton, Ont., at 3-1 and Hilarious Way, the winner of the first leg of the Triple Crown in the Can Futurity, at 4-1.

Backs To Wall

MOSCOW (AP) — Team Canada their backs to the wall in a no - night-game exhibition hockey series with Russia, arrived here Wednesday along with about 1,000 fans.

The Canadian team, fresh from two less-than-glorious exhibition games on the weekend in Sweden where they won 4-1 and tied 4-4 against the Swedish nationals, are on the short end of a 3-3-1 won-loss-tied mark with the Soviet selects.

The first of four games here is Friday at 12:30 p.m. EDT and will be seen nationally in Canada on the CTV network. A replay of the day's action will be broadcast at local evening hours.

Ali Stops Patterson

NEW YORK (AP) — Muhammad Ali unleashed a flow of superlatives in praise of Floyd Patterson, offered him a rematch and then clamored for heavyweight champion Joe Frazier.

"Patterson is a great, great fighter. I thought he would bring but he surprised me," Ali said after he hammered Patterson's left eye shut, sliced open a gash above the eye and stopped him after seven rounds of a scheduled 12-round fight Wednesday night at Madison Square Garden.

Ali, who has been fighting regularly since being declared ineligible by Frazier in a 15-round title fight in March, 1971, said he was ready for the champion and berated Frazier for refusing to defend against a top contender.

Despite the loss, the 31-year-old Patterson said he would resume training and refused to entertain thoughts of retirement.

Frazier Misses Deadline

MEXICO CITY (Reuter) — A deadline by the World Boxing Council for Joe Frazier to agree to defend his world heavyweight title against fellow American George Foreman expired Wednesday without a word from the champion.

But WBC secretary-general Jose Sulaiman told Reuter: "We shall wait a few days more."

Lacrosse Briefs

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP) — Peterborough PCOs paralyzed seven straight goals in the third period Tuesday en route to a 16-11 victory over Richmond Roadrunners and won the Canadian Junior A Lacrosse championship Wednesday night.

Peterborough won the best-of-seven series for the Minto Cup in four straight games over the British Columbia representatives.

NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C. (CP) — Brantford Warriors coach Morley Kells said Wednesday he will be "never" if his team is to entertain any thoughts of winning the Mann Cup senior lacrosse final over New Westminster Salmonbellies.

The Warriors, down 2-0 in the best-of-seven final, being played here, must win the third game tonight. Kells said, if they are to have any hope of repeating as Mann Cup titleholders.

Brantford defeated the Salmonbellies in four straight games in the 1971 final in the Ontario city.

The Salmonbellies, however, have strengthened their lineup by adding eight players to this year's team.

Argos Now Officially Worst CFL Team

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Argonauts, with Leon McQuay and Bill Symons reunited as running backs for the first time this season, looked to be in Grey Cup form Wednesday night—for a few minutes.

Then they reverted to the form that can now conceivably label them the worst team in the Canadian Football League when they slam an 8-6 lead and fell 22-9 to British Columbia Lions.

It left the Eastern Conference team with a 1-7 mark and four points behind third-place Montreal Alouettes in the standings. The Als, however, have a game in hand.

On the other hand, the B.C. win—their second in nine games—moved the Lions into a fourth-place tie in the WFC with Calgary Stampeders, the team that won the CFL final from Toronto last year.

The teams left the field to a chant from the sellout crowd of more than 32,000 singing "Goodbye, Leo, goodbye." But the strains didn't appear to upset Toronto coach Leo Cahill.

"As long as they're singing Goodbye Leo, they're not out robbing banks," he said in a post game interview.

It was increasingly evident during the game, however, that the Toronto coach was upset as the Argos committed five turnovers and the Lions capitalized behind the steady direction of quarterback Don Moorhead who took over from Don Bunce after the half with B.C. trailing 8-6.

Moorhead's sharp passing, a facet of his game that had been suspect, and selection of plays kept the Argos off balance.

Limited to two field goals by Ted Gerela in the first half, the Lions, behind Moorhead, struck with sudden savagery, a 72-yard touchdown toss to Jim Young in the third quarter.

The major score was signalled by the numerous Argo fumbles that made the win that much easier for the west coast club. Previous to the touchdown score a Toronto player had been caught offside on a punt formation with the Lions in a third-and-five situation.

Johnny Musso ran for another touchdown and Gerela added another field goal and two converts to complete the scoring. Leon McQuay got the ball 11 times for 84 yards, one romp of 31 yards giving the Argos their 8-6 lead. He also fumbled twice. Ivan MacMillan, who converted, picked up an earlier single on a wide field goal attempt.

Argo quarterback Wally Gabler, a steadying influence in his three previous starts, had a nerve-wracking night com pleting only 15 of 32 attempts for 185 yards and three interceptions.

But again, Gabler couldn't be faulted for many of the missed passes that were on target but dropped by such normally sure-handed receivers as Symons, Dave Cranmer, Mike Eben and Tony Moro.

"B.C.'s not a bad ball club," observed Cahill. "They were just hoping someone would do something for them, and we did it.

"We really did something for them."

Peterborough Sweeps Junior Honors

Product Gets Poorer

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canada-Russia hockey series and continued expansion of the National Hockey League are expected to take a ball of fuss throughout the league, a hockey veteran suggested Wednesday night.

After watching Pittsburgh Penguins trounce Philadelphia Flyers 4-1 in a listless pre-season exhibition before fewer than 500 fans in the 9,000-seat Civic Center, Jack Evans, scout for Detroit Red Wings, said:

"There's a lot of kids out there who should never have had the chance to play in an NHL exhibition. But that is what expansion has done to the game.

"The product as currently presented is a shadow of its former self."

And, he added:

"There's no connected attendance throughout the league will be down this season. The Canada-Russia series has seen to this.

"Fans realize now just what they are missing and they may be gullible, but they are not stupid.

"They're footing the bill, and believe me they are fed up with being short-changed."

The attendance at the two pre-season Philadelphia games here Tuesday and Wednesday appeared to bear this out.

Last season the junior Ottawa 67s pulled an average in excess of 7,000 fans a game into the Centre, while in previous seasons NHL exhibitions here have drawn near sellouts.

Tuesday there were 4,100 fans announced as being at the game, while Wednesday night the crowd was the smallest in memory for any kind of hockey in the arena.

Homers Hurt Seals

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

For the second time in as many nights, a hometown boy sank California's Golden Seals in their home training ground.

Don Blackburn was the culprit Wednesday night, scoring two goals to lead Minnesota North Stars to a 3-2 win over the Seals at their Kingston, Ont., training ground in National Hockey League exhibition action.

The night before, another Kingston native, Syl Apps, supplied the winning score in Pittsburgh Penguins' 3-2 victory over California.

In other games, the Penguins whipped Philadelphia Flyers 4-1 at Ottawa, Chicago Black Hawks scored four straight goals in overcoming Toronto Maple Leafs 5-3 at Maple Leaf Gardens and Vancouver Canucks edged Los Angeles Kings 3-2 at Victoria.

Brian Ogilvie notched Chicago's first goal after the Leafs had opened a 2-0 lead in the first period against rookie goaltender Mike Veisor. Rookies Bob Duncan, Randy Osburn and George Ferguson scored for Toronto.

Oilers Test Quinte Machine

A couple of years ago, an exhibition game between a bottom-division Ontario Hockey Association Senior A club and a Central Professional League entry would have been out of the question.

But talent is spread a lot thinner every season...and the high-priced spread is the thinnest.

Belleville's senior hockey entry takes to the ice for the first time as a team Saturday night in an 8 o'clock Memorial Arena tilt against the Central League's Tulsa Oilers.

The Oilers, Toronto Maple Leafs' farm club who went to the league finals last season, will feature a couple of promising faces. Left-winger Randy Osborne, Toronto's second-round draft choice in the June overage junior draft, and 205 pound defenceman Dennis Deslauriers, whom the Leafs picked from the Quebec League as their third junior choice, will be dressed for the Oilers.

The game will mark the first appearance behind the Tulsa bench of new coach Gerry Moore, who replaces Marcel Pronovost,, Moore, an Ottawa native, coached the International League's Dayton entry last season, and formerly played senior hockey in Kingston.

Pappas Delays Pirate Pennant Party

CHICAGO (AP) — Glenn Beckert's bases-loaded two-run single and solo homer by Billy Williams and Ron Santo gave Milt Pappas a 200th career pitching victory Wednesday as Chicago Cubs defeated Montreal Expos 4-3.

A Cubs loss would have clinched the National League East pennant for Pittsburgh. The Pirates still could clinch the flag by beating New York Mets Wednesday night.

Pappas scattered seven hits in recording his ninth successive victory and his 13th against seven losses for the season.

Although 53 major-league pitchers piled up 200 or more mound victories since 1900, Pappas is the first to reach that plateau without a single 20-victory season.

Jose Jorgenson slammed a two-out homer to give Montreal a 1-0 lead in the first, but the Cubs rocked starter Mike Torrez, 16-11, for three runs on four hits, including Beckert's bases-loaded single in the bottom of the first.

Torrez also gave Williams his 33rd homer leading off the third and Santo his 17th homer in a two-run Cub rally. Williams also singled in four trips to raise his league-leading batting average to .326.

Ron Fairly added the Expos' final run in the ninth inning when he hit a two-out homer, his 13th of the season.

Seaver's Five-hitter Keeps Bubbly on Ice

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Tom Seaver had his fastball and his hard slider and his curve Wednesday night and the result was that New York Mets temporarily delayed Pittsburgh Pirates' champagne party by beating them 4-1.

The Pirates need just one victory or a Chicago Cub loss to clinch their second straight National League East Division pennant.

The Pirates weren't happy that Seaver had kept the champagne on ice, struck out 15 batters and gave up only five hits.

"Did Seaver have a good fastball? What was he throwing? Have I ever seen him look as good? That's what you're going to ask me, aren't you?" Stargell asked, shortly after he had been a Seaver strikeout victim three times.

Seaver, 18-12, had not finished a game in five starts and had been hampered in his last three by a hip injury.

But the Mets scored three runs in the third, two of them on Duffy Dyer's triple.

Weaver Sees Way For Orioles to Win

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

Earl Weaver, bless his optimistic soul, has finally figured out the American League East pennant scramble. All he needs to win it is a little help from his friends.

After his Baltimore Orioles absorbed a vital 9-1 and 4-0 doubleheader sweep at the hands of first-place Boston to tumble 3½ games off the Red Sox' pace Wednesday night, Weaver studied his baseball schedule and discovered Boston spends the next four days playing second-place Detroit Tigers. Then the Baltimore boss offered his analysis.

"I'll be rooting for my good friend Billy Martin Thursday and Saturday," revealed Weaver. "And I'll be rooting for my good friend Eddie Kasko Friday and Sunday. If my good friends win, we'll get Boston three in a row and we'll be all even with three games to go."

Managers Martin of the Tigers and Kasko of the Red Sox are in infinitely better shape than Weaver today. Detroit trimmed Cleveland Indians 4-1 Wednesday night and are second, one game behind the Sox with 13 to play compared to Boston's 12.

Plane's Win Third Tad Title

Plane's Concrete won the fourth game of a three-game series to capture the Belleville Minor Baseball tadpole championship Wednesday.

The extra game was necessitated when Plane's and Universal battled to a 11-11 deadlock during the first three games. Plane's emerged with a 4-3 win last night that gave them their third consecutive city championship.

Brian Cronkright and Philip Van Lunteren hurled the win, striking out 20 batters during the course of the seven-inning contest. They yielded only three hits and two walks.

The Universal pitchers were Steve Taylor and Stewart Emerson. They had a five-hitter in which they whiffed 19 and walked five.

Richard Jolliffe homered for the winners, while Richard Manderville added a double and single. Cronkright and Michael Baugh had one hit each. For Universal it was Al Tompkins and John Gossen collecting doubles and Steve Taylor a single.

Motorland Chrysler powwow took their finals series in two straight by stopping the Kinnon 12-9 Wednesday.

Greg McEachern and Paul Dent pitched for the city champs, walking five batters and fanning three. Dave Bennett, Bill Silk and Paul Marinoni saw mound action for the losers.

Rollins Go Half Way

Rollins Construction are willing to go half way, or thereabouts, to settle their OASA Intermediate "A" quarter-final argument with Barrie.

The terms will meet in Oshawa Friday night in the third and deciding game of the series, with the winner advancing to the semi-finals against Woodstock. Barrie opened the series with a 2-1 win before dropping a 1-0, 10-inning contest to Rollins Tuesday.

Stacey Catches Votes

Marv Stacey managed to catch more than foul balls and upshoots this season. The Devon Motors hacks top-caught enough votes to be named as the Commercial Softball League's Most Valuable Player.

Stacey was awarded the Jim "Oy" Barriage Memorial Trophy by a vote of the league's six managers plus league statistician Mike Bradshaw. The votes were on a 5-3-1 system.

Stacey captured the MVP award over Dwight Rathwell of Howard and Robert, Devolin Motors' Bruce Sickle and Carl Steenbower and Wayne McTaggart of Rollins Construction.

Devolin's Rick Rosebush was runner - up to Rathwell for the Ebber Trophy while Gary Johnson of Globe Hotel and Bruce Sickle also drew significant voting support.

OMB Is Keeping Municipalities Pure

TORONTO (CP) — A prominent lawyer said Wednesday Ontario is "incredibly free" of political corruption because of the watchdog role played by the Ontario Municipal Board.

Jack T. Weir of Toronto, a past-president of the Canadian Bar Association, credited the OMB with playing a significant role in preventing bribery and corruption in the province.

He said the board should be encouraged to continue this role.

Mr. Weir told the select legislature committee studying the role of the OMB that he could not document his references to political corruption. But he had a "a feeling" that without the board there would have been a lot of "back room dealing" among smaller municipal officials.

He said this type of bribery is subtle and generally takes the form of a minor official, usually not elected, promising to "make a deal" for certain favors.

Philip Givens (L—Toronto York Forest Hill) asked the lawyer why he limited the possibility of corruption to the municipal level and not to appointed boards, apparently a reference to the OMB.

Mr. Weir said the chief reason was that the selection process for appointing boards is more precise and sound.

In a 13-page brief, Mr. Weir also said governments in Ontario have consistently failed to properly define the board's role.

He said the government should appoint an inquiry officer to act as a link between the cabinet and municipalities on appeals of OMB decisions.

Allen Jarrett of Toronto, an auditor for several municipal [illegible] a recommendation [illegible] should be turned over to the [illegible] or [illegible] provincial treasurer and that appeals by taxpayers be to the cabinet only.

Raise Limit

EDMONTON (CP) — The minimum wage for full-time employees in Alberta will be increased to $1.35 an hour Jan. 1, 1973, Labor Minister Bert Hohol announced Wednesday.

In a news release, Dr. Hohol said the increase from the current $1.55 would place Alberta in line with Manitoba and Saskatchewan and almost of all other provinces.

Mr. Jarrett said he did not want to see the board dissolved, because there was nothing like it in North America."

Tried Twice to Kill Himself

Boutin Tells Inquest He Set Club Afire

coroner's inquest Wednesday he thinks he set fire to the Ilfov Bird Club in downtown Montreal Sept. 1 while under the influence of alcohol.

Thirty-seven persons died in the blaze at the country- and western music nightclub. Dozens more were taken to hospital for treatment.

Boutin, James Michael, warrants as material witnesses.

Boutin and O'Brien were arrested in a drug raid in Vancouver last June and were brought to Montreal Tuesday. Eccles was arrested a few hours after the fire.

At the time, he said he wrote a letter to Montreal Chief Crown Prosecutor Stephen Cuddy whose name he obtained from local newspaper accounts of the fire.

"Jimmy and Gilles kept on trying to discourage me but I was too drunk to listen to common sense," he wrote in the letter.

Boutin denied he ever meant to kill anyone.

"We had friends in there. We had no idea, no conception anyone would even be hurt. We did not even think it would burn down the staircase," he said.

"All we wanted to do—well, what we thought would happen would leave and the doorman would be fired."

Boutin testified that the fire had been planned in the parking lot beside the club after he and the other two had been refused entry by the doorman when they tried to sit with friends where no table was available.

Convicts Seek Kosher Meals

KINGSTON (CP) — Five Jewish prisoners in Collins Bay penitentiary are threatening to hold a hunger strike until changes are made in prison menus to reflect religious dietary laws.

In a letter to The Whig-Standard and Wednesday, James Bata, Gerald Shefford, Mike W. Kaufhoff, Joseph Eric and Alfred Ramsay said "at the present time it is often the case of eating leftover fish and products fried in pork fat."

Funds for Indians Groups To Go to Them Directly

OTTAWA (CP) — Government funds for research into Indian treaty claims will be given directly to the provincial and regional Indian associations under a new payment plan, Indian Affairs Minister Jean Chretien said Wednesday.

The move is in line with a request by the National Indian Brotherhood that it no longer continue an over-all co-ordinating and distributing role in research funding, Mr. Chretien said.

Planning Group Said Consummers' Voice

CALGARY (CP) — Urban Affairs Minister Ron Basford has said he regards the Community Planning Association of Canada as the consumer's voice in city planning.

But some delegates at the association's annual conference which ended Wednesday said they doubt that the organization really represents the ordinary citizen.

In fact, it is doubtful that association leaders want to take specific stands on local issues that divide planners, politicians and community groups. They see the association as an educational tool rather than a pressure group.

But some association members are unhappy with the direction of the association. One member said CPAC is like a head without a body and another said it is little more than a club for professional planners and politicians.

William Perks, dean of the school of environmental design at the University of Calgary, said as the conference opened that there were few ordinary citizens attending the meeting.

She said conference organizers in Calgary wanted at least 250 of the 400 delegates to be from community groups. They asked the association to pay the expenses of these community group representatives.

Jacques Ledoux, CPAC assistant national director, said his organization requested $68,000 from the federal government but received only $5,000 for the expenses of community representatives. This paid for 24 persons who were the only community group leaders at the conference.

Jack Long, a Calgary architect involved in an inner-city rehabilitation project, said the association is "a professional organization."

"Most of us who are concerned about communities have left this organization," he said. "They don't help citizens' groups unless they wipe out the present organizers."

He suggested that much of the CPAC budget could be used to fund emerging citizens' groups.

This view of CPAC is not shared by the new president, Paul Melin, a Saskatoon engineer.

He said in an interview that it is not realistic to bring in large numbers of citizens group representatives to national conferences.

"I feel your citizen participation at the local level where the discussion is very pertinent to the needs and desires of that group of citizens," he said.

It was difficult to get citizen participation at the national level, he said. Community representatives would be frustrated with the general nature of discussion at the national level.

Ernest Tonge, CPAC national director, said in a recent interview that he believes the association should be a research and information organization helping local groups across the country solve their problems.

He opposes the association taking a stand on specific local issues. In his view, the association should help planners, politicians and residents reach a satisfactory compromise solution to their differences.

Boy Survives Trip

DULUTH, Minn. (AP) — "Everything was so dark and I thought there was no end to it at all," says young John Schroepfer of the harrowing minutes he spent in a world of swirling, roaring water.

For an estimated three to four minutes, the 13-year-old youth fought for air and against the rushing water Wednesday as he was carried the length of a two-block-long culvert into which he fell.

"Ten more seconds and I would have had it," the boy recalled. The near tragedy began when school recessed early after a deluge of nearly four inches of rain, the third downpour to hammer the Duluth area in six weeks.

John and a pal, 13-year-old Steve Chapman, rode their bikes to a nearby restaurant. At the rear of the building they watched as runoff water poured into a concrete culvert, which ranges in size from 2 to 12 feet.

"A man stood there, taking pictures like mad of the rushing water," John said. "Then he stood us to lift up the boards covering the culvert, saying the water would go in easier."

The two boys managed to remove the boards. Then, suddenly, John lost his footing and slid down into the torrent.

A strong swimmer, Joan said that at several points he went down. But each time he surfaced just in time, snatched a breath of air and then roared on was dragged on. The current tore the shoes and socks from his feet.

"I was just about to give up when I thought I saw a light so I fought the water harder," the boy said.

The light was the other end of the culvert. He crawled out, and stumbled into a nearby store.

The boy was taken to hospital for treatment and then sent home.

Youths Murder Law Professor

NEW YORK (AP) — A Columbia University international law scholar known to his colleagues as a humanist and opponent of international violence, was attacked on the street by three youths and stabbed to death in a struggle for his wristwatch.

Mayor John Lindsay termed the slaying of Bryant-Ged Wolf gang Friedmann Wednesday the worst outrage in his tenure as mayor and he ordered a round-the-clock search for the killers.

Three youths were being questioned by police.

Friedmann, a Berlin native and refugee from Nazi Germany, was professor of international law and director of international legal research at Columbia. He joined the faculty in 1953.

Computers Are Seen As Threat to Privacy

MONTREAL (CP) — Communications Minister Robert Stanbury said Wednesday that computers could threaten individual privacy unless government and industry recognize the powers of efficient information systems.

Access by individuals to data collected about them could help correct any imbalance between the institutions compiling information and the persons involved, he said.

Individuals must have the right to see files concerning them, to correct inaccuracies, and to know the uses to which information would be put, Mr. Stanbury said.

What the Stars Say

By JEANE DIXON

FRIDAY, SEPT. 22

Aries (March 21-April 19): You're probably overscheduled, too much to do in too short a time. Retain a modicum of composure, shed loads or postpone where you can.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Endless discussions fail to disclose key facts—do your own seeking. The determination to get things straight saves the day.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Impulse, haste can be troublesome. Items and situations usually safe aren't necessarily so. You are better off if you state your case.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Bickering leads to serious conflict, and is better avoided except where you have all it takes to settle a long conflict.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Stay uncommitted, and tactful, on the alert for a break. Loved ones need your wisdom. There are many things to talk over. Later tonight.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Opposition is just challenging enough to stir you into definite effort to get what you want. Be. What is begun today is commitments.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Early activity is smooth, but learn to read tension. Switching to another job is a bridge to some other undeveloped situation.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Strenuous activity is normal for this long and tense day. Today's conditions is fine for open a special opportunity for you.

Sagittaries (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): The better they like you, the more contrary their mood. Stick to the routines of winding down the week's work, adding nothing.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Conversations get out of hand this strange Friday, making it difficult for you to judge what to answer, and when to leave it.

Aquaries (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): No clear path is available, so you must feel your way as most people do. Wait for provocation is too far off.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Anything will serve as a bone for contention. Resign gracefully, or select some other issue that will not relationship adjustments.

Chemistry Profile Helpful to Doctor

By GEORGE C. THOSTESON and MD.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Doctors more and more are asking patients to go to a clinic for a "chemistry profile" as part of the physical examination.

I am curious about what might show up in these tests. Or, in other words, can we be fairly confident that there is nothing seriously wrong if the chemistry profile is normal?—Mrs. B.A.

A chemistry profile is a grouping of blood chemistry tests done on an automation, or an automation system—so, instead of doing each test separately, a great deal of time and money are saved.

There may be 12 or more tests in the total procedure and there can be some variation in them, but they would include such basic ones as sugar, urea test, nitrogen test, acid, enzymes, calcium and so on.

This group of tests is so valuable that it has become routine in modern medicine.

Within limits, yes. They are fundamentally correct in assuming that a normal chemistry profile indicates that you are in good health, but the doctor still has to take it for granted, like is going to use his ears and eyes and take into consideration your medical history for any signs that the blood tests might not indicate.

For an over-simple example, you might have a broken leg but have normal enough blood chemistry. You could have been exposed to TB and it wouldn't show up instantly in a blood test, but sooner or later the effects of the disease would cause some abnormalities.

There could be indications of infection somewhere, but the tests would not show just where the infection was. Also, the blood test would so indicate, but it could take some further searching to find out what was causing the anemia.

Likewise, for some cases special chemical profiles may be ordered, different from the routine one. Tests for liver disease after a transfusion, or disturbances in fat metabolism. And, of course, a chemistry profile isn't going to take the place of heart tests.

But the routine chemistry profile is a mighty useful thing, and if you pass it and also pass the other "testing" your doctor is doing (even though you may not be aware of how much he is finding out), you can feel reasonably confident that you're healthy.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I was shocked to see a three-month-old baby being fed vegetables or fruit juices with milk in the bottle, instead of being fed fruit and vegetables by spoon. Am I being fussy or just old - fashioned? It was really disgusting.—Mrs. J.W.

No harm in feeding such a mixture, provided the hole in the nipple is big enough to let the stuff through. The youngster should be getting the advantages of fruits and vegetables as "spoon" early.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: It is my understanding that an undescended testicle can cause infertility. Please tell me the chances of a 30-year-old male fathering children. He already has one child, 4, and is in excellent health.—Mrs. D.H.

An undescended testicle loses its fertility. The reason being that it is cooler outside the abdomen and the temperature is too high for it to function properly. That does not mean that the other testicle can't operate normally. This male should be fertile.

There is some risk of the undescended testicle becoming cancerous in time, so it is wise to discuss removal of it.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
2♦!	Dble	2♥!	3♥
Pass	3NT	Pass	4♥
All Pass!

Opening lead—five of hearts

This was the hand talked about hand of the entire Olympiad. It occurred in the match between Italy and Great Britain, and Italy's Garozzo and Forquet, one of the most practiced partnerships in the world of bridge, wound up playing the hand in four hearts — Forquet's trump holding consisting of the A-K and Garozzo's trump holding the 10-9-8.

In all came about because of an unusual and complex bidding convention used by the British East-West pair. First and foremost, it showed with two diamonds, showing either a weak two bid in spades or hearts, a balanced hand of 22 or 24 points or a three-suiter hand containing a minimum suit singleton and 17 to 24 high-card points!

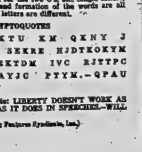
Garozzo made a normal takeout double and Cunningham attempting to cover all possibilities and perhaps confuse the issue with his dreadfully dull bid — weighed in with two hearts.

Forquet realized that his side probably had a slam and he therefore cooled hearts to identify the presence of his band. Garozzo signed off with three notrump, but Forquet, still greatly interested in a slam, cuebid hearts again.

But, alas, Garozzo decided that this time his partner really had hearts, and accordingly he passed. This did not prove a propitious success and Forquet finished down four.

The Italians lost 1,120 points on the deal — 15 times — for at the other table the British North-South pair, Rodrigue and Pricley, got to six clubs and made it. Six diamonds would have been a better contract, but Rodrigue guessed how to play the trumps and so brought home the slam.

Just a week ago today, given the right set of circumstances in bridge, anything can happen to anybody at any time!



Tomorrow: Britain vs. Italy

Talks on Korea Postponed Year

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — What had been billed as the first big-power confrontation of this year's General Assembly turned out to be a generally amiable affair Wednesday as the assembly's steering committee voted to postpone talk long about the status of Korea for another year.

The Soviet Union, China, and 36 other Communist and non-aligned countries had sought to have the Korean question included on the assembly's agenda with the main aim to have all foreign troops—almost all of them U.S.—ousted from Korea.

The Western countries, led by Britain, the United States and

$400 Grants

OTTAWA (CP) — Farmers in rain-damaged areas of eastern Ontario and Quebec may apply next week for a $400 federal grant included in a package of federal-provincial assistance programs, the agriculture department announced Wednesday.

Strike Starts

SYDNEY, N.S. (CP) — Approximately 500 employees of the Sydney Steel Corp. set up picket lines this morning in front of the plant entrance to start the first legal strike against the steel mill since 1946.

Picketing began at 8 a.m. as overnight workers ended their shifts.

Reject Offer

OTTAWA (CP) — Auditors with the federal government have rejected a tentative working agreement that would have given them an 11-per-cent wage increase over a two-year contract.

Ballots were cast by 98 per cent of the 1,500 members in the auditing group of the Public Service Alliance of Canada.

Top pay for level five auditors is $22,800. The top of level one is $12,700.

Legislation's Validity Issue

TORONTO (CP) — After hearing argument on the validity of federal legislation banning the broadcast of partisan political comment on the eve of an election, the Ontario Supreme Court reserved judgment Wednesday on an application by Toronto radio station CFRB to throw out a prosecution against it for allegedly making such a broadcast.

The station's application was opposed by lawyers for Canadian Radio-Television Commission, which is prosecuting, and by the attorney-general of Canada.

CFRB was charged as the result of alleged statements by commentator Gordon Sinclair the day before the Oct. 31 Ontario general election. The Broadcasting Act prohibits partisan comment 24 hours before voting in federal, provincial or municipal elections.

Canada, successfully deferred debate on the matter after arguing that any talk on Korea would hamper the recently-improved relations between the two Koreas.

The 25-country steering committee voted 16 to 7 with one abstention to put off any debate until next year's session. Assembly President Stanislaw Trepczynski of Poland, also president of the steering committee, did not vote.

Although there had been predictions of a heated clash between the big powers, there was little hoopla or strongly worded rhetoric before the vote was taken.

Both sides used basically the same argument in setting out their positions that there should be no foreign interference while the two Koreas are working out their own destiny.

The steering committee meets again today to consider the remaining items which have been proposed for the agenda and the subject of tenure is probably will be up tomorrow.

Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim of Austria moved on his own initiative earlier this month to ask the assembly to take up the terrorism question.

Found Guilty

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — Clifford Sullivan, 23, of Kitchener was found guilty Wednesday of the attempted rape Jan. 24 of a 14-year-old Kitchener girl. He was remanded to Oct. 13 for sentencing.

ST. THOMAS, Ont. (CP) — When two provincial police constables began investigating the theft of four sheets of plywood Wednesday everything else turned up—including the kitchen sink.

Wills tracking down the plywood, the policemen turned up loot reported stolen from different construction sites in the last year.

The loot, which took three pickup trucks to haul to police headquarters, was valued at about $4,000.

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto's executive committee recommended Wednesday that all gas furnaces and stoves be inspected annually instead of every eight years by Consumers' Gas Co.

The city's buildings department had studied the matter after the death last April of Diana Paolini, 2, A coroner's jury attributed her death to from a faulty gas furnace and recommended annual inspections.

Ocelot Stolen

TORONTO (CP) — Ocelots apparently will never replace watchdogs.

Thieves broke into the house of painter Endre Szasz Tuesday while he and his wife slept and made off with some antique Hungarian jewelry valued at between $20,000 and $50,000. $8,000 in cash and an ocelot.

Dog Is Heir

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — A dog named Snuffy has been named heir to a $5,000 portion of the estate of a Wisconsin woman. The money was left by Lola Tranzik, who died at 82. Airport May Not Be Built

TORONTO (CP) — Although the federal government is going ahead with land expropriation in Pickering Township for a second international airport, the building might not be built, Prime Minister Trudeau said Wednesday.

He told callers on an open-line radio show on CHUM that a final decision on the airport will be made after completion of an independent study of Metropolitan Toronto transportation needs.

"But my feeling is that the land will be needed for the airport," the prime minister told a caller who lives in the airport area and wanted to know "just where I stand."

"There is no doubt where you stand," Mr. Trudeau replied. "You are standing on ground that is going to be expropriated."

Davis Displeased

Federal Foreign Investment Policy Is Hit

OTTAWA (CP) — Premier William Davis repeated to a group of businessmen Wednesday his government's cautious disenchantment with federal policies on foreign investment in Canada.

"The federal policy in my view falls well short of Canada's needs," Mr. Davis told a dinner meeting up a four-day convention of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce.

"We are very concerned at statement by the prime minister of Canada to the effect that each province should implement its own policy on foreign investment there.

"Aside from the question of what the prime minister means, Ontario does not consider this to be a responsible approach to policy development in this area."

Mr. Davis said Ontario has taken many moves of its own and is "prepared for further measures when appropriate."

He mentioned an Ontario law requiring a majority of directors of firms within provincial jurisdiction be Canadians so-quarity re-elect in Canada; and an Ontario services in in-term business of available capital source

He described these as part of the "deliberate, moderate but positive approach Ontario is taking to economic nation alism".

Ontario, he said, is still studying the applications of this federal takeover review policy announced earlier this year. The main thrust of that policy is to give cabinet the power to stop takeovers of Canadian firms by foreigners under certain conditions.

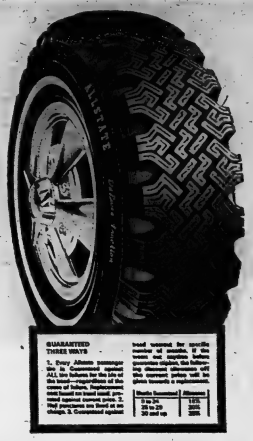
Foreign investors were willing to accept "reasonable ground rules for business in Canada, as they already did in many other countries, he said.

"What we must try to do, as soon as possible, is establish he clear guidelines that will enable the investor to evaluate his opportunities."



Euromart Won't Weaken Anglo-Canadian Ties

CHATHAM, Ont. (CP) — There are both sentimental and practical reasons why Britain's entry into the European Common Market will not weaken Anglo-Canadian ties, Sir Peter Heyman, British high commissioner, said Wednesday.

He told the local Canadian Club that Britain can be a link between North America and Europe when it enters the market next year.

Sir Peter said Canada will have strong economic ties with he United States but London might be a springboard for ac-tivity in Western Europe if Canada wants to diversify.

Israeli Underground Planning Reprisals

Arab Diplomats To Be Targets

JERUSALEM (Reuter) — Unofficial Israeli underground fighters were reported Thursday to be planning reprisals against Arab diplomats and institutions abroad as a new batch of letter-bombs arrived here.

Police were questioning the former operations chief of the underground anti-British Irgun Zvai Leumi organization active during the British mandate, after an attempt to smuggle arms out of Israel for use against Arab diplomats and other targets in North America and Europe.

Rabbi Meir Kahane, head of the extremist United States-based Jewish Defence League, admitted Thursday that his group was behind the smuggling attempt and called for the establishment of an international Jewish organization to wage terror against terror.

But as 16 more parcel bombs were discovered any defused here and others arrived for Israeli diplomatic missions as far apart as Montreal and Kinshasa, Zaire, Police Minister Shlomo Hillel reaffirmed Israle's official policy to use only legal means in its fight against the present Arab guerrilla campaign.

He said the police would act strongly against JDL attempts to smuggle arms out of the country and summoned Rabbi Kahane to police headquarters for questioning.

"The JDL is a foreign organization and it will not be allowed to decide how Israel should deal with Arab terrorism," he said.

Lebanon Patrols Proposed

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Israeli authorities say regular patrols may be instituted deep inside Lebanese territory if the Beirut government allows Arab guerrillas to continue to use the region as a springboard for attacks against the Jewish state.

Israeli forces have patrolled the area north of the Israeli border known as Fatahland, named for the largest guerrilla organization, for several months. So far they have remained within sight of the frontier.

But Israeli experts in Tel Aviv said Thursday these patrols may be extended to reach 15 miles inside Lebanon up to the Litani River.

The two-day raid last week, end by hundreds of Israeli troops into Lebanon against the guerrillas penetrated at least 15 miles in spots.

The raids drove most of the guerrillas out of the area. Regular Lebanese army units moved in when the Israelis left and they have stopped some of the guerrillas from returning. A Lebanese army patrol clashed with the guerrillas Thursday and reported one army soldier was shot in a village 80 miles south of Beirut. It was reported in Cyprus.

The semi-official Egyptian newspaper Al Ahram warned the Israeli raids may be related to getting a stronger bargaining position before a rumored Soviet-American deal on the Mideast is completed.

A spokesman in Tel Aviv also reported 12 letter-bombs have been found in Israel, most addressed to officials of the Jewish agency which handles affairs with world Jewry. None of the bombs exploded.

Canadian Tells Of Jail Ordeal

LONDON (CP) — John Sloan of Toronto says he spent three weary days on the concrete floor of a Kampala military cell, fed on mush and unable to brush aside the nagging fear that he might never be released.

But I was not mistreated nor do I claim personal brutality," the unshaven bachelor said in an interview Thursday as he called at Canadian government offices for temporary financial and other assistance.

Sloan has been roaming over Africa for the last 15 years.

A Gusher

While crews searched for a shut-off valve, Manley Bly, from the public works department, stood his "ground" as a trench at the corner of Front and Bridge Streets filled with three feet of water. Mistakes happen and when a back hoe operator snatched up a copper water line, the result was a horizontal torrent of water that persisted for a half an hour. Manley made like the boy at the dike but his finger didn't do the trick. For the answer to "how to plug the hole," the reason for "the unplugged plug", see Page 2.

As she was leaving, the blacksmith tried to give the princess a handkiss, but things got somewhat out of control, and he kissed his own hand.

Special Care Taken With Israelis' Mail

OTTAWA (CP) — Post office authorities, in conjunction with embassy officials and police, are taking special precautions in handling mail for the Israeli embassy.

A spokesman for the post office department said Thursday that once embassy mail is identified at the post offices or substations it is handled separately and delivered separately.

The precautions follow murder-by-mail attempts on Israeli officials in Montreal, Toronto and Ottawa Wednesday, part of an international campaign in which Israeli officials in more than 20 cities have received bombs.

Yosef Yaakov of the embassy said Canadian postal authorities "have been most co-operative and helpful" in working out new precautions.

Information received Thursday although not specific, said that two more letter- bombs had been found in mail for consul offices in Brussels and the Congo.

Earlier, the executive of the Letter Carriers Union of Canada met to consider possible actions that should be taken to protect mailmen.

"Something must be done to protect the postal employee," said Roger Decarie, union president.

IRA Carries Out Its Threat To Attack Troops at Hospital

BELFAST (AP) — Guerrillas carried out a threat to attack British troops in Belfast's largest hospital early today and their commander in Dublin was quoted as saying the bombing campaign would continue with the army as the number one target.

Meanwhile in London the British administrator of Ulster, William Whitelaw, announced Thursday he would replace interneent with special courts to try terrorists and set up a commission to advise on new ways of dealing with guerrilla activity without resorting to interment.

Although the move was a key concession to Roman Catholics and designed to draw their political parties, particularly the influential Social Democratic and Labor Party—SDLP—to the conference table, it apparently fell far short of what the Catholic leaders wanted.

SDLP Leader Gerru Fitt, while saying "we are not totally rejecting this statement," stressed that "while people are interned without trial the SDLP will be resisted "with the same vigor, determination and success" as interment.

The Catholics want the immediate release of the 250 IRA suspects, all claimed by the British to be hardcore terrorists.

Hydro Workers Urge Union Use Sabotage

TORONTO (CP) — Local 1000, Canadian Union of Public Employees, is in a stalemate with Ontario Hydro in negotiations aimed at settling the 11-week strike against Hydro, the local's strike director said Thursday.

Kealy Cummings, speaking to delegates at a meeting of the Labor Council of Metro Toronto, said the Ontario government is "working hand in glove with Hydro and everyone from the minister of labor down is aiding idle while the strike drags on."

He said a great number of union members are urging the union to perform acts of sabotage to put some pressure on Hydro. But he said pressure must be applied instead to members of the legislature to persuade Hydro to settle

He said Hydro has lost opportunities to export $30 million to $40 million worth of power because of the strike, that equipment is not being maintained properly and that Hydro will have to purchase power from other sources in the winter.

Ontario, Cement Firm Fail to File Sandbanks Suit Defence

TORONTO (CP) — The Environmental Law Association brought the governments of Ontario and Lake Ontario Cement Ltd. without a defence Thursday in a lawsuit alleging breach of public trust over sand excavating beside Sandbanks Provincial Park in Prince Edward County.

The government and the company, defendants in the case, failed to file statements of defence with the Supreme Court of Ontario by the Sept. 13 deadline. Thursday, Roger Timms, special counsel acting for the Environmental Law Association, noted that pleadings now are closed—an action which bars further filing.

The effect under court rules is that the defendants are deemed to have admitted all the statements of fact filed by the plaintiff.

Unless the government and company can persuade the court to reopen pleadings, they may argue their case only on points of law, not on the facts, said Mr. Timms.

"We will agree to reopening if they agree not to oppose and pending a decision," said David Estrin, general counsel for the association.

"We have taken this action because of the urgent public interest in preserving the sandbanks. We don't think the government gives a damn about the law as long as it can protect its friend, the company".

Allegations in the statement of claim—now deemed to have been accepted by the defendants—were that the company's operations impair the public enjoyment of Sandbanks Provincial Park by destroying "the magnificent view" of sand dunes, and by creating swamps in which mosquitoes and other insects breed. The statement also says the removal of sand and noise from the operation depreciated the park and that dangerous conditions were created for children, contrary to provincial law.

"I'm surprised," said E. James Arnett, lawyer for Lake Ontario Cement, when informed of the situation. "I have to assume there has been a mistake, a misunderstanding between counsel. They knew the company intends to defend this action vigorously."

Government spokesmen were not available.

Mr. Timms said the plaintiff now is free to apply for judgment. Sought are a declaration that the government and company are in breach of public trust over removal of sand dunes from property beside the park, and injunctions to bar future digging and to require the company to restore its leased property as much as possible to the original state.

The suit was filed for Larry Green, who was then on the staff of Pollution Probe at the University of Toronto, on behalf of himself, all Ontario residents and future generations- the beneficiaries of the trust dedication in the Provincial Parks Act.

Separate School Enrolment Down

Enrolment in the 18 schools operated by Hastings-Prince Edward counties separate school board dropped this year.

But the decrease in enrolment was no surprise to administrators, who had predicted that this area would follow the trend of lower enrolments evident across the province.

Separate school enrolment dropped by 72 this year to 4,368 students from the 4,128 attending classes Sept. 30 last year.

The enrolment drop is spread out over the system, with no serious declines evident in any one area.

County Will Resist Regional Government

The Hastings county municipal reform committee will continue to discourage regional government for this area on a scale proposed by the provincial government.

This was stated yesterday in a report of the committee read to county council by its chairman, Deseronto Reeve George Lyons.

Reeve Lyons said it had been made clear that the province intends to decide and take responsibility for policy in local government reform and the function of the committee therefore should be to study and comment on proposals as they are made at Queen's Park.

He said the committee opposed the breaking down and disruption of existing boundaries and institutions.

All municipalities should be encouraged to co-ordinate more of their services, with municipal government services in the area could best be delivered through mutual agreements with adjoining municipalities, rather than through full-scale regional government.

Pileup Follows Ditching

TRENTON (Staff) — A single vehicle accident on Highway 401 west of the Wooler Road at 9 p.m. last night, set off a chain reaction that resulted in a second collision involving a second car and a large truck.

Brighton detachment, Ontario Provincial Police, report a GMC van driven by Stanley Nicolaidis, went off the highway. He was uninjured, but a passenger who was identified as Clara Nicolaidis, has been admitted to Trenton Memorial Hospital for observation. Fractured skull, bruising addresses of the couple, were not available at press time.

Minutes later, police report, a Volkswagen driven by Roy Lessard, 30, of RR1, Belleville, began skidding when it passed the accident, near a stretch of highway under construction.

A large tractor truck, driven by Lloyd Mackey, also of RR3 Madoc was unable to stop and struck the rear of the Lessard car.

Mr. Lessard and his four children were uninjured, as was the truck driver. Damage to the Lessard car was estimated by investigating Constable Ray McNeil, to be $1,000. The truck was not damaged.

No charges have been laid.

Apples Best In 3 Years

PICTON (Staff) — Cool nights and bright September days have contributed in making this year's apple crop perhaps the best in the past three years.

Robert Cobbledick, fruit and vegetable specialist with the Ontario department of agriculture and foods here said yesterday apples now are colored better than in mid-season. For picking time he predicted the crop would be five per cent smaller than in 1971 but noted a better distribution of varieties this fall.

Last year McIntosh apples were grown excessively for market but this season were delicious and big varieties will be sold.

Mr. Cobbledick said heavy rains this summer apparently benefitted orchards.

Agricultural representative Larry Matheson observed tomatoes now are moving into Prince Edward factories "in fairly good quantities" and added the peak of the season has been reached.

Most hay crops have been harvested and the second and third cutting were described as "very good" in quantity by the agricultural representative.

He said quality varies since much of the hay was harvested in early August when there were heavy rains.

Raid Closes Betting Shop

John Alexander Ellacott, 21, of Front St., Stirling, was charged on four different counts after city police and the Ontario Provincial Police anti-gambling squad seized records of the off-track betting operation.

Fire Plug Remedy for Leak

When a water line was severed Thursday evening in the excavation at the corner of Front and Bridge Streets, work crews scurried around looking for a tap to turn off. They found one and broke it, turned another off and then noticed the fire plug. To take the pressure off the line, the plug was opened and was allowed to spill its contents for half an hour until the lines could be emptied. Minor repairs were needed to restore the water line which feeds the Toronto-Dominion Bank.

Home Builders Urge More Serviced Land

Quinte Home Builders, voted unanimously this week to send a letter to city council to, as Gerald Joyce referred it, "wake someone up."

In the closing minutes of the meeting Mr. Joyce sparked the discussion that a serviced shortage of serviced land in the city would choke the building industry here.

"The building industry, with all the sub-trades that gather about it, forms the largest single industry in the city," said Mr. Joyce, local realtor and city alderman.

"I'm wearing two hats (referring to his double identity as alderman and home builder) but I say a letter has to be sent to wake someone up before these trades choke."

Mr. Joyce's strongest argument pointed out the aspirations of the city to grow by inducing industry to locate here, and at the same time the top priority of industry is to be sure of adequate housing for its employees.

"Everyone gets a very hard picture of industry expecting it as emotionless when it comes to fringe benefits for employees," said Mr. Joyce.

"In my experience with industry, they are always very concerned with this aspect of their move."

Serviced land (equipped with water, sewers and electricity) has become a problem that members of the Quinte Home Builders believe could be solved by moving to the outlying areas of the city.

City planner James Reynolds said this morning, there are no plans on the books to move into the townships with our building.

"There is some land in pockets that might prove all right to a sub division but several might be difficult."

"It is not in panic proportions right now, but if we acquired a parcel of land today and all the necessary bylaws were rushed through, it would be three years before someone was living in a house there if past performance of servicing and finance continue," said Mr. Joyce.

What I am saying is if the home builders realize the shortage of land now, it is their responsibility to make the municipal governments aware of the problem, he said.

Workers Free Trapped Driver

A construction crew working near the site of a two-truck collision on Highway 33 Thursday freed a Trenton man who was pinned in the driver's seat of his van.

Peter Campbell, 29, was trapped when a dump truck driven by Jim Gutteridge, 39, of Madoc, rolled on top of the panel truck after the two trucks collided and tumbled down an embankment near the sixth concession of Sidney Township.

Both men were treated and released at Trenton Memorial Hospital.

Construction workers used a bulldozer to pull the large truck off, then combined efforts to release Campbell. Firemen from Sidney Township arrived shortly after to spray foam over the vehicles, both of which were spouting gas.

The accident occurred at about 4:30 p.m.

Dump Disappoints

PICTON (Staff) — The purported "Utopia of dump sites" examined recently by county councillors during a bus tour in the Grimsby area proved a disappointment, according to Bloomfield reeve Allan Anderson, who said confusion followed the trip.

Reeve Anderson explained many of the waste disposal sites viewed were too expensive to be copied locally and all served to have problems.

An incinerator - type operation apparently successful until councillors saw large puffs of black smoke belching out at intervals. Later, they were told environmental investigation of smoking it regularly.

Saphiasburg reeve George Foster said he would not have voted for a $19,000 study of the county disposal situation in Prince Edward had he toured other dump sites first. The motion for the study was carried in council last month.

"They spent that much money at Grimsby I don't know where the consultants were," he remarked.

Doctor Hartt Goes Liberal

The Liberal nomination for Hastings riding, scheduled for Centennial Secondary School in Belleville next Wednesday is not likely to go uncontested.

It was announced this morning that Dr. John Hartt, 46, of Belleville, would very likely offer himself as candidate at the convention.

Former member of parliament Frank S. Fulwell Wednesday announced that he intended to seek the Liberal nomination.

"It is my intention to contest the Liberal candidacy," Dr. Hartt told The Intelligencer this morning.

A former member of the Progressive Conservative party, Dr. Hartt said there was nothing personal against the Conservative opposition.

"It's a matter of principle and integrity," he said.

A native of Trenton, Dr. Hartt practised at Roslin before coming to Belleville in 1958. Since then he has served in all the offices of the local branch of the Ontario Medical Association, including that of president.

He has been an active member of the College of Family Practice of Canada and in 1970 wrote the examination required by the College.

One of his main interests has been the improvement of health delivery services which he feels has been a problem in the past. He feels he has been thwarted by the provincial government in carrying out his ideas for health delivery.

"Doctors should be available 24 hours a day to direct them to the right services," he says.

Dr. Hartt said he was opposed to socialism and guaranteed annual income.

Dr. Hartt has also shown an interest in local community affairs and is a former member of the Belleville Industrial Commission.

BLOOMFIELD (Staff) — Time flies when Wellington village where a clock gracing the front of Wellington Consolidated School has awaited repair for almost two years.

When an inquiry was made concerning the malfunctioning of the clock last night's meeting of the Prince Edward County board of education trustees learned no action yet has been taken.

Trustees originally suggested repairs to the school tower be made but will be made at most economically through removal of the tower, since the clock is no longer needed. Wellington village council officials have agreed to demolish the tower and promised to repair the clock. The necessary repairs to the roof and tower were made by the board at a cost of about $2,000.

Business administrator . A. Smith said a letter concerning the repair of the clock was directed to Wellington village council approximately two and a half years ago.

A reply was received by the board stating that councillors would examine the matter.

Further inquiries yielded no replies and the clock continues to lose time only twice each day.

"Decoration Sunday"

WHEREAS the Veterans of Belleville Council have arranged a Service at the Belleville Cemetery at 2:30 p.m., SUNDAY, SEPTEMBER 24, 1972.
WHEREAS it is desired that all residents of the district will attend this Service and pay their respects, in memory of all those whose resting place is now the Belleville Cemetery, by decorating the graves.
THEREFORE, I hereby proclaim Sunday, September 24, 1972, as "Decoration Day" in the City of Belleville.

RUSSELL SCOTT, M.D., C.M., MAYOR.

DATED at the Mayor's Office this 22nd day of September, 1972.

George Cunningham Launches Campaign

The first candidate to win a nomination in Ontario for the coming federal election, George Cunningham of Prince Edward — Hastings riding, is already on the campaign trail. Mr. Cunningham was nominated as Liberal candidate in 1969. His campaign party is comprised of Dr. Terry Waits, co-ordinator for Trenton, Mrs. George Cunningham, the candidate, Hugh O'Neil, campaign manager and Mel Boulton, official agent. At the rear are Mrs. Norma Huffman, co-ordinator for Prince Edward, Anthony Daicar, finance chairman, and Mrs. Bette Henley, office manager.

Councillors Object To Trailer Park

TRENTON (Staff) — Cecil Plachta owns a trailer park on the Carrying Place Road, and it would seem he's extended his boundaries beyond those approved of by both Murray Township Council and the township's planning board.

Originally, he asked for permission to establish 61 lots on his property, in five rows. Council examined the situation, and approved 48 lots. Since then, Mr. Plachta has developed approximately 35.

Council says he is licenced for only 25. Further licencing fees will be collected.

Since he began developing, the trailer park owner has gone beyond boundaries set down by the township, moving closer to Highway 33 than was approved.

He claims he developed the seven or eight sites in his second row before receiving council authorization, thereby incurring substantial expense.

Upon examining the property, council did not approve land set aside for children's playgrounds. Apparently, the land is heavily wooded with water runoff from a nearby land rise.

It was their contention that the two rows next to the highway remain greenbelt, both for playground purposes and appeasement of neighbors who have not been entirely in favor of the trailer park.

As Councillor Stanley Down put it when the owner approached council last night "We as a council would be swamped with petitions if you start putting trailers on the highway."

Reeve Harry Lafferty agreed. "There have been a few complaints. The health authorities are kind of shy of it."

Permission to expand the geographic boundaries was turned down by the planning board recently, but Reeve Lafferty suggested the matter be returned to them. "I don't think the planning board should be over-ruled."

Councillor Down suggested this would be a good alternative, but as a member of the planning board, went on record as saying "planning board will never, never, ever give approval. I sit on the planning board and I know their feelings on it."

Mr. Plachta said his excuses include those for hydro, gravel roadways, and spurs for water and sewer lines. He said he expects to install additional septic tanks next year, adding a health inspector recently viewed the property and discussed future plans with him.

The matter was referred to the Sept. 25 meeting of the planning board.

Bears, Herbicides Beekeepers' Bane

Herbicides and black bears are working to put Hastings county beekeepers out of business.

This was revealed at county council Wednesday as members heard an outside resolution asking that the use of herbicides to control roadside weeds be limited.

Use of herbicides, it was stated, reduced the number of flowering roadside plants which had a direct effect on the amount of nectar the bees can extract.

Wellington township Reeve Albert Vader said that one major beekeeper in his municipality was put out of business by hive-raiding black bears. Another farmer had two fields of grain destroyed by bears, he said.

Madoc township Reeve Cecil Woods said beekeepers in his municipality were experiencing the same problem with bears.

He said that in the past two years, two beekeepers in his township had been put out of business by bears in the past three years.

Reeve Vader felt that the province had more responsibility in the matter as hunting bears was controlled by licence.

A resolution asking the beekeepers be reimbursed by the province when their hives are destroyed by raiding bears was endorsed by council members.

Dog Control Bylaw Aim

TRENTON (Staff) — A Belleville law firm, Templeman and Pickett, is working with Murray Township officials in preparation of a new dog control bylaw.

Drafting of the new bylaw was made necessary because of legal objections by residents of Barry Heights to a nearby dog kennel. Other complaints about canines, received over the past several years, have been contributing factors to the move.

Township clerk Kenneth Rose explained that the kennel in question is situated on a portion of built-up land, not included as part of the registered subdivision, and therefore under municipal control do not allow a kennel of its size in a subdivision.

He said once the bylaw is passed and approved, the kennel which the keeper stands, would be termed a non-conforming use. Although it would not shut down the present operation, the land could not continue to be used for a kennel should the owners sell.

The bylaw will receive its third and final reading at the next Oct. 4 council meeting.

Madoc Fair 50 This Year

MADOC (Special) — The Madoc Agricultural Society's annual fall fair has a history of success in its background, and this year will mark its 50th anniversary of activities at the present site.

In 1905 a few agriculturalists and businessmen of the Madoc district organized the Madoc Agricultural Society. The president at that time was A. F. Wood, whose law office was in the present building directly south of the residence of Jack Stewart on Durham Street. The fall fair, which they sponsored, was held on rented property on the old Marmora Road, just west of the CN tracks, known as the Rodgers property. The ground there was levelled to be used as a race track, a tall starting stand was erected, tents were rented to accommodate exhibitors, and open stalls were constructed for livestock.

During the first few years, Dennis Gullen and W. E. Osmer acted as secretary until 1913, when D. J. Hill was appointed. This position Mr. Hill held until his death in 1948.

In 1919 the prizes paid were $310 for horses, $68 for cattle, $31 for sheep and $42 for swine. The gate receipts were $393.

In 1922, under the leadership of president John C. Smith, vice - president W. J. Stewart, treasurer Samuel Rollins, and secretary W. J. Hill, the present property, known then as the St. Charles farm, was purchased from Mrs. J. R. Robinson. The executive, with the assistance of a large force of men and teams, built a half-mile race track. Foundations for the large exhibit hall, ticket office, secretary's office, judges stand, poultry building and livestock sheds were provided. The track preparation was supervised by Joseph Burns. Reeve of Madoc Village, and the building program was supervised by Angus Nicholson of Madoc Township.

During the succeeding years the gate receipts and prize money increased by a consecutive in 1948 - 49 - 50. The gate receipts averaged $2,644 with only $2,70 between the high and low.

In 1953 the gate receipts were $2,700 and prize money paid was $2,109.

In 1961, the Ladies' Division was organized, with Mrs. Newell Broad as president, and Mrs. R. A. Woods as secretary. By 1964, the prize money had increased to the point that the society was able to qualify for a Class B category. This was approved by the Ontario Government in April 1965, during the term of president Ken Holland. To qualify, it was necessary for a society to have paid $3,000 for straight agricultural prizes for a period of three years previous. This category permits the society to receive grants from the federal government, in cattle and sheep and swine classes as well as on improvements and judges costs.

In 1966 a new swine barn was built, which is being used for an assembly yard by the Ontario Hog Marketing Board. In 1970, with the late Carman Downey as president, new accommodations for sheep was commenced and in the following year a roof was put over these pens and a new poultry building was also erected.

The office of president has always been held for two years, with exception of John Thompson who held it for three years, due to the untimely death of vice-president, John Trotter, in 1961.

Council Approves County Inspector

Hastings county will set up a county-wide building inspection department with operations to commence Jan. 1.

This is the recommendation contained in the report of the personnel committee which council Wednesday by Reeve Kenneth Smith of Elzivir township.

Council approved the report by a close 16-13 vote. Several of the reeves opposing the move did so because their municipalities already have their own building inspectors.

There was some fear expressed by opposing reeves that their municipalities might have to help pay the county inspector if permit fees did not cover the entire cost.

Reeve Jack Bush of Sidney township raised the question, stating that permit fees in his municipality did not pay the entire cost of the inspector.

Twelve of the county's 24 townships and six villages and towns have indicated they would use the services of a county building inspector. It will not be mandatory for municipalities having their own inspectors to join the county setup, it was stated.

It is expected that the county construction safety inspector will be able to handle the new department along with his other duties.

Traffic Report

The long-awaited report on the North Front Street traffic situation reveals a number of hazards, not the least of which is driver inattention. Oh yes, we have been caught out ourselves, our attention momentarily distracted, while up front some inconsiderate individual is stopped while awaiting his chance to turn. This latter situation of course is what helps to compound the dangers posed by the problem of not having ones mind on one's work, eyes on the road ahead or whatever.

Of course the driver wishing to make one or other of the many possible turns on this route — whether into a residential avenue, private driveway or commercial establishment — is not being inconsiderate (we were only kidding) but it does emphasize the potential for accidents.

As fact it is interesting to note that a large proportion of the accidents related to turning movements and that many of them involved non-residents, particularly, it appears, at College and North Front Street.

The report makes a number of recommendations which are of merit in dealing with this rather pressing problem. It advocates traffic signals at Valleyview Crescent and at Donald and Tracey streets. It suggests that bicycles be banned from the route but calls in the long term for a bicycle path to the Mall as the forerunner of a city-wide bicycle pathway system.

Entranceways and exits onto Donald Street are recommended for the restaurant and plaza across the street from each other. The report also looks at a long-term basis at expansion of Sidney Street as a major traffic artery linking up with the newly-opened extension at Bell Boulevard and aimed at taking still more of the pressure off North Front Street. There is a suggestion also for a fifth lane where possible, to facilitate left turns.

These are all estimable ideas. In part or as a whole they should go far toward reducing the traffic dangers on North Front Street. Meanwhile traffic signals in the locations mentioned, together with a ban on bicycles are seen as offering an immediate promise of safer conditions.

Council is to discuss the report, either at its next meeting or whenever a representative of the appropriate Government department is able to be present. But the sooner all or part of the report can be put into effect the better.

The Rural Scene

At a time when not a few of our rural church congregations have fallen upon difficult times the solid look of St. Andrew's Presbyterian, sitting out there in relative isolation on the side of Highway 62 at West Huntingdon, is reassuring.

For the Rev. Gray Taylor is the minister there and we imagine his congregation in this aristocratic-sounding rural community is scattered over a considerable area.

A little further to the north in Bethesda United made room from it is a modest new establishment of a different character which reflects something of the changing face of rural Ontario these days. We refer to a crafts and antiques spot called The Hearth and Rafter.

The countryside is coming more alive with this kind of initiative. People are turning to the countryside for its peace and quiet, for the natural quality of life that seems to be disappearing from the bigger cities at least, plagued as they are with rising crime and pollution.

Closer to Belleville are another crafts shop and home for its owners in the trees nearby. Its name: The Beaver Den. Combined with it is a small wildlife sanctuary.

We also note that a former Belleville TV and hi-fi entrepreneur has moved out to the Foxboro-highway where he is building a new establishment for himself.

It is all part of a new vitality the country is slowly achieving. If in addition the small farms can manage to maintain a commensurate degree of prosperity, even in the face of difficult economic times, may yet see created in the hinterland an economic base that was not there before.

'Law-and-Order' Man Spells It Out

Claude Wagner Off to A Quick Campaign Start

By RICHARD JACKSON
from The Intelligencer's
Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — As a man-of-decision — plus action, former Quebec Liberal attorney general, justice minister and judge, Claude Wagner was about as far off the mark as it is possible to go in his race for election as Conservative Leader Stanfield's star runner in French Canada.

He pulled his political entry as a Conservative candidate, and then only 48 hours later won the nomination in his swift, by-chosen riding, St. Hyacinthe.

It is a pleasant sun-splashed intensively-farmed rural riding 40 miles east of Montreal in the gently rolling hills of the Eastern Townships.

The meeting which nominated Claude Wagner was called for three o'clock of a sunny, 32-degree Sunday afternoon and an audience of 400 jammed into the Knights of Columbus Hall at St. Hyacinthe, farm-town shopping and industrial centre of the constituency.

He was really a stranger in town, but who would have known it?

He acted as if he had been there all his life and his auditors responded as if he were truly a home-town boy-made-good.

His speech took 10 minutes, all of them socking it to the Trudeau government for its "wastage" both of public funds and people.

A government which lavishes handouts of millions of dollars on projects and people who neither deserve nor need it, and pinches pennies with the elderly is a government without "common compassion," he said.

Both the Liberals and the Creditistes had called nominations for a law-and-order advocate, the very thing he, himself, thinks he is.

The government is trying to give the phrase law-and-order a slightly distasteful ring, he said, trying to make it sound not quite respectable.

But what does law-and-order mean?

"It is an ambiguous term," Claude Wagner is on the record as saying in a recent speech, "because in the minds of discerning groups, especially among the young, it has been made to sound, by hybrid propagandists, as repressive.

"The difference between the traditional and decent forms of dissent and what is often going on today is that the former are governed by a built-in sense of responsibility and social obligation which permits reform and progress, while avoiding violence and destruction. And the latter is not."

The destructive dissenters, he hastened on to say, were not necessarily either young or weak.

"And I don't think for a moment that the beard or the length of hair, nor the style of dress, tastes in food or music, nor avowed passion for peace and brotherhood are the signs of anarchic dissent.

"As long as I have a job to do," he declared, "I will brand all my energies to the task of opposing those forces, and others of the individual to dissent and the freedom of their community to expect a decent code of conduct — between the rights of society as a whole to stability and the rights of the individual to work for change — between order and disorder — that fragile but essential balance that allows progress to be made in a sensible and acceptable manner."

What is so tough about that kind of law - and - order?

Nothing unacceptable, really, except perhaps in Liberals like Solicitor General Jean - Pierre Goyer who had been saying before his election - even repeatedly since the reform of the wrongdoer comes ahead of the protection of society.

Unacceptable or not, the government election line is to give law-and-order that certain notso-decent connotation.

One more thing in the government campaign to minimize Claude Wagner's appeal to people looking for a change in government.

They are saying that if Robert Stanfield does not win this time then the Tories, notorious for beheading their leaders, will send him to the axe for chopping block and make Claude Wagner the new leader.

Running slightly off its course while enroute to Anderson's coal Dock with a load of coal, the collier Acadite ran aground near Redneresville. Despite the efforts of the crews of the Sackett off under her own power, the coal carrier remained stuck in the bar. Wednesday afternoon the collier Caldwell came to the assistance of the Acadite and, in two-line, the combined power of the two engines freed the coal laden Acadite.

With jewellry robberies reaching alarming proportions in Belleville, the third of such crimes was discovered early today when A. P. Hill, Front St., reported his store for burglary.

How's Your Credibility?

The Winnipeg Tribune

In these somewhat cynical times when credibility is a treasured quality, it is interesting to see what a study by two University of Connecticut psychologists has turned up.

They did 400 in-depth interviews asking people to rate 70 occupations as to their opinion of the "truthfulness" of the respective practitioners.

The ratings, in order: 1. physicists 2. clergymen 3. scientists 4. judges 5. psychologists 6. college professors 7. psychiatrists 8. high school teachers 9. lawyers 10. law enforcement officials 11. TV news reporters 12. plumbers 13. bankers and 14. as myself, my generals 15. TV repairmen 16 newspaper columnists 17. auto repairmen 18. labor union officials; 19. politicians; 20. car salesmen.

Charles Lynch and Co. might be a bit miffed at being rated 15, TV repairmen, but probably the only real arguments we'll get would be from tured car salesmen being rated tebal politicians.

While it is probably true that politicians are lower in public esteem in the U.S. than Canada, the study unquestionably reflects public disillusionment with the political profession.

Whose fault is it that politics has so deteriorated? Blacks itself is an essential and honorable element in democracy. Obviously in practice it has been debased by politicians who believe, many times rightly, that they are doing what the voters want.

The problem is not when people believe they can take out more than they put in and vote for anyone who will promise it, who is the villain.

Most likely it is both, the voter who asks or is gullible enough to believe he can get something for nothing and the politician who hasn't the moral courage to tell him he can't. Or if he does he believes it.

Davis Government on the Defensive

By DON O'REARN
From The Intelligencer's
Queen's Park Bureau

If you want to experiment in studying politics, keep a close eye on Premier William Davis during the next several months.

For today we have a government with its back to the wall.

And it should be politically fascinating watching how the premier tries to stick-handle his way out and whether he can succeed.

There would be those who won't recognize that this is a government against a wall.

But it now is apparent that this is the case more so than at any time in the last 27 years of Progressive Conservative rule.

Every PC premier has had his moments of crisis.

George Drew had the charge that he was running a Gestapo. The '45 election was run on this.

But Davis at the moment is in a position none of these leaders was ever in. Not only a single incident is involved but several.

Topping them is the Bruts and McKeough conflict of interest.

But beyond this there has been a continuing battle here in Toronto over the Spadina Expressway. Criticism of the new Pickering airport. Quarrels of the premier himself for his travels. A reorganization of government which may one day jell but which to date has been marked largely by confusion.

So how will the premier try to work his way back?

All his three predecessors were able to take advantage of their crises.

Drew built up a head of indignation and scorn over the Gestapo matter and turned it into a sweeping victory.

Frost converted his scandals into a law-and-order advocate, the very thing he, himself, thinks he is.

But what does law-and-order mean?

"It is an ambiguous term," Claude Wagner is on the record as saying in a recent speech, "because in the minds of discerning groups, especially among the young, it has been made to sound, by hybrid propagandists, as repressive.

"The difference between the traditional and decent forms of dissent and what is often going on today is that the former are governed by a built-in sense of responsibility and social obligation which permits reform and progress, while avoiding violence and destruction. And the latter is not."

Military Badge Quest

Editor,
The Intelligencer

I hope that you may find me a small space in your newspaper for my quest. I have a very interesting hobby of collecting regimental badges and have a pretty fair collection up to date.

My main interest is Canadian Army Badges of the present and present — principally CEF

Badges of the 1914-18 war — and I'm very anxious to add to my collection "the 39th, 40th, 134th and 252th battalions of the 1914-18 war.

I have seen pictures of the badges and I hope that some kind readers may be able to help me with my quest.

Soviet Armed Might Is Formidable But Untried

By JOHN D. HARRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst

The Warsaw pact military manoeuvres recently held in Eastern Europe remind us the Soviet armed forces still have great strength in their satellite countries—enough to mount an invasion of Western Europe.

Another more distant reminder from these traditional military games in the East is that Soviet men and weapons have not been tested in battle for nearly 30 years, not since the guns stopped firing in Europe in May, 1945.

You might include the six day Soviet involvement in the Pacific war in August, 1945, on the side of the original Japan's surrender and the alleged use of some Russian jet fighter pilots in Korea, but Middle East and Vietnam during the post-war conflicts in these places.

But the point is made and stands, that unlike the American armed forces with massive Korean and Vietnamese battle experience behind them, the vast Soviet military is a new and untried element in battle.

Not that anyone wants to see how they will perform, least of all, one suspects, many of the Russian leaders themselves. But there must be a good deal of frustration within such a vast military establishment that opportunities for major action in battle have escaped them since the Second World War.

Add to this the fact that most Soviet officers and rank and file are no longer Second World war veterans, but young men scarcely out of the cradle when the Russian guns stopped in 1945 on the Eastern Front and their fathers fought Nazism. To the millions now in the uniforms of the Soviet army, navy, air force and marines, The Great Liberation War is something they read in the doctored Soviet military histories.

All the more reason you might say these young men would want to spoil for the smell of battle, since Soviet official histories of the Second World War give the clear impression Russia won it almost single-handedly. Nothing at all in them about the Allied northern, ocean supply pipeline through Murmansk which brought Allied military technology to bleeding Russian armies.

Plenty though about the staggering tank battles, especially those of 1943 when the Russians learned most of the lessons and mistakes of the Germans and their allies to become bonafide tank experts, and to carry the war which devastated Russia to the doors of Hitler's Berlin basket.

Remember the 700 Soviet tanks and their support vehicles which rolled into Czechoslovakia in the summer of 1968? Admittedly they faced no enemy, no opposing tank forces. But that operation was smooth and contributed beyond appreciation of NATO experts.

So, the skill—and the will—to fight and win is there, still, the organization and unity which consumed the West in the 1950s, but less so now as we deal with the Russians at other levels, common agreement in solving pollution, keeping the Arctic clean on future joint ventures in science and space.

In spite of all, the U.S.S.R still runs the greatest military machine on earth

PCs Would Ban Strikes In Essential Services

OTTAWA (CP) — A Conservative government would withdraw the right to strike in essential services, says a party paper released Thursday.

Instead, binding arbitration would be the "final step in settling differences."

The position was taken in one of two policy papers, entitled the World of Work and Unemployment, the first of 32 that will be issued by the party during the Oct. 30 federal election campaign.

One of the papers proposes an "income development program" that appears to be close to a guaranteed annual income. The other says that the manpower department would be required to "search out jobs for unemployed, the first of which is the speedy placement of persons who need work."

The World of Work paper says the party views the strike as obsolete as a weapon in management-labor relations and would seek other means to resolve apparently-irreconcilable differences.

As a first step, there should be negotiations during the life of a contract rather than just before it expires, the paper says.

"The Progressive Conservative party will move to protect the public from the direct effects of strikes in essential services so that it does not become a pawn in labor management differences."

A Conservative government would adopt two kinds of policy, it says.

"In essential services under federal jurisdiction, negotiations would be encouraged and the right to strike removed in favor of binding arbitration.

"In other industries dispute commission would be established to advise whether particular services are essential, lay down procedures for resolving differences where the public interest is threatened and report to the government if parliamentary action is needed to end a work stoppage.

The reference, in the World of Work paper, to the income program says there must be work incentives for persons now able to get more money from welfare than by working.

"This would involve the introduction of an income development program which ensures that an individual or family is entitled to retain a specific amount of earned income without any reduction in the amount of public income support received.

"Beyond this first specific amount, a number of many would be entitled to earn an additional amount of money which would be more than that by which the public income supplement would be reduced."

Conservative officials declined to comment on the paper, leaving this to party leader Robert Stanfield.

Unemployment Issue Debated By Trudeau and Stanfield

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Unemployment continued as the top election issue Thursday, Liberal and Conservative leaders again emphasizing their views on the subject.

Prime Minister Trudeau told a Winnipeg news conference he did not intend to adopt a hard line attitude toward abuses of the unemployment insurance program, nor was he criticizing those who collected unemployment insurance benefits while looking for better jobs.

Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield told an enthusiastic rally in Oakville, Ont., the government is keeping secret the costs of the unemployment insurance program. Alluding to legislation last year which increased the benefits and coverage of the program, he called it a costly tranquilizer that fails to deal with the real sickness of the economy.

New Democrat Leader David Lewis, however, continued his attack on the corporate tax system. At an Ottawa news conference he said the tax cut and shortage of housing.

Today, Mr. Trudeau continues his western tour, stopping at Swift Current and Estevan, Sask., Mr. Stanfield campaigns in Montreal and several smaller Quebec communities, while Mr. Lewis is in Toronto and Social Credit Leader Real Caouette is in Vancouver.

During the prime minister's news conference—his only public appearance Thursday — he said Canadians who stay on unemployment insurance while shopping around for better jobs have a perfect right to do so, as long as they follow the rules.

What concerns the government is abuse of the system, he said, and that is why more inspectors have been hired to track down fraudulent claimants and stop them from receiving benefits.

He was asked whether he is becoming the voice of a backlash against unemployment insurance recipients.

He denied the charge,saying many people have asked him about the subject, on radio phone-in programs and public meetings.

"I shouldn't be judged by the fact that I'm answering questions that reflect that concern."

Supervisor Addresses WHA

"Almost any injury or illness is an emergency to a patient," Mrs. Margaret Cousins Reg. N. told the September meeting of the Women's Hospital Auxiliary in Education Hall at the Belleville General Hospital.

Mrs. Cousins, Unit Supervisor of the "dressing room, recovery and emergency departments at the hospital, described the improved role the emergency department plays in the delivery of health services to the community today. "The former home care of the family physician has been replaced to a great extent by the emergency department in modern hospitals," she said.

A resident physician is on call at all times. A well-trained and sympathetic nursing staff co-operates with the doctors to provide many services in the emergency department. These services include a poison control centre, a dental clinic, and inhalation therapy on an out-patient basis. Intravenous treatment is given to hospitalized patients and an ambulance dispatch service provides prompt aid to stricken patients.

The speaker also praised the auxiliary for its contribution to a pleasantly appointed waiting - room for anxious relatives.

Mrs. Cousins was introduced by Mrs. M. Sable, and the thanks of the members was expressed by Mrs. J. H Forrester

The business session of the meeting was conducted by the president, Mrs. J. E. Nelles, who welcomed five new members. There are 290 members at present, noted Mrs. Angus Duffy, membership chairman who extended an invitation to all Belleville and community women to join the auxiliary.

Mrs. Nelles announced the award of a Provincial Life membership to Mrs. J. H. Forrester who will be honored at the annual convension of the Ontario Hospital Auxiliaries Association in Toronto on October 23.

Mrs. C. A. Campbell, a convener of the Opportunity Shop, reported the fall opening of the shop on the market square and presented a cheque for $200 to the auxiliary, representing the net proceeds of the store in-June before the summer recess.

The staffing of the new gift and coffee shops in the hospital is proceeding satisfactorily, reported Mrs. S. B. Bochenek. It is hoped that the shops at present under construction, will be open for business before Christmas. These two most recent auxiliary projects are expected to be a useful addition to the hospital's facilities.

The convener of the Puppett committee, Mrs. C. D. Ashley, told members that hand-made puppets are being distributed on a regular basis to children in the pediatric ward.

Tea was served by Mrs. G. G. Fields and her committee.

Why Do Families Keep Quarrels Going?

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: Why is it that brothers and sisters tell fibs about each other? And why is it that they will run to other brothers and sisters and tell them to stay away from certain others in the family?

Brothers and sisters should be encouraging one another to have family gatherings together. I am depressed, Doris, because my brothers and sisters won't come to see me, when I have been a good brother to them all. I know other people who are depressed over this same problem in their family.

Don't you think that these people are sick and need counselling in the worst way? — Big Bear.

Dear Big Bear: There is no one answer to this phenomenon.

Sometimes the unfriendliness started when brothers and sisters were little and became rivals for the affection of their parents. The first-born may have claimed all the limelight and the others came to resent it; or the girls were baffled by the boys and never got over it.

A great pity! Family support can provide good solid roots for balanced adult personalities. We all need to know we are loved and will be defended if necessary. I have known of family feuds which have been carried from one generation to the next, and then to the one after that.

Counselling can help, especially when it is the younger ones who are questioning such behavior and want steering away from it. If this situation prevails in your own family, my best advice to you is (1) return good for evil, and (2) get the kind of trained counselling which will help you to (a) blow off steam and then (b) see the situation clearly enough to cope with it constructively. . . .

Dear Doris: Once after a terrible fight my husband admitted that he was in love with this person. He bought her a wedding band and they told everyone they were married. As for me, he tells them we are divorced because I was hiding the battle heavily and going to bed with whomever would have me. Now I'm straight lies!

He stayed with this woman and then suddenly they broke up. She gave back the ring and moved away. I let him come back home when he promised he would not cheat on me again. But he had changed and couldn't bear to be near me, since I accidentally touched me he would recoil.

Doris, I love my husband and want to cure him listening to your husband, the man you say is talking about. He's just over another woman. He said I pin to pieces every time we break up. — Doormat.

Dear Doormat: Did you know that a doormat is for wiping your feet on? You have been showing him that he can do exactly as he pleases. How can he respect you?

Now is the time for you to give up on him and let him know it. Stiffen your spine and tell him to get out of your life.

Unless, with counselling, you can bring about a complete right - about - face, I see a divorce coming up.

Confidential to Dannin: Sure vied. You're a bad girl. Don't do it because you plan to help yourself to her boy friend. Stop right now feeling depressed and look for some interesting new friends of your own. How about community dances? A blues gauge? The community swimming pool?

Don't count on your cousin to find someone for you and don't rely on your "only hope" to call. Get crystalling.

Church Groups

ST. PAUL'S ACW

MARMORA — There was a good attendance for the first St. Paul's ACW meeting of the season held in the church hall.

Mrs. William Lavender, president, opened the meeting and treasurer, Mrs. Helen Ash, reported that a bake sale in June, a coffee party at Mrs. R. Thomas's cottage on Crowe Lake, and a refreshment booth at Marmora Fair had all been financially successful.

It was decided that a donation should be given to the church treasurer and an amount of money transferred to the decorating fund. It is hoped to have the church redecorated before 1974 when St. Paul's will celebrate its 100th anniversary.

Card convener, Mrs. R. E. Hunter, reported that she had sent a large number of get-well and sympathy cards during the summer months to church members. It was decided that an order for 30 church calendars should be placed.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Ira Edwards on Oct. 10. If they aren't already in use, members are asked to bring to the meeting their collection of pennies for silver.

Following lunch, a variety of fresh vegetables brought to the meeting by Mrs. Ash were offered for sale to the members with the proceeds going into the treasury.

Mrs Robert Heard opened the meeting and Mrs. Milton Shaw was the musician.

Unexpected Guests Not for Her

Dear Ann Landers: My hat is off to that smart woman who has no guest room, no fold-up cots, and her sofa are too short to sleep on. Her home is her castle, as it should be — not a free motel for slap-happy gypsies. That other nut who expressed delight at bedding down and feeding eight unexpected relatives for five days must have rocks in her head. She also must have a private tunnel to the bank. That's 39 extra meals, lady, not counting breakfast.

Several years ago, when I had an extra bedroom, a group of invaders stormed my home. They brought huge appetites, six pieces of luggage, a Russian wolfhound and a box of blankets. Three months later we moved to our present setup and we've never been happier.

It takes all kinds of people to make a world and if anyone wants to call me selfish, let them. Familiarity breeds contempt. If you don't believe me just look around at the broken friendships between people who got too clubby.—Too Thick Won't Slide

Dear Too Thick: Thank you for "the other side." The majority of letters on this subject were from people who just love unexpected company. It does, indeed, take all kinds. Speaking strictly for myself, I'm with you.

Dear Ann Landers: Our organization, Recovery Inc., is more than 35 years old but until your column publicized it, we were relatively unknown. Our attendance has grown enormously. We have started several new chapters and now are reaching far greater numbers of people and helping them cope with problems of emotional illness.

One of our readers expressed gratitude to Recovery for helping her stay functional for 15 years. She had tried psychiatry, yoga, religion and hypnosis, but nothing helped. Re-

Mirror of Your Mind

by JOHN CORWELL

Are kids under too much pressure?

YES; and it is surprising how well the children do here set despite the pressure they catch from all sides. Their parents are after them constantly; their teachers are drilling lessons into them; they are urged to conform and yet be individualistic. The children are learning to get along with their contemporaries while at the same time they are trying to please adults. These carefree days of childhood . . . ? Who's kidding who?

NOT necessarily, but let's face it, it does help even the best salesmen if they are skillful talkers. Everyone has to be charmed by the person with a "silver tongue" and that means a salesman with a gift of gab can get his foot in the door. There is always that drop in reality, though; and if the salesman is not sincere about his product he's selling, his ability to charm swiftly becomes his most irritating characteristic.

Will love boost low morale?

SURE. A man is in love; he is not thinking of himself, he wants to please his loved one, not himself. With the focus all himself, he doesn't feel that his morale is so low that it needs to be uplifted. It is another matter, if a depressed person merely thinks he is in love. He is looking for someone to boost his spirits. When he fails in his quest, he blames love; he blames the woman he mistakenly believes he loved and he blames himself.

Night Club Made Changes in Stairs

MONTREAL (CP) — Andre Gonneville, a city permits inspection engineer, said Thursday that someone "was breaking the law" if a secondary stairway linking the ground and upper floors of the Blue Bird Club was blocked by a locked door.

Mr. Gonneville also told a coroner's inquest into the death of 37 persons in the Sept. 1 fire at the nightclub that the establishment had made several "unauthorized" modifications" to the floor plan of the upstairs country music hall where most of the victims died.

Jean-Marc (Boots) Boutin, 24-year-old cook, James Michael O'Brien, 23, unemployed, and Giles Eccles, 24, who was to start a new job on the Monday following the fire, are being held on coroner's warrants as material witnesses.

The three were not present at the inquest Thursday.

Mr. Gonneville said a club improvement plan was approved in 1961, but there were several differences between the approved plan and a drawing made after the fire.

The most serious difference involved one of the two stairways connecting the ground and upper floors.

"All stairways must be enclosed," Mr. Gonneville said. The original plan called for a "wood cove door, opening outwards with a fire - resistant ability of three-quarters of an hour."

But the post-fire drawing showed the only door on the stairway was halfway between the two floors, he said.

"If they wanted to make a change like that they would have had to apply for a permit and it would have been refused."

Two survivors of the blaze said at the inquest Wednesday that the door was locked.

If the door was locked, the remaining exits would not have been adequate to meet the city's bylaws for the number of exit space for an establishment the size of the Blue Bird Club, Mr. Gonneville said.

Chief Inspector Maurice Lessard, of the Montreal fire department's prevention section, said his inspectors had visited the club 19 days before the fire.

Many Welfare Applicants Don't Understand Rights

OTTAWA (CP) — Welfare applicants who could appeal decisions concerning them often do not because they lack information on the right of appeal or fear the results, says a study released Thursday by the Canadian Council of Social Development.

The study also says that although all provinces have provision for appeals, the procedures do not yet operate fully and there are parts of Canada where those who request assistance are not told of benefits available to them.

The 138-page study prepared by the independent organization concludes that entitlement of people, to receive assistance should be enhanced in provincial statutes.

Reuben Baetz, executive director of the council, said in releasing the study that legal rights of people in borderline need be clearly stated and welfare appeal groups should include recipients of assistance.

The study said there are some situations in Canada where applicants are not told of benefits available to them and about the right to appeal, but "are being subjected to moral judgments and often treated rather cavalierly by workers."

Master Spy's Memoirs Mysteriously Delayed

MOSCOW (Reuter) — The memoirs of Soviet master spy Gordon Lonsdale, which began publication here almost a year ago, have run into a mysterious delay.

Lonsdale, alias Konon Molody, alias Georgi Lonov, died in October, 1970, while picking mushrooms in the woods near here.

An edited version of his memoirs began appearing a year later in the monthly magazine Molodaya Gvardiya (Young Guard). Three instalments appeared at weekly intervals, but there have been none since March this year.

So far the memoirs have described how Lonov went to Canada to establish his cover as a Canadian citizen, then moved to Britain where he set himself up in the vending machine business.

But the Soviet Magazine says this was his real name—was sentenced to 25 years in prison and fined $5,000 by a British court in 1961, for his part in a spy ring seeking British naval secrets.

He was known in Britain as Gordon Lonsdale, and even published what purported to be his autobiography there after being released in a swap for British businessman Greville Wynne, convicted of spying against Russia in 1963.

But his story has not done too well in the country which knows him as one of its most distinguished agents.

A woman member of Molodaya Gvardiya's staff said the board hoped to continue publishing the memoirs, but it would not be until the new year.

$4,000 A Year Is A Living for Artist

By BRIAN AMARON

Morus Bonmel thinks it's a "peasant-like" quality that has enabled the Russians to get the better of Canada's finest hockey professionals.

He says the Soviets "play stupid to outsmart their western counterparts." feigning modesty to strike with "cunning ability."

The analyst in this case has no special qualifications to compare talent on the two teams. But as a diagnostician of human beings, he is gifted as only those who probe beneath the surface can comprehend.

"I saw the unbelievable disaster happen," Morus says of Russia's humbling 7 - 3 win in the first game of the series. "I started to feel just as bad as everyone else who saves hockey cards."

But rather than retreat to the sports pages to find out what happened, Morus took what he had seen and transferred it to a piece of cardboard.

"I wanted to show these people from out of space who came to besiege our overweight, overpaid army," he said prior to the opening of his art show at Kirkshed Wednesday. Drawings and paintings will be on sale every day until Sept. 30 at the old church on Sidney Township's fourth concession.

People are what Morus' he's particular about the spelling — art is all about.

"I grew up in the city," says the ex-Berliner. "And people are imprinted in my mind. When I walk down the street, contact is established when I look at them or they at me. It lasts only a couple of seconds. You are only able to analyze it with your brain after it happens. Thinking is a secondary process."

This ability to appreciate life's spontaneous nature, in which reaction takes precedence over reflection, is a facility few adults possess, laments Morus.

"I try to be as inventive and artistic as a three-year-old because he is probably the hardest worker and most inventive person alive. To him, every day is a wonder. Almost anything is a new experience. That's the way I like to look at dy art. From the age of three on, you become part of the system try, ing to place you in a cubicle."

He's not opposed to artists who abstain from drawing people.

The latter two attractions are what lured him away from Toronto to a cottage at Gore's Landing on Rice Lake last F.bruary. He, his wife and a fellow painter are now on a campaign to raise money for a down payment on a house there.

In Canada since 1953, Morus has lived exclusively on his art sales for the past two years. Prior to that, he did a variety of jobs including dew worm picking, selling hot dogs and working for Bonnel and, until 1970, running his own communication firm which, he says, earned him $25,000 in his best year.

The change actually came about in 1968 when his brother, two years older, died at the age of 39.

"I decided to quit the rat race and do what I wanted to do."

He enjoyed a brief fling as a cartoonist, selling material to the Toronto Star and Maclean-Hunter, but the construction business intervened and his art career petered out.

Then, late in 1970, he made the big break, escaping to a steamy town in the south of Italy. Canned from Canada / There he underwent a Hemingway - like renaissance, learning to love the Spanish-like simplicity and carving his theories about art.

Raised a Catholic, he was also a keen lover the other religious upbringing shapes his work.

"The Protestant shows he has the ability to create. His work cries in need of conversation. The Catholic reveals emotion and makes a blunt statement.

"The Protestant appreciates art only on a cerebral and sexual level, not an emotional one. The Catholic painter gets 'I like it but I couldn't live with it' from Protestants. Unless his name is a part of investment tip, the Protestant won't touch his work.

Not that Morus is a bigot. He's much too fascinated by people to succumb to that pitfall.

"I'm too matter-of-fact. But I can appreciate the Protestant's struggle."

His intellectual ended earlier this year with a stormy ride across the Atlantic in a 52-foot ketch captained by "a hopeless alcoholic ex-journalist." The journey was "like purchasing a ticket on a roller coaster for a two-week ride, says.

The fact that despite being one-seventh of the crew, he had never sailed before hasn't been part of the reason for his discomfort.

Morus will have about 35 of his paintings for sale at the show. He is also eager to discuss their cost, sighing "it is ridiculous to put a price on art."

On the other hand, he needs $4,000 a year to survive.

"All I want is a place to stay," he says.

Car Needed for Course

BLOOMFIELD (Staff) — A driver training program at Prince Edward Collegiate Institute this year will have a limited enrolment unless an additional car can be obtained for lessons.

School trustees last night were told by business administrator Ernest Short that several PECI teachers studying a driver training course in Toronto this summer were encouraged to believe vehicles would be provided readily through the three major manufacturing companies.

In reality, Mr. Shortt said he can't trust he purchased by dealers who in turn supply them to the schools as advertisements. At the end of the year the cars are returned to the dealers and can be sold second hand.

The administrator said car dealers in Prince Edward County profit from advertising through these vehicles.

One dealer, however, who provided a car last year has agreed to furnish another this year but the order has been delayed.

Trustee Edward Rutter lashed out at the manufacturing companies' assurances "outrageous" and said teachers returned enthusiastically from the summer course in Toronto only to learn the cars could not be provided readily.

He added the board should express its displeasure to the companies concerning the probability they handed to teachers concerning the availability of driver training vehicles. The business administrator explained confusion also has surrounded the cost of the course to taxpayers.

Fees for the course fall under the category of miscellaneous revenue and all such monies received by the board must be deducted from total expenditures before a grant is made.

The course now has 49 students. Three teachers are involved in the program.

Homes for Aged Full to Capacity

Hastings county council will have to do some serious thinking in the near future to provide for more homes for the aged accommodation.

This was the warning given by former Reeve John Wilkes of Marmora and Lake township after the board's 1973 estimated report was read to council by Wallaston Reeve Albert Vadev.

In his report he said that for practical purposes all beds at both Hastings Manor outside Bellev"le and Memorial Manor at Bancroft were filled and that there were waiting lists for accommodation.

Reeve Wilkes said that only five years ago there were only 175 beds at Hastings Manor but since then a new 100-bed manor had been built at Bancroft and an addition added at Belleville.

With all beds now filled, he said the county would have to look for more homes for the aged accommodation.

Hastings MPP Clarke T. Rollins suggested that a joint program of construction of senior accommodation, which at Stirling, Tweed and Madoc, noting that these would be satisfying a very worthwhile service for county residents.

Reeve Wilkes said additional municipalities could co-operate in approaching Ontario Housing Corporation for the construction of this type of accommodation, which, he said, could relieve county homes for the aged.

Modellers Meet Sept. 29

PICTON (Staff) — Picton model railroaders will hold their first meeting of the fall season Friday, September 29, at their clubroom at the home of president William Thorley.

The twelve-member club reflects the world-wide interest with railroaders from England, Australia, Holland and Canada.

Club secretary Alan Capon, Picton, said members enjoy varying models and explained George Hill of Cressy is a "live steamer" while he is an "O gauge."

The model railroaders' club has become prominent in its activities recently and now is displaying a model train in the window of the Envoy Travel Agency, Picton.

United Way Will Psych You Out of Dollars

The United Way wants your money.

Campaign strategy is a never-ending subject for organizers and canvassers but this year a new weapon will be used — psychology.

For instance, company officials find their employees more willing to give if they're confronted on their own rather than as a group. Apparently people are less reluctant to hold back when there's no one nearby to confirm their views.

That's just one tactic United Way canvassers will use in their bid to reach the 1972 goal of $145,000, a figure campaign director Isidore Cooperman hastened to add is "meaningless." Another, subtle slogan is Thanks to You, It's Working.

Last year, under a different name — United Appeal — the drive for needy agencies collected $129,000. Then too, the goal was $145,000.

Campaign chairmen have been meeting for the past two weeks to lend donions and plan strategy for the monthlong October drive.

The generosity has been divided into eight divisions, each headed by its own chairman, and, like last year, door-to-door canvassing has been foregone.

Over-all chairman is George Sugarman, who has been working overtime attending divisional sessions and touting the United Way.

"What we need is participation," he told a meeting of industrial canvassers Wednesday. "Once we get that, the contributions will come in by themselves."

He said around $20,000 has been donated so far, more than a week before the drive officially starts.

He heard about 20 industrial representatives offer suggestions that would create more involvement.

Most multi-functioned firms assign one canvasser to each office department, usually an employee of the department who can better communicate with his workmates.

Employees are asked to turn in their pledge cards one week after receiving them so the campaign spirit won't whither with time and die.

One large company uses union stewards to ask for contributions and, that fail, often resorts to sending one of the plant's prettier girls to interview among the men. "That usually gets pretty good results," a company representative said.

Another psychological ploy is for the firm involved to announce its corporate gift, hopefully spurring its employees to follow suit.

There are also commercial, educational, professional, public service, labor and financial divisions combing the community. Another, subtle social names by the campaign overseers. United Community Services, could be possible for those not reachable by other means to make a contribution.

Industrial chairman Gerry Wishart said his section has a fund-raising potential of $60,000, and points to increases on the part of several companies this year as a good sign.

"The people who are giving are going well," he said. "If there's a problem, it's with the number of people giving."

Director Cooperman is reluctant to discuss goals because he says the dollar amount means nothing three individual contributor. The real goal is to get everyone to contribute.

He says a determined effort is being made to speed up the 1972 campaign target to the Oct. 30 federal election could cut into the number of canvassers.

Billboards and posters have been cut out in an attempt to pare expenses. In fact, the only printed matter is a small blue card identifying the 13 agencies and their accomplishments. It comes with the pledge card.

Mr. Cooperman said UCS changed the drive's name to United Way to correspond to the name used in other Canadian and U.S. cities.

The Old Heave Ho

The days are numbered for the old Sidney Street Bridge and as each day passes it looks worse and worse as the new, multi lane, concrete bridge blossoms. Crews began laying cross - members in the past week with the co-operation of Canadian National Railways. Workers have to be alerted to oncoming trains while maneuvering precast members across supports.

Once the western half of the bridge is comple..d, the old bridge will be demolished and traffic will be diverted over the first half of the new bridge.

PUC May Be Bypassed By Domtar Paper Mill

TRENTON (Staff) — The Trenton Public Utilities Commission may be losing its largest customer, a fact which would result in the PUC losing approximately $13,000 in revenue each year.

On June 19 of this year, the utilities commission advised Domtar Packaging Ltd. they were increasing the company's power rates by 4.4 per cent. The firm, in a letter to the PUC, wrote "Domtar Packaging protests most vigorously any rate increase at this time," further reminding officials that in 1971, a 12 per cent increase was made.

Domtar officials then informed the PUC they were seriously considering opting out of using Trenton power, in favor of a direct feed from Ontario Hydro . . . a saving to the firm of approximately $45,000 a year. According to their reply to the utilities commission, Ontario Hydro's rates to direct customers had not been increased this year.

A detailed summary was then prepared by the PUC outlining their position.

Their reply informed Domtar officials that Ontario Hydro had implemented a seven per cent increase in cost of power on July 1, 1972. "We then paused on to your company a 4.8 per cent increase, which I think is more than equitable," PUC chair m a n Charles Hilton wrote.

Mr. Hilton further wrote that direct customers had not received a rate increase in 1972, but Ontario Hydro predicts a "very substantial increase on Jan. 1, 1973.

"I am quite sure," he continued, "that when the new rate is levied in January, 1973, that the rate you are now being charged by the Trenton Utilities Commission will compare quite favorably with the rate that is levied then against the direct line customers."

The PUC chairman said it was not their intension to impose any excessive rates to Domtar, merely enough to cover operation costs. He further reminded the officials the Trenton PUC has, for the past two years, been reimbursing Ontario Domtar to become direct line customers of Ontario Hydro, before Hydro's change in equity came into effect.

Mr. Hilton said he is still willing to allow this, the only stipulation being that the PUC "will not be penalized in the form of decreased power revenue."

This matter, discussed in private by PUC commissioners at their August meeting, was made public at their regular monthly session Thursday.

Counsellors To Graduate

PICTON (Staff) — Graduation ceremonies will be held Friday, October 6 at the Ellis' Hall, Picton, for 21 resident counsellors who have completed training at Prince Edward Heights.

Although the graduates received most of their instruction at other facilities, they were transferred to Prince Edward Heights last year and have finished the training program here.

A dinner will be held at 7 p.m. followed by graduation exercises at 8 p.m.

The counsellors completing the course will remain at Prince Edward Heights, the Ontario government complex for the mentally retarded.

County to Seek Subsidy Increase

Hastings County Council is asking for a review of provincial road subsidy with the view of having financial assistance for county roads increased next year.

Trenton Reeve Horace Cosyn, chairman of the county roads and bridges committee in his report to council this week said his committee had been instructed to make the "drastic reductions" in subsidy and later presented a resolution expressing the county's dissatisfaction.

He said the reduction in subsidy and allotment for construction had been accompanied on the other hand by an opposite demand for better service on county roads.

Reeve Cosyn's resolution asking for a review and increased subsidy payments next year was passed by council.

Office Officially Open

TRENTON (Staff) — The Trenton office of the John Howard Society now has its first permanent office, at 5 Dundas Street West, above the Bank of Nova Scotia.

Operating in Trenton for the past 15 years, the society now has a volunteer membership roll of over 100, handling approximately 12 to 14 clients a year.

Working with prison inmates parolees and newly-released prisoners, society members act as counsellor, parole supervisor or job placement officer.

Its chief goal is helping the former prisoner readjust to society. Acting through business contacts in the area, the Trenton society members will help a newly released man get a job, often providing him with clothing, room and board, and tools, until the first pay cheque comes in.

Its largest volunteer job next year at present are bi-weekly visits to the Quinte Regional Detention Centre in Napanee. Here, members visit and chat with inmates, offering a sympathetic ear, forwarding messages to friend and loved ones, and offering advice where requested.

No Breakthrough In Barrage Case

There's still no word about progress in the investigation of strange incidents last week at Mel Barrage Landscaping Contractors.

City police are awaiting a report from the Attorney-General's Centre of Forensic Sciences in Toronto that is examining debris from a 3. fire at the warehouse resulted in many trees being destroyed and last Friday, a female employee unidentified by police was kidnapped for half an hour.

The police have assigned full-time personnel to the case.

Crossing Guard Gets A Raise

TRENTON (Staff) — Mrs. Barbara Phillip, school crossing guard at the Carrying Place Public School at the junction of county road 64 and Highway 33, will be giving home with $10 more in her monthly pay cheque.

Murray Township Council Wednesday night, voted to raise her monthly wage from $80 to $50, upon her request. She has been employed at the crossing since 1971.

Health Centre Model on View

MADOC (Special) — For the first time, the board of directors and the general public had an opportunity to see a three-dimensional concept of the Centre Hastings Medical Centre building - on Tuesday evening, when plans and a scale model of the building were displayed at a public meeting in the Riwanis Centre here.

The model, which was the centre of attention at the meeting, was constructed of clay by Bob Hudson, local artist.

Now on display in the office of Frank Downey Insurance Agency Limited on St. Lawrence Street East, the model will also be at Madoc Fair' tomorrow for public view.

Progress is moving steadily along in this community project.

The next meeting of the directors will be held Monday evening, September 25, at eight o'clock.

Draft Starts To Pay

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Shutt, Montreal Canadiens' No. 1 draft scored twice at Montreal to lead the Canadiens 4-3 Thursday over Boston Bruins while Richard was notching his first in pro company at Sudbury, Ont., as Atlanta Flames edged Minnesota North Stars 3 2 in National Hockey League exhibition games.

Elsewhere, American-born Henry Boucha tallied the winner at Port Huron, Mich., as Detroit Red Wings nipped Philadelphia Flyers 4-3, Buffalo Sabres handed California Golden Seals their third straight pre-season loss, 3 2, and New York Rangers nipped St. Louis Blues 6-4 at Flint, Mich.

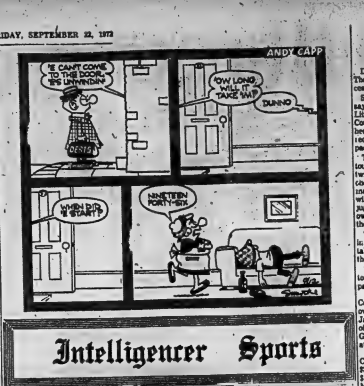
Shutt's first goal, early in the third period, triggered a three-goal Montreal rally. Jacques Lemaire and Randy Rota were the other Canadiens scorers in a lineup that included only nine regulars from last year's team.

Gerset Bailey had Greg Sheppard scored for the Stanley Cup champion Bruins who had only seven regulars dressed.

Richard, first choice of the Flames in their initial NHL season, scored in Atlanta's first confrontation with an established club on veteran goaltender Gump Worsley.

Defenceman Randy Mannery got the winner on a power play against Gilles Gilbert with Stars' Doug Mohns in the penalty box to break a 1-1 tie. Gerry Byers was the Minnesota scorer.

Leon Lochefort, Al Karlander and Rick McCann supplied the other Detroit goals. Bill Clement, Don Saleski and Larry Wright produced for the Flyers, winless in three pre-season starts.



Philadelphia also lost the services of captain Ed Van Impe in the second period when a shot by Detroit's Larry Johnston struck him on the chest during a Red Wing power play. The Flyers' captain was taken to hospital and later flown to Philadelphia for further treatment of possible fractures in the cheek or jawbone.

The Seals continued their record of losing by one goal, centre Don Luce scoring twice in the third period to provide Buffalo's margin. California now has lost three contests by one goal.

Thomas' Prize Pretty Steep

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Running back Duane Thomas wants to play football for San Diego Chargers, and will—for a three-year contract calling for $300,- 000, a close friend said Thursday.

Instead of quitting the team as the Chargers thought Thomas was doing, he has accepted a San Diego lawyer's offer to get his salary raised from $250,000 this year, George Powell said.

Three Leave Sinking Ship

MOSCOW (CP) — Coach Harry Sinden named 18 players to his starting lineup and said goodbye to three others as Team Canada prepared to resume its eight-game series against Russia's national hockey team tonight.

And there were unconfirmed reports that several other players were just as disenchanted with their idleness and would be leaving for training camps back home in the immediate future.

Team Canada, trailing 2-1 in games with one tie after its four Canadian starts against the Russians, completes the series with games at Moscow Sunday, Tuesday and Thursday. Tonight's game will be broadcast live by CTV and CBC radio, starting at 12:30 p.m. EDT, with the telecast repeated at local evening hours.

Sinden named Ed Johnston of boston Bruins and Tony Esposito of Chicago Black Hawks as goaltenders, benching Ken Dryden of Montreal Canadiens who was shelled heavily when the Canadians lost 7-3 in Montreal and 5-3 in Vancouver.

He split the regular Chicago defence pair of Pat Stapleton and Bill White, teaming Stapleton with Brad Park of New York Rangers and White with Gary Bergman of Detroit Red Wings. Guy Lapointe of Montreal and Rod Seiling of New York were named as the third pair.

Sinden said he still stick with the same lineup as long as Team Canada wins and will make only the odd adjustment if the Canadians lose.

No Tickets For Rocket

MOSCOW (CP) — About 150 Canadians—some of them prominent sports figures—found themselves today without tickets to the hockey games they flew thousands of miles to see.

The 150 were members of two tours—operated by the Hockey News and the Toronto Sun—which arrived here Thursday by air.

Among the prominent persons reported without tickets to the games were wrestler Whipper Billy Watson, wrestling promoter Frank Tunney, former hockey great Rocket Richard and Punch Imlach, coach of Buffalo Sabres.

Strike Out Shows Bloodlines

DELAWARE, Ohio (CP) — They say success breeds success.

Strike Out lived up to the saying Thursday, winning the Little Brown Jug at Delaware County Fairgrounds in straight heats and setting a world record mile for three-year-old pacers in the second race.

The son of Fret Hanover toured the half-mile circuit twice in one minute 56 3-5 seconds to surpass the previous mark of 1:57 set by his sire in winning the 1965 running of the jug. He was the first Ohio-owned Canadian horse to win the event.

The Little Brown Jug is run in heats with the first-placer to take two heats being declared the winner.

The only faster time in history for the mile, 1:55 3-5, was paced recently by Albatross.

Driven by Keith Waples of Coldwater, Ont., Strike Out overtook pacesetting favorite Jay Time in the first half mile of the opening race and nipped Goodbye Columbus, a 90-1 shot, at the wire.

A 1¼-length win over Fast Chip in the second secured the $52,982 winners share of the $104,916 event, second in North American harness racing's triple crown.

Waples, who drove the first two-minute mile on a Canadian track 13 years ago, came out of the post position the second choice behind Jay Time in the first race and returned $4.80, $3.40 and $2.80. In the second he paid $3.40, $3.00 and $2.40.

Victory in the Brown Jug increased Strike Out's 1972 earnings to $228,862 and career earnings of more than $415,000 for co-owners John Hayes Sr. of Beamsville, Ont., the trainer, and brothers Boo and Conrad Shapiro of Montreal.

In addition, Strike Out set another world mark—a third time cver-all in two heats on a half-mile track.

Hayes said later his goal is to convert Strike Out into a harness racing "household word."

"We want to make him a household word in the harness industry. Everybody knows Secretariat now is racing him everywhere," said Hayes.

Despite his performance, the handsome bay colt gets little chance to rest. Hayes said he will next go after Steady Star's world mark of 1:52 in a time trial at Lexington's famed Red Mile.

"I'll be watching the weather every day at Lexington," said Hayes.

Top Seed Sprouts Up

ALBANY, Calif. (AP) — Topseeded Billie Jean King was upset by the Netherlands' Betty Stove 6-3, 6-3 in the quarter-final round of the $20,000 Pacific Coast Tennis Classic Thursday.

Kerry Melville, Australia's top ranked woman player, enjoyed the quarter-final walk a tough, three-set win over Kathy Blake of the U.S., 6-4, 3-6, 6-1.

"I hated to beat Bret Hanover's record and take it off the board," Waples said apologetically after Strike Out became the first straight t est Jug winner since Romeo Hanover in 1966.

In an earlier event, J. R. Skipper, owned by Russell and Jean Miller of Dutton, Ont., and driven by Greg Wright of Windsor, Ont., equalled the world record for two-year-olds on a half mile track.

J. R. Skipper was timed in 1:58 4-5 in the opening heat and went on to win the $30,000 event in straight heats with 1:59 3-5 effort in the second race.

Prevoyante String on Line

NEW YORK (AP) — Canada's unbeaten two-year-old filly, La Prevoyante, strives for her ninth straight victory in the $50,000-added Matron Stakes at Belmont Park.

The presence of the daughter of Buckpasser-Artic Dancer, who likely will be the odds-on choice in the seven-furlong test, has made it difficult for racing secretary Kenny Noe to obtain a large field.

Team Canada Not Thirsty

by

Maurice Switzer

Sports Editor

If they haven't all jolted the Hadfield - Martin - Goevremov exodus from Moscow by the time you read this, Team Canada members will probably be sampling the contents of two parcels from home.

In an attempt to provide Team Canada with all the comforts of home in the second half of their eight-game hockey set-to with the Soviets, Labatt's Breweries and Canada Dry, Ltd. have sent overseas substantial gallonages of their respective specialties.

Labatt's president W. F. Read announced his company would be flying beer to Moscow "to ensure that the hockey players feel at home — even if they are thousands of miles away on unfamiliar territory.

"A representative of Team Canada returned from a fact-finding and reconnaissance survey in the Russian city recently with a report that Russian beer has a flavour distinctively different from that brewed in Canada and predicted that it might be palatable to Canadians."

That spy is undoubtedly the scout who returned with the information that the Russian National team was weak in goaltending and shooting. If he'd spent more time in the sports palace and less in the pubs, Team Canada might not be on the short end of Russia's 2-1-1 record in the four games to date.

Meanwhile, Canada Dry, which purports to produce the "Champagne of Ginger Ales", is providing Team Canada with a more sober libation — the same special bottles of Canadian natural spring water which they donated to the Soviet team during their four-game Canadian sojourn.

"Canada Dry marketing manager R. M. Brown noted that the special spring water, obtained from the Caledon Hills north of Toronto, "has an added asset of preventing possible digestive discomforts from the drinking of water to which the Canadians are not accustomed. Such precaution could put a player on the sick list for a game or two.

"There will be an ample supply of the water in their hotel rooms," Canada Dry announced. " . . . The Team Canada players will be heading for the special bottles of spring water every time they have to quench their thirst."

According to reliable sources — some of them Team Canada players asked to remain anonymous — there wasn't enough water on hand during the all-stars' two-game stop in Stockholm last weekend.

Players were cavorting around their hotel corridors until 5 a.m. the morning of their second game — which they tied 4-4 with the Swedish Nationals — and there wasn't a glass of natural spring water to be seen in anyone's hands.

It might not be too long before visitors to Toronto's Hockey Hall of Fame will be crowding to see Vladislav Tretiak's mask, or Valery Kharlamov's stick.

Hall curator Maurice "Lefty" Reid is accompanying Team Canada to Russia in hopes of obtaining some artifacts to put on display in his Canadian National Exhibition Park museum.

Interred in the Hockey Hall of Fame has grown so rapidly since it was opened in 1961 that its doors will be open to the public this winter from 10.30 a.m. to 4.30 p.m. daily, rather than 2 - 4 p.m. as before.

Summer hours, with closing at 7.30 p.m., will likely be put into effect in April.

Terry Wellesley seems to be snapping the injury jinx that plagued him in his first two seasons with Ottawa Rough Riders and living up to the Canadian Football League club's expectations of him.

The Belleville football graduate ranks 12th among Eastern Conference ground-gainers with 105 yards. His 5.8-yard average on 18 carries gives him the second-best percentage in the conference, behind rookie Hamilton quarterback sensation Chuck Ealey, who is currently carrying at a 5.9 clip.

Wellesley also ranks 17th in conference pass - catching, with 102 yards on only nine receptions. Only Hamilton veteran Garney Henley sports a better Big Four average pass gain than Wellesley's 24.2 yards.

The former Quinte and BCI secondary student has two touchdowns, one by ground and the other by the aerial route for the first-place Rough Riders.

Classes Could Prevent Injury

Injured high school athletes should be in better hands this season as the result of a proposed athletic injuries clinic.

The clinic has been arranged by local high school teachers Barry Pycar and Ken Smith and will deal with correct treatment of common athletic mishaps. "It's open to coaches, phys-ed teachers, student trainers, anyone who may be dealing with athletics," advised Pycar. "It should be helpful for football, but we want to stress that it will cover all kinds of sports injuries."

Heading the one-day clinic will be Ottawa Rough Riders' trainer Dave Smith along with Fred Dreher of the University of Guelph and Dr. Ellis, an orthopedic surgeon.

The clinic, which is free of charge will consist of lectures, practical demonstrations and equipment displays. It is open to male or female participants and will be held Saturday, Sept. 30th at Centre Hastings Secondary School in Madoc. Lectures will get under way at 9.30 a.m. with the program running through until roughly 4.30 p.m.

Qualified instructors will be provided for the indoor sessions.

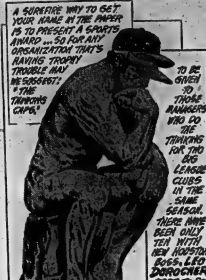
Winter Tennis Helps Winner

By ERIC EMERSON
Sports Staff

Winter work has made for better summer tennis playing, at least as far as Quinte Tennis Club member Marg Finlay is concerned.

A member of last year's indoor winter tennis program, Marg put her offseason lessons to good use last weekend, winning the ladies' singles title of the Trenton Tennis Club Open, and combining with husband Tom to reach the mixed doubles final.



Mrs. Finlay, who was forced to play 13 sets in one day in competition against entries from as far north as Sudbury because you always have a chance to play."

The fourth-year Quinte tennis club member felt that Sunday's Trenton matches pointed out the increased tennis interest in this area. "I think the most significant point was that our club was represented in both of the finals events. We didn't win them all, but we had the players in there."

Plans for this year have yet to be finalized, but the program will definitely be running. The winter season will stretch from October until the outdoor courts are ready for play next spring. Last year a total of about 90 members participated in the sessions at Ben Bleecker auditorium, while special women's afternoon classes were added to handle the demand.

Play will continue at Ben Bleecker this season on Tuesday nights while the recreation department is currently considering the possibility of expanding the program to include other winter locations.

Bayside Blasted on Both Fronts

Bayside Seniors received a rough introduction into the Bay of Quinte COSSA football season Thursday while their junior entry was getting an unexpected jolt.

Centennial made Bayside's first - ever senior attempt a futile one by administering a 32-6 drubbing while the Junior Chargers were springing a 25-14 surprise on Bayside Juniors.

Rob Scully took advantage of that field position to plunge for a pair of majors while Doug Nash scampered 40 yards for another major and Steve Empey and Rob Vandenwater scored touchdowns on 16-yard runs.

Vandenwater picked up close to 200 yards in total offence, while Nash rushed for 140 yards and quarterback Phil Easton directed the attack well, but I guess Colin McIntyre's pass rush had a lot to do with stopping their passing", noted Carty.

The junior Chargers surprised Bayside's 1971 league finalists with their 25-14 decision. Kevin Salmes collected two touchdown passes from quarterback Rob DeJong while fumble recoveries by Randy Neal and Glen Ellis provided two more Centennial majors.

Waite Still Calls Commercial Tune

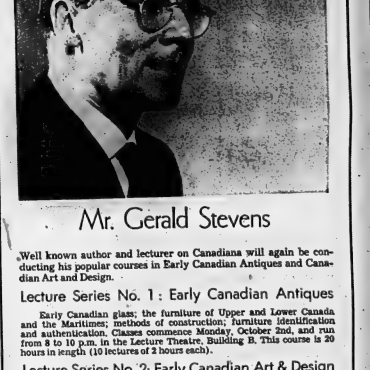
The tune was different Thursday night, but for Ted Waite the word was the same. It was win.

The Rollins Construction pitcher who had turned in a no-hitter in winning the 1-0 Commercial Softball League opener "slipped" to a four-hit effort but still managed to record a 5-2 victory over Howard and Robert. The win gives Rollins a 2-0 jump in the best-of-seven series.

Waite's teammates made the job easy for him by collecting 10 hits off Howard and Robert hurler Bob Swan. They scored one run in each of the first and second innings and added a winning 3-run rally in the sixth. Singles by Paul Goodfellow, Steve Ling and Wayne McTaggart, coupled with Al Ferguson's sacrifice fly increased Rollins' lead to 4-0 and eventually proved to be the winning margin.

Howard and Robert finally got untracked by scoring twice in the 8th inning, but it was too little and too late. Singles by Rob Ekhler and Red Ridley along with an error and Moe Hooker's sacrifice were good for the Printers' only runs.

Waite fanned 13 batters and did not walk a man in picking up the four-hit win, while Swan struck out six and gave up a single free pass.



Goodfellow and Ferguson paced the winners with two hits apiece while single safeties went to Carl Boomhower, Ling, McTaggart, Ralph Plane and Waite. The Howard and Robert hits were divided among Pat Association John Campbell, Ekhler and Ridley.

Mosport Purse Big Draw

MOSPORT, Ont. (CP) — Bert Sill's Emerson Fittipaldi already has the world drivers' championship locked up, but that hasn't prevented at least 27 other drivers from showing up for the 11th event in the Formula 1 auto race series.

The total money of $363,000, second-largest purse in this year's series, has lured drivers from around the world, including Scotland's Jackie Stewart, New Zealand's Chris Amon and Denis Hulme, England's Graham Hill and Australians Peter Revson.

And that still isn't the biggest carrot on the stick. From here it's a short hop to Watkins Glen, N.Y., for the United States Grand Prix Oct. 6. The final event on the 1972 Formula 1 calendar boasts a $275,000 purse with $50,000 going to the winner.

The schedule of Sunday's race at this track, 45 miles northeast of Toronto, will pick up $25,000 cheque and the Labatt's 50 Trophy.

Many of the drivers have already been out on the 2.45-mile track this week testing their machines, and they start practice and qualifying runs today.

Further practice and qualifying laps are scheduled for Saturday. Sunday's race starts at 2:30 p.m. EDT.

Quinte Mall Has Tickets

The Quinte Mall has just 400 tickets for Toledo racing fans in this area. Tickets are currently on sale there for the Labatt's 50 Grand Prix of Canada to be held Sunday at Mosport.

The race will feature 25 starters including four former world champions bidding for the first place prize of $200,000. The tickets may be purchased at the Mall today or Saturday.

Cassell's Luck Can't Be Worse

No matter what position Keith Cassell brings pacer Mary Painter home in at Sunday's Frontenac Downs harness races, it has to be an improvement over last season.

The Smiths Falls driver suffered the unforgettable experience of having his pacer, Stormy Hanover, suffer a heart attack and die during the warm-up for a Frontenac race last season.

Cassell hopes that Mary Painter will not only make it through the workout, but also provide some competition for the feature field that includes former track record holder Carlybakes John.

Post time Sunday is 1.45 p.m.

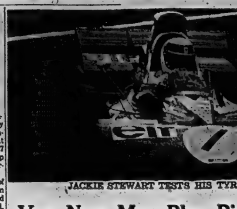
Warriors Losing Battle

NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C. (CP) — New Westminster Salmonebellies thrashed Brantford Warriors 2 - 9 Thursday night, to take a 3-0 lead in the Mann Cup senior Canadian lacrosse final.

The defending champion Warriors have yet to win a game in the best-of-seven series and now are faced with the prospect of winning the next four straight if they still hope to take the cup back home again.



Yardmen Centre $1,000 Closer

"Starting a fund might stir up the community to give the necessary help," said general manager William White in making the announcement Thursday.

"We want to show the Yardmen the public is behind them," he said, "It's a fantastic asset to the community."

Mr. White also called on the city's politicians to lend their support.

JACKIE STEWART TESTS HIS TYRRELL FORD

Van Ness May Play Pivot for Als

MONTREAL (CP) — Bruce Van Ness says that if he ends up playing quarterback for Montreal Alouettes while the Eastern Football Club's George Mira is on the injured list, he is going to be careful.

"We'll be doing some pretty fundamental things," he said after practice Thursday. "If I list, he could end up playing I'm sure going to be careful. Not cautious, really, but careful."

Van Ness became the Als' back-up quarterback after Mira, suffering from stretched ligaments in the right knee, was put on the 30-day injured list.

Jones Shrugs at 66

ROBINSON, Ill (AP) — Grier Jones shrugged off his five-under-par 66, good enough for the first-round lead in the $100,000 Robinson fall golf classic.

"Things just kind of fell into place," he said Thursday.

"Really, I'm not playing as well as I was," the 28-year-old Jones said after his effort on the rain-drenched, 6,536-yard Crawford County Country Club course.

Jones, who scored his first tour victory in the Hawaiian Open earlier this season, held a one-stroke lead over Hale Irwin, Larry Ziegler and rookie Dave Glenz, tied at 67 in the chase for a $20,000 first prize.

George Knudson, the Toronto golfer who won the Robinson title two years ago, had a 68 while Gary Bowerman of Toronto fired a 71. Ken Fulton of Montreal 75, Wayne Vollmer of Vancouver 76, Wilf Homenuik of Winnipeg 78 and Ben Kern of Toronto 79.

Senior Gal Shoots 86

TORONTO (CP) — Dulcie Lyle of Kanwal, near Montreal, shot an 86 Thursday to successfully defend her Canadian Women's Senior Golf Association title.

Mrs. Lyle finished with a 36-hole total of 171 for an eight-stroke margin over a former champion, Flo Seawright of Toronto. Mrs. Seawright had rounds of 91 and 88.

Pirates Finally Get Chance to Pop Off

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Pittsburgh Pirates played hard all season and Thursday night it was time to pop off. So they popped off the top of champagne bottle, a few soft drinks and one bottle of dry red wine.

They and New York Mets 6-3 and the victory was welcome relief for a team that had lost four of its last five games.

More champagne went for showers than for thirst in the Pittsburgh dressing room. Winning pitcher Steve Blass had some poured down his pants, manager Bill Virdon got a champagne shampoo; and the rest of the players joined in the peasant party with drinks, music and laughter.

Elsewhere Thursday, Philadelphia Phillies beat St. Louis Cardinals 3-1 in the only other National League game. In the American League, Detroit Tigers dumped Boston Red Sox 6-3, Milwaukee Brewers downed New York Yankees 4-0 and California Angels topped Kansas City Royals 4-2.

Into fun in New York but not the bubbly, was pitcher Bruce Kison, who nursed a soft drink. He said he'd rather not have a reoccurence of last year's party when he didn't handle his champagne too well.

"Winning a division title is the hardest thing to do because it takes so long to do it," Virdon said. "Of course, it's harder on the players than it is on me, but it's still a long season for everybody."

Blass, the pitcher who won the final game of the World Series last fall against Baltimore Orioles, was in the thick of things again Thursday night. He gave up seven hits, and settled his 19th victory.

The Pirates scored five runs in the third inning, the big blow coming on a two-run single by Richie Hebner.

Rusty Staub drove in one New York run in the fourth inning with a single, and Ed Kranepool's grounder scored another run in the fifth. But Blass ignored the 55-degree weather and 15-to-25 mile-an-hour winds and controlled the game the rest of the way.

The clincher Thursday night was the earliest of the league titles for the Pirates. In 1970 they won on Sept. 27 and in 1971, they won on Sept. 22.

Philadelphia scored two runs in the eighth on a three-base error by St. Louis first-baseman Ted Simmons. The runs broke a 1-1 tie. Bob Boone homered for Philadelphia.

Detroit blasted Boston for four runs in the first and third innings, three runs coming on a single b winning pitcher Joe Coleman, 18-13. The Boston runs tie him lead in the AL East to less than one percentage point, 3-654 to Detroit's .3648.

Boston started rookie Mike Garman, who lasted just one-third of an inning and was hit for three runs.

"I had to gamble," said manager Eddie Kasko. "I had no choice.

Africans Oppose Terrorism Debate

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — A proposal by Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim that the General Assembly take up the issue of terrorism ran into split-ited opposition from African and Arab countries Thursday.

The 41-nation African group indicated it will attempt to have the question of terrorism deleted entirely from this year's assembly agenda.

Some observers were predicting that the secretary-general could emerge from the encounter with his prestige shaken.

The argument developed in the assembly's steering committee, which earlier Thursday ignored Chinese objections and voted in favor of renewed consideration of UN membership for Bangladesh.

The fate of the terrorism question was left unresolved Thursday as the steering committee voted to postpone discussion on it until today.

It appeared that the African Arab bloc did not have enough votes to win its case in the steering committee. But some delegates said the full assembly might side with the African proposal to delete the item and one supporter of Waldheim said: "I don't think we can be optimistic."

Waldheim, in his first term as secretary-general, personally submitted the terrorism question three days after Arab guerrillas killed 11 Israeli athletes at the Olympic Games.

Waldheim has attempted to reassure African and Arab members that his proposal was not made with regard to "any specific incident or situation" and said he has had no intention of hampering "dependent peoples seeking independence."

The Africans, nevertheless, fear that any terrorist resolution might encompass liberation movements against white governments in southern Africa.

Pearson Says Poor Lands Worry About Big Business

TORONTO (CP) — Former prime minister Lester B. Pearson told a group of Canadian businessmen Thursday of the fears of some of the developing nations and reminded them that good corporate citizenship must be combined with their self-interest in developing national markets.

Speaking at a seminar on Canadian business and international development, Mr. Pearson said many economically backward nations recently freed from colonial status, worry about the effects of multinational corporations and fear falling under the economic control of outside business interests.

Police Head Says Indians Abused

WALLACEBURG ,Ont. (CP) — A member of the Wallaceburg Police Commission Thursday termed charges of police discrimination again ; Indians here as "the biggest pile of nonsense I've ever heard."

Dr. William Wilford, one of three members of the commission, said he could not understand the Police Association of Ontario's motive in making "this vicious attack".

Dennis Lattes, administrator of the Ontario Police Association, said Wednesday he had uncovered instances where Indian juveniles were locked up in Wallaceburg jail "when Caucasians would not have been detained."

He said his association also has information that warrants have been sworn illegally by telephone and radio without police officers appearing personally before a justice of the peace.

Mr. Lattes added that in one case two young Indian adults from Walpole Island had been arrested on assault charges and Wallaceburg police allowed the white assault victims "to buy each Indian charged while they were being held at the police station."

Mayor Cecile Bachand, police commission chairman, while admitting Thursday that such an incident had occurred at the police station, said it had nothing to do with discrimination against Indians.

She said the constable who had allowed the beatings has been dealt with and steps had been taken to ensure that such things will not happen again.

Heath Assails Party Rightists

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Edward Heath lashed out Thursday against rightists in his governing Conservative party who oppose the decision to admit Asians expelled from Uganda into Britain.

Heath's strictures came in a letter to the Monday Club, a right-wing party group urging a ban on non-white immigration and the repatriation of non-whites already in Britain.

The club has called on Heath to repatriate all "non-British" residents who settled in Britain before 1962. It also claims that India and Pakistan, and not Britain, are responsible for taking the estimated 60,000 Asians with British passports expelled by President Idi Amin of Uganda.

Heath said in his letter to the club: "We hold that it is in the interest of the British people that the reputation of Britain for good faith and humanity should be observed."

What the Stars Say

By JEANE DIXON

SATURDAY, SEPT. 23

Aries (March 21-April 19): Learn from overbearing authoritative comment about yourself. Breaks in activity needed — be subject of rash remarks or action.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): If you do half what seems expected of you, it will be a strenuous Saturday indeed. Select what you can do reasonably well.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): See how gently you relate to those you live. There is no great need for much physical exertion on this complex weekend of many moods.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): With morning comes intuition on how to build more talent to gatherness. It may be a set of minor changes rather than formal moves.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Your impatience gets you nothing but a fast word. Hold onto your temper, particularly if you are away from home.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Penny-wise is on the verge of pound-foolish in response to urgings from people you haven't learned to refuse.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Put aside personal wishes in favor of family. Care and courtesy is for strangers: for those you love something deeper is needed.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Rest when everything is going great, you blurt out something that is better left unsaid. Try to salvage what is left of the day.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Even very moderate pressure run into resistance you can't rationalize. Minimize the personal element, make a compromise.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Adjourn if you cannot settle a disagreement. Your natural tendency to seek coherence comes into very constructive use.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): There is very little that you can persuade people to believe for the moment, particularly if they haven't asked your opinion.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Apparently you have more people looking to you for support and guidance than you have helping. Raise a few questions on the subject.

To Your Good Health

More Acid Result Of Baking Soda

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have that hiatal hernia. I take soda for relief, and use a one-pound box a month. Does soda have any harmful effects? — C.H.

I'd go easy on the baking soda. It can be harmful. This applies not only to hiatal hernia but to ulcers, "gas," heartburn and similar stomach distresses. I welcome a chance to point out why and how it can do the opposite of what you want it to do.

With various stomach complaints, an excess of acidity (too much of the natural digestive juices) can be irritating. So, people think, why not step it by taking an alkali which will neutralize the acid?

True—temporarily. Baking soda, being a vigorous alkali, does indeed neutralize the acid in the process producing a fair amount of carbon dioxide, which usually comes up as a burp.

For the time being, the soda-taker feels better. But here's the rub: the stomach isn't supposed to be completely free of acid. (Acid, in fact, is necessary for digestion, and in certain cases it is necessary to give a patient acid in one way or another so he can digest what he eats).

So what happens after you've taken soda? Nature reacts by increasing the stomach acid to make up for what has been lost. This is known as a "rebound effect."

Thus the habitual soda-user gets into an unhappy cycle of soda-reduced acid, then increased acid a little later. He feels that he "needs" the soda when his stomach begins to burn, but he doesn't realize that he is storing up more trouble for himself.

My advice is to leave the soda alone—a pound a month is a whopping lot. Your doctor can suggest plenty of milder antacids that won't create future trouble.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My husband, in his late 70s, has had some heart damage and is bothered by poor circulation. His doctor suggested that he walk daily, keep his weight down and eat a normal diet — no fried foods, cream, whole milk, cheese and butter.

A friend who has had heart surgery said her doctor said chocolate and bananas were two of the worst foods for the heart because bananas thicken the blood.

What is your opinion on that? And your opinion as to ice cream being a factor in high blood pressure? — Mrs. H.H.S.

Your husband's doctor gave him sound advice. Main effect ice cream would have on high blood pressure is that it is high in calories, hence would be one factor in excess weight which should be avoided.

The skeptical as to whether any doctor really told your friend chocolate and bananas were hard on the heart. The only effect they would have would be in putting on weight. They do not "thicken the blood."

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Can you recommend anything for extreme susceptibility to insect bites? I have used calamine lotion, Vaseline, witch hazel, etc.—V.L.

I have recently been told that taking ordinary meat tenderizer, mixing into a paste with water, and applying to insect stings can be effective in stopping both pain and itching from insect bites of all sorts—bees, hornets, mosquitoes and others. You might try it.

Opening lead — ace of hearts.

Italy was clearly the dominant force of the 1972 World Bridge Olympiad — as the Blue Team has been annually from 1961 on. Victors in 13 of the last 14 world championships they have played in, the Blue Team demolished the huge field by winning 35 of the 38 32-board matches they played against each of the other countries. They then followed all this by crushing France in the semifinals and the United States in the final.

Moreover, in the round robin portion of the tournament, they scored 18 blitzes in 28 matches, which means that they defeated each of these 18 hapless teams by a margin wide enough to gain them all 20 of the victory points at stake in each match.

One remarkable result achieved by the Italians occurred on this deal against the British, when Forquet and Garozzo — regarded by many as the best pair in the world — got to a slam, missing two aces, and went down one when West, on lead, uncermoniously cashed two aces.

It does seem that Garozzo's four spade bid constituted a gross exaggeration of his values and that he should have been punished for straying from the straight and narrow. But the good Lord took care of him, for the bidding at the other table, with a British pair holding the North-South cards, very peculiarly went:

South	West	North	East
1 NT	Pass	2 NT	Pass
3 ♣	Pass	3 NT

The Italian West led a spade and the defense scored the first six tricks to put the contract down two and produce a net gain for Italy of 100 points, or 3 imps.

Five diamonds would have been an entirely reasonable contract, depending essentially only a favorable trump division, but Forquet and Garozzo were in that spot for any fleeting moment.

Tomorrow: Ireland vs. Britain.

Docile Labor Floods Europe

Slave Trade Exists

PARIS (Reuter) — A crisis over Asian immigrants in Britain and the uncovering of a "black slave trade" in France have focused attention on Europe's new muscle: millions of cheap and docile foreign workers.

For years they have flooded the industrial centres of Western Europe, coming from Spain, Portugal, Greece, Yugoslavia, Turkey and North Africa. More recently they have arrived from black Africa and the West Indies.

They have proved a welcome additional labor force, and their sweat and toil have contributed to Western Europe's industrial prosperity.

Night work, dangerous work in all weathers, street cleaning, road building, underground work—all the dreary chores essential to the efficient operation of the industrial society are performed by workers whose accent or skin color betrays their origins.

But the influx of foreign workers has created immigration problems and in some cases racial tension.

Britain is bracing to receive possibly tens of thousands of Asians from Uganda, ordered to leave by Ugandan President Idi Amin. Although they hold British passports, a vociferous section of the British public is already claiming the country has no room for more Asians.

An illegal traffic in immigrants from French-speaking West Africa was discovered in France in July when a truck carrying 26 Senegalese from Mali and Senegal broke down near Aix-les-Bains. Police said they had been smuggled in from Italy and were destined for underpaid jobs on building sites in Paris.

More than 3,200,000 foreign workers and their families live in France, including 750,000 Algerians, 653,000 Portuguese, 450,000 Spaniards, 300,000 Italians and about 300,000 Moroccans, Tunisians and Yugoslavs. One in every five workers in Paris is foreign.

Mariners' Museum Expanded

A new building is rising at Mariners' Park Museum to house small marine artifacts. Many articles previously unable to be displayed will soon be on exhibit in the building. Museum supporters have petitioned county council for financial assistance and have been told they will get favorable consideration. The park was constructed as a centennial project by Athol and South Marysburg townships.

Canadians Lauded After NATO Exercise Mix-Up

TROMSO, Norway (CP) — Canadian forces involved in a major NATO exercise deep in the Norwegian Arctic have gained high praise from an unexpected quarter after suffering a serious initial setback.

About 1,000 troops mainly from the 3rd Battalion Royal Canadian Regiment in Petawawa, Ont., were part of a 5,000-man NATO contingent defending a 2,000-square-mile area against a simulated enemy assault.

The initial attack on the Canadian area, by units of the enemy forces represented by 4,000 Norwegian troops, was made from small amphibious landings on the north and east.

The Canadians were taken by complete surprise from the north and the commanding officer, Lt.-Col. S. W. Spencer had to be informed by the exercise's central organizing agency that the enemy was within 1.5 miles of the battalion's headquarters.

But at a later briefing session, the commander of the enemy forces, Norwegian Capt. Leif Lundesgaard, singled out the RCRs as worthy of "the highest commendation."

He said there seemed to have been "some sort of mix-up in the Canadian camp" at the time of the original attack. "But they recovered remarkably. We have learned a great deal about advanced offensive and defensive tactics from our encounters with the Canadians."

A Danish officer, however, commented that he had been "genuinely disappointed in the Canadians."

Broad-Scale Attack Launched

OTTAWA (CP) — The Unemployment Insurance Commission announced Friday it has launched a broad-scale attack to combat cheating and other abuses in the unemployment insurance plan.

UIC Chairman Guy Chaineau said the commission is recruiting 80 investigators to delve into suspected cases of fraud. Twenty already are on the job and the others are to be at work by next October, bringing the total number of investigators to 397.

"There's much more to come," Manpower Minister Bryce Mackasey said of the program.

The announcement came in the wake of charges by Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield that the state of the unemployment insurance plan, as it now is operating, may constitute a national scandal.

Mr. Mackasey said the Conservative leader "hasn't the faintest idea what he is talking about," and that he would "put the record straight" in a series of campaign speeches across the country.

Martial Law

MANILA (AP) — The Philippines proclaimed martial law, closed down major newspapers and radio stations and cut communications with the outside world today for the first time since gaining independence from the United States 26 years ago.

The drastic measures came amid unrest caused by the country's worst summer floods in history and a growing wave of bombings and terrorism culminating in an unsuccessful attempt Friday to assassinate the defence secretary.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Sunny skies, and unseasonably cool weather will continue in most areas today. However cloud and some occasional rain will spread across the lower lakes area late in the day, clearing late tonight or Sunday. Little or no risk of frost in southern Ontario tonight. Sunday mostly sunny.

Hellyer:

Libs Failed On Issues

OTTAWA (CP) — Former Liberal Paul Hellyer said Friday the Trudeau government has done some good things, but it has failed dismally on all major issues.

Mr. Hellyer, now a Progressive Conservative, was speaking at the Ottawa Confederation Club, a Conservative organization. He specifically mentioned bilingualism, unemployment, inflation and housing.

Speaking in an area where the bilingualism policy of the Liberal government is an issue, he said the government is wasting money.

He said it is a waste of time trying to teach middle-aged public servants a second language. Instead, the emphasis of bilingualism should be on the teaching of living languages in school children "so the next generation can communicate with other cultures."

Mr. Hellyer was transport minister in the Trudeau government until he quit over the government's housing policy. He sat for a time as a Liberal back-bencher, then became an independent and a founder of Action Canada.

He joined the Conservatives in July and now is seeking election in Toronto-Trinity, a Conservative seat.

Mr. Hellyer said if inflation continues at a rate of six per cent a year, by the end of the century a $25,000 house will cost $140,000; a quart of milk will cost $3.65 and a television set $2,500.

He said once the inflationary psychology is broken, there are proven ways to provide for full employment.

Tradeau:

Lang Is Best Wheat Salesman

ESTON, Sask. (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau was greeted by large and enthusiastic crowds Friday during his first two forays into Saskatchewan wheat country in the federal election campaign.

His only formal speech of the day was delivered at Swift Current where an estimated 2,000 persons were told that the government aims to market one billion bushels of prairie grain in the crop year which started Aug. 1.

But it was the open-hearted reception he received in this community of 1,200 in southwestern Saskatchewan that instilled hopes among Liberals campaign officials that the government will win seats again in 1972 over its showing in 1968.

Mr. Trudeau's message here was much the same as that earlier in Swift Current—that the Liberal government's record of selling prairie grain has exceeded the performance and the promises of other federal parties.

The prime minister also repeated statements made at Moose Jaw and Swift Current that Otto Lang, minister in charge of the Canadian wheat board, is "the best wheat salesman since Confederation."

Mr. Trudeau is to appear in two open line radio shows in Vancouver today, hold a public rally at the exhibition grounds in the city and then fly to Calgary Sunday for about two days of non-campaigning.

Stanfield:

Wagner Obviously Campaign Leader

MONTREAL (CP) — Robert Stanfield worked what he called a "satisfying swing through Eastern Townships Friday back into the heart of Montreal International Airport for a 70-minute repair stop.

The Air Canada DC-9 campaign aircraft used by the Conservative leader developed a pressure problem as it left engine en route to Fredericton, N.B., from Prince Rupert, Que., forcing a return to Montreal.

The aircraft later left again for Fredericton.

The unexpected touchdown climaxed a day of stumping through rural communities Stanfield's Conservative colleague Claude Wagner proved the star attraction.

Mere mention of Mr. Wagner's name brought immediate and enthusiastic reactions from hosts of supporters at each stop.

Mr. Stanfield told reporters in Trois-Rivieres he was "very pleased" with Mr. Wagner's reception which he said "confirms our belief that Mr. Wagner will be very well received in our party and is very popular in Quebec."

Mr. Stanfield side-stepped questions on whether Mr. Wagner would be named Quebec party lieutenant should he be elected Oct. 30 but said Mr. Wagner is "obviously" the Conservatives' campaign leader in the province.

Mr. Wagner said the affection felt for the Conservative leader in Quebec stems from a familiarity built into votes, votes, votes.

However, he added, a group calling itself the Inner City Citizens First Speed circulated a pamphlet calling Mr. Stanfield and Mr. Wagner "enemies of the people" and asking him to "get off our block, get out of Quebec and leave us alone to determine our own affairs."

He repeated earlier statements that a "constructive" welfare system for Canada must provide incentives to encourage people to work.

Lewis:

PCs Are Now Just Observers

TORONTO (CP) — The Progressive Conservatives are being left out of the federal election campaign, leaving the battle over issues to the Liberals and the New Democratic Party, NDP Leader David Lewis said Friday.

Mr. Lewis, who arrived here after a long distance telephone debate with Prime Minister Trudeau, said the Conservatives have been forced into the unhappy position of observers as the Liberals defend against the NDP's "corporate ripoff" campaign theme.

"The Tory party has nothing to say in this election," he told reporters.

The Tory party stands for the same things as the Liberals and they are having trouble finding an issue."

Mr. Trudeau had been a guest on a Winnipeg radio station open-line program and, unexpectedly, host Peter Warren telephoned Mr. Lewis in Ottawa and invited him to join the discussion.

Greeted at Toronto airport by his wife, Sophie, Mr. Lewis had a brief visit to his York-South headquarters and asked workers about their progress in securing memberships. He said won the riding in three of four elections since 1962, but that the riding by 3,646 votes to the Liberal candidate in 1963, but regained it by about the same margin in 1968.

His opponents, Liberal Lucio Appolloni and Conservative John Ostrom, are fighting Mr. Lewis for the important Italian community vote, with about 15,000 in York South riding population described by the NDP leader as "Italian immigrants, but

UK Plan Too Late to Lure RCs to Talks

BELFAST (Reuter) — A British plan to set up a government in Northern Ireland appears to have come too late to lure Roman Catholic politicians to a peace conference starting Monday.

The talks, in Darlington, England, were designed to bring together all shades of political opinion in an attempt to end three years of sectarian strife in Northern Ireland. But it now looks as if two key parties—the Protestant and one Catholic—will not attend.

Political observers feel the latest British move—the setting up of special courts to try men now interned without trial—came too late, and perhaps did not go far enough for the Catholics.

The leading Catholic party in Ulster, the Social Democratic and Labor Party, has insisted it will not attend the conference unless internment is abolished.

Rev. Ian Paisley's Democratic Unionist party also will not attend the talks. Paisley is angry over the refusal of the Northern Ireland administration, William Whitelaw, to hold a public inquiry into the shooting of two Protestants by British paratroops two weeks ago.

Whitelaw has pledged that normal investigations will be carried out and the results turned over to the public prosecutor, but this assurance has not satisfied Paisley. This has dismayed the British government, because the militant churchman's party represents much grass-root Protestant opinion in Northern Ireland.

The largest party represented at the talks will be the officials Unionist party, the traditional Protestant, or loyalist, party in Ulster which had always held a majority in the parliament at Stormont until that body was suspended last March.

The party will be represented by former prime minister Brian Faulkner, who is gradually losing the support of the working classes. They have accused him of going along too far with the British government's policy of conciliation toward the Catholic minority.

Also represented will be the Alliance party, a new grouping of moderate Catholics and Protestants.

The third party at the talks will be the Labor party, a part of the main opposition party in Britain which had one seat in the 52-member parliament before it was suspended.

All the parties have put forward observers believe that few results will come from the conference and that in the end the British government will impose its own solution.

They doubt if such important functions as security or housing will ever again be put in the hands of a Protestant-dominated Stormont. They also doubt that union with the republic is in the immediate offing.

News Briefs

Socred Won't Run

OTTAWA (CP) — Social Credit won't run against Lucien Lamoureux, Speaker of the last House of Commons who seeks re-election in Stormont-Dundas Oct. 30 as an Independent. That means that Mr. Lamoureux faces a Progressive Conservative, a New Democrat and a candidate bearing a "Democrat" label.

Marxist Refused Entry

TORONTO (CP) — A Marxist scholar, hired by York University in Toronto and on salary since July 1, has been refused entry into Canada from England. John Saywell, dean of arts at York, was informed Friday that Ismail Mesarosz-62, would not be given a visa to enter Canada as a landed immigrant. Dr. Mesarosz was a member of the 1956 provisional government in Hungary and fled to Italy that year when Russian Stalinists took power. He now is a British subject.

Ready For Asians

MONTREAL (CP) — The Canadian Armed Forces have "all but made over" Longue Pointe barracks in the city's east end in preparation for the arrival next week of the first batch of expelled Ugandan Asians, a forces spokesman said Friday. The 10 dormitories could handle up to 1,800 persons at a time. Army cooks were given a crash course in Indian cuisine Friday, an officer said. The Asians will be brought directly to the barracks, bypassing customs, immigration and health checks at Montreal International Airport. These checks will be carried out at the barracks.

Gun Battle Erupts

BELFAST (AP) — Guerrilla gunmen and Protestant vigilantes fought a gun battle in the Highpoint New Lodge district of Belfast early today after a day of violence in which two men were killed in Northern Ireland. Troops who moved into the area came under fire and retaliated they hit one of the gunmen in the house long clash. An army spokesman said most of the fire came from the Catholic zone.

Indians Eligible Under Plan

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government said Friday provincial governments can extend social welfare programs to include Indians.

However, both the provinces and Indian associations must be in agreement before the plan is implemented, says a news released issued by Indian Affairs Minister Jean Chretien and Health Minister John Munro.

Under the present system, Indian welfare assistance is administered by the federal government through provincial welfare departments and agencies. The ottawa would reimburse provinces for such welfare services.

West Lake Residence Once A Quaker School

PICTON (Staff) — The West Lake boarding school, now a private residence, marked with an historical plaque, provided a well rounded education for students in early Prince Edward.

The large brick building, situated approximately three miles west of Picton on the Bloomfield road, was constructed by Quakers. Described as the first seminary in Canada of the Society of Friends, the school initially was a haven to Quaker pupils.

Youngsters of other faiths rapidly were admitted to the private school when a shortage of funds forced trustees to reconsider admissions.

Originally the brick structure was a girls' school but it became co-ed when a frame building for boys was built to the east of it in 1842.

According to the book, The County, co-authored by Janet and Richard Lunn, the first teachers at the school were Mary Hoag and J. H. Haines.

Subjects taught at West Lake boarding school included reading, writing, English grammar, geography and several others approved by the governing committee. Pupils also were required to help with farm chores at the school.

The fee for each scholar was £12 a year and included board, tuition, pens, ink and paper. Later this fee was raised to £15.

The school closed in 1865 and was sold in 1869. It is now the residence of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Carman but because of the historical plaque marking the site it remains a prominent tourist attraction.

It is described as "a fine example of Loyalist" neo-classic architecture.

The first district school or secondary school in the county opened in Picton in 1834. Classes were held in a room at James Dougall's store on Main Street.

Moses Marcus, an Anglican minister was the first instructor. Later, Marcellus C. Crombie was "elected master by board trustees" and provided the educational program of the district school, with special attention for the manners of her pupils.

It was advertised that "the manners of young ladies will receive paramount attention and due cultivation, as no qualities in the fair sex seem so pleasing as modesty, amiability—no qualifications or attainments so ornamental as ease, gracefulness and suavity in address and demeanor."

Education in the county was recalled in 1921 in the memoirs of Methodist minister W. K. Burr as a sometimes unhappy experience.

Mr. Burr referred to his school days in 1848 when his teacher was an Irishman named William Hamilton who had red hair "and a great deal of fire was expressed in his face."

Mr. Hamilton spoke with tongue and cane but during a spelling lesson asked a student to spell "bin." When the lad had correctly done so, the teacher demanded he pronounce the word "bin" but the child refused. Angered, Mr. Hamilton drew a whip from his desk and thrashed the boy.

"I was afraid of Hamilton after that. He reminded me of the bird and I didn't like to go to school," reflected Mr. Burr in his writings.

MARMORA (Special) — Residents of the Marmora area are appealing to the provincial government for an addition to a private nursing home in Deloro.

Centre Hastings Nursing Home, owned by Michael Horvath, now has 34 beds and a waiting list of 34 people from the Madoc Marmora area. But the ministry of health has not given permission for an addition to accommodate another 15 beds.

When the government extended its services to pay for nursing home care for the elderly, it laid down a quota of beds for each region of the province, based on the population of the region. By its calculations, both Prince Edward and Hastings counties have more than their quota of beds and any additional beds would be occupied by people from outside the counties.

But Mr. Horvath says he is turning away people from the centre Hastings area every day — he was forced to turn down two people yesterday, one from Madoc and one from Marmora.

"This is a retirement area," he says, "and we have a larger than usual percentage of the aged — 14 per cent of our population is over 65."

To meet government standards, Mr. and Mrs. Horvath are adding a $35,000 addition to their nursing home to house a dining room and recreation area. They have asked for permission to build a larger addition to accommodate an other 15 patients to increase their income.

In Deseronto lacking in industry, the town's mayor provides jobs for 15 people and could provide more if allowed to expand.

Two Marmora women are circulating a petition in favor of the extension and many people added their signatures at churches last Sunday after hearing about the situation from their ministers. Ray Brown of Deloro carries a copy of the petition as he makes his rounds, selling home products. The two women who originated the petition are writing to Dr. R. T. Potter, minister of health, urging him to use his influence to grant permission for the nursing home extension.

"The response has been terrific," says Mr. Horvath.

Yardmen Assist Seniors' Centre

TRENTON (Staff — The future Trenton Senior Citizen's drop-in centre at Centennial Park has received a financial boost from the Belleville Yardmen Benefit Fund. Mayor Duncan McDonald Friday announced that the yardmen have agreed to donate a total of $12,000 in equal monthly installments for the next 12 months.

No official costs of the building have been released but at the September 5 meeting of town council Trenton Town Parker announced the public would be asked to contribute $30,000 for the project above funds now available. The Trenton Chamber of Commerce is heading a drive for funds with a walkathon scheduled for Oct. 14.

Dockrill Joins Liberal Hopefuls

Belleville physician Dr. Lionel Dockrill, 52, is seriously considering running for the Liberal nomination in Hastings riding.

"My friends want to back me for the candidacy and I'm seriously interested," he said this morning.

The Liberal nomination convention will be held at Centennial Secondary School Sept. 27.

"Whether or not my colleagues want to admit it, through no fault of the practising physicians, the practice of medicine has become a political issue," said Dr. Dockrill. "It's time we as physicians went into the political forum and used our experience to see that medicine is properly informed about the use being made of the health dollar."

"I don't like the way certain politicians and labor leaders are using the practice of medicine as a political tool to misinform their followers," he said.

"Physicians as a group have the greatest face to face contact with the public and if misinformed they can become one of the biggest and most effective political forces in this country.

"I believe physicians should be interested in anything that affects the physical or emotional health of humanity. Politics is the force that controls our destiny and there are all physicians should become active in politics."

Dr. Dockrill was an active Conservative worker until 1965, when he sought the Liberal nomination in Hastings-Prince Edward riding. He served in Picton town council for four years and became involved in the strike at Proctor-Silex.

"I was annoyed by the treatment that strikers received at the hands of the "establishment," and because of the role I played I was accused of seeking political ends. I announced I would not stand for any candidacy for at least four years. The four years are now up."

An Englishman in World War II, Dr. Dockrill is a graduate of Melbourne University, is married and has eight children and two grandchildren.

He is a past president of Hastings - Prince Edward Liberal association, was first vice-president of Prince Edward county in 1968, is a past president of Picton Kiwanis Club and was active in sports for many years.

Spine Broken In Collision

PICTON (Staff) — A Trenton area teenager sustained a fractured spine last night in a one-car collision on County Road 3 in Prince Edward.

Police said the 18-year-old Connie Murphy, a passenger in a car driven by Douglas Hewson, 21, of Carrying Place. The driver received a broken nose and lacerations in the accident. A second passenger Dawn Hossack, 19, was injured. Damage to the vehicle was estimated at $1,000. Constable E. Dee of the Picton detachment of the OPP investigated.

A Picton youth, 18-year-old Dean Charles Howard, Main St., escaped injury early today in a one-car collision causing $1,000 damage. The incident occurred at 12:35 a.m. on Consecon St. in Wellington Village. Constable M Chalmers of the Picton detachment of the OPP investigated.

Five Injured

A Belleville woman has been charged with failing to yield after the car she was driving about 9 p.m. Friday night skidded through the intersection of Bell Blvd. and Sidney St. and collided with another car.

Mrs. Sarah Lee Simpkins of 23 Montrose Blvd. was treated and released at Belleville General Hospital following the accident. Three passengers, Heather Elizabeth Simpkins, 15, Jeffrey Andrew Simpkins, 10 and Cathy Simpkins, 15, were also treated in the emergency department. Driver of the other car, Meehan Alfred Escaut of 61 Lemoine St., was uninjured, but his passenger Lynda Catherine Brown, 16, of 353 Belleville was treated at BGH and released.

Nursing Home Space Added

TWEED (Special) Renovations and the addition of a new wing were recently completed at Quinte Beach Nursing Home, one mile east of Deseronto.

A wing added to the existing structure provides living quarters for 45 new patients.

As well as living space, the new wing houses two lounges and a dining room with a seating capacity of 80. The existing rooms at the home were renovated and updated as well.

"Actually we have a new building here since the finishing of the construction," said Mrs. Betty Helman, administrator of the home.

A staff of 28, including kitchen staff, nurses' aides and three registered nurses provide services for the patients, many of whom are supported by an extended care program on a provincial level.

Queen Victoria School is organizing its community programs for the coming year and will hold a planning meeting at the school Sept. 25 at 7:30 p.m.

The school was the first in Belleville to offer activities and courses for members of the school neighborhood, a program now being expanded throughout the county.

The community school program committee chairman, E. C. English invites all former members of the committee and other interested persons to attend the organizational meeting.

Councillors On Tour

The wide operational rationalizations of transport squadrons at Canadian Armed Forces Base, Trenton, and the technological changes in search and rescue operations were outlined Thursday for members of Hastings county council.

As part of their annual bus tour held during the September session, members visited the sprawling Trenton air base and later toured Corby Distilleries Ltd. at Corbyville.

In between, county councillors visited the new senior citizens' housing complex at Corbyville, and had noon luncheon as guests of Warden Gibson and Tyendinaga township council, at the St. Charles Church hall at Reed. The ladies of St. Charles Catholic Women's League catered to the dinner.

Installation of new storm and sanitary sewers on Bridge St. East from the bridge to Pinnacle St. has closed that section of the main traffic artery to vehicles. The yellow paint tracing out all cracks on the asphalt surface was put there to prove the company didn't cause the surface breakup during construction.

Answer Not Liked

TRENTON (Staff) — Members of the Trenton Public Utilities Commission weren't satisfied with the province's answer concerning licence holders who draw water from the town's water supply.

Last month they asked the water and wells management branch of the department of the environment to place restrictions on both the number of companies licenced to draw water and the amount of water actually taken.

This request was made. PUC manager Douglas Mowlow explained at the time; "to guarantee that no combination of users can lower the lake to below 295 feet below sea level."

Thursday, commissioners learned that the department felt there was nothing to worry about, and refused to bring about any restrictions.

Charles Hilton, chairman of the PUC, said he was not satisfied with the rather general answer given to their request, claiming the water branch didn't provide any statistics to back up their decision.

The PUC agreed to write back to the department of the environment, requesting further details, plus a list of quantity they draw from the Trenton Lake reservoir.

"We want to know why there is this assumption," Mr. Hilton told The Intelligencer.

Companies can draw water, free of licencing, up to 10,000 gallons a day. Over this amount, they must obtain a licence. Mr. Mowlow says between 800,000 and one million gallons of water are used each day by the town.

Field Day October 1

TRENTON (Staff) — On Sunday, Oct. 1, the Murray Township Recreation Committee will hold its first field day at the municipal offices near the Wesler Road.

Councillor J. Stanley Down said the main day's events will be ball games between girls' teams from Stockdale, Hart's Corner and Carrying Place.

A variety of games for the younger children will be held, with trophies, ribbons and prizes provided for most of the events.

Refreshments will also be available.

Mr. Down told township council the program is being held in co-operation with local public schools and the municipality. The field day will get under way at 1 p.m.

Committee Dissolved

BLOOMFIELD (Staff) — A special committee of town council appointed to study "the problems at Queen Elizabeth school" has been dissolved.

Prince Edward school trustee last night received a letter from deputy clerk-treasurer of Picton, Alice Lavender, stating Mayor Margaret Ackerman wished this information forwarded to the board.

Last spring councillors became concerned by a significant number of student transfers from Queen Elizabeth school to other elementary school in Prince Edward. Councillors Harry Abram and William Lane and town clerk Andrew Jarvis attended a June board meeting to discuss the problem and it was suggested by Mr. Lane that the open-area teaching concept at the school could be responsible for the transfers. When the councillors reported to mayor Ackerman during a council session in July it was agreed to name a committee to continue study of the situation.

The Arts Scene

We note with interest the Arts Council's recent get-together at the Four Seasons and the reaffirmation of its principles as a co-ordinating body in the promotion of the Arts in Belleville.

Events in the coming months will include a performance by the Kingston Symphony Orchestra and an arts and crafts show in downtown Belleville featuring artists from around the region.

Looking ahead to next spring Artsfest '73 is expected to be a more ambitious effort than ever. We think also of the fine work of the Theatre Guild and the concert association over the years.

These aside, we believe the city has reached a point when a still more comprehensive cultural effort must be made. We recall for instance the performance by Les Feux Follets. It is our recollection that this was jointly sponsored by the city and by Club Alouette of the French community here. Internationally famous, the company from Quebec, presents an exciting range of ethnic dance forms representing Canada's national mosaic. But recently the company was seeking Canada Council financial assistance, an appeal that unhappily was rejected. Thus it may be that Les Feux Follets has run out of gas as it were. We hope not, but there is a wealth of other stage and musical talent (and we have some fine new school auditoriums that could accommodate them) which we are sure Bellevillians would appreciate having here.

We are envious of Toronto where the Royal Alexandra has a superb series of star-studded shows running from now until the spring, with such incomparable stars as Sir Michael Redgrave, Rex Harrison, Robert Morley, Theodore Bikel and Debbie Reynolds whom Sir John Gielgud will be directing in the musical, Irene, in November. Starring with Miss Reynolds here will be Patsy Kelly and Wesley Addy and Hermione Gingold.

Of course, such big names may be out of Belleville's financial league but there is ample scope for the support of the Arts Council here and through it companies, orchestras, dance groups and so on that might be attracted here.

To this end Arts Council president Frank Murray is calling for increased support from those in the community who have the means. In other words the Council invites additional patrons.

We think of the Brockville Auditorium which over the years has seen a variety of uses and more recently as a theatre. There we have seen performers like Edward Everett Horton and Imogene Coca and if Brockville can attract such stars surely Belleville can too.

City's Dining Facilities

Belleville does not lack for restaurants and in the last few years we have seen the growth of a number of quick-service establishments. Another one is due to be constructed before long in the North Front Street area.

On Front Street there have been one or two that have come and gone in this period also, while others that have been there for some time have continued to prosper. One Belleville restaurant that is missed is the Queen's on Dundas Street which of course is now a well-known concurrent establishment. The Queen's was a popular restaurant with a pleasant atmosphere for family dining and for entertaining guests and visitors to the city. In this regard it was in a class by itself, for it combined these qualities with a reasonable price range.

That is not to say that such modestly-priced facilities are not available in other city and area establishments. They are, but the Queen's had them in special measure and this was seen in the restaurant's manifest popularity.

The quick service restaurants are fine. So too are the higher-priced establishments. They are a welcome addition to the city's dining facilities but there is room for one or more of the unique calibre of the Queen's. It was of the kind to which patrons could always return for good food and friendly service at modest rates.

Canada Being Manipulated by China According to Some

By PARMER TISSINGTON
From The Intelligencer's
Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—Normally, somebody-cultural affairs do not rank very high in Communist countries, supplies. The broad and better documentary knowledge of information on the cost of travel, hotels and well-paid people—can rate a great deal more attention in the western than in Canada's dealings with other countries.

The coming election may be somewhat different, for there have been some conclusions in the past couple of years of individuals on the Canada-United States scene past, the move by the government to control foreign take-overs of Canadian businesses, and the current moves of the U.S., including their DISC programme.

Even more important, these things in the general attitudes and policies of the Canadian people, especially the new major commercial business of the United States and the Soviet prime minister's visit to Moscow and the visit of President Kosygin to Canada, visits by external affairs minister Mitchell Sharp and trade minister Jean-Luc Pepin to China, the proposed visit of Mr. Trudeau to China and the expected visit later this year by the Chinese foreign minister Chou En-lai, and the government's policy of closer ties between Canada and the communist world.

Basically, these exchanges are for the purpose of promoting trade but there are many non-trade side effects, including a better understanding of the points of view of one another, of trade and cultural exchanges and the establishment of a broad base for better wider exchanges of people and goods.

On the surface, all this appears to be smart politics. Following his recent visit to China, Mr. Sharp was in a buoyant mood, behind his usual reserve. Mr. Pepin to China, the private

Chaplain of Bourbon Street Comes on Strong and Clear

By JERRY ESTILL

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP) — He comes on so strong there might be a temptation to check the Better Business Bureau if Bob Harrington — who's acting something other than religion.

Stylish grey hair combed back smoothly over his ears, the Chaplain of Bourbon Street holds forth in his office at a steady pace seems to pierce through to your most sinful secret. Despite . . . a frequent smile . . . and a steady stream of corny phrases developed over the years.

Bob Harrington is no bashful boy about preaching Christianity, religious treats as a street preacher. He's his brainchild with its $1-million annual budget and the first in a series of syndicated television shows is piped in the east.

The television show is aimed against a Bourbon Street type painted red. Harrington, 44, will peer into the camera from behind a bar, capitalizing on his image as Chaplain of Bourbon Street.

But he doesn't spend his months mingling amidst the strippers and mobsters of New Orleans' most infamous thoroughfare. He used to.

The action has shifted to auditoriums and stadiums in some of town's interesting spots. Where Harrington appears his gold-spotted magnate to 3,000 or 10,000 at a time. But they never go to hear Bob Harrington, evangelist. It's always "Bob Harrington, Chaplain of Bourbon Street."

"It all started right here on Bourbon Street in 1951," says Harrington.

"While I was at the seminary, I saw ministerettes going out to work in Asia and South America, and I told myself I could be a missionary right here," says Harrington. Ergo, the birth of the Chaplain of Bourbon Street.

Harrington says he was converted in 1938 in Sweet Water, Ala., and began trying to convert others three days later. He was already a successful insurance salesman and managed to acquire a tent, a van and sound equipment.

The van and sound equipment were given away and the tent stored in storage as Harrington climbed into the big league of evangelism.

"I'm a salesman and a showman, and I make no effort to hide either. I'm selling the best product in the world and I have the best producer. He's served had a flop and His product is guaranteed to bring happiness."

He's careful to emphasize that he actively supports organized churches, is a member of the First Baptist church of New Orleans and works through local churches in setting up his crusades.

Christians Persecuted In State in Borneo

KOTA KINABULU, Malaysia (AP) — Christian missionaries are claiming persecution in the Borneo state of Sabah, where the government is dominated by Moslems. The Moslems deny any persecution is taking place.

The Christians say that ill priests, nuns and other missionaries have been kicked out since 1970. The permits of 10 more have expired and they may be asked to go any time.

"By kicking out the priests and hindering our work and religious practice the Moslem government is persecuting us," says one Christian leader who ies have been in Sabah for more than a century, but have not paid much attention to training Sabahans for missionary work. They say the missionaries expelled were all foreigners, and that some had indulged in local politics.

He reports that about 50 missionaries who are left must take care of 135,000 Christians and run 45 schools and some churches.

"This is an impossible task," he said. "Surely this is a hinderance to our religion. They also convert people to Islam through bribery and threats."

They note that the Malaysian constitution allows freedom of religion and assert the central government even gives money for building churches although Islam is the state religion of Malaysia.

The total number of Moslems in the state is recorded at about 300,000, half the population.

World Council of Churches Has First Black Secretary

UTRECHT, Netherlands (AP) — Dr. Philip Potter, first black to be elected secretary-general of the World Council of Churches, said: "I consider myself a radical because my Christian faith tells me that my God is a God who wants all men to be one."

"My God is a God of justice. My God who seeks peace," he told a reporter. "My God is one of love who gets angry over injustice . . . the denial of man, and so am I. And He says month after month to send His Son to go on a cross. It is that which makes me a radical."

Dr. Potter, 51, a native of Dominica in the West Indies and recently a Methodist pastor in Jamaica, was named to succeed Dr. Eugene Carson Blake, an American who retires in November.

The council's program for fighting racism will continue, Dr. Potter says support for it has become broader, despite criticism.

The main thrust of this program is to help black movements against the Portuguese in Angola and Mozambique and white regimes in southern Africa. Critics claim that some of the African groups receiving help from the council are Communist-oriented.

Commenting on this, Dr. Potter said:

"Most fascinating thing is that most of these groups come out of a Christian background. Some of their leaders are pastors and things like that. And it isn't surprising that Christians would be the ones most conscious of their responsibility to struggle for the liberation and human dignity of their peoples.

"A second thing, it is quite likely that some of these movements are receiving arms from Communist governments because nobody else gives them to them. They are fighting a war. . . . But when people are struggling for their independence against forces in which we are involved economically, then we have no. That we cannot tolerate."

Rivals Clash

TORONTO (CP) — Two old rivals, Robert Macaulay, a former provincial cabinet minister, and veteran New Democrat Donald MacDonald renewed hostilities Thursday before the legislature committee studying the Ontario Municipal Board.

Mr. Macaulay, a Toronto lawyer, began his testimony by saying he had decided to associate himself from earlier statements made to the committee that the board should be continued because it protects the public from political expedition and bribery at the municipal level.

"I think you've destroyed your case by saying Ontario is absolutely free of corruption," Mr. MacDonald snapped.

The NDP member said police and corruption existed, and the OMB provided a "protective measure" against it.

Psychiatric Training Suggested

HALIFAX (CP) — Registered nurses in Nova Scotia now can take special courses in psychiatric nursing, designed to assist them in increasing competence in clinical work and to broaden their understanding of mental illness and related nursing care.

Sponsored by the hospital nursing education department, the first such six-week course ended recently with 11 graduates.

Course director is Thelma Blaikie who said major emphasis in the course is on interpersonal relationships, comparative theories of counselling and selective clinical experience in counselling.

The course builds on the principles and concepts taught in the student nursing psychiatric program, she said. Flexibility is built in to allow for each student's needs and potential.

The students obtained field and practical experience through visits to drug crisis centres, child guidance units, public health nursing facilities and hospital psychiatric wards.

Mrs. Blaikie said the program will provide advance training for registered nurses in the field of mental health.

The second program is to be offered soon with the course being offered on a twice-yearly basis in the future.

THE YOUNG AT HEART OF BELLEVILLE

If wrinkles must be written upon our brows, let them not be written upon the heart. — James A. Garfield.

What place in Belleville, easy of access, has wall-to-wall carpeting (with spaces for carpet bowling), in rooms well supplied with tables and chairs, a piano, a reading-room with TV and comfortable chairs? Where a well-appointed kitchen complete with refrigerator has a tea-kettle handy, ready anytime for the making of a good cup of tea? A place, in other words, where friendships, warmth and hospitality abound?

On chatting with Mrs. Wila Summers, a young blue-eyed wife and mother, whose enthusiasm and interest in her work as assistant director of this centre is evident, saying:

"Yes, these are pleasant rooms and the atmosphere most genial. Members, who wish to make a day of it, may come in the morning to watch TV or read. They often make up sandwiches at home, which (kept in fridge) are ready for lunch, or even supper.

"Each afternoon offers a different activity in arts and crafts be it knitting, crocheting, weaving, sewing, painting etc., and tea is available any time for those who wish to make it.

"The evenings provide games: cards, bingo, carpet bowling, for perhaps a musical evening. Many of the members are talented and create their own entertainment or programs. Every fourth Friday, a party and a cake-cut with a lighted candle is given those whose birthday is celebrated within the month, and each member so honored may bring one guest, if he so wish.

"Another phase of my work which I enjoy is to plan and organize bus trips which are numerous and varied, for they are popular. Each Autumn, for instance, a trip is taken to Algonquin Park, to see the colored leaves. This summer, bus-trips to the Toronto Science Center, and to Ottawa to visit the Parliament Buildings, were planned and enjoyed. Also, organizations, such as the Trent Valley Jamboree Club from Stirling have sent down a generous supply of tickets to visit Stirling and attend their entertainment.

Mrs. Summers feels her enthusiasm for her work is not unusual. Many other people work quietly with Belleville groups and organizations, and she paid tribute to the late Mrs. Seldon for her work with others.

"But how did you first become interested?"

"I've always been interested in arts and crafts. I took a course in millinery at the R.C.I. and loved it. I taught it at night school. Later I went to Hastings Manor to help with arts and crafts there which I enjoyed. I began coming to the Re-Creational Centre here and found working with these people a joy."

Since 1966 Mrs. Summer has been attending classes in her field, driving weekly to Toronto, where they are held. This year she will have finished the required 28 courses and obtain her diploma.

Last year she was President of the Easter Ontario Re-Creation Association which is composed of 28 representative members of such groups as the Y.M.C.A., Lindsay Training School for Girls, and the School for the Deaf.

Her life is certainly active and busy one. Even as we chatted the need and call to answer the phone was constant.

"But I love it." Mrs. Summers says smiling, "I find it inspiring being among people regardless of age, so young at heart."

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — The 35th convention of the Ladies' Auxiliary, Royal Canadian Legion Provincial Command ended Thursday with the installation of the new executive and zone commanders. The five-day convention was attended by 1,500 delegates.

The auxiliary, which raises money through card parties, bake sales and sports events, donates money to hospitals and charitable organizations.

The new executive consists of Jean Dumouchelle, Windsor, president; Mary Desjardine, Kingston, first vice-president; Theresa Achtenburg, Hamburg, second vice-president; Gloria Sanford, Richmond Hill, third vice-president; Rose Manning, Orillia, past president; Evelyn Carroll, Goderich, honorary treasurer; and Maxine Jarczak, Essex, chairlady.

A Lonely Widow Needs Friends

Ann Landers

Dear Doris: My trouble is loneliness. I am a widow for a long time, and I pass time with my grandchildren, but my family does not need me any more.

I live in this town where very little recreation and it is difficult to make friends around my age. — Lonely.

Dear Lonely: Loneliness. We lose our lifetime companion and find ourselves with empty hands and hearts.

Find the person in town who needs you. With the experience of years your knowledge has grown and you have something to share.

Say "yes" if you are asked to canvass for the Canadian Cancer Society or to help with the Red Cross Blood Donor Clinic when it comes to town. Keep your eyes open for some activity which could use an extra pair of hands.

Then take your courage in that same pair of hands and volunteer what you have to give. The first plunge is the worst.

• • •

Dear Doris: My brother and I have always been very close and shared confidences. Now my brother admires this camp counsellor who has asked me out: I refused on the grounds of age difference (five years; I'm 16). My brother was furious because he had even told Dad (another fact he would try to arrange things.

Meanwhile I really fell for another guy (Bob) but my brother says this guy was weird. Bob was the first guy I have gone with who hasn't been all hands after the first few dates. I always put it down to respect for me; but my brother tells me that Bob is a homosexual. When he told me some of the things Bob had done it sounded to me more like a guy who liked joking around rather than a "queer".

I really like Bob and now I am afraid he is going to give me a ring for Christmas. I can't possibly take it when my mind is so full of doubts. — Divided Loyalties.

Dear Divided: Your long letter contained a good deal of sense; more than your possessive brother is showing. Your counsellor friend was not for you. He is a man; you are a girl in mid-teens.

Could it be that Big Brother's frustration prompted his telling you unpleasant things about Bob?

Whatever the facts, keep your own counsel. Don't even think of accepting a ring at Christmas; and give yourself a few years to know the other sex better.

Dear Doris: My son has been asked to introduce the head table at a wedding. Could you suggest the nicest way for him to carry out this little chore? — Wedding Procedure.

Dear Procedure: Ordinarily there is no necessity for introducing the head table at a wedding. Guests have already passed through a receiving line, which means that they have already been introduced to each member of the wedding party — which really is the head table.

But, rules are made to be broken. If it is felt that it would add to the sociability of the occasion, why not? There may be a large number of persons present who know only one or two of the wedding party, and would like the matter of ceremonies (or someone be delegates) to take a few minutes to living the limelight to each pretty attendant and attractive groomsman or usher.

He starts at the far left end of the table, presents each person by name and title (bridesmaid, matron-of-honor) and could add colorful comments such as "Mary and the bride played together as babies" or "Betty and Jean roomed together in nursing school".

(Is it better to put up with misunderstandings, or to begin talking things over? Let Doris help you see the light.)

Wife Pilfers Wallet for Necessities

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: All my life I've been completely honest. Telling the truth was the governing law in my growing up years. And now I am doing something worse than lying and I'm a nervous wreck over it. I'm a thief. I take money out of my husband's wallet.

R. drinks like a fish. We have small children. I can't leave them to go to work. He will not move out of the house and refuses to admit that his drinking is a problem. When he comes home at night he falls into bed cockeyed drunk and makes no sense until the next day. The only money I can get is what I take out of his billfold. He never misses it because he can't remember what he spent. This way I can at least keep food on the table. If I waited for him to give me money we'd starve.

But he has made a thief out of me and I hate it. I tell myself this kind of stealing is honorable, but I know in my heart it isn't. Please help me.—Inspired Battle.

Dear I.B.: No kind of stealing is honorable—and you should not allow him to do this to you. In R.'s sober moments he must surely realize he is not giving you any money. What does he think you are living on? I suspect he knows what you've been doing. My advice is to tell him and I'll bet nothing changes, except that you will no longer feel like a thief.

Dear Ann Landers: Hotel and motel occupancy was heavy this summer and I would like to say something that could make a big difference in the life of a maid.

A chambermaid's job is one of the dirtiest. You wouldn't believe what we have to clean up. It's a mystery why people who behave beautifully at home turn into pigs when they check into a hotel or a motel.

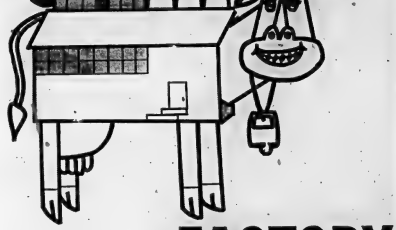
Mirror of Your Mind

by JOHN CONWELL

Are bedtime tales too babyish?

NO. Young children need to unwind before going off to dreamland, and telling them bedtime stories helps them "shift down" in a more restful pace after going full speed all day. More than that, telling them bedtime tales helps make it pleasant for children to go to bed. Youngsters soon fall into the habit of going to sleep at a certain time, long before parents have to go into the "rerun" of the "time stories.



Can a 'brain' be a social liability?

CERTAINLY. Even a near-genius can suffer such inner turmoil that he will commit the clumsiest social boo-boos. People will be sorry to see such a person keep himself aloof to avoid social errors. Watch what happens, though, when a highly intellectual individual who makes these mistakes tries to broach his way out of his embarrassment. Sometimes he will act even more boorish, thinking everyone should put up with him because he is such a "brain."

Marriages, Divorce Both Show Increase

Actual figures showed 9,777,680 married out of the total 1971 population of 21,568,310 compared with 8,723,217 married out of the 1966 population of 20,014,880.

OTTAWA (CP) — The numbers of divorced persons in Canada jumped sharply between 1968 and 1971, with Statistics Canada figures showing increases of 270 per cent.

Team Canada Falls To Third Period Rally by Russians

MOSCOW (CP) — You knew it was going to be another one of those nights for Team Canada when big Phil Esposito skated out to acknowledge the cheers of the crowd and fell flat on the seat of his hockey pants.

Brad Park helped up his fallen leader and Espo bowed to the roaring capacity throng of 15,000.

But 60 minutes later, nobody in the Canadian camp was laughing after witnessing the Soviet national team—down 3-0—come back with five goals in the last 11 minutes to take a 5-4 victory.

The stunning turn-around, which gives Russia a 3-1 lead in the eight-game series with one game tied, was witnessed by Communist party chief Leonid Brezhnev, President Nikolai Podgorny and Premier Alexei Kosygin.

There were also about 3,000 Canadian fans in the stands and they roared throughout the game as Canada tied up the Russians most of the way.

Both clubs stumbled through the first 10 minutes until Team Canada seemed to settle down, forcing the Soviet squad into errors.

The pros left the ice at the end of the first period with a 1-0 lead on Parise's goal, set up by Gilbert Perreault and Ron Gilbert, at 15:30. Parise scored from directly in front of goalie Vladislav Tretyak.. from about 20 feet out.

Clarke, assisted by Henderson, put Canada up 2-0 early in the second, taking the puss from the corner and lining the puck between the goalie's legs. Henderson made it 3-0 midway through the period when he deflected in a pass from the boards with Guy Lapointe and Clarke drawing the assists.

The period ended that way, but not before Henderson was knocked unconscious by a check from Alexander Maltsev.

"It's a good thing he was wearing that helmet," said team doctor Jim Murray between periods. Henderson is the only one on the squad who wears headgear, although a few Russians do.

Henderson made it 4-0 for Canada in a similar play—playing up the ice and taking the pass from Clarke.

Then in the third, Yuri Liapkin hit Anisin with a shot from the point and the youngster tipped it in. Eight seconds later, Shadrin caught the far, open top corner on Tony Esposito's glove side. Suddenly, it was 4-3 and the crowd was stunned.

Both teams were a man short—Clarke and Gennady Tsygankov off for holding and 1:12 is clicking respectively—when Gusev tied it up with a shot from out near the point which went in high over Esposito's shoulder on the stick side.

Defenceman Rod Seiling of New York Rangers was the goat on the winning goal.

He gave the puck away in the Canadians' end to allow Vilsov to go in alone on Esposito. He pulled the goalie and tucked the puck into the open corner.

Both the Russian and Canadian reporters were critical of the refusal by head coach Harry Sinden and assistant John Ferguson to meet reporters after the game.

Ferguson did come into the dressing room corridor for a short time and summed up the reversal with:

"We played 50 minutes of hockey—but you've got to play 60 minutes against this club."

Sinden, he said, was "in-side—I don't think he'll be out."

"Every hockey club has a letdown of four or five minutes in every game. It's inevitable. But the way we let down in that last eight minutes is really hurts."

He credited Anisin who "did it in Winnipeg" with beginning the route here. The Soviets salvaged a 4-4 tie in the Winnipeg game.

"They were shaking like machines," Ferguson said of the Russians.

"The main thing for me," Soviet coach Vsevelod Bobrov recalled of his feelings after the second period, "was not to show the team the state I was in after the second period and, by my outward calm, to give the players hope for the favorable outcome of what was the most difficult match."

In an interview later, Sinden said:

"We beat ourselves. We gave them three goals on mistpays in that last period.

"The difference in conditioning was so obvious it was bewildering," he said.

Asked if his team could rebound, Sinden said he could not answer that until after he had assessed the team's position today.

"If we can be as well prepared for the next game as we were for this one and carry through for 60 minutes, I think we will beat them the next time."

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 22, 1972

CAPTAIN GORD McNEVAN of the Peterborough Lions latches on for more than the ride as he attempts to sow down Belleville Bobcats' forward Dwayne Deighton. McNevan and his defensive mates succeeded for most of the night to give the Lions a 4-3 Toronto Metro Junior B exhibition win Friday. The game was the first of the season for the local B's.

Bobcats Can't Quite Get Together

By ERIC EMERSON
Staff Sportswriter

On an individual basis, the Belleville Bobcats didn't fare too badly Friday night. The problem was that everything was on an individual basis.

The Bobcats lacked co-ordination and teamwork, which coupled with some costly penalties, cost them a 4-3 loss at the hands of the Peterborough Lions.

Coach Moe Hunter wasn't unduly worried over the ragged play, or the one-goal loss to the 1972 Eastern Ontario Junior B champions. It was the first exhibition game of the season for the Bobcats, who along with Peterborough became members of the Toronto Metro League this season.

"We have players from the Belleville juveniles, Trenton juveniles, Belleville midgets, Trenton midgets \ . . we're really trying to weld together about six teams from 1 to 1 a year, so it's really not surprising that we weren't clicking as a team," he noted.

"We've got a lot of work to do, but I think tonight showed that we have a lot of guys who are willing to hustle."

What individuals caught the coach's eye Friday? "I thought Wayne McCreachy played well . . . Dave French did better than I thought he might . . . Rob Foster was shining all night . . . and Mike Watt played an aggressive game," advised Hunter

In truth, some ever-aggressiveness may have been instrumental in providing Peterborough with the exhibition win. The Bobcats had struck quickly to build a 2-0 lead when Neil Turner and John Masterson scored within 1:14 of the opening whistle. They managed to carry a 2-1 margin into the dressing room at the end of the first period.

Five minor penalties against only two for Peterborough, proved to be costly for Belleville as the Lions grabbed a 3-2 lead which they never relinquished.

Bob Moore was victimized for the first three Peterborough goals, while Tom Grabowski allowed one in the third as the teams split the scoring. The Belleville goalies couldn't be faulted for the scores, however, as defensive lapses provided Peterborough with some good scoring chances.

Moore's only mistake came on the third Peterborough goal when he attempted to poke check Paul Bedford. The Lion forward evaded his effort and scored into the open net.

Peterborough jumped into a 4-2 lead in the final period as Rick Doyle was left uncovered in front of Grabowski. Jim Richardson counted the final Bobcats goal at 18.01 of the third after Mc-

Napanee Falls for BCI Line

By ERIC EMERSON
Staff Sportswriter

NAPANEE — You certainly can't accuse BCI seniors of bunting their May of Quinte COSSA football opponents "the same old line," this season.

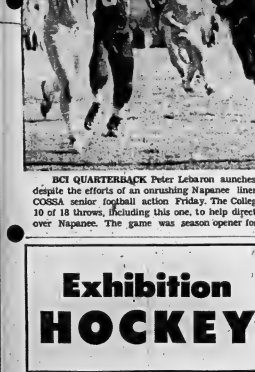
Last year BCI bumbled their way to a dismal third place finish in the senior league's eastern division as Moira and Napanee captured playoff spots. However the Collegians stamped themselves as a force to be reckoned with in 1972 by rocking Napanee 36-0 in their league opener Friday.

Line play and the losers' lack of it, were keys to the BCI victory. The Collegians' defensive unit dominated throughout, holding the losers to a total offence of 40 yards. Conversely, the Belleville team's offensive unit was manhandled by holes in the blue-and-gold defence that allowed BCI to total 274 yards rushing.

"We just weren't blocking", conceded Napanee coach Eric Bartlett. His diagnosis was concise, but accurate. Napanee backs displayed some good moves when provided with running room, but that proved to be a scarce commodity to come by thanks to the excellent pursuit and gang tackling tactics of the smaller Collegians.

John Robin was easily the outstanding player on the team, sparking BCI to a tight 6-0 lead at the half before their offence could get untracked. The interior linebacker was credited with 12 tackles and six assists during the course of the game.

Other contributing members of the BCI defensive front lines included Keith Watson, Ted McBride, Jeff Rae and Peter Scott, in fact just about all of the Collegian linemen saw service there at one time or another. They only had 26 players available for the game, as opposed to 65 Napanee contestants.



Coach Bill Miller was understandably pleased with his team's initial showing. "It's nice to win the first one, particularly when you beat a contender", he noted. It was especially important to us since they play Picton twice and we started out then once", he added referring to the fact that the division shapes up as a three-corner fight between BCI, Napanee and Moira for the two playoff positions.

Belleville's only score in the first half came on a 16-yard sweep by quarterback Peter LeBaron. The second year starter was an offensive powerhouse in the offensive standout, hitting on 10 of 18 passes for 112 yards. He had some on-target aerials dropped by his receivers, including what appeared to be two certain touchdown passes.

Glen Gray topped the count to 12-0 in the third quarter when he swept over from the five-yard line. The convert was missed, but Mike Twigg made it 18-0 shortly afterward by tackling the Napanee punter in the end zone for a safety.

Rick Bell with a six yard plunge and Steve Cowan on a two-yard, off tackle scored other offensive majors, while Robin picked one up for the defence by recovering an errant Napanee punt snap in the end zone. Watson kicked two converts and Charlie Green caught a two yard conversion pass for the other scores.

The losers' outstanding player was cornerback Larry Garrison who, "must have been in on 70 percent of our tackles," noted the Napanee coach.

BCI QUARTERBACK Peter Lebaron aunches a successful air attack despite the efforts of an onrushing Napanee lineman in Bay of Quinte COSSA senior football action Friday. The Collegians' pivot connected on 10 of 18 throws, including this one, to help direct his team to a 36-0 win over Napanee. The game was season opener for both teams.

Rollins Ousted

Rollins' Construction bowed out of OASA intermediate "A" action Friday night by losing the third and deciding game of the quarter-final series with Barrie. Details of the match were not made available.

Now that everybody is comin' over to our slide rail suspension... here's a few more things they should do.

Reds Capture West Pennant

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

Houston Astros have been chasing Cincinnati for most of the baseball season, but finally ran into a Big Red stop sign.

Starred by Johnny Bench, the Reds defeated Houston with a 4-3 victory Friday night that clinched the National League West pennant race.

"It's the best feeling I've ever had," said Cincinnati manager Sparky Anderson after his players won their second division title in three years.

The 1972 Reds isn't quite the same team that won the National League pennant two years ago, agreed Rose.

"This year everybody was hot," said Rose. "In 1970, Bench and Bobby Tolan carried the team."

"I don't have any vendetta against Houston," said the diminutive Morgan. "I just wanted to beat Houston because that's the team we have to beat. I'm glad the Astros—they're the second-place team."

The Reds, although sets up a rematch in the league playoffs against the Pittsburgh Pirates, their 1970 foes. The Pirates, who clinched the East Division pennant Saturday night, defeated Montreal Expos 4-3 in a 12-inning contest Friday night.

Elsewhere, Philadelphia's Steve Carlton and New York Mets 2-4 in 11 innings, Atlanta Braves turned back San Diego Padres 4-3 and Los Angeles Dodgers blanked San Francisco Giants 4-0 in 11 innings.

Sox' Plan Fails for Tigers, Too

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Detroit Tigers, trying the same experiment that had backfired the previous night on Boston Red Sox, suffered a similar fate.

The Tigers, in their bid to take first place in the topsy-turvy American League East, gave Chris Zachary his first start Friday night and dropped a 3-2 score to the Sox who, consequently, lowered one game in front.

The previous night Boston gave rookie Mik Garman his first major league start and it proved disastrous—a 10-3 loss to the Tigers who moved within percentage points of the Red Sox.

Meanwhile, Earl Weaver urgently needs a split in this four-game weekend series by the 1-2 teams in order to keep his third place Baltimore Orioles in contention.

And manager Ralph Houk of New York Yankees is shaking his head. The Yankees have lost six of their last seven games and are in contention only mathematically.

The Red Sox got some chuch relief pitching Friday by Bob Veale and Bob Bolin and a couple of sharp defensive plays by Rick Burleson and Rick Miller.

The Yankees, meanwhile, slipped 4½ games behind with only 19 to play, dropping a 4-1 decision to Gaylord Perry and Cleveland Indians.

In other action, Minnesota Twins shut out California Angels 1-0, Chicago White Sox downed Texas Rangers 8-4 and Kansas City Royals trimmed Oakland Athletics 5-3.

Veale baled Sox starter Lynn McGlothen out of a bases-loaded jam in the sixth inning after Reggie Smith's home run had pulled the Tigers within one run of Boston. Petrocelli speared a third-out liner.

But two innings later, the Tigers loaded the bases with none out against him. Enter Bolin who got Ed Brinkman to ruin a double play, Miller's skidding catch on Jim Northrup's drive ended the inning.

Perry throttled the fading Yankees on eight hits. It was the 27th complete game of the season for the Cleveland workhorse and lowered his earned run average to 1.59.

Chicago, still hoping to catch Oakland in the West, picked up a game by beating Texas with a four run rally. Dick Allen's two-run single drove in the game's opening runs. Ron Santo headed California behind Bert Blyleven's five-hitter.

NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C. (CP) — Brantford Warriors coach Morley Kells says Friday he was at a loss to explain why his team is facing elimination at the hands of New Westminster Salmonbellies in the Mann Cup senior lacrosse final.

Kells said his players have been in every night before curfew, but he added that "our play doesn't say much for clean living."

Brantford has one more chance to get back in the best-of-seven final when they meet New Westminster tonight. The Salmonbellies have a 3-0 lead.

In the first three games, New Westminster has outscored Brantford 46-28. Only once has Brantford hit double figures against the Western Canada representatives, who are averaging four goals a game now. In the Canadian final team they did in regular play in the Western Lacrosse Association.

WELLAND, Ont (CP) — Chatham Maroons scored four unanswered goals in the third period Friday night to down Welland Sabres 6-4 as the Southern Ontario Junior Hockey League kicked off its 1972-73 season.

The teams were tied 2-2 after the first period, but Welland was ahead 4-2 after the second.

CHICAGO (AP) — Ferguson Jenkins of Chicago Cubs, a 20-game winner for the sixth straight year, told the Chicago Tribune Friday he is through pitching for the season because of a sore shoulder.

"I'm not going to pitch any more because my shoulder hurts too much and it would be silly to risk aggravating it," said Jenkins, 28-12. He has been bothered with a stiff shoulder for the last 10 days.

CHICAGO (AP) — Whitey Lockman, interim replacement for Leo Durocher since July 24, was signed Friday as 1973 manager of Chicago Cubs.

Since Durocher's departure as Cub manager, Lockman has directed the team to a 33-31 won-loss record.

Habs Take Page From Russians

MONTREAL (CP) — Taking a page from the Soviet national hockey team's book on conditioning, Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League will pursue a similar program this season.

The program was initiated at the club's pre-season training camp in Sherbrooke, N.S., and starting Monday, it will be continued at a junior college here.

Leo Leyer, physical education instructor at the suburban St. Laurent school, will conduct the course, with the blessing of coach Scotty Bowman.

"We plan to give them gymnastic training, plus volleyball, handball and basketball," Leger said.

"I think it's a great idea," Bowman said. "For the first 15% of the year, everyone will be required to go. Then about mid-season we'll make it optional.

Canadian Trio Return Home

MONTREAL (CP) — Jocelyn Guevremont arrived here Friday night from Moscow and acknowledge of criticism showed through when he was quizzed about the series between Team Canada and the Soviet national team in Moscow.

Guevremont, a defenceman with Vancouver Canucks, left Team Canada along with left wingers Vic Hadfield of New York Rangers and Rick Martin of Buffalo Sabres, when coach Harry Sinden made it clear the trio of National Hockey League stars would not be in his lineup for the four games scheduled for Moscow.

Martin, who set a scoring record for NHL rookies last season with 44 goals, left the flight at Halifax, while the veteran Hadfield travelled by direct flight from London to Toronto.

"I guess I was pretty upset," Guevremont said, "I went to see him (Sinden) after practice and he said he might play me in the last game in Moscow.

"I figured I had a chance to make it, at least into the second game, but Sinden has his own way."

He said the decision to return to Canada was his own and that he, Martin and Hadfield made up their minds individually.

"I think their minds were made up by the time we left training camp, who would play," he said.

"Martin and I felt we would be better off with our own teams. When there are 35 players with a team, it's pretty difficult to get noticed.

Guevremont said no Team Canada would have been better if instead of carrying 35 players to Russia, it had cut down to a more workable 22 following the team's initial training camp.

He said that while some of the all-stars who would have been dropped may have had their feelings hurt the over-all result would have been better.

He said the majority of the players had been looking forward to the series in the beginning, but the travelling and the fact some were not inclined to let the lineup had proved to be a letdown.

"If it s series had been played in January it would have given us a better chance because practice alone is no good," he said.

"The Russians are in good shape because their season is the way all year round through all different kinds of exercises. We have other things besides hockey—business, families—and we only have a part of life."

Asked about discipline and reports that some of the NHL stars were less than dedicated to their assignment in the series Guevremont said many of the players attending Canada were exaggerated

He said some of the players went out for a few nights, but "I don't want to talk about it."

He conceded that it "was difficult for Sinden and Ferguson to maintain rigid control over a group of players drawn from so many different teams.

He said he does not think he will try to play with a national team again if the Russian series becomes an annual affair.

Stewart Paces Qualifying Runs

MOSPORT, Ont. (CP) — Jackie Stewart led a formidable assault at Mosport's lap record Friday in qualifying runs for pole position in Sunday's Canadian Grand Prix.

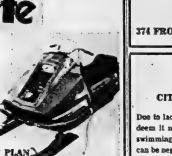
The Scotsman turned the 2.45-mile layout in one minute 14.5 seconds, 3.5 of a second off the record set by Mario Donohue's McLaren in a qualifying run at last year's event.

But since most of the drivers (there were 25 of the expected 28 on the track Friday) were viewing Mosport for the first time, today's runs could produce record-breaking performances by the world elite of auto racing.

Stewart's speed in the Formula One Tyrrell-Ford was listed as 118.25 miles an hour and gave him pole position ahead of Dennis Hulme of New Zealand.

Hulme was clocked in 1:14.7, just ahead of McLaren teammate Peter Revson of the United States, clocked in 1:15 along with Brazil's Emerson Fittipaldi in a Lotus-Ford and Ronnie Peterson of Sweden driving a March-Ford.

Sunday's race, at 2:30 p.m. EDT, could shape up into a battle of world driving champions with Stewart, the 1971 king who likes to remind fans he's reigning champion until Jan. 1, and Fittipaldi, who has sailed down the 1972 title.



The long Canadian is the richest prize of the year for drivers, paying the layout in 1:19.3 the first money, Bill Brack of Clarkston, Ont., was signed as only Friday to drive the fourth British-flying times:

'Bad Start, Bad Finish' Says Fergy

MOSCOW (CP) — A stunned and disappointed Team Canada coach said outside the dressing room Friday night: "We got a bad start."

John Ferguson, assistant coach of Team Canada, stood outside the dressing room Friday night and said, "We got a bad start. We played 35 minutes of hockey, but you've got to play 60 minutes against this club."

The Russian national team was behind 3-0 when it exploded for five goals in the final period, two of them within eight seconds, for a 5-3 decision and take a 2-1 lead in the eight-game series.

Russian and Canadian reporters were critical of the Team Canada coaches for not altering the post-game news conference.

Ferguson spoke briefly to Canadian writers in the hallway.

Of coach Harry Sinden, he said:

"Harry's inside. I don't think he'll be out."

Ferguson said it was rookie Vyacheslav Anisin, at 5-foot-6 and 165 pounds one of the smallest men in the hard-skating Russian squad, who turned the game around.

"The kid did it in the Winnipeg game (a 4-4 comeback tie for the Russians) and he turned the game around for them here, too."

Anisin deflected home a point shot by Yuri Lapshin at 8.38 of the third period to start the Russians on the way back.

"They were skating like machines," Ferguson said. They got four goals within 11 minutes.

"Every hockey club has a let down of four or five minutes in every game. It's inevitable. But the way we let down is that last eight minutes really hurt. Two quick goals by Anisin and Vladimir Shadrin, eight seconds apart, and we can't come back.

"We played well for two periods, although we were sloppy in the first 10 minutes of the game. In the third period, they earned three goals and we gave them two."

Gabler Has Motivation

HAMILTON (CP) — Wally Gabler has plenty of motivation for Sunday's Eastern Football Conference game at Ivor Wynne Stadium.

The enterprising scholar from Michigan was traded by the Tiger Cats to Edmonton Eskimos several weeks ago, refused to go, and wound up in Toronto.

He was also the coach Leo Cahill's disastrous season and a loss to the Cats in here Sunday would just about eliminate Toronto from postseason play.

Two other Eastern Conference clubs are playing in the west this weekend.

Montreal Alouettes, four points ahead of Toronto in the standings, visit Calgary Stampeders for a Canadian Football League interlocking game Sunday afternoon that will be carried on the CBC television network at 4 p.m. EDT.

Ottawa Rough Riders, co-leaders in the East with Hamilton, play in Edmonton tonight in another interlocking game being carried by the CBC-TV national network starting at 10 p.m. EDT.

A plan for the Argos would be to nullify quarterback Chuck Ealey, an exciting young quarterback who has selected Las been primarily the undoing of most CFL defenses this year.

The 22-year-old first-year player from the University of Toledo (Ohio) is third in rushing, behind team-mate Leo Buchanan and Toronto's Leon McQuay and has the best current passing record in the East.

His 60.8 percentage of pass completions gives him a comfortable margin in this department over the other eastern passers, none of whom is above the 50 per cent mark. Ealey also leads in yards gained passing, touchdown passes and has the lowest ratio of passes intercepted.

Keying on him Sunday will be Argo defensive tackle Jim Stillwagon, who Hamilton guard Ed Chalupka thinks is three inches taller and 30 pounds over 36.

Both Chalupka, whose job is to cover the Argo tackle, and Stillwagon are identical 6-foot-three-six foot and 240 pounds.

"I like to play against the big guys . . . like Ed George (Montreal) and Rudy Sims (Ottawa) . . . because (Jim) Stillwagon is always getting his fingers in my eyes."

Chalupka gives Stillwagon credit for being "fast off the mark, a lot faster than Sims" in their last meeting Stillwagon got through once to nail Ealey for a loss but Chalupka, who grew shortly after with a cut eye, credited in fact with helping Doug Mitchell, and an alling knee resulting from a Chalupka block.

Panthers Get Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The running effort of Bob Bell for Scarborough Rams, their defensive play by Brantford Bisons and a field goal by Peterborough Panthers gave each team a victory in the three Ontario Junior Football Conference games played Friday.

Visiting Scarborough whipped Oakville Oaks 43-6, Brantford edged Burlington Braves 7-2 at Burlington and Peterborough defeated Oshawa Hawkeyes 20-13 on home ground.

Bell ran Oaks's opening kickoff back 100 yards for a touchdown and later returned a punt 33 yards for his second points of the evening in leading Scarborough to its win.

Brantford counted 25 yards for a touchdown by John Pikula in the first quarter of its encounter against Burlington. Glen Dawson converted and Brantford made the seven points stand.

Burlington had to be content with two singles kicked by Henry Buck as Brantford made an unusual six-play, goal-to-stand in the final quarter.

Burlington failed to score from inside the three-yard line on three plays, then got three more unsuccessful opportunities when a penalty gave this first down again at the one-yard line.

In the Scarborough-Oakville engagement, Bell's efforts were aided by Rick Jones, Pat Mallen, Lance Perrin and Dave Kilpatrick who each scored a touchdown. John Archbold kicked five converts, a field goal and a single on a kickoff.

Peterborough's Mike Barnett got in the way of Ralph's Jewellers's punt attempt for Oshawa and ran the ball back 32 yards for the score late in the first half.

Oshawa's touchdown went to Les Nagy and Doug Smart. Smart also kicked one convert.

Menne Isn't Kicking

ROBINSON, Ill. (AP) — "Man, I made me some field goals out there," Bob Menne enthused after assuming top spot in the field going into today's third round of the $100,000 Robinson Fall Golf Classic.

Menne, who hasn't made expenses since challenging for the title in the rich National Airlines tournament early in 1970, was talking about the long putts—three from field range—he made en route to a five-under-par 66 in Friday's second round.

Among his six birdies were putts of 35, 30, 25 and 20 feet. And he holed off a 108-yard wedge shot for an eagle three on the 557-yard 12th hole.

The 30-year-old Menne had a 36-hole total of 132, seven under par on the 6,566-yard Crawford County Country Club course, and a one-stroke over Jim Colbert, Jimmy Heacox and Steve Opperman, tied at 137. Rhyan and Colbert matched 68s and Opperman had a 69.

The half-dozen at 138 included Menne, who has been the money winner here two years ago, former U.S. Open title-holder Orville Moody, first-round leader Grier Jones, Larry Ziegler, Dave Marud and Rocky Thompson.

Gary Sorterman of Toronto, with 140, and Ken Fulton of Montreal at 144, also made the half-way cut for rounds today and Sunday. Canadians not qualifying were Dewitt Weaver with 147, Wilf Homenuk of Winnipeg 150 and Wayne Volkenant of Vancouver at 151.

Many of the game's great stars are skipping this event, which offers a $20,000 first prize. Among them are Lee Trevino, Jack Nicklaus, Arnold Palmer and Gary Player.

NEW YORK (AP) — Bobby Fischer, newly-crowned world chess champion, got an official city hall welcome Friday. He showed up early for a change, but he still was nervous about television cameras.

Actually, Fischer, 29, is a Chicago native. But he grew up in Brooklyn and calls it home.

Fischer won the chess championship by defeating Boris Spassky of the Soviet Union in a series of matches in Reykjavik, Iceland. A crowd of about 1,000 was on hand to watch him receive the city's Gold Medal.

He leafed through a scrapbook of clippings presented by Lindsay and recalled that he spent 32 hours a day in New York chess clubs while growing up.

Fischer objected to television cameras at a reception which followed the official outdoor welcome. As a result, all photographers were barred from inside city hall.

School Freedoms Said Too Excessive

WINNIPEG (CP) — The new president of the Canadian Education Association said Friday the country's educational system should return to traditions of discipline and order in the classroom.

Dr. H. M. Nason of Halifax, deputy minister in the Nova Scotia department of education, said in an interview that the new freedoms granted to students in recent years have perhaps been extended too far.

"Freedom has little meaning if it is not tempered with discipline," he said on the final day of the association's annual meeting.

From the reaction of delegates to talks and discussions during the convention, "I detect a feeling we should return to more traditional approaches in education."

In his address to the convention, Dr. Nason said persons involved in education must seek "to accomplish a successful synthesis between freedom and control in matters ranging all the way from the national level to the level of the individual school and classroom." He said the time has come "to exercise more moral fibre."

Several speakers at the conference had suggested the educational system was floundering in a state of disorder and lack of purpose, and that it is failing to keep pace with rapid changes in society.

Listed among symptoms creating unrest in the school system was the shift away from established curricula to schooling based on student choice, government solicitation of public opinion of what schools should teach, and decline in the use of methods which suggest schools are molding children in stereotype images.

This matter of purpose, and concern about spiralling costs, were given most of the attention of the 700 delegates—school administrators, trustees, and teachers—in attendance.

William Charlton, chairman of the Toronto board of education, received an enthusiastic reception when he told delegates they are "the high priests of education" and it is for them to give direction before control of the system is lost to them by default.

Primary Readers 'Outdated'

TORONTO (CP) — A group of parents wants the provincial government to give female characters a better break in primary school readers used up to Grade 3 by children across the province.

The eight parents, from rural communities just north of Metropolitan Toronto, prepared a brief for presentation Friday to the ministry of education in which they complained about sex-role stereotyping in the readers.

Mrs. Dicky Gleman of King, mother of three and a member of the group, said that primary readers do not reflect the pattern of modern-day life at all.

"Men and women play a far wider role in modern society than the regimented life-style would have us believe."

The group wants the examiners of male and female-oriented stories to be better balanced, girls and women to appear in more active roles, and a wider variety of career opportunities mentioned for girls.

Escape Route Was Hindered

MONTREAL (CP) — Chief Inspector Maurice Lessard of the Montreal fire department testified at a coroner's inquest Friday that a kitchen fire escape at the Blue Bird Club was narrower than it should have been and that access to it was hindered by a kitchen counter.

Insp. Lessard told the inquest into the Sept. 1 fire which killed 37 people at the club and injured 53 that municipal fire regulations specify that such a fire escape should be 34 inches wide. The width of the kitchen fire escape was 22½.

Insp. Lessard also said that a counter restricting access to the fire escape was built without authority.

He told the inquest Thursday that "except for the locked exit door," the country and western music night club met every safety regulation.

Andre Bonneville testified the establishment had made several "unauthorized modifications" to the floor plan of the upstairs hall where most of the victims died.

Jean-Marc Boutin, 24, an unemployed cook, James O'Brien, 23, unemployed, and Gilles Lefebvre, 24, who was to start a new job on the Monday following the fire, are being held on coroner's warrants as material witnesses to the fire.

What the Stars Say

By JEANE DIXON

SUNDAY, SEPT. 24

Aries (March 21 – April 19): Special sports have a special appeal — you can take sides without yourself actually getting involved or fatigued.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Amidst the turmoil think over recent months to see a pattern for guidance in coming financial maneuvers. Allow others their dignity.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Do your share of community citizens, see what is going on, and where you may be helpful. A break for a siesta is in order.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Moderate co-operation is all that is promised. You can better use the time in serious study or rusting in advanced details.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Channel your energies into available activities rather than be frustrated for lack of access to weekday working materials or facilities.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Relinquish that harsh opinion somebody provoked you into expressing. Letting others have opinions and free speech pays off.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Imaginative ventures are in your chart for the moment— then you would do well to appreciate. Give thought to your health and its maintenance.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Rest with a minimum of unskippable routines. Give young people something to do or some place to go; seek personal privacy.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Original thought is favored, and even simple tasks like notes or lectures can exclude none of it. Share what comes to you.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Some formality will calm your time in the morning. The rest of the day seems to be pretty much yours—see that you don't squander.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Your humor runs high and you can worry friends along on a symbolic inspection tour of your world. Be sure you say nothing unfair.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Of the quiet things that require no great exertion nor close physical cooperation. Later hours are for lively discussions.

Heated Exercise Aid to Arthritic

By G.C. THOSTESON MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: You wrote that "rheumatoid arthritis is an acutely inflammatory disease and can cause severe crippling if not kept under control at the proper time."

Last spring I came up with a great idea I'd like to pass along. My hands were becoming "frozen" and the pain was excruciating. Something had to be done and quickly. By accident I found the answer.

Heat and exercise simultaneously administered.

Method: Squeeze tightly (don't wring) a large 7x4x1½ inch cellulose sponge under comfortably hot water, letting hands warm up freely over hands and wrists, six or more times daily.

Results, after three weeks: Finger flexible, can pick up pins and write! Grip and pain almost gone, can shake a tight fist; muscles improving; circulation improved.

In just a month I am back sewing, knitting, doing household tasks in comfort. Simple, inexpensive (sponge, 49 cents tax included).—Mrs. J.W.O.

I want to praise you for using good sense. Would you (only very mildly indeed) for not moving some of the possible pitfalls of arthritis treatment.

Heat and movement to prevent "freezing" of joints are two basic elements of controlling arthritis. Not the only ones, but two important ones.

Your sponge and hot water were an ingenious combination, and I'm delighted that they worked as well for you. The idea, without question, will be useful for others.

At the same time, as a physician, I feel that I have to warn a bit about certain possibilities. First, arthritis is an unpredictable ailment that can come and go without visible reason. (And the more it goes, the better!)

Another question: was yours rheumatoid arthritis, or some other kind? Rheumatoid arthritis, in its acute stages, usually requires medication to subdue the inflammation, because heat and movement alone can't do it, without a great deal of hack.

Further, with severe acute rheumatoid, even the squeezing of the sponge could be too much strain until the inflammation subsides.

So I say brave to you for a useful idea, but I have to append the other warnings for fear some folks may jump to the conclusion that it's a surefire "cure" for rheumatoid arthritis.

"Arthritis," particularly if it comes on rather abruptly, ought to be diagnosed definitely, because if it is rheumatoid, prompt care and relief are usually urgent to prevent crippling.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Would you explain why sickle cell anemia is a Negroes' disease exclusively—A.B.

It isn't, even though it is vastly more prevalent in black people (about 10 per cent). It also appears in some others, principally those from the Mediterranean area.

The explanation is believed to be that this distortion of the blood cells has evolved from an effort by nature to combat malaria, which for generations has flourished in those areas.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: When does a wound re-date? Is it 14 days after the first day of the period, or 14 days after the end of the period?—K.V.

Usually 14 days BEFORE the beginning of the NEXT period. That would be 14 days after the first day of the preceding period if a woman has a regular 28-day cycle. But some women don't.

Irish Leaders Begin Critical Discussions

Peace Plan Pondered

KAMPALA (Reuter) — Uganda awaited Tanzania's reaction today to President Idi Amin's condition that Tanzanian forces be withdrawn from the border before he accepts a peace plan.

Amin indicated Sunday that he was prepared to approve the five-point peace plan drawn up by Somalia's president, Mohamed Siad Barre to settle the crisis between Tanzania and Uganda that last week threatened open war in East Africa.

But Amin made clear to the Somali mediator that Tanzania must pull its troops back at once from the Uganda border and warned that they faced heavy air attack if they did not do so.

Kampala radio said Amin described the peace plan as "very good" when he received Somali Foreign Minister Omer Arteh, who has been shuttling between Kampala and Dar es Salaam, Tanzania, on a mission of mediation.

Earlier, when passing through Kenya on his way to Uganda from Tanzania, Arteh said hat Tanzanian President Julius Nyerere had accepted the Somali settlement proposals.

However, there has been no official word from Dar se Salaam on the proposals.

Medical Check-ups Expensive Service

MONT GABRIEL, Que. (CP) — Regular medical check-ups are an expensive service which may not be as important as people think, the secretary-general of the Canadian Medical Association said Sunday.

Dr. J. D. Wallace spoke at the first joint meeting of the boards of directors of Canada's largest health professional associations—the CMA, the Canadian Nurses' Association and the Canadian Hospital Association.

"We must take a look at the whole concept of the regular check-up mass screening programs," said Dr. Wallace.

"They are costly procedures after all, and we must see if they really are necessary."

He also urged the cutting down of the public's use of hospital emergency and out-patient departments for their health needs.

"These are the most costly elements in the health system," Dr. Wallace said.

A resolution of the meeting calls on provincial governments to launch public education programs to discourage the overuse of health services and the unnecessary use of doctors.

"Someone should tell the Yippies that there's no room in Canada."

Steinberg's Settled

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian Food and Allied Workers Union and Steinberg's Miracle Mart Supermarkets reached a settlement Sunday in their contract dispute. It still must be ratified by union members.

Terms of the settlement were not released.

The proposed contract would cover 1,500 full-time and 3,000 part-time employees of the 50 Steinberg's stores in southern Ontario. It will be submitted to union members Tuesday.

A strike had been set for Thursday.

Strict Security Covers Meetings

DARLINGTON, England (Reuter) — Leaders from three of Northern Ireland's political parties opened talks today on the constitutional future of Ulster amid tight security precautions.

Police, fearing a possible Irish Republican Army guerrilla attack, patrolled in force around the grounds of the conference site, a hotel close to this northeast England industrial town.

The parking of cars, which might contain bombs, has been banned for more than half a mile around the Georgian-style Europe Lodge hotel.

All incoming mail was being checked for letter bombs. Round-the-clock patrols combed the 56-bedroom hotel's 15 acres of grounds. The golf course adjoining it was closed to the public.

The parties attending the three-day meeting are the Protestant-dominated Unionist party, which ruled Northern Ireland until the British government suspended the Ulster Parliament there last March, the small Northern Ireland Labor party and the moderate Alliance party.

Four of Ulster's seven parties are boycotting the conference and observers see little chance of any positive results coming from the meeting.

But William Whitelaw, the British minister in charge of Northern Ireland and the conference speaks with "a forked tongue."

Young Top Singer

LONDON (CP) — Canadian singer Neil Young won two major awards in this year's international pop polls organized by the mass-circulation British pop magazine, Melody Maker. Toronto-born Young, 26, was voted by British pop music enthusiasts top international singer, outclassing American Bob Dylan and Don McLean. Young's album, Harvest, also was voted top record of the year.

Weapons Stolen

MONTREAL (CP) — More than $30,000 worth of guns and ammunition was stolen during the weekend from All Canada Gun and Sales Co. Ltd. of suburban St. Michel. Police said thieves entered the building by cutting a hole in the rear cellar wall and stole 108 revolvers, 30 rifles and the ammunition.

Police Under Seige

LOS ANGELES (Reuter) — A north Los Angeles police station came under siege for nearly one hour Sunday night when unidentified gunmen fired on it from all sides, pinning down the police on duty. Two unidentified men were shot and in custody, the officials said.

Foot Guards Honored

OTTAWA (CP)—The Governor-General's Foot Guards received Sunday what commanding officer Lt.-Col. H. R. Hill called "the highest award a regiment can receive" — freedom of the city. The centuries-old honor gives the unit official permission to march through the City of Ottawa "with bayonets fixed and colors flying." The unit, which first saw battle during the Riel Rebellion, now is composed mainly of students who parade on Parliament Hill in the summer.

Boy Wedged in Tires

TOKYO (AP) — The body of a young Chinese was found stuck between the tires of the landing gear of a Cathay Pacific Airways jetliner when it arrived at Tokyo International Airport Sunday night from Taipei. Police expressed belief the man must have been caught by the wheels at Taipei Airport when the jetliner took off for Tokyo.

CN Train Kills Two

BATH (Staff) — Two men were killed this morning when their truck was hit by a Canadian National railliner three miles north of here.

Names of the victims were not released pending notification of next of kin.

The two-unit train, westbound for Toronto, hit the truck at 9:45 a.m. and was derailed by the impact. The men were, the police statements of the crash.

22 Killed

Birthday Celebration Turns Into Holocaust

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — "It took one wall where the 11 kids were and just pushed it," one witness gasped after a burning plane slashed into an ice cream parlor jammed with children and their parents, killing 22 persons.

Authorities said one family of four died in the crash Sunday along with at least 19 children. Twenty-six others, mostly children, were injured when the private plane catapulted across a highway sheriff after takeoff and hit Farrell's Ice Cream Parlor.

The pilot of the Korean war vintage jet fighter survived and was quoted as saying, "I'm sorry! I'm sorry!" as he was pulled from the wreckage.

Describing the scene as the wall where the 17 youngsters had been sitting, Dave Thornton said: "They were all in a big pile. It just pushed them." He ran to the crash area from a nearby bowling alley.

A 13-year-old girl in the shop crowded with about 100 persons said she thought it was "a gimmick" to accompany the arrival of a special ice cream tunday. "Then everyone started screaming and running."

Don McChuky, a management trainee working at the store, said a birthday party group of 17 persons was seated at the table at the front window and had just been served with ice cream, candy and favors when the plane crashed through the wall beside them. Most of the dead were found in that part of the store.

The crash occurred as the F-86 Sabrejet was taking off from Sacramento's Executive Airport after participating in an air show. The plane had been converted to civilian use.

Witnesses said the plane appeared to lose power in the takeoff. It crashed on an old levee barrier at the end of the runway and hurtled across a four-lane highway.

The craft burst into flames about the time it hit three autos parked by the front entrance to the ice cream parlor. Two of the autos were rammed with the burning plane through the front of the building.

Twenty of the dead were tentatively identified as customers in the store. Five others had been seated in one of the autos crushed by the jet.

The pilot was identified as Richard Bingham, 36, of Napa, Calif., general manager of Spectrum Air, a corporation controlled by William Penn Patrick, a prominent cosmetics manufacturer.

Bingham was listed in satisfactory condition in hospital with fractures.

A witness said a man with a pale of wire cutters ran to the jet and cut the pilot loose.

All of Sacramento's ambulances were called to the scene as rescue workers began dragging bodies from the flaming building.

Election Campaign Is Livening Up

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Even for an election campaign, it was an unusual weekend. Among other things:

—In Vancouver, the Right Honorable the Prime Minister, Pierre Trudeau, used an obscene word to tell a Vietnam war protester to go away. For good measure, Mr. Trudeau also told him to "shut up."

—The Honorable Leader of Her Majesty's Loyal Opposition, Robert Stanfield, told a Toronto audience that "I'd like to be a lion."

—A Conservative candidate in Ottawa told a crowd of people drawn mainly from subsidized housing that anyone earning under $20,000 a year is in the low-income class.

—For 15 minutes, Vancouver hotel officials refused to tell Mrs. Trudeau what room her husband was in.

—Claude Wagner, Mr. Stanfield's Quebec lieutenant, predicted that many supporters of the separatist Parti Quebecois will vote Conservative in the Oct. 30 federal election.

Unseasonal Blizzard Covers Prairie Grain

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A wintery storm shrieked across the southern portions of Alberta and Saskatchewan during the weekend, leaving much of the prairie grain country under snow.

Up to eight inches fell and temperatures were as much as 30 degrees below normal. Harvesting throughout the south in both provinces is not complete.

The Alberta Wheat Pool reported last week that warm, dry weather was needed to allow crops to be picked up. About 35 per cent of the wheat in Alberta had been harvested then.

Last Tuesday, the Saskatchewan Wheat Pool reported 67 per cent of that province's wheat was in bins.

The heaviest snowfalls were reported along the Alberta foothills. By Sunday night Pincher Creek reported five inches on the ground and Calgary, Lethbridge and Medicine Hat had three inches remaining.

There was an unofficial report that 11 inches had fallen in Saskatchewan's Cypress Moose Jaw and Swift Current Sunday. The weather office in Regina reported Moose Jaw had received eight inches, Regina four and Swift Current five.

Temperatures in the snowfall areas were in the high 20s and were expected to dip to the low 20s or colder early today.

A spokesman at the Regina weather office said so much snow in the grainbelt this early in the season is a rarity.

A measurable amount of snow on or about Sept. 21 occurs about once every 25 years in Regina, he said.

An Edmonton weather office official said the heavy snowfall combined with below freezing temperatures was unusual for the third week of September.

The temperature in Edmonton has not been above freezing since Friday night. Twenty-nine was the high on both Saturday and Sunday.

Low temperature records fell throughout both provinces Sunday. Grande Prairie, Alta. reported 12, smashing the previous record of 22 set in 1955.

Other low records in Alberta and Saskatchewan were in the mid-20s.

The snow came from a moist northeastgrly wind which blew down along the foothills said the Edmonton forecaster. The storm had died out in Saskatchewan, but more snow was a possibility for southern Alberta today.

Two Men Sought After Motel Holdup

A man, armed and wearing a silk stocking over his face, held the night clerk at the Black Hawk Motor Inn on Front Road 33 at gunpoint early today, then escaped with an accomplice with more than $1,000 from the hotel office and cash register.

Desk clerk William Norris was on duty at 2 a.m. when the first man approached him from behind, police said. The deskman saw what looked like a black pistol and a stocking over the man's face before he was ordered to lie on the floor with the gun at his neck.

The man, unforgotten and wearing gloves, covered Norris' eyes with one hand while the second man entered and forced open the office door.

After the money had been taken, the armed man warned Norris not to get up for 10 minutes.

Norris stayed on the floor a few minutes before standing up and calling city police. The time was 2:14 a.m.

Although Norris never saw the second man, he described the man as 5-foot-11-inch mains running from the west, across the Trent River.

Acceptance of a $77,000 cost proposal, as against an $85,000 alternative for a price tag of $130,000, will mean an approximate increase to the PUC of $50,000.

The Utilities Commission will apply to have the job done under the winter work plan. Under the plan, the provincial government will pay for the labor and 25 per cent of the supervision and material costs.

If the job is not accepted under winter works, the Commissioner will be approached to pay for the work under the PUC's 1973 budget.

The entire pipeline plan will now go to the department of the environment for approval.

Staff Proposes Pipeline Linkup

TRENTON (Staff) — Trenton's Public Utilities Commission Thursday approved in principle a plan to link their two main water sources, storage facilities and filtration plant together.

At its regular monthly meeting, the commission approved a plan prepared by utilities staff to extend trunk mains to connect the 12-inch mains running from the west, across the Trent River.

Fishing Trip Becomes Ordeal of Endurance

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

A Belleville man engaged in an exhausting endurance test Saturday, when his light, home-built fishing craft sank off Mamaseaga Point.

Wes Griffiths, 234 Coleman St., a veteran hunter and fisherman for about 28 years, said the scene of his ordeal was "a horrible place to get lost in."

Mr. Griffiths had set out early Saturday for some pike fishing, on the Bay of Quinte shoreline, southeast of Belleville. After landing a couple of fish he returned to his car for something to eat and to get warm.

He returned to his boat only to get its light outboard motor neared in weeds.

"The engine churned about in the weeds and operated like a winch, pulling the stern of the boat under," he said.

"Once the engine was shut off I tried to sit as far into the bow as possible to balance the boat but water had already begun splashing in."

Once he knew the boat was sinking, Mr. Griffiths said he reached for a life preserver and a paddle and jumped over.

"I turned the boat into keeping an air lock beneath it, and then rested on top of the hull," he recalled.

"I realized I could sit there forever, and decided it would be better if I got off and swam for it."

Thrusting the paddle in front, Mr. Griffiths began swimming in what he thought was shore.

"I hadn't considered the weight of the weeds in the water and was beat by the time I made it to land," he said.

What he made it to was a marsh, and night came on shortly after.

"I trooped around in the marsh for about four hours, until I heard voices coming from somewhere," he said.

"While hearing the headlight grass and searching for solid footing, I tried to holler in whatever was out there to let them know I was in trouble.

"I hollered 'hello' again and again until they answered 'hello' back, so I decided to try hollering help," he said.

"It was one thing to hear the voices but another to find which direction they were coming from," said Mr. Griffiths.

"I told them I would walk with the noise at my back and give them some kind of bearing."

While Mr. Griffiths struggled in the marsh, identification was found in his parked car and the people who'd heard the shouts phoned provincial police.

By this time night was falling and I was worried about getting out," he said. "I finally saw a red glow from a flare and made my way to it," said Mr. Griffiths.

He discovered he had been no more than 100 yards from rescuers, who were about to leave, before they heard his calls of distress.

Back home, Mr. Griffiths thanked two Prince Edward County hunters Roger Keenan and Kirk Parsons, responsible for aiding him. He lamented the loss of much equipment and a 12-gauge shotgun.

The hunters returned to the scene yesterday and drew the Griffiths boat back to Mamaseaga Point.

Reading Centre Open at CHSS

MADOC (Special) — This fall, Centre Hastings Secondary School has added something new — The Reading Centre. Here reading programs are planned for all levels of ability — poor, average, or advanced.

Every student in the Year 1 level and Special Education will spend one term in the Reading Centre this year. Periods have been scheduled for referred students and also for voluntary students who wish to improve their reading skills to prepare themselves for the mountains of reading they will encounter at college and university. The centre is prepared to provide for individual work, a small group instruction or full class sessions. One subject teacher and one standby are always on hand.

Ten reading carrels provide for individual work in one area of the centre. At the carrels, the students may use individually the Sindlewscope pacers, T-Matic 138, or the Language Master programs in basic vocabulary as a second language. In the centre of the room, there are desks facing a large screen at the front where the Tachomatic 200 flashes the visual tracking films from the tachistoscope.

Several programs have been purchased to teach reading at the secondary level — Tachomatic Training films, Optimum Reading for Achievement, Purdue Developmental Reading Films, Ives Rapidio Reading Programs, Discovery Spelling and an Rx Prescriptive Program. Developmental, Corrective and Remedial Reading will be in use in the new Reading Centre. A night school course in Developmental Reading is being prepared for adult classes this fall.

Controls for Economy Ready -- If Required

TRENTON (Staff) — Although the government sees the possibility remote at present, wage and price controls have been prepared and sit on a shelf ready to be activated in case the situation gets out of hand, Labor Minister Martin O'Connell said here Sunday.

The remarks were made during a low - key speech to Prince Edward - Hastings Liberal workers at the Dutch Mill Inn. The minister, speaking on behalf of Liberal candidate George Cunningham, addressed an early - morning breakfast attended by 125 party supporters from all points in the constituency.

Mr. O'Connell concentrated on the government's handling of unemployment, inflation, and foreign investment policies.

Said Jr. O'Connell: "Yes, there are economic problems but I think you can say the government has done its home work and is prepared to face problems as they arise."

He said the unemployment figure of six per cent of the labor force out of work is too high and it was his opinion the worst phase has been overcome.

"The situation is due to the baby boom that followed World War II. As a result no other industrialized nation has so many youths under 25 seeking jobs. The government, however, is matching their demands with its Opportunities for Youth program."

Women often add to complications because the job they fill are in the market where youth are competing, he said.

Mr. O'Connell said that signs of inflation show again as food prices spiral upwards.

In the field of foreign investment he noted the government supports Canadian companies establishing branches in Brazil and Portugal.

Mr. O'Connell explained that in the last four years needs of the people were foremost while in the next four years attention will be paid more to economic improvements.

New College Course Traces Civilization

Two years ago historian Kenneth Clark enthralled television audiences with a series of programs that traced development of western civilization through its art, sculpture and architecture.

Now, local residents are offered an opportunity to study the panorama of western development in more detail through a credit course offered by the extension department of Loyalist College.

The course is inspired by Kenneth Clark's approach to history and views western culture as a dynamic movement of human thought and action reflected in its art and architecture.

Techniques for aesthetic analysis of the visual arts will introduce the course. Subsequent lectures will examine the way different artists used their media to express the spirit of their respective cultures and ages.

David Chabot, an architect and Wayne Cole, lecturer in art history and literature, will give the course that covers the development of western culture from 3,000 BC to 1800.

It begins Oct. 3 at 7 p.m. and will be held every Tuesday night for 15 weeks. Lectures, lavishly illustrated, last two hours. A college credit will be given for successful completion of the course, but the college urges interested people to enrol in the lecture series as an interest course. Registrations are now being accepted. Cost for the 15 lectures is $22.50.

Edith Cavell Nursing School Ceremony Sept. 27

Miss Joan Macdonald, director of the College of Nurses of Ontario, will be the keynote speaker at the official opening of the Edith Cavell Regional School of Nursing to be held next Wednesday, September 27.

John W. Deacon, board chairman, will welcome guests and visitors followed by greetings from Mayor J. Russell Scott, Hastings MPP Clarke T. Rollins, retired Hastings MP Lee Grills and Phillip Rickard, executive director of the hospital.

Greetings will also be heard from hospital heads at Picton, Trenton and Campbellford.

The regional school of nursing adjacent to the Belleville General Hospital, with residential facilities for 140 students, has been in full use since the start of this year.

Plans for the regional school date back to 1965 with the region taking in Trenton Memorial Hospital Prince Edward County Memorial Hospital and Campbellford Memorial Hospital with students to receive clinical training in each of the institutions.

In October, 1970, construction of the new building began, including renovation of the old building to which it is attached.

The school was named after Edith Cavell, British nurse who early in World War I, with the German invasion of Belgium, set up an escape system designed to help Allied soldiers escape into Holland. Miss Cavell was arrested by German authorities in 1915, declared guilty of high treason and was executed.

Following the ribbon cutting ceremony at 3 p.m. Wednesday, there will be public tours of the new nursing school.

Cemetery Nears Centennial

In the year 1872, the Belleville cemetery had its humble beginnings when the people of this community decided they needed a "suitable resting place for the dead."

The 100-year-old minutes of the cemetery board's first meeting.

The chairman of the first cemetery board for Belleville was soon to aspire to highest position Canada has to offer any politician.

In 1894, Sir Mackenzie Bowell, the cemetery's first chairman was elected prime minister of the country.

On Oct. 12, 1972, the cemetery will quietly recognize its 100th birthday and perhaps the most significant change or project in its birthday year will be the loss of the main gates.

Construction, which draws nearer to completion each day, will soon reroute traffic away from the gates as they now stand and the new entrance will have to be placed at the western boundary of the cemetery.

Tom Purdy, superintendent of the grounds said he was not certain whether the gates would be kept and transferred to the new location or if new gates would be bought.

"One thing about this new road going in is people will get a lot better look at what the cemetery is like," he said.

When motorists travel over the bridge above the Canadian National tracks, they will get an aerial view of the grounds, "which means we'll have to keep them in top shape" said the keeper.

After complying with Ontario legislation and legislation from Upper Canada, Belleville formed a stock co-operative to get the cemetery on its feet.

To cover the $10,000 cost of the grounds, 1,000 stocks were created and sold at $20 each.

Stockholders never in a day any dividends from their investment, shown the dogeared, still intact record book which outlines in depth the payment plans of supporters.

Change over the years has been slow coming, but one of the most significant changes in the cemetery is the cost of being put in.

In 1889 it would cost a client $2 to be interred, in the summer and $3 in the winter.

The same job now costs approximately $50.

In the 1890 cost, an annual charge of 50 cents was levied for the upkeep of the grave. To day a grave will now cost about $160.

Progress is progress and one good thing has come to the cemetery during the construction of the highway.

The Department of Highways is giving the cemetery piles of land fill to use for landscaping.

There will be no crash or boom to the centennial cemetery celebration.

Rather, just reminding people that the cemetery has been around for a long time and it is still only half filled.

Antique Course Back at Loyalist

Gerald Stevens, well-known authority on Canadiana, will return to Loyalist College this fall with his lecture series on Canadian antiques and art and design.

Mr. Stevens is the author of several books on Canadian antiques and is an expert on early Canadian glass.

He will again present his series on regional furniture of Ontario, Quebec and the Maritimes, their methods of construction, identification and authentication. This series of lectures begins Oct. 3 and continues every Monday from 7 to 9 p.m. for 10 weeks.

The second lecture series will concentrate on early Canadian paintings, sculpture, design and sources of authentication. It is an extension of the Canadian art series offered by Mr. Stevens last year and will cover recently authenticated colors and forms of early glass, weaving, wood and tin ware; ceramics, silver and weapons will also be discussed.

This series will begin Oct. 3 and continues every Tuesday evening for 10 weeks.

Each series costs Dec. 4 and registrations are now being accepted by mail or telephone at the college.

Canada Popular

Canadians have been described as reticent, retiring, modest, smug ,apathetic, lacking in confidence in themselves and in their national identity, as distinct from Americans who are viewed as brash, loud, arrogant, supremely confident ,progressive — and, not least, proud to be Americans and proud of their great land.

It is the kind of temperamental juxtaposition we should expect from two such contrasting national identities sharing the same land mass — Canada to the north, with a mere 20 million people only lately achieving a full measure of nationhood and a degree of pride spurred by the incomparable Expo of 1967, the pioneer atmosphere receding and being supplanted by a modern, industrial state and a cosmopolitan society that more and more people are coming to appreciate. America meanwhile — a nation struggling desperately to rid itself honorably of a foreign war, plagued by crime in its cities, by materialism rampant, by the ravages of planned obsolescence, by ever-increasing pressures on its natural resources, by uncertainty over its role in the world, but still surely a great country peopled in the main by decent, law-abiding and generous, to a fault, citizens.

Nobody in the western world who values the free enterprise system, who believes in the freedom of the individual, wants to see anything but a strong and prosperous America and a neighboring Canada enjoying similar benefits. And Canada, prosperous and relatively quiet and stable place that it is, has an edge when it comes to what people regard today as "quality of life." The Americans themselves know this and have been coming hers in ever-increasing numbers as immigrants.

Last year Americans were Canada's largest immigration group — 24,366, or 20 per cent of total immigration. As Marilyn Smith pointed out in a recent article in The Toronto Star it is "because of spreading violence, high crime rates, pollution, the Viet Nam war and race problems." She quotes Bob Gardner, 50, a chaplain at Michigan State University for 10 years, as saying there is a greater sense of fairness and a more rational, civilized approach to things in Canada. In the U.S., said Gardner (who came here two years ago with his wife and four sons aged 11 to 23) "everything is confrontation, conflict."

For another couple who chose Canada, Bob Sargent 48, an 11th generation American from Massachusetts, and his wife Helen, 46 the last straw came with the riots and assassinations and the Chicago riots of 1968.

Canada then is a pretty good country in which to live, leaving aside for a moment such problems as unemployment, inflation, Army, Navy and Air Force. Veterans bumper sticker puts it, with rare (Canadian) pushiness: "From Atlantic to Pacific Canada is terrific." Certainly more and more Americans are coming to find it a desirable place.

NDP Line

By flogging his "corporate welfare bum" rap on Canadian industry and on the larger corporations in particular, NDP leader David Lewis may find his pet issue boomeranging.

Mr. Lewis is being countered not only by Finance Minister Turner and other cabinet ministers, he is also being greeted in some commercial circles with derision and that can be even harder to take.

Mr. Turner has explained that without tax concessions to industry some Canadian communities — he cited Timmins for one — would be ghost towns. Mr. Lewis also ignores the jobs that are provided.

The laughter meanwhile is issuing from Quebec of all places. "Who is David Lewis and why is he saying all those terrible things about us?" a Northern Electric spokesman in Montreal was quoted as saying the other day.

And this from Northern's chairman of the board V. O. Mangone: "Lam relieved we finally made it. We would have been slighted if we had been left out. You aren't anybody these days if you aren't on the NDP list."

Mr. Mangone went on to say that most of the grants his firm receives are for research work. He admits this does not produce many jobs but claims such expenditures are necessary for employment in the future.

The Northern executive says he also is opposed to complex systems of grants but for different reasons. " . . I think it would be preferable to have the companies keep a little more of the rewards of working than dish out money to them.

"However I don't think that is what David Lewis has in mind."

Probably not.

Small Budget of Only $10 Million

'Horizons for the Aged' Program Off to Hesitant Start

By FARMER TISSINGTON
From The Intelligencer's
Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—The federal government's Horizons for the Aged program has been criticized as a political gimmick by the Trudeau government and as sloppy in a token gesture to Canada's older citizens prior to the general election.

The program is a very modest one, at least in comparison to its companion piece Opportunity for Youth, which has met with considerable success the last two years despite some of the far-out projects it has spawned and financed.

Horizons for the Aged has a budget of only $10 million although it is expected to provide some benefit for 50,000 to 150,000 pensioners. The scheme will provide funds in the $5,000 to $15,000 range to groups of 10 or more people who will design their own programs. The projects envisioned are self-help plans, such as aid to isolated old people or training in skills like silversmithing and quilting.

Two things have bugged down the program since its initial announcement by Health and Welfare minister John Munro. One is that it is extremely unwieldy and little is known about it among older people. Even one important thing the program does not provide any income for older pensioners who get involved. This decision makes it vastly different from Opportunity for Youth which is in an attempt to provide gainful employment for otherwise unemployed young people.

The program for the aged is to be operated on the theory that older people are already looked after financially, either through their own savings and private pensions or the government old age pension and supplementary allowances. The object is to give them a chance to participate in some project that will not only keep them occupied but which will have some beneficial side effects for their communities.

The money allotted to each project can be used for expenses and any help in kind can be paid. This is causing some hilarious situations among older people, many of whom live on a subsistence level and would welcome a chance to earn a little extra.

"Where is the fairness in us? Is our time not worth something to anybody?" is one comment. "This program will help people with experience in administration and organization. The rest will never hear about it. Many live in isolation and others read only female publications. Neither they are cut off from society and don't think there will be anything relevant to them in the program," is another typical attitude.

This, of course, too early to dismiss the program as a failure. The official kick-off was not until Sept. 15 and efforts to make older people aware of the program have been taking place at a number of meetings across Canada. Application forms will be available soon. Information for the Aged offices will be opened in eight of the larger cities. The program is also outlined to encourage people to submit project applications.

Until that happens, the new branch in the department of health and welfare is being very close-mouthed. Officials were reluctant to talk about it in any detail and would only say that several suggestions for projects have been received since the program was announced. Once the formal applications come in and some are approved the program will take on a new lease on life.

In the meantime, Parliament are helping to get it off the ground. Harold Ferrier, the MP for Ottawa West, has formed a group of volunteers to help members of Ottawa's senior citizens' club and act as liaison with the department for any help the club would need to apply for a grant.

With people retiring at an earlier age, there is a growing pool of skill and talent among people who previously had to retire. The reasons why this talent cannot be utilized are mostly those of management and self-help projects.

Whether the program is primarily an election gimmick or not remains to be proven in the light of experience. The government should, at least, be given credit for making some funds available for the purpose at a time when young people seem to be getting everything handed to them on a platter.

Labor Relations, Strikes, Under Critical Review

By DON O'BEARN
From The Intelligencer's
Queen's Park Bureau

There's been a lot of controversy about labor relations recently.

Deep stuff. Getting really to the roots.

Two surveys, one by Canadian magazine and the other by the Gallup poll have been partly responsible.

Both showed a surprisingly large number of people, including trade union members, in favor of compulsory arbitration.

The forced settlement of the dock workers strike in B.C. also contributed.

And then there were the findings of the Rerdie inquiry into negotiations on teachers' salaries here in Ontario. These proposed a form of compulsory arbitration, and incidentally had some sharp comment on labor relations generally (including the notion that the right to strike has become the right to close a business).

It is probably wrong to say the resulting controversy has been "deep stuff," or getting to the roots.

Compulsory arbitration and the other matters being discussed are at the roots.

What actually the responses they have bred have been pretty well the same old shallow line.

Most of these, of course, have been from labor spokesmen. They have followed the norm of being emotional rather than rational. And they all have unanimously taken a stand at the heart of the present collective bargaining system.

It is in the short-term interest of union spokesmen, of course, to defend the present system.

For in it they have one distinct and very valuable advantage.

This is that labor has the power of life and death.

A union can kill a company.

A company can't kill its workers. They will live on.

With this powerful advantage labor has a very potent weapon.

But in the long term it can be a very destructive one.

Businesses know they can be killed. And they will settle—at what are rationally quite unrealistic terms. This particularly applies to high turn-over and low profit industries (such as food chains). They must make quick settlements.

Which means they make settlements that aren't warranted. Then, in turn, other industries are forced to follow these settlements as guide-lines. And we end up with a wage profile which really has no rationale at all behind it.

Which is just what we have in Canada today and which is the greatest failure of our present collective bargaining system.

Women on the Outside

Kingston Whig-Standard

It seems strange — and especially to outsiders — that the church which actually includes a woman in its hierarchy of divinity — the Virgin Mary. Mother of God — can at the same time falsely deny modern, earthly women full status with men in the human (and fallible) hierarchy.

In a decree by his own hand (called a motu proprio) Pope Paul has rejected appeals from cardinals and feminist groups throughout the world for even the smallest formal roles in the ministry of the Roman Catholic Church.

The Pope has ruled that women may continue to read the Bible during Mass and perform some altar services as a right. This thousands of women, including nuns, who had hoped that the Church would not deny them official recognition for the help they have given priests in services for many years, have been disappointed. Formal investiture of women by a bishop in these duties is, by the Pope's decree, simply out of the question.

This must be admitted that it is not only the Roman Catholic Church which is guilty of trying to keep women in a secondary status. While there are some ordained women ministers in the Roman Catholic churches, such as the United Church of Canada, the Anglican and other religious bodies are fighting much the same fight as the Roman Catholics over the "woman question". A task force in the province of Ontario of the Anglican Church in Canada has recently recommended to the General Synod that women be ordained to the priesthood.

Women, whether they happen to be religiously inclined or not will recognize this controversy as basic to their present struggle for recognition as full equals (if different) human beings with men. The fact is that power has traditionally been the prerogative of men. Women are learning the ways of power recently and it can't be done overnight.

Nemesis for Garbage

BBC London Letter

A refuse crushing station, which will increase efficiency in utilising rubbish and reduce pollution, was opened recently in central London.

Each year, it was said, London's domestic refuse totals 2¾ million tons — bottles, cans, vegetable matter, even brokendown home appliances such as refrigerators. Nearly a quarter of this is transported by barge from riverside stations in central London to sites at the mouth of the River Thames, where it is used for land reclamation. Until now this has been loaded untreated at nine small wharves, with the consequent spillage and contamination of the river.

The new station in the heart of London, and almost totally enclosed, incorporates refuse-pulverisation equipment which can produce a denser and more uniform output. Not only does this enable each barge to carry nearly twice the weight of refuse, but the pulverised material is more suitable for land reclamation.

Two pulverisers, each weighing 65 tons, can deal with every sort of refuse (including the old refrigerators) and it all comes out in pieces two inches (5 cm) in length. Each route carries 40 hammers, each weighing 85 kg and rotates at 475 revolutions a minute. Very little noise can be heard outside the station.

The treated refuse is carried from the base of the pulverisers by conveyor-belts to waiting barges and on the way ferrous metals are extracted by electromagnets. The compressed dock accommodates four Thames barges, and loading by means of telescopic chutes reduces spillage and dust to negligible proportions.

Dust extraction is an important feature of the plant, and this operation is claimed to eliminate all the atmospheric pollution usually arising from refuse disposal.

The London station — the first in Britain — cost nearly £2½ million to build. But running costs are much lower than those of existing refuse disposal methods, and only eight men per shift are needed to deal with 600 tons of rubbish a day.

Americans in Canada Probe U.S. Voting Loophole

By JOHN D. HARERON
Foreign Affairs Analyst

The search for votes, American presidential votes, has spilled over into Canada.

Americans Abroad for McGovern, a hastily-formed group of American residents in Canada and other countries, has already held meetings in Toronto, Canada's largest centre, places like church basements halls or social clubs.

Their pitch is not exactly, votes for McGovern, but to do so indirectly by reminding Americans outside the United States of loopholes in their election act. Under the 1965 U.S. Federal Voting Assistance Act, any American resident in the world can vote in the presidential election if he can prove he is in the last U.S. citizenship and has not been charged with a felony.

However, Americans must register for that vote through a wide range of local authorities in the state in which they live. These authorities can include a county clerk, board of electors or a clerk of a circuit court.

The Americans Abroad for McGovern have found that all kinds of roadblocks at this level exist for American living and working abroad, including some of the estimated 200,000 Americans citizens in Canada.

The reasons for these roadblocks, despite the 1965 act, are obscure. In many cases, they have to do with the military status of young Americans, so-called "draft evaders," most of whom are in Canada.

Now the McGovern committee won't admit they are concerned mainly with them. Even though their well-attended meetings are made up almost entirely of draft-age, American college students in Canada, young professionals and U.S. university professors.

You will look almost in vain at these meetings for young executives in U.S. branch banks or stores, or American journalists who have had no trouble with their "status" with these arbitrary local boards and clerks.

The McGovern committees in Canada—and they claim organizing groups in Toronto, Montreal, Ottawa, Calgary and Vancouver—remind their audiences that even a deserter from the U.S. armed forces in Canada has the full right to vote under the 1965 federal act, if he hasn't yet been charged, under U.S. military law for desertion.

No one knows the exact number of American citizens abroad. If there are a million, including members of draft age, could be enough potential votes to make the difference between victory and defeat for Senator McGovern Nov. 7 if he has a slim margin with President Nixon.

Maybe that's the best the McGovern people here can hope for, since the latest polls indicate the senator's chances of becoming president are at their lowest ebb to date.

In any case, Americans Abroad for McGovern now have formed groups to tell U.S. citizens of their voting rights in Britain, France, Israel and Mexico, all countries with large numbers of resident American citizens.

For Canadians who still speculate about how many ramifications U.S. affairs have on Canada, this group's existence and purpose are among the most bizarre. In our midst during our election campaign are McGovern many-timers, some of them naturalized Canadians who have lost the U.S. vote but are still qualified to elect a new U.S. president.

Election '72

Wagner Says Forces Rallying

QUEBEC (CP) — Claude Wagner Saturday called on all Quebecers to join forces with the Progressive Conservatives to do away Prime Minister Trudeau's Liberal government.

Mr. Wagner, who said he has been chosen campaign leader by a unanimous vote of more than 1,300 Tories, blamed Mr. Trudeau for spurring Quebec separatism.

He said Quebec nationalism and separatism result from imbalance between federal and provincial legislative powers which "there has never been enough suppleness and flexibility." Ottawa treated the province like "municipalities," he said.

"With Mr. Stanfield and a Conservative team we have an excellent chance of reaching an understanding with the provinces," he said. "We have an excellent chance of governing according to the real and authentic spirit of the Canadian constitution."

Mr. Wagner said a "rallying of forces" is already taking place in Quebec.

"I won't hide from you that during this campaign we want to see within the Conservative movement—men of good will of all tendencies."

Asked if this included supporters of the separatist Parti Quebecois, which took almost 24 per cent of the popular vote in the last provincial election, Mr. Wagner said that if they wanted to support the Conservatives this time, the Tories would welcome their votes and even their membership in the party.

Mr. Wagner also defended Quebec nationalism, which he said was expressed in the support shown in 1970 for the Parti Quebecois.

He said it was "an incorrect current of Quebec pride" which could not be ignored and blasted Mr. Trudeau for his opposition to it.

"We had from the prime minister in fact a sort of boast that he could control Quebec . . . and that he could fight the evil nationalist neoliberals in Quebec.

"A few weeks ago Mr. Trudeau was not ashamed to say on television that if he was re-elected in this campaign it would be because of his war on separatists.

"I find that is an absolutely negative position contrary to the Canadian constitution."

Mr. Wagner said he planned to carry his message of a more flexible federalism into the other provinces beginning Tuesday in Toronto.

Mr. Wagner enjoys strong support among many Quebec Tories, particularly among Creditistes and others with a conservative outlook.

Although he has a "law and order" reputation, he said there are many other "laughable" problems—particularly economic questions—that he had little chance to deal with his law-and-order views.

He attacked the government for relegating "to the 9th order" of importance questions of drugs, smoking, criminality, and premature deliberations of criminals who are declared as "the most dangerous elements of society."

Chemical Against Cancer Results Said Encouraging

WASHINGTON (AP) — A National Cancer Institute researcher says the results are encouraging in using the chemical BCG in fighting cancer in "recurrences."

Dr. Herbert J. Rapp said the work has been on laboratory animals and very little testing has been done so far on people by the cancer specialist.

"It is time for us to sit down and discuss the situation," Dr. Rapp said in a telephone interview Saturday.

Dr. Rapp commented in response to questions about the statement of Dr. Michael Hanna Jr., a scientist at Oak Ridge National Laboratory at Tennessee, that injection of BCG into laboratory animals at Oak Ridge has been 100 per cent effective in eradicating cancer tissues and arresting the spread of cancer cells.

Experts cautioned against any conclusions that "the cure for cancer had been found.

Dr. Gerald F. Murphy, director of Roswell Park Memorial Institute in Buffalo, N.Y., said BCG is not the one answer in the search for a cancer cure.

BCG has been on intensive clinical trial at Roswell Park, he said, and is "one form of treatment method of effecting the body's immunological sys tem."

"The most important thing to understand in the situation," Dr. Rapp said in a telephone interview Saturday.

The work at Oak Ridge is a part of research by the National Cancer Institute under federal support, Dr. Rapp said. The research is being done mainly at the National Cancer Institute and has been going on for 10 years, he said.

International cancer experts also visit the Institute in nearby Bethesda, Md., in early October, he said, and plan to undertake a study of the new BCG situation.

"It works well in guinea pigs under certain conditions where the spread of cancer has just begun," Dr. Rapp said.

Margaret Has Trouble Reaching Her Husband

VANCOUVER (CP) — Margaret Trudeau spent about 15 minutes Friday night battling security arrangements at Boeing Field airport as she attempted to locate her husband. She was then ushered into the hotel half an hour earlier.

Prime Minister Trudeau arrived at the hotel about 10:45 p.m. PDT after flying in a charter jet for a day of campaigning. Mrs. Trudeau and son Justin had flown in Thursday to stay in West Vancouver with Mrs. Trudeau's parents.

Mrs. Trudeau, 31, arrived at the hotel about 11:15, wearing a brown suede jacket, white sweater and slacks and carrying an overnight bag.

She stepped into the elevator and asked to be taken to the top floor—"the suite—the Conservative suite."

The elevator deposited Mrs. Trudeau and a reporter on the 11th floor, but the hall was deserted as Mrs. Trudeau returned to the main lobby. But the clerk at the desk wouldn't tell her where the prime minister was.

"I'm sorry, we're not allowed to give out that information," the clerk said, despite Mrs. Trudeau's plea that she's the wife of the prime minister.

After several minutes on the phone, Mrs. Trudeau returned to the lobby and disappeared into the hotel half an hour earlier.

But there was nothing but a pile of luggage on that floor. However, the luggage tags indicated the bags were with the prime minister's party.

On returning to the main desk, Mrs. Trudeau was told the assistant manager was being summoned.

"I'm sorry about this. It's the security system," the clerk explained.

About 11:30, assistant manager Jack Merrill arrived, had walked right past Mrs. Trudeau without noticing her. "I'm Mrs. Trudeau, she repeated again, following Mr. McGill. "I'm trying to get up to my husband's suite."

Mr. McGill then took her up to the suite.

On his return, he declined comment, except to say that Mrs. Trudeau had not been recognized and that hotel security prevented the staff from releasing the prime minister's room number.

Lewis Says Staff Ordered to Work

TORONTO (CP) — NDP Leader David Lewis charged Sunday that the government is improperly using public servants in "cook" Postal Workers tics for use in the Liberal campaign effort.

Speaking to an afternoon meeting of party workers, Mr. Lewis said an official of Canada Council Mortgage and Housing Corp. ordered staff in Ottawa office to say that he and several others have been ordered to work on Liberal campaign as answer to NDP housing proposals.

The caller, whom Mr. Lewis refused to identify, allegedly received a call from Cliff Hale, President H. G. Hignett ordering the work.

"This weekend, public servants are being forced to cook figures for your political purposes and in the next few days federal candidates will be trying to use this information in their campaign against the NDP."

In an interview following his statement, the NDP leader said it was important for the governing party to use workers' paid by the taxpayers for its political campaign. He said he is not certain that Mr. Hignett or Assistant Rus Basford was the original source of the order but, "I find it hard to believe that it would be done without the minister's knowledge."

"There is a big difference between using the staff of a party and the ministers and the Public servants of CMHC. We all pay for these people."

During a weekend tour of London, Ont., Mr. Lewis accused Prime Minister Trudeau of making "false" statements about the unemployment situation.

He told a crowded gymnasium audience that the available jobs are merely temporary or part-time, he said, and even if all were filled, there would still be 500,000 unemployed.

"I think it takes a particular

Casino Hit, Four Held

RENO, Nev. (AP) — Four men are being held under a total of $22 bond in Washoe County jail in connection with the $750,000 robbery of Harrah's Casino at Lake Tahoe earlier in the week.

The four men were arraigned Saturday on federal charges of interstate transportation of stolen property.

In the robbery Tuesday, a man wearing a fake beard, cowboy hat and armed with a gun surprised unarmed casino employees as they were bringing a fresh supply of cash from a basement vault to the casino floor. The thief bounded out of the crowded casino and fled across the California state line astride a motorcycle driven by an accomplice, police said.

It was the largest casino robbery in Nevada history, gambling industry officials said.

The FBI announced Sunday that it has recovered more than $125,000 of the stolen money. The Las Vegas bureau of the FBI would not comment on how or where the money was found.

No Simple Answer

ST. GERVAIS, Que. (CP) — Jean Marchand, federal regional economic expansion minister, took a swipe Sunday at the "simplistic and unrealistic solutions" proposed by opposition parties to Canada's problems.

Speaking at a Liberal campaign in Bellechasse riding, south of Quebec City, Mr. Marchand said:

"When you're in power, you realize that problems cannot be solved as easily as Caouette (leader of the Social Credit Party) and Lewis (leader of the New Democratic Party) like to make out."

He said the Creditiste platform by not be held in the West and would soon disappear in Quebec, its last stronghold.

Bellechasse riding was represented by Adrien Lambert of the Social Credit in the last Parliament.

Public Should Share If Tax Dollars Used

OTTAWA (CP) — If money from the public treasury is used as a source of money to finance private companies, the public is entitled to set equity or share in that company; Donald C. MacDonald, of the New Democratic Party, said during the weekend.

In a television interview for the CTV network program Question Period, Mr. MacDonald said government should "examine more thoroughly and take a bit more discriminating" about grants to companies.

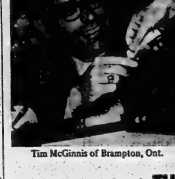
"Grants in the past were on an assurance of windfall profits to the company," he said. "If they do well, they write off with the profits.

"The next time they get into difficulties they may be back

Rabbits Said Weapon of War

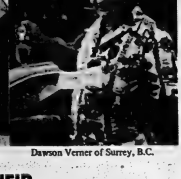
PHNOM PENH (AP) — President Lon Nol has warned Cambodians against what he called a Communist plot to kill them with rabbits.

In a message issued by the president's executive cabinet, and published today in the official news agency bulletin, Marshal Lon Nol called on all citizens to arrest any people who offered to buy rabbits at high prices.



"If our compatriots see them buying rabbits they must arrest them immediately because they are enemies," he said.

He said Communist agents were paying $125 to $175 for rabbits. He didn't specify whether that was for each rabbit or for how many.



"They have insinuated that their doctors need rabbit blood to inject into wounded men," the marshal said.

He warned, however, that the real motive of the Communists is to use rabbits as live bombs by attaching plastic explosive charges to them and then releasing them near Cambodian army defensive positions.

"The lights attract the rabbits and they then explode the plastic," the marshal stated.

Stanfield Endorses House TV Coverage

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Progressive Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield brought his campaign back to the Maritimes and this party stronghold Saturday, repeating out promises to televise Commons debates and to establish a separate federal fisheries department if elected Oct. 30.

He packed five events into a quick open-line appearances, meetings with regional candidates, a speech, a rally and a dance in the evening, expressing confidence at every stop that Conservatives are gaining strength and will form the next government.

Prime Minister Trudeau, he said, is being greeted as a celebrity as an ordinary man, appearing with little explanation of his alternative program.

Mr. MacDonald, a Toronto MLA and former NDP leader in Ontario, said governments equity or shares would allow more government say in the party and possibly a membership on the board of directors.

Not all companies would require government representation, he said on hostility, but said that "if the company flourishes the people who put some money in it are entitled to share the profits." Results of the government getting a share in these companies might prove "interesting," he said.

"It might mean that these boys would be less ready to run and get into that private sector with the zeal that they usually do."

Six Shot On Reserve

PORTAGE LA PRAIRIE, Man. (CP) — Three men were killed and three persons wounded in a shooting incident Sunday on the Long Plain Indian reserve near here.

RCMP said it appears Raymond Smoke, 20, shot and killed Roy Peters, 48, and Robert Wallace Peters, 41, then took his own life. The men were residents of the reserve.

Smoke had returned with a rifle to the scene of an argument which had taken place earlier in the day, police said. He shot and wounded Ronald Peters, then entered a residence where he shot and killed the two men. He also wounded Herb Daniels and Gladys Meeches, both residents of the reserve.

Police said Smoke then drove away, entered his parents' residence three miles from the scene of the shooting and took his own life with the rifle.

Conviet Bumped From Prison Job

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — C. A. M. Edwards, district representative for the National Parole Board, said Sunday that a former convict now working at the local parole board office as a file clerk will be released from his job in December.

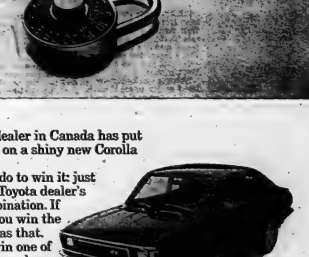
Cornelius J. Siemens, 30 years old father of two, was picked from Collins Bay penitentiary in January after serving 11 months of a 2½-year sentence for trafficking in heroin. He started work immediately at the penitentiary officer, was fired from that job, then joined the parole board in July.

Mr. Edwards said: "It isn't a matter of his being fired; he was hired as a casual employee for six months.

"The Public Service Alliance didn't want him to work at the penitentiary."

Mr. Edwards said the clerical job was offered "to save his situation, but this was a temporary thing, too."

He said he did not know whether there is any possibility of the job extending past December.



"That whole thing is handled through personnel."

In a recent interview, Mr. Siemens said he was fired from the job as penitentiary officer on July 14. He said the reason given for dismissing him was lack of a budget to employ him. He said after he was let go, someone else was hired to replace him.

Within two weeks he obtained his present position in the parole division, which comes under a different federal agency.

He said no reason has been given for his parolee dismissal, but he believes it is because the solicitor-general's department lacks a policy on hiring former prisoners.

Ears Should Be Pierced By Doctor

CHICAGO (CP) — The American Medical Association advises women who would have ears pierced for ear-rings to have it done by a doctor. Otherwise, complications may result.

The AMA in a book, The Look You Like, says:

"Piercing performed by a friend or non-medical person greatly increases the possibility of complications. The instruments used for piercing are not always sterile, and proper precautions often are not followed during healing. There is danger of contracting serious internal infections, such as hepatitis, from having the ears pierced under unsterile conditions. . . .

"When a physician pierces ears, he first carefully sweetens and numbs the ears, because both ears may not be exactly alike. After piercing with a sterile needle or other instrument, he inserts either ear-rings or metal studs. These are called 'starter' ear-rings or wires should be worn for three or four weeks, until the wounds heal. Now ear-rings need not be inserted until the wounds are completely healed."

The small, self-piercing earring loops are not considered safe, the AMA said. These devices have sharp points which are supposed to pierce the ears within a few days as they are being worn. Infection requiring medical treatment have developed from using these self-piercers.

MR. AND MRS. BARRY BRAY

Bray — Smith

Trinity United church was the setting recently for a double-ring ceremony when Sharon Anne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald E. Smith of 214 Elgin Street, Modoc, became the bride of Samuel Barry Bray of Pembroke, son of Mr. and Mrs. Keith Bray of Ivanhoe. Rev. W. Pywick performed the ceremony. Mrs. Helen Carmichael of Pembroke presided at the organ and accompanied Kevin and Kim Bray of Ivanhoe in a duet.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor-length white flowing chiffon over taffeta gown featuring a low empire waistline and long sleeves completed with French cuffs. The bodice was enhanced with tucks and dainty insertions of Alencon lace beaded with seed pearls and mother of pearls. The cuffs were also finished in tucks and matching rosettes of Alencon lace. Her one-piece train-like veil, edged in motifs of English lace rosettes and appliques, fell softly from a headpiece patterned to match the bodice of her gown, featuring three rosettes made of imported Alencon lace with seed pearls and mother of pearls. She carried a bouquet of white sheptacosta and baby orchids centered with two white orchids.

Maid of honor was Miss Judy Collin of Lindsay and bridesmaids were Miss Lois Gunn Sikkema of R.R.2, Stirling and Miss Karen Bray, sister of the bridegroom. All were identical floor-length empire styled gowns of rose Swiss dot material featuring an A-line skirt with a ruffle, and long sleeves. The cuffs and the empire line were finished with a trim of little rosettes of the same lace.

Hair Loss Inevitable

TORONTO (CP) — Middle-aged women who lose their hair are wasting money with expensive lotions and treatments, a dermatologist told the Ontario chapter of the College of Family Physicians of Canada Wednesday.

Dr. Michael J. Porter of the Scarborough General and Centenary hospitals here said such women should be told the condition cannot be cured and all likelihood they will never grow bald.

He said that one-quarter of all women get a receding hairline in their 30s and by the age of 50 often have considerable thinning of hair.

Dr. Porter said women often lose their hair three months after delivery of a baby, but it usually grows in again within six months.

Extreme emotional upheaval, various drugs and hormone disturbances can also cause excessive hair loss, Dr. Porter said.

Receive Family Rings

Mr., Mrs. Fargey Wed 50 Years

The family and friends of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Fargey gathered at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church auditorium last Saturday evening to mark the North Park Street couple's 50th wedding anniversary.

Special guest at the dinner was Mrs. Fargey's brother, Clarence Watson, who was the best man at the wedding half a century ago in Bells Rapids, Ontario. The ceremony took place September 23 at the home of the bride's parents with Rev. C. A. Beaden, Anglican minister for the mission of Combermere officiating. The former Jessie Watson was attended by her sister-in-law, the late Rose Ann Fargey.

For a honeymoon trip, the newlyweds travelled to Belleville by train which stopped overnight at Maynooth. Here the couple resided temporarily with the bridegroom's parents and Kenneth was employed by Walmsley Wholesale Grocery. The firm later sold to National Grocery Company Ltd., where Mr. Fargey remained in a supervisory position until retirement in 1965.

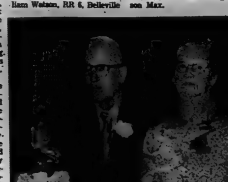
Living guests to the honored couple, following the banquet, Rev. Laurie Salter-Cid remarked that the Fargey children reflected the good life of their remarkable parents.



Family rings containing the birthstones of the six children were presented by their parents by Mrs. Corinne Rabbitt and Robert Fargey. Lorne Fargey was spokesman and expressed the family's appreciation both to their mother and father and the guests.

One son Max, who lives at Burnaby, B.C., was unable to attend. Daughters, Mrs. Joe (Vera) Brown and Mildred are deceased.

Other Saturday night guests who attended the wedding in Bells Rapids included: Leonard Watson, Noranda, Que.; Mrs. Edith Watson, Cobalt, Ont.; Clarence Watson, Bancroft; and Mr. and Mrs. William Watson, RR 6, Belleville who had observed their golden anniversary in May.

Congratulatory telegrams were received from: Lou Grills, Mayor J. Russell Scott and Mr. and Mrs. Fargey's son Max.

Similar Ancestral Crest

A Very Minor Problem

Dear Ann Landers: I must comment on the letter from that reader who wrote to say she was incensed to discover that an acquaintance was using an ancestral crest similar to theirs and she was sure the woman had "copied" it. Isn't it amazing what some people view as a problem? It must be wonderful to have so little to worry about!

One of the great things about North America is that, with few exceptions, its people have rejected class distinctions in favor of status by achievement. Each person must stand or fall on the strength of what he is able to make of himself.

Who cares about noble ancestors if nobility of character has not been passed along through parent-child relationships? And what does it matter if those ancestors were bastards as long as the person himself has risen above bastardly conduct?

Some people with similar family crests deserve each other. The fact that the woman could complain suggests that she is leaning heavily on her dead relatives for status.—New Mexico

?Dear New: The mental picture of a person leaning on dead relatives is perceived by?vrroni, but it puts the whole thing in proper perspective.

Dear Ann Landers: I've got a little advice for that woman who wonders if she should insist that her husband remove from her filled with pictures of for-

Women's Institutes

Wesleyan Methodist WMS

The Women's Missionary Society of the Wesleyan Methodist Church met in the church parlor their regular meeting on Thursday evening.

President Nellie Greenwood opened the service and the hymns were led by Mrs. Ina Young. The new pastor's wife, Mrs. Ruth Irish was welcomed to the group. It was mentioned by the president that the objective for the year was that every woman in the church be a member of the W.M.S. She also advised the members that Christmas gifts for overseas missionaries, Sailor Jim, Major, Berry and Rawlings were already on the way.

A duet was rendered by Mrs. Irish and Mrs. Young and devotions were given by Mrs. Vivian Trotter who mentioned several newly arrived medical missionaries in Service Lease, west Africa for special prayer. Some notable quotes from general conference at Silver Lake, Moberly were given by Mrs. Nora Elliott.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Lyla Votzary and the members of the social committee.

Signs Pointing to Drug Misuse

By DORIS CLARK

It isn't easy to identify just which youngsters are likely to use drugs. Yet one authority has suggested four markers to susceptibility:

1. A family history of abuse of alcohol, depressants or stimulants.

2. An unstable family structure involving divorce or desertion, - particularly in a more permissive home.

3. Lack of any traditional religious beliefs.

4. Unorthodox political leanings in the home, particularly of the far left radical liberal variety.

The same authority also suggests finding out the youngster's attitude toward physical training. Failure to live up to one's potential in gym class or sports is often one of the first signs that a young person is misusing drugs.

Dear Doris: I read the letter from the woman who says her husband complains that their only problem is sex relations. Well, the same story here — my husband always complains too.

I don't ever have any desire for sex, and I am ashamed to tell my doctor this. — No Desire

Dear No Desire: With some gals it's like others — you have to acquire a taste for it. You and thousands of other young ladies are in the same boat.

Early in life many of us have been conditioned to be extra modest, to be restrained in our feelings and affections, and to be afraid to ask questions about sex relations — the worst part of all. With better understanding you can both have a pleasure in sex relations which you never dreamed of.

Right now your husband is probably getting an abrupt physical expression, without a single thought of how to get you in the mood. I'm sending you my recommended list of books on the subject (available to readers writing in for it and enclosing 30 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope).

Talk with your doctor! Blush all you like, be as embarrassed as anyone else. An understanding doctor can give you at ease and deliver the messages you need.

Dear Doris: Could you tell me some exercise to decrease the bustline, abdomen and legs? I am on a diet and hope to shed 30 pounds.

Can you tell me how much a girl of 21 years standing five-foot-seven should weigh?

Thank You

Dear Thank You: You should weigh around 142 pounds, fully clothed.

If you lose 30 pounds, you will find that your arms, bust, legs and abdomen will be wonderfully slimmer. Exercise will not decrease the bustline, but dieting will.

For 25 cents each, plus a stamped, self-addressed envelope, I'll send you my leaflets "Be Figure Perfect" and "Some Special Notes for Chubby Legs."

Leaflets mentioned by Doris are available to readers for 20 cents and a large eight-cent-stamped, self - addressed envelope, unless otherwise specified.

'Gardeners' Creed' Read At Horticulture Meet

Stirling Horticultural Society

STIRLING — On Monday afternoon, the Stirling Horticultural Society held their regular meeting in the St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church hall with 48 adults in attendance.

Mrs. Floyd Armstrong presided over the business meeting. Mrs. John Doran read letters of thanks for arranging the corsages at the provincial convention at Kingston in June. Mrs. Grant Hubble gave the financial report. There were 243 entries in the horticulture department at the Stirling fair.

It was noted that two members who each had 21 points: Mrs. Raymond McConnell and Mrs. Grant Hubble would each receive a cornflower rose bowl. One is donated by the local Bank of Montreal and the other was purchased by the Horticultural Society.

Mrs. George Heasman was in charge of the program and read the Gardener's Creed as written in a recent newsletter.

Mrs. Harold West contributed a piano solo and Mrs. Kenneth Donaldson rendered a vocal solo. There was also an assembly singing.

Mrs. Kenneth Ray gave a descriptive account of "How to make a comfort pile."

A leaf-guessing contest was won by three members. Several of the group identified their summer flowers grown from seedlings.

The refreshment committee served doughnuts and cheese and the lucky cup went to Mrs. Alex Tanner.

The president voiced appreciative thanks to all who had provided the afternoon arrangements.

Mirror of Your Mind

by JOHN CORRELL

Can ardent hobbyists find love?

CERTAINLY, real they can pursue love with as much success they follow a hobby. It must be genuine love, though. Sometimes a woman sees a restless hobbyist—a photography nut, for instance—as a challenge. Needing to hood her eyes self-consciously, she will try to direct the man's attention away from his lodge. When if they do marry, she is just the kind who will complain and he is more interested in his hobby than he is in their marriage.

Is confidence half the battle?

POSITIVELY. If someone lacks confidence, he can believe himself no matter how skilled he is. The problem is that not everybody knows which half of the battle can be claimed up to confidence. An individual should first have the ability or talent to do what he has in mind; and he must have motivation. Without these two, confidence is a joke. A person could fill out six New Career blanks of confidence in the world when he "goes into battle."

Does records make kids destitute?

NO, although many children who could be called destitute are definitely neurotic. Their home patterns, though, is only because as he reveals. They might have developed the neurosis because of some inner conflict over identity in an unsupportive environment. The hopelessness might only be a coverup for anger that disappointment over not achieving at home the happiness that could have prevailed normally.

Pappin Comes Back from Illness to Pace Black Hawk Camp

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Jimmy Pappin, the veteran winger who missed part of the 1971-72 season with a disease that partially paralyzed his face, is having one of his better training camps with Chicago Black Hawks this year.

The Copper Cliff, Ont., native, who scored twice against Toronto Maple Leafs last week, added two goals and two assist Sunday night as the Hawks rolled 6-2 over Montreal Canadiens in National Hockey League exhibition action at Chicago.

In other pre-season play Sunday, Detroit Red Wings mauled Toronto 4-0, California Golden Seals drubbed Philadelphia Flyers 4-1 and Buffalo Sabres cropped Pittsburgh Penguins 3-1.

The Wings started their weekend sweep with an 8-4 win Saturday over Boston Bruins at Port Huron, Mich., Toronto Nanaimo, Montreal 5-0 on home ice, Philadelphia handled the Seals 9-1 in Ottawa, Minnesota North Stars played a 3-3 tie with St. Louis Blues at Minneapolis, Atlanta Flames edged New York Islanders 4-3 at Oshawa, Ont., Vancouver Canucks trimmed Los Angeles Kings 6-5 in Calgary and Chicago played a 3-3 tie with their Dallas farm team at Notre Dame, Ind.

The Red Wings who have bolstered their lineup with several new faces including defenceman Thommie Bergmann Item the Swedish national team, got first-period goals from Rick Newell, Leon Rochefort and Bob Cook

All three were against goalie Jacques Plante, 43, who enjoyed a good game against Montreal the previous night. Bill Collins rounded out the Detroit scoring in the third period against Gord McCrea.

Detroit goaltender Gerry Grey made 33 saves, including 19 in the second period when he appeared to have their only goal, by Garry Monahan, disallowed by referee Dave Newell.

The Seals earned their first pre-season victory in the third period at Kingston, Ont., when Ivan Boldirev set up team-mate Stan Gilbertson with the lone score marker then added one of his own to break up a tight-checking game.

Rick Dudley scored the Buffalo winner at St. Catharines, Ont., with Gerry Meehan getting the insurance goal on a power-play in the last period. Earlier the Sabres had headed goals by Steve Atkinson of the Sabres and Greg Polis for Pittsburgh.

Dennis Herron and Jim Rutherford shared the goaltending chores for Pittsburgh. Herron gave up one goal, his first in more than 100 minutes. Roger Crozier yielded the Penguins goal.

Leafs Test Finns

TORONTO (CP) — Three Finnish hockey players, labelled by Harold Ballard, president of Toronto Maple Leafs, as possible National Hockey League prospects, were to start practising with the Leafs here today.

The three, goaltender Jorma Valtonen and right wingers Jorma Immonen and Lauri Mononen, skated at Maple Leaf Gardens Sunday prior to the Toronto-Detroit game, won by the Red Wings 4-0.

None of the three Finnish national team players will be available to the Leafs this season, but coach Johnny McLellan hopes to determine if they might be helpful in the future.

Ballard, accompanying Team Canada to Moscow, declared to Finland to sign the players during the team's layover in Stockholm last week.

HIBBING, Minn. (AP) — Minnesota Fighting Saints beat Chicago Cougars 10-7 Saturday night in pre-season play featuring rookies on the two World Hockey Association teams.

Defenceman Frank Sanders led the Saints with three goals, while team-mate Lee Lilyholm ramined in two. The Cougars' Ulf Sterner, formerly with the Swedish Nationals, also scored three goals.

Minnesota led 3-1 after the first period and 6-4 after the second.

Owen Sound, Dumps Oaks

OWEN SOUND, Ont. (CP) — Owen Sound Downtowners dumped Oakville Oaks 10-3 Saturday in Ontario Hockey Association Senior A exhibition action.

Bob Dube scored three for Owen Sound and Mayo Pequette scored two. Mike Cain, Don Vipond, Yvan Fournier, John Snowden and Ian McCort scored one each.

ROBINSON, Ill. (AP) — Dave Marad, who had just blown his first big chance to win a title on the tough pro golf tour, gave a tuefiul little shrug of his shoulders and said:

"I guess I got a little careless.

"I had that big lead and I was not keeping score about $30,000 and next year's exemption and everything that goes with being a winner."

That was on the 10th hole of the water - lagged Crawford County Country Club Sunday Jones.

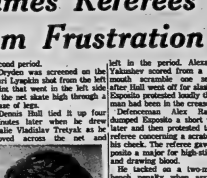
Jones, however, made up five strokes over the last seven holes, forced a playoff with Marad on the second extra hole for the $29,000 first prize in Robinson's Fall Golf Classic.

Jones, who had won the Hawaiian Open earlier this season, got a second life when Marad three-putted for a bogey on the 72nd hole.

That set up the 18-ish playoff of the tour this season.

Jones had a three-under-par 69 in the final round on the damp and soggy course while Marad had a 69 as they tied at 273.

Toronto's Gary Bowerman had the best Canadian finish, a 282 worth $870. Ken Fulton of Montreal finished at 286, earning $167.



George Knudson of Toronto, the winner here on years ago and only two strokes off the pace after 36 holes Friday, had an 80 Sunday and a 293 score, also worth $167.

Orr Blames Referees For Team Frustration

MOSCOW (CP) — A Russian reporter put Bobby Orr on the hot seat Sunday night and asked him whether he felt his Boston Bruins team-mate Phil Esposito acted in a sportsman-like manner toward the referees.

Team Canada had just defeated the Soviet national team 3-2 to edge closer to the Russians who are leading the eight-game series 2-2 with one game tied.

Orr, recovering from off-season knee surgery, hasn't played in the series and was a guest at a post-game news conference.

The refereeing was the hot subject—that and Esposito's protested complaints to the officials.

"You can become frustrated when you get officiating like we got," Orr said. "Phil got a double minor in the first period and I haven't figured it out yet.

"It's the worst officiating I've ever seen and it's a darn shame they won't let us play our game at full strength."

"Whatever Phil did, I'm behind him 100 per cent. And we're not crying—hell, we won the game."

There was no scoring in the first period. The Russians sent out their youngsters early, a departure from other games when they saved the young legs for a late-game rallies.

Esposito drew two minors for charging Yuri Shatalov and the Russian didn't get a single shot on goalie Ken Dryden in the entire four minutes the Canadians were short-handed.

All the scoring was in the second period.

Dryden was screened on the Yuri Lyapkin shot from the left point that went in the left side of the net skate high through a maze of legs.

Dennis Hull tied it up four minutes later when he drew goalie Vladislav Tretyak as he moved across the net and left in the period. Alexander Yakushev scored from a goalmouth scramble one second after Hull went off for slashing.

Esposito protested lustily that a man had been in the crease.

Defenceman Alex Ragulin dumped Esposito a short while later and then protested to the referee concerning a scratch on his cheek. The referee gave Esposito a major for high-sticking and drawing blood.

He lashed on a two-minute bench penalty when assistant coach John Ferguson protested loudly.

The nearly 3,000 Canadians in the stands were chanting "Da da Canada" (Yes, yes, Canada) and "Nyet syet Soviet" (No, no, Russia) throughout the third period.

But they fell silent when, with 2:21 to go in the game, Ron Ellis flattened a Russian player and got two minutes for looking.

The defence held and, after the game, it was Dryden and defenceman Gary Bergman who were cheered by writers and broadcasters as the stars for Canada.

After the game, the officials—Pyzne Baader and Josef Kompalla of West Germany—took hands with the Russians but turned their backs when Esposito tried to shake hands.

"I've been one of the worst officials I have ever seen handle a hockey game at any time in my career," hissed Harry Sinden said.

More than thirty new improvements.

This year, the '73 Plymouths are more beautiful than ever. But many of our important engineering improvements don't even show. And we count them as most important. They make the '73 Plymouths safer, quieter, smoother-riding and longer lasting than ever before.

Extra care in engineering...it makes the difference.

The '73 Plymouths

NEW Quieter Cars for 1973

The '73 Plymouths are the quietest cars we have ever made, inside and out. Passenger compartments have been surrounded with sound insulating materials packed into critical areas of the cars body. Plymouth's Unibody helps too. The one-piece welded body and frame stays tight and quiet for years.

The major cause of noise in a car today is roadshock travelling up through the suspension and into the body of the car. To cut most of this noise we isolate the front and rear suspensions with rubber. Chrysler and Fury have had this quiet feature for some time. And we have now added this system to our Satellite line. Ask your Plymouth dealer to explain all the Chrysler Quiet features.

Electronic Ignition — Now Standard

Last year Chrysler introduced the Electronic Ignition system on some Plymouth models. Now it is standard on all 1973 Plymouth engines built in North America. The Electronic Ignition system eliminates breaker points and condenser. This means your engine will stay in tune longer and go further between tuneups. And it also means that your exhaust emissions will stay cleaner too.

NEW Emission Control Features

We're all working toward cleaner air. That's why all '73 Plymouth engines are equipped with an exhaust gas recirculation system and automatic vacuum spark advance control system, for controlling oxides of nitrogen. Also, we've added an electric assist choke to help reduce emissions during starting and warm-up.

NEW Higher Impact Bumpers

If you take a little bump, we want you to get off without a scratch. That's why we've added full length reinforcement members front and rear. And strengthened the existing front members. For even more protection, we've added rubber guards front and rear. They'll take quite a punch, without anything getting hurt.

Disc Brakes Standard on Most Cars

Disc brakes have greater fade resistance than conventional brakes. They perform more smoothly, stop your car in a straighter line, and are more effective at fast freeway speeds. Front disc brakes are now standard equipment on all Plymouth cars (except six-cylinder Valiants).

NEW Higher Speed Starter Motor

Quick starting is important, so we've developed a new, higher speed starter motor for our 1973 360, 400 and 440 cu. in. V-8's. That, together with our Electronic Ignition, should give you one good start after another.

NEW Mechanical Plating Process

To help hide the exposed, critical safety parts on your new Plymouth stand up to the ruining effects of heat and corrosion, we've devised a new plating process that applies powdered particles of cadmium, tin or zinc to protect them. Every 1973 Plymouth has it.

NEW Electronic Engine Function Tester

Chrysler is dedicated to building cars and trucks to the highest quality control standards. To further raise the standard of Quality Control, we have introduced the Electronic Engine Function Tester. We call her "Miss EFT". Miss EFT tells us all about an engine when it's running. She tells us many things we couldn't find with conventional equipment. Engines that pass Miss EFT's test get a Quality Control Tag. She really helps us build better cars.

Here are just a few of the many engineering improvements made to the 1973 Plymouth models. Your Plymouth dealer will be happy to explain them all.

Argonauts Take Worst Hosing

HAMILTON (CP) — The sprinkling of rain that showered on 34,018 fans at Ivor Wynne Stadium Sunday afternoon was nothing compared to the hosing Toronto Argonauts took on the field.

The hosing was applied by John Williams and Dave Buchanan whose Hamilton Tiger-Cats sank the Argos 41-14 and emerged atop the Eastern Football Conference with Ottawa Rough Riders, each with 12 points although the Riders have played one less game.

Ottawa laid partial claim to first place Saturday night with a disputed 18-9 win over Edmonton Eskimos while Montreal Alouettes lifted the East, dropped a 34-15 game Sunday in Calgary to the Stampeders and stayed four points up on Toronto and six behind the co-leaders.

"When she rains, she pours," said Hamilton coach Jerry Williams after the game, according that "things started happening to Jason (Argos)."

The first "thing" that was indicative of how "things started happening" was when Williams picked off an errant Wally Gabler pass late in the first half and converted it into a 31-yard scoring play that sent Hamilton into the dressing room first time—13-7.

Then, early in the third quarter while Toronto pass defenders Mary Luster and Chip Barrett juggled what should have been a Toronto interception, the diminutive Buchanan jumped between the two taller men and came down with the ball to continue a 69-yard scoring play from Chuck Ealey.

That marked Hill Stymers two-7 and the Argos slowly submerged thereafter, along with their playoff hopes.

Until Williams' score, two field goals by Ian Sunter were the only scoring penetration the Ticats could mount against the aggressive Argos, a defence that was battling to hold down a 7-6 lead on Hill Stymers two-yard run that Ivan MacMillan converted.

Quarterback Joe Coffey scored the first of his two touchdowns before Jim Chaney, relieving Gabler, fired a 43-yard scoring toss to Tom Scott, who emerged between Tiger-Cats' twin safeties, Al Brenner and Dave Mann, behind Argos' zone converted.

Tony Gabriel hauled in Ealey's third of four touchdown passes in the game and Sunter added a 30-yard field goal to complete the Hamilton rout.

And in the background, as always, was the menacing Hamilton defence that forced Argos into seven turnovers. They intercepted five passes in all, three of Gabler's, recovered two of three Argo fumbles and, in general, confined Toronto's offence.

Spectator Leon McQuay was held to 78 yards on eight carries and his running mate, Simon Burton, to a meagre one on eight tries.

Buchanan, in addition to leading Hamilton's running game with 85 yards on 15 carries, contributed another 119 yards on four pass receptions.

On His Way to Victory

Jackie Stewart's Tyrrell-Ford holds narrow lead over McLaren-Ford of Denis Hulme during Sunday's Canadian Grand Prix at Mosport. Stewart was actually more than one lap ahead of Hulme at this point. Stewart Coasts to Mosport Win

MOSPORT, Ont. (CP) — Jackie Stewart, the Flying Scot, had an easy time Sunday winning his second Grand Prix of Canada in a row. The Scotsman led a field of 25 Formula 1 drivers across the finish line to take top prize money of $25,000 and the Labatt's 50 Trophy.

He pulled out in front after the fourth lap and was never headed. When he took the checkered flag he was 48.3 seconds ahead of second-placer Finisher American Peter Revson in a McLaren. Third-place finisher Denis Hulme of New Zealand was 54.6 seconds behind the leader in his McLaren.

Stewart, driving a Ford-powered Tyrrell, not only had the satisfaction of winning the 11th race in the world-girdling series of 13 events, but he beat by a wide margin the man who deposed him for the world driver's championship.

When Stewart was taken out of racing this spring by an attack of bleeding ulcers after he had won the 1971 title, the Brazilian moved into the vacuum and piled up an unbeatable total of 61 points to climb the 1972 title.

But Stewart came back Sunday in a big way and showed the form which has enabled him to win 26 Grand Prix events in his racing career.

It never had the slightest concern throughout the whole event," he said in a post-race interview. "It was just perfect. All the conditions were for me.

"There was no real drama or real pressure. I was able to set my own pace and by the time I was told by my crew that I was ahead by 18 seconds, I started relaxing a little."

Stewart's pace was a stiff one. He covered the 200 miles at an average speed of 114.282 miles an hour. Along the way he also broke the Formula 1 record for the track.

That was clocked at one minute, 16.1 seconds—an average of 116.328 m.p.h. in his best lap Until then the record had been shared by Belgian Jackie Ickx and Jack Brabham of Australia, both driving Brabhams

The race almost turned to a rout as even an dense fog blanketed the upland 2.45-mile airport road track. Organizers of the race with a total purse of $200,000 at stake were considering possible alternate as the scheduled 2:30 p.m. starting time approached with the track still shrouded in fog.

Then the drivers went out one by one to test conditions. First reports were gloomy but eventually the fog began to lift and the race was started about an hour late. Two earlier scheduled supporting races had to be postponed for a week.

Only Canadian in the race was Bill Brack of Toronto, driving a spare BRM. He had a poor start and spun out on the 20th lap and then was unable to restart his engine. But his 17th placing was good for $4,000 prize money.

The last race of the 1972 series is the American Grand Prix at Watkins Glen, N.Y., on Oct. 8.

Lancaster Injury Big News

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Controversy and cool weather highlighted weekend Canadian Football League action in the Prairies, but an injury to Saskatchewan Roughriders quarterback Ron Lancaster could turn out to be more significant than anything else.

The brilliant Roughrider veteran left halfway through an 18-18 knot with Winnipeg Bombers at Regina and did not return. Lancaster suffered a fence stuttered behind Hubba Wyche the rest of the way as Winnipeg gained a 19-18 decision of top spot in the Western Football Conference.

Lancaster's injury was diagnosed as possible cracked ribs. He finished after a hard tackle by Mike Kuhn. Results of x-rays were expected to be known today.

Lancaster was joined on the sidelines by another veteran all-star, tackle Ed McQuarters, who injured his knee in the third quarter. There was speculation he had cartilage or ligament damage.

Edmonton Eskimos apparently escaped the injury jinx that has hit them this season, but they had difficulty scoring as they dropped a 19-9 decision to Ottawa Rough Riders, Eastern Conference leaders, in one of two interlocking games.

Dave Cutler missed a 41-yard field goal attempt on the last play of the game at Edmonton. Defensive back Rod Woodward returned it and confusion took over. Woodward's return host was fielded by Cutler, who dallied crafted to quarterback Tom Wilkinson.

Wilkinson kicked the ball into the end zone, but the officials ruled centre Bo Elston had interfered with Adams and the play was dead at that point. Had Wilkinson's return kick not been nullified by the penalty, Edmonton would have tied the game.

The result dropped Edmonton into a tie with Saskatchewan for second place. It marked the second game in a row that Eskimos failed to score a touchdown. Cutler has provided all of Edmonton's 21 points in their successive losses to Saskatchewan and Ottawa.

Ottawa was paced by Art Cantrelle, who amassed two yards for a touchdown in the fourth quarter. Gerry Organ converted and added a 13-yard field goal. Cutler's successful boots are in each of the first three quarters—covered 43, 34 and 31 yards.

In Calgary, the Stampeders intercepted seven passes by Sonny Wade and had an early time gaining the victory that propelled them into fourth place, ahead of the idle British Columbia Lions, but well behind Saskatchewan and Edmonton.

Calgary's offence was paced by flanker Gerry Shaw, who had two touchdowns. Jesse Mims also scored on a pass from quarterback Gerry Kozlowski, who ran three yards for the fourth touchdown. Larry Robinson collected 18 points on three converts, two field goals and a single.

Leafs Take Second Title

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Maple Leafs won the Ontario Baseball Association championship Sunday by defeating the Maple Leafs 9-6 and taking the best-of-three series two games straight.

Maple Leafs also won the 1972 Inter-County Baseball League championship.

Leo Durocher drove in the only run of the game in the second inning with a short single to centre.

Bosox Lead Numbers Game

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Forget the games behind column. Don't even look at the games remaining column. Those numbers can lead to negative thinking and with 10 days to go in baseball's regular season, there's no room for negative thinking.

There's nothing negative about Boston's numbers today. The Red Sox hold a one-game edge over Detroit after whipping the Tigers 7-3 Sunday.

Third place Baltimore Orioles remained 3½ behind, defeating Milwaukee Brewers 5-2, and the third-place New York Yankees closed to within three games of the lead by sweeping a doubleheader from Cleveland Indians, 5-4 in 11 innings and 6-3.

In other Sunday games, Oakland Athletics reduced their magic number for clinching the West to five. The Athletics split a doubleheader with Kansas City Royals, losing 4-2 before winning 2-1. Chicago White Sox topped Texas Rangers 7-4 and California Angels edged Minnesota Twins 2-1.

The Yankees remained in contention with a 3-2 win over Cleveland Saturday in a game shortened by rain to six innings. In other action, Detroit dropped Boston 7-1, Milwaukee edged Baltimore 3-2, Minnesota edged California 2-1, Chicago nudged by Texas 4-3 and Oakland nipped Kansas City 2-1.

Managers always look at the bright side of things. So, Detroit boss Billy Martin, one behind with eight to play, said: "I like our position with eight to play."

Indeed, we can start scoring runs again, we can have some fun."

The man with the most right to optimism is Boston manager Eddie Kasko, whose team has been involved in the lead. The Red Sox have been out of first place only one day since Sept. 7 when they took over the lead. Kasko, however, remains cautious.

"Of course anything can happen," he said, "but it looks like it's going to be a race to the wire." That would be Boston's wrapup series at Fenway Park, 3 and 4.

Baltimore jumped on Detroit's Woody Fryman for four runs in the first inning and that was a good enough margin for Jim Hunt, who has emerged as the ace of the Oriole staff.

Hunt pitched a seven-hitter and ran his record since Aug. 1 to 7-1 with a 1.80 earned run average.

Cleveland handed the Yankees the first game with five errors in the 11th inning, three by Graig Nettles. Following the runs to score. New York took the nightcap as Sparky Lyle tied the major league record with his 35th save of the season.

Dick Allen drove in four runs, two of them with his 37th homer of the year, as Chicago bounced from behind to beat the Rangers.

Mets Fans Get Bonus

A crowd of 41,994 at Shea Stadium Monday night will be expected from two of the best starting pitchers in baseball — Tom Seaver and Steve Carlton of Philadelphia Phillies struggled through one of their typical low-scoring battles until the Mets finally stopped the Philadelphia southpaw for the winning run in the eighth.

Then along came McGraw to give another game for the Mets, this time 2-1 over the Phillies. The fireman finished with a flourish, striking out the last two batters in the ninth to record his 36th save of the year.

McGraw, the Mets' bullpen ace, saved a game for the second time this season for Seaver, the 25-game winner, who's now 25 and 6. The last-place Phillies, lost his 98th game.

Seaver pitched a five-hitter in League Sunday, Montreal Expos nudged Pittsburgh Pirates 2-1, St. Louis Cardinals trimmed Chicago Cubs 2-1 in 10 innings; Cincinnati Reds bombed Houston Astros 19-2, San Diego Padres swept Atlanta Braves 2-1 and Los Angeles Dodgers blasted San Francisco Giants 7-2.

Montreal blanked Pittsburgh as Saturday while Houston trimmed Cincinnati 7-1. New York downed Philadelphia 5-3, Los Angeles beat San Francisco 7-4, San Diego dumped Atlanta 4-1 and Chicago swept a doubleheader from St. Louis, 3-0 and 15-1.

Brampton Ends Drought

BRAMPTON, Ont. (CP) — Brampton Excelsiors ended a 69-year drought Sunday night as they defeated New Westminster 23-16 to capture the Canadian senior lacrosse championship in four games over the Hines.

It was in 1931 and 1932 that an Excelsior team was last a Canadian senior lacrosse champion, although a Mimico-Brampton combined team won it 3 years later, in 1942.

Brampton led 19-4 after the first period, 16-7 after two and were outscored 9-6 in the final 30 minutes.

It was New Westminster's third straight year in the championship and each time they have lost.

Whip Warriors

NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C. (CP) — New Westminster Salmonbellies came from behind for an 12-10 victory over Brantford Warriors Saturday night to take the Mann Cup senior lacrosse final in four straight games.

Prevoyante Perfect

NEW York (CP) — Unbeaten La Prevoyante won her ninth race and seventh stakes Saturday with a smashing 7¼ length victory in the $104,220 Matron Stakes for two-year-old fillies at Belmont Park.

Le Prevoyante, regarded by many as the best of her age and sex this year, made her debut 16 Toronto Woodbine May 31, winning by 8¼ lengths. Since then she has won stakes at Woodbine, Pine Brassets and Fort Erie and invaded the U.S. at Saratoga, N.Y., in August, winning by 2½-lengths.

Liverpool Back

LONDON (CP) — Liverpool regained the lead in the First Division of English League soccer Saturday when it crushed Sheffield United 5-0 to maintain its unbeaten home record.

Quintes Strike Oilers 5-3

By ERIC EMERSON

It was not an auspicious senior hockey debut.

Wearing leg at one end of the rink were the Belleville Quintes, their almost white sweaters of last season providing a poor comparison with the crisp royal blue uniforms of the Tulsa Oilers.

The bodies inside the Belleville uniforms were not guaranteed to send shivers of excitement through local hockey fans. They consisted of unknown, half-tested, inexperienced hockey hopefuls and a smattering of only five starters from last year's senior "A" outfit.

Capping the rather bleak picture was the fact that empty seats outnumbered paying customers by roughly five-to-one as about 400 paying customers filtered into the Memorial Arena Saturday.

So much for appearances.

Those fans in attendance saw one of the more entertaining senior hockey games held here in some time as the Quintes tripped Tulsa 5-3. The team had to come up with a hustling, hitting effort to overcome an early 2-0 lead by the Toronto Maple Leafs' top farm club.

The Quintes were working like their jobs depended upon the game's outcome, and in many cases they did. "I told them before the game that they were fighting for their jobs," said Belleville coach Wayne Brown, "even the ones that have signed could still be cut.

"I was a little surprised at the outcome," said Brown of the victory over the Central Professional League entry. The Quintes' task was admittedly made easier by the fact that Tulsa's lineup contained mostly rookies, with nine members of the Oilers still with the parent Leafs' training camp.

Tulsa's inexperience was matched by the Quintes however, as only defencemen Greg Marchon and Lionel Botyr and forwards Ralph Plante, Al Ferguzon and Mike Rese performing regularly for the Senior A's last season.

Marchon played an outstanding game for Belleville, pressing enemy forwards from in front of the Belleville net, clearing the pucks and providing the offensive spark.

The big defenceman started the Quintes' comeback at 14.25 of the second when his low drive from the point eluded Ted Oulmet for a power play goal. He helped square accounts later in the period when his point drive was tipped in by Bobby Taylor to tie the game 3-3.

John McConnell provided the Belleville win with a pair of third period goals after the Oilers had pulled ahead 3-2 on Cam Fryer's slapshot from the slot.

McConnell knotted the game at 3-3 when his shot deflected in off an Oiler defenceman. He scored the winner at 12.16 of the third, sidestepping his own rebound after breaking in on the left wing.

The game's final goal came with 18 seconds remaining, when Marchen bounced a long shot into the empty Tulsa net after the visitors had lifted goalie Brant Cole for an extra attacker.

Winger Dale Smedsmo of the Tulsa Oilers deflects the puck past a diving Ron Belleveau for the opening goal of Saturday's exhibition game with the Belleville Quintes. The local senior A entry was able to rebound from the deficit however to record a 5-3 win over the Toronto Maple Leafs' top farm team. The Quintes continue exhibition play Tuesday when King stan Aces travel here for an 8.30 p.m. meeting.

Tulsa Tally

Brown's most pleasant problem of pre - season training may be choosing which of the three netminding candidates will fill Steve Rene's shoes. Ron Belliveau, who played in the Maritimes last year, Peterborough's Randy Reid and last year's back-up Ron Jury played a period each Saturday.

"How do you pick the top goalie?" laughed Weiser after the threesome split Saturday's chores. Reid turned aside 11 of 12 shots in the second period while Belliveau and Jury successfully handled 10 of 11. The best save of the night came in the third frame when Jury slid out to block Mike Rissel who had worked his way into the clear.

The Belleville coach was pleased with the showing of of the new forward unit of Danny Fiegwerdi, Bruce Amerson and Bobby Taylor. Mike Rese and Ralph Plane turned in some good penalty killing stints, while defencing candidate Greg Burkitt did the tone of the game with some stiff first-period checks.

"We want more hitting this year," offered Brown. "Last year teams weren't worried about coming in because they knew they weren't going to get hit."

Aces Here Tuesday

Belleville Quintes won't have long to rest on their unbeaten Senior A hockey laurels. The Quintes, who defeated Tulsa Oilers 5-3 Saturday in their exhibition opener, will face familiar rivals, the Kingston Aces Tuesday.

The Aces are reported to have virtually the same lineup as last season when they placed fourth in the OHA Senior A loop and should provide a tough test for coach Wayne Brown's charges.

The game will commence at 8.30 p.m. in the Belleville Memorial Arena.

Belleville repays the visit at Kingston next Sunday.

Fast Finish

Doug Bannon (left) finished the golf season on a winning note by edging Dave Jones for the Bay of Quinte Men's Closing Field Day Championship. Bannon carded a 75 to put him one stroke ahead of Jones atop the field of 66 Quinte golfers competing in the Sunday event. He was presented with the Al McCallam Memorial Shield.

Bannon Best Starter

Doug Bannon used a quick start for a strong finish to the 1972 golf season. The Quinte golfer burned his club's front nine in regulation 36 holes, despite the wet playing conditions Sunday to provide the momentum that gave him the Bay of Quinte Men's Closing Field Day Championship.

He finished the back nine in 39 for an 18-hole total of 75 good for first place in the low gross event. Bannon's round gave him a one-stroke victory over runner-up Dave Jones, while Peter Jones and Don Treacy tied for third with 77 each.

Other top finishers in the field of 66 Quinte golfers included Fred Fisher and Doug Bennett at 78 and Tom Lorrie at 79. The low net honors were taken by Paul Henderson with a 68.

Bannon's victory gave him possession of the Al McCallam Memorial Shield presented in memory of the Quinte member who won the tournament in 1970.

The women's closing field day title went to Betty Ingram, who overcame a previous bout of hepatitis to top Saturday's field with an 88. Low net honors for that tournament went to Gloria Graham with an 18-hole total of 72.

Arne Acton was elected as the 1973 women's president with Jean Smirks to serve as first vice, and Betty Ingram as second. Secretary for the women's group will be Marion Hetherington while Cora Hume will serve as treasurer.

Other top hitters included Bob Moore with three singles and John Masterson with a single and homer. For Trenton it was Roberts with a double and single and Curtis McLean with a triple.

New Money System Still Being Sought

WASHINGTON (CP) — The International Monetary Fund opened its annual meeting today with the 124 member countries dogged by seeking to shape a new world money system despite disagreement separating many of its most affluent members.

Pierre-Paul Schweitzer, the IMF's managing director, said agreement on the basic principles of monetary reform "is before the next annual meeting would be "major achievement" although the official United States line is that such agreement is possible by then.

"I don't think we should look for a new, bright, shiny monetary system" coming out of this meeting, said Finance Minister John Turner of Canada. But he was optimistic that the week-long session could make real progress toward an eventual solution.

The main accomplishment is expected to be the naming of a new 20-member group of officials, broadly representing all the member countries, to do the actual negotiating.

The new group is an expansion of the present Group of Ten, the 10 most wealthy nations of the one-Communist world, of which Canada is a member.

Underdeveloped and developing nations have long complained that they have too little to say in the IMF's operation. The new group, meeting for the first time Thursday, will include the original 10 plus 10 developing countries and will take over negotiations on monetary reform formerly assigned to the Group of Ten. Member countries of the new group also will speak for fellow members not included in the balance. Canada also will present the views of Ireland and Jamaica.

The goal is a system to succeed the monetary system that had been in effect since 1944 but broke down last year. Temporary repairs were made to the so-called Smithsonian Agreement hammered out in a special IMF meeting at the Smithsonian Institution here last December.

There is no dearth of plans for monetary reform, but little agreement on what the approach should be.

At the annual report on the IMF executive points out, there is a growing consensus that there should be a gradual disappearance of gold and U.S. dollars in favor of Special Drawing Rights, the "paper gold" created by the IMF three years ago, as the principal international reserve to settle international debts.

The U.S. officials have made clear that the U.S. will turn a deaf ear to monetary reform proposals until the big U.S. balance-of-payments deficit is wiped out. Thus the present U.S. trade deficit would have to be transformed into a substantial trade surplus and the American want monetary talks and trade discussions closely linked.

Turner said Canada agreed with other Commonwealth countries in a London meeting of finance ministers recently that there should be no interruption of the continued allocation of SDRs.

"I would hope that SDRs could become more attractive to hold, with greater interest rates," he said.

Under terms of the Smithsonian Agreement the U.S. dropped the 10 - per - cent import surtax it had imposed the previous August and, in effect, devalued the dollar by increasing the official price of gold. Japanese and most European currencies were revalued upwards. The Canadian dollar continues to float.

Turner said Canada hoped to again "refix the dollar at parity, but not until there is a renewed evidence of international stability and Canada can advise what a proper fix would be."

Asked if such a move, then, was still some time off, he replied "Yes."

Civilians Killed

QUANG NGAI, South Vietnam (AP) — Viet Cong and North Vietnamese troops herded more than 40 civilians into a building and blew it up with explosives, refugees from the Communist-occupied district reported Sunday.

They said the atrocity occurred last week at a hamlet of Mo Duc district, roughly 280 miles north of Saigon. Saigon radio reported the building was a Buddhist pagoda, but this could not be confirmed.

Repressive Plan Irked Churchill

WASHINGTON (CP) — Winston Churchill went into a rage at the wartime Quebec conference of 1944 when he first was briefed on a repressive United States plan for the treatment of Germany in the post-war era, says documents on the five-day conference, released Saturday by the state department.

But the next day, after the plan had been "dressed up in a way to be more attractive for the prime minister" by British officials, Churchill relented — "I will take it." The chill said, interrupting Lord Cherwell, his adviser, before he had completed his summary of the "much-softened-down" version.

Only the night before, recalled then treasury secretary Henry Morgenthau, author of the U.S. plan, Churchill had turned loose "the full flood of his rhetoric, sarcasm and violence," stating that he looked on the plan "as he would on chaining himself to a dead German."

President Franklin Roosevelt, Morgenthau recalled, sat by, saying little although he had earlier assured Roosevelt officials that Churchill could be won over to it.

But ultimately Churchill had the last word. It was he who dictated the memorandum — which both leaders initialled — that became the final conference document on treatment of Germany. It approved converting Germany into a country "primarily agricultural and pastoral in character" but made no mention of other repressive proposals by Morgenthau against German civilians.

However, in another document written by Churchill — the draft of a telegram to be sent by himself and Roosevelt to Marshal Joseph Stalin of Russia — he spoke of iron-fisted punishment for Nazi war criminals. Arch-criminals would be declared "world outlaws" and "disposed" of quickly.

As it turned out, the principal war criminals were tried and sentenced at the Nuremberg trials after the war.

The Morgenthau plan, by far the most severe and comprehensive of several put to it by cabinet members at Roosevelt's request in advance of the Quebec conference, would have carved the industrial heart out of a defeated Germany.

The industrial Ruhr and Saar areas would have been made an international zone, Germans living there would be conscripted to migrate; all industrial plants and equipment not destroyed would be dismantled, transferred to Allied nations as restitution, mines would be closed, and Germany would make restitution through forced labor outside Germany.

"Arch-criminals" would be put to death forthwith by firing squads" and "mere members" of the SS (Elite Guard), the Gestapo and similar (Nazi) groups will constitute the basis for inclusion into compulsory labor battalions to serve alongside Germany for reconstruction purposes," the Morgenthau report urged.

The 337-page volume represents some newly-released but highly technical information on military strategy for the invasion and occupation of Germany. But its greatest value is that it brings together in one place all the available documents — many earlier made public separately — on the arguments and problems that confronted the wartime leaders at the second Quebec conference.

The Sept. 12-16 conference was the 11th wartime meeting involving Churchill and Roosevelt. Stalin declined an invitation on grounds war duties made it impossible for him to get away.

A major controversy on the eve of the Quebec conference was over Allied zones of occupation in Europe. Again Churchill got his way.

Roosevelt wanted to occupy only northern Germany, becoming as little involved in postwar Europe as possible so the U.S. could concentrate on the war against Japan. He was opposed to the U.S. occupying Brittany, fearing there would be civil war there and the U.S. would get entangled.

One of the British arguments was that, given the positions of the Allied armies, they would have to cross each other — a fantastically complex operation — in order to follow Roosevelt's proposals for occupation.

Hydro Offer Rejected

TORONTO (CP) — The latest contract offer by Ontario Hydro to the 12,000-member Local 1000, Canadian Union of Public Employees, was rejected by the union's executive board Sunday.

The work stoppages across the province began 19 days ago but the utility's 1,200-man supervisory staff has been maintaining operations.

The new offer was a three-year agreement. Previous contracts were for two years. It proposed a maximum wage increase of 13.5 per cent and a maximum of 24 per cent with an additional cost-of-living adjustment of 1.5 per cent in each of the second and third years.

In a prepared statement, Pete Bamford, second vice-president of the union, said his executive board unanimously rejected the offer, "although the package contained some acceptable clauses in the areas of pensions, vacations and statutory holidays."

He was referring to a proposal to reduce the retirement age to 62 from 65 in 1973 and to 61 in 1974; to give employees three weeks' vacation after four years of service in 1972, instead of after five years, and after three years effective 1974; and to add one more statutory holiday to the workers' agreement, bringing the annual total to 11.

If he has, Baltimore Colts are probably quite happy they weren't around then. They were blasted Sunday when Namath demolished them to lead New York Jets to a 44-34 National Football League victory.

"It wasn't my best day," Namath shrugged after rolling up an incredible 496 aerial yards and six touchdowns. "Sometimes I throw it short, sometimes I was long and sometimes I wanted to be."

His first three touchdowns covered 65 yards to Eddi Bell, 57 to John Riggins and 23 to Don Maynard, followed by three to Rich Caster involving plays of 16, 79 and 88 yards respectively.

The six touchdowns fell one short of the NFL record and the yardage, achieved on just 15 completions in 28 attempts, was third best in the league's history for one game.

Vance, Walsh Do Carving

It was a little early to celebrate Thanksgiving, as Al Vance and Gerry Walsh settled for carving up a big share of the Quinte Raceway harness racing dollar.

The twosome won five of nine races contested Saturday night, Vance picking up three wins and Walsh adding two firsts and two seconds.

Gerry drove Dominion Lad to the fastest heat of the night, a 2:10.2 win in the feature eighth race. He came back to guide Magic Tom Lee to victory in the ninth, while following Vance to the wire in two other races.

The night's top driver and trainer Campbell Rose Jr. found in the second race of the night, in a best-ever time of 2:10.4. He repeated that performance with Clipper Zee in the fourth and Mr. Boyd in the seventh.

A crowd of 304 attended the second-last meet of the season, wagering a total of $15,-

Leftist Scholar Asks Citizenship

TORONTO (CP) — A Hungarian-born Marxist scholar who was refused an immigrant visa to teach at York University in Toronto now is here to apply for landed-immigrant status from within Canada.

"I am not going to allow this clue—this irresponsible allegation that my presence is contrary to the Canadian public interest—to stand against my name," Dr. Istvan Meszaros said in an interview Sunday.

The 43-year-old scholar was a close associate of George Lukas, minister of culture in the Hungarian provisional government which was overthrown by Russian Stalinists in 1956.

He fled to Italy, and in 1959 moved to Britain, where he has taught for the last 13 years. A British citizen since 1965, he has held a senior post at the University of Sussex for the last six years. He resigned to accept the post of professor in the division of social science at York University.

Dr. Meszaros arrived in Toronto last Tuesday as a visitor and on the advice of his lawyer, Paul Copeland, has applied for landed-immigrant status from within Canada.

"I understand that by this procedure, I will at least be told the reasons for the first refusal in London," he said.

A letter informing him that his application was rejected said only that to allow him entry was "contrary to Canadian public interest."

Dr. Meszaros said he thought the Canadian official who conducted the security interview in London was very nice, politically.

"He seemed to think in very simplistic terms and assumed that all Marxists are bombers and dynamiters."

Dr. Meszaros is regarded as one of the world's leading scholars of left-wing thought.

Brief Supports OMB

TORONTO (CP) — The powers of the Ontario Municipal Board should be retained and strengthened, says a brief to the select committee of the legislature reviewing the role of the OMB.

The brief, from the Confederation of Resident and Ratepayer Associations, which represents 40 Toronto neighborhood groups, says:

"As long as councillors are responsible only to themselves, a sober second look by an independent agency such as is now afforded by the OMB is essential."

The brief was to be submitted to the committee today.

The brief rejects the argument by many municipal councillors that voters can throw them out of office on election day if they don't like council decisions.

"The problem with this system is . . . that by election time the voter's neighborhood may have been destroyed because of some ill-conceived council decision."

The brief says the OMB "has to be the conduit of a court of last resort for the individual whose civic rights are being trampled by the decisions of local politicians" who, it says, "seem to think that council decision is always right simply because it is locally made."

"As long as designated land use is no deterrent to land speculation, and compliant councils are only too ready to acquiesce to the demands of developers, the present role of the OMB must be maintained and strengthened as a forum to which the individual can appeal for justice. . . ."

If this role is not maintained, the brief says "confrontation on the local level may take on ugly proportions."

Since being founded in 1969, the confederation has represented the opposition voice at a dozen hearings by the municipal board on bylaws submitted by Toronto city council. It has been involved in five other major hearings not yet completed, and will appear in five development bylaws not yet submitted to the OMB.

China and Japan Open Talk Series

PEKING (Reuter) — Chinese Premier Chou En-lai said tonight he is convinced China and Japan can establish normal relations, putting small differences aside and seeking broad agreement.

Speaking at a banquet in honor of visiting Japanese Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka, who arrived in Peking earlier today, Chou said such an action would help the quest for peace in the world.

Tanaka arrived in the Chinese capital on a historic six-day visit determined to end decades of unhappy relations through the establishment of diplomatic relations.

Some Japanese news reports sent from here to Tokyo tonight said the two leaders already had agreed in principle on normal relations.

The two leaders met for almost three hours in the Great Hall of the People, where the banquet also was held.

Tanaka is the first Japanese prime minister to set foot on the Chinese mainland since the Second World War when wartime leader Hideki Tojo visited Peking during the Japanese occupation of the capital.

Tanaka was greeted on arrival by Chinese premier Chou who stood by his side as the national anthems of the two countries were played and the flags of Japan and China fluttered in the background.

It was the first time in 27 years that the Japanese flag had flown here and the Japanese national anthem—a symbol of repression for millions of Chinese—had been freely played.

Other candidates nominated are Conservative Douglas Alkenbrack, who held the seat in the last Parliament, and Liberal Peter MacEllerum, former chairman of the Ontario Wheat Growers Marketing Board.

Help your son get ahead.

This boy knows that courtesy is good business

Newspaper route management can be a boy's first step forward

A BOY with a newspaper route truly is in business for himself. With an assist from our people who are experienced in working with boys.

He buys his newspapers from us and retails them to you.

He sells, he delivers, and he collects. Like any good businessman, he keeps records (you can see how valuable this is in applying the lessons he learns in the classroom in a practical way).

And like any good businessman, he shows a profit. A boy with a newspaper route earns money that can help him build a sizable bank account of his own. Useful for the things he wants. Even for a college education.

Not only does a newspaper route sharpen a young boy's business sense (which will be helpful to him throughout life no matter what career he chooses), it also offers him some important extras — the ability to deal with people, and the lessons of promptness, of care, of self-reliance, and of good manners.

In these ways, a newspaperboy manages to keep a step ahead of other boys in preparing for life.

If your son wants to handle a route, put him in touch with us. One may be available for him in your neighborhood. It will be an unusual opportunity for the self-advancement you want him to have.

What the Stars Say

By JEANE DIXON

Tuesday, Sept. 26

Let others do the pushing and rushing. Spending drifts into a splurging. Concessions are needed for peaceful home life.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): It seems time to act, settle pending negotiations, but actually, the conditions for a clearer definite result do not exist.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Your accounting is indicated as shaky at best. Where you hide or manage money, exceptional care is needed.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): It is difficult to shield your loved ones from the frustrations of today's events, or rather, from your reaction to conditions.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): More work is required persuading people to go along with your plans than in any other activity. Overdo nothing, spare your strength.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Take time to check your health care habits, diets, and the like, make appropriate changes. Social contacts involve expense.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Peace is somewhat more a balance between opposing factors than usual, has to be enforced. Family affairs tend to be expensive.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): What the trouble is may be a mystery—you've just got to be attentive and gentle with those you love.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Let others have the same free choice you claim for yourself—letting their remarks go unchallenged puts you above the competition.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Your money has half a dozen places to go, including a couple you hadn't thought of. Loved ones have schemes involving you.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Rushing in to direct what seems an improvement won't do—there are factors beyond ready view. Be clear and explicit.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Care in any travel is essential. You have little resistance to overcome, but little assistance in whatever you attempt.

Itch Condition Needs Treatment

By GEORGE THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have been told that I have barber's itch. It starts back of my right ear and extends downward about three inches. Sometimes it develops pimples and hives badly.

I have had this for more than two years and it doesn't seem to get any better. What can I do about it?—F.M.

"I'm not trying to drum up business for dermatologists, but if you haven't seen a doctor—and I get that impression from your letter—then I'd see one now.

Two years is much too long to allow a skin condition such as you describe to go apparently unchecked and uninvestigated.

Sycosis, the medical name for barber's itch, can leave some unsightly scars if not treated within reasonable time.

You can begin right away by changing your own shaving methods. It's essential in treating this condition to use absolutely clean shaving materials. Sterilize your razor with alcohol, use clean towels and go to a brushless shaving cream while the condition is being treated.

You could have either or two varieties of barber's itch that is caused by a fungus or the one caused by a germ, staphylococcus, for example.

Depending on which one, the treatments will vary, an antibiotic for the germ-caused variety and perhaps an anti-parasitic ointment locally for the fungal one.

From your description, I would say you had a fungal infection, the more common type of barber's itch that affects the chin and cheeks more than the upper lip. The germ-caused variety usually results from an infection brought about by a nasal discharge or unclean razors. For this reason, it is more commonly found above the lip.

Most barber shops are sanitary places, compared with what they might have been in days past when sanitation laws were either non-existent or lonely enforced.

Maybe we should start calling it "shaver's itch."

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Would the term "Dracula" describe the symptoms of erysipelas? What part of the body does it affect and what is the cause? Is it contagious?—A.T.A.

Erysipelas, once fairly common, has been licked with the advent of the sulfa drugs and the antibiotics.

It is a streptococcal infection of the skin that produces a red, swollen rash. Any part of the body can be affected, but the most common site is on the nose area, spreading out to the cheeks.

It tends to come on quickly and is often accompanied by a high fever and chills.

The streptococcus organism enters through the skin by way of minimal abrasions, often invisible to the eye.

At its peak, erysipelas was a common ailment among young children and elderly people. Today it is rarely associated with elderly people who have come chronic, debilitating illness.

Generally speaking, it is quickly treated with an antibiotic.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Can a massive brain hemorrhage be causing a stroke be caused by varicose veins on the legs?—R.R.M.

No, there is no relation to brain hemorrhage.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1♦	Pass	1♥	Pass
2♦	Pass	2♠	Pass
Pass	3♦	3♠	Pass

Opening lead—two of spades.

The deal occurred in the match between Australia and France, won by the French by 11 international match points for a 14 - to - 6 victory-point triumph.

At the first table, where Eaves and Smilde were North-South for Australia, the bidding unceremoniously died at three diamonds and declarer made eleven tricks after winning the club Ace and best low-ing the trump finesse.

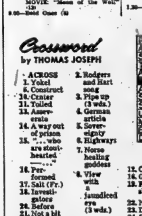
Actually, five diamonds is a fine contract — even though North-South have only 23 high-card points — since all total trumps are present.

Declarer can count on losing only one heart trick, one spade trick and one club trick.

However, Australia did rather well on the hand, for, at the second table, with a French pair North-South, the bidding went:

North	East	South	West
1♦	Pass	1♥	Pass
2♣	Pass	2♦	Pass
2♥	Pass	3NT

West led the club five and Delmonty South saw that the contract should stand or fall solely on the location of the king of diamonds. Accordingly, he west up with the ace of clubs, deliberately refusing a finesse that could defeat him if East had the king of clubs and shifted to a heart.



Delmonty then entered his hand with a spade, led the ten of diamonds and finessed. Unfortunately, East won with the king, returned the jack of hearts, which held, and continued with a low heart. The outcome was that East-West collected one diamond, four hearts and five clubs when the contract down six!

So Australia won 300 points at this table and 190 at the first table, a total of 490 points when 10 imps. Had East held the king of clubs and West held the king of diamonds, Delmonty's play would have won 6 imps and the French would have beaten the Aussies by 19 VP to 1.

Britain Stepping Up Airlift from Uganda

Peace Plan Okayed

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Foreign Minister Omar Arteh of Somalia said today that Tanzania and Uganda have accepted five-point peace plan.

Arteh told reporters he expects the details of the plan to be announced in a few days and that it would be in effect by the end of the week.

He said a cease fire already was in effect.

"I have accomplished my mission," said Arteh, who stopped briefly in Nairobi en route back to Mogadishu after visits to both the Tanzanian and Ugandan capitals.

The foreign minister said remnants of Tanzania-based guerrillas who invaded Uganda on behalf of former president Milton Obote were still in Uganda.

Arteh said he understood that the fighting was going on at present but that the guerrillas would be well advised "to retreat immediately in their own interests."

Arteh said "one or two points" in the peace plan remained to be discussed with both sides.

Diplomatic sources have speculated that the plan provides for a military pullback on both sides of the border, a promise by Tanzania not to harbor Ugandan guerrillas and the return to Libya of the 400 troops who flew in to help Uganda.

Quebec House

BRUSSELS (CP) — A new Quebec House was opened here today by the province's deputy premier, Gerard Levesque, on a note of friendship towards the federal Canadian government as well as towards Belgian authorities.

Levesque sidestepped attempts by reporters to lure him into the tricky area of the exact diplomatic status enjoyed by Quebec House compared with the Canadian embassy in Brussels.

True Davidson Now 'Private'

TORONTO (CP) — Colorful True Davidson, 71, the mayor of the Metropolitan Toronto borough of East York, says she's quitting politics and "resigning as a private in the war to save our planet."

Miss Davidson, who has been mayor of East York since six years before the creation of the borough in 1968, made her announcement at a public meeting.

She said she would work to further environmental and ecology by writing and public speaking.

Miss Davidson said her decision to quit "will be received with pleasure by all members of my council. They have been patient, and kind but all along they have known I've been a poor, weak woman."

That statement was greeted with unbelieving guffaws by several aldermen present.

Bennett Quits

VANCOUVER (CP) — Former Premier W. A. C. Bennett cut most of the remaining ties with politics in British Columbia Monday with a statement that he intends to resign his seat in the legislature and will not attend a special session in October.

His statement, delivered to The Canadian Press by Don Ekman, Mr. Bennett's former special assistant and a Vancouver public relations man, also said he wanted to see attorney-general Leslie Peterson to succeed him as leader of the Social Credit party.

'Near Disaster' in West

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The federal government was asked Monday to provide financial assistance to Alberta farmers whose crops have been snowed under by unusually early winter weather.

The request was made in a letter from Dobson Lea, president of Unifarm, an Alberta farm organization.

Mr. Lea said in an interview that the early snowfall and abnormally low temperatures had created a "near disaster" for some farmers.

Southern Alberta received up to five inches of snow during the weekend and much of it remains on the ground because of temperatures in the 20s. Southern Saskatchewan's grandest received up to eight inches of snow Sunday.

Mr. Lea said some farmers now are faced with loss of income, mounting overdue accounts and low-grade prices for grain when snow-covered crops are harvested. Lost crops also mean farmers would have to buy feed for livestock.

The federal government should consider advancing 25 per cent of what farmers expect to sell, he said.

Meanwhile, the weather forecasts gave little hope for a quick thaw.

"It doesn't look like there will be any break for at least three days," reported the Edmonton weather office.

"If it stays like this, it would be a disaster," said L. A. Member, economic analyst for the Alberta Wheat Pool in Calgary.

Brink's Break-in Aborted

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — A Kingston man and two Montreal men have been charged with a Monday night break-in at a Brink's Canada office in Kingston.

Police charged Lloyd McGowan Bilow, 38, of Kingston, Edgar Sylvio Bruneau, 42, and Georges Henri Beaulieu, 35, both of Montreal, with break and enter with intent.

A search is continuing for other persons police believe are involved in the attempted burglary that was aborted after police cordoned off a downtown area about 10 p.m.

Police have not discovered whether any money was taken or how the building was entered.

Provincial police said that about six officers from Toronto had been in Kingston for the last week and suspected an attempt would be made to rob the Brink's office.

After three men were arrested, police seized all the area when it was believed two women were hiding in the building. However, there were no further arrests.

There were no shots fired.

Troops Rob Asians

LONDON (AP) — Two more planeloads of Ugandan Asians, shivering in the autumn chill, flew to London Monday night as Britain geared up its "Operation Exodus" airlift and opened more camps to house the refugees.

The government hastily began preparing more abandoned military bases to house the Asian families who are expected to flood into Britain at a rate of 1,200 a day for the next week.

Officials reported entry permits were being issued at a rapid clip by the British high commission in Kampala to Asians holding British passports who have been ordered out of the country by President Idi Amin. They must be out by Nov. 7.

So far, 12,000 permits have been issued and Britain hopes to ship it's the airlift, swollen by an abortive start last week, by flying at least 4,000 Asians out by next Monday—3,000 more than planned.

The 18 flights originally scheduled for the next week have been increased to 22 to clear the backlog of homeless and penniless Asians processed before Amin's sudden, 90-day deadline Friday and preventers from leaving by a crackdown by the Ugandan ruler.

Officials said they wanted to get the Asians out while Amin has relaxed security between Kampala and Entebbe Airport.

There were reports there were an many as 20 roadblocks on the 22-mile route where soldiers were looting the fleeing Asians of jewels and valuables they had hoped to use to bank roll their new lives.

Reports from Kampala said restrictions on the road had been relaxed. But officials here were apprehensive Amin may be about to trigger a new crisis after it was announced he had expelled the British consul in Kampala, George Hawkins.

Hawkins, 52, led a small group of officials from the British high commission in Kampala last week to press authorities to release Britons jailed by Ugandan troops.

Replacement is expected to appoint a replacement for Hawkins. Britain's Canadian consul in Kampala is High Commissioner Richard Slater.

Here Thursday

NAIROBI (Reuter) — A first group of 150 Ugandan Asians holding British passports leaves Uganda's Entebbe Airport Wednesday, Canadian high commission officials in Kampala said by telephone Monday.

They said the Asians consist of three holding British passports as well as Uganda Asians who have been deprived of their Uganda citizenship and now are stateless.

The officials said that so far 473 visits have been issued to Asian families—a total of 1,253 persons. There have so far been almost 8,000 applications for visas.

$150 A Month Sought

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — The National Pensioners and Senior Citizens Federation urged the federal government Monday to increase the basic old-age security pension to $150 a month retroactive to April of this year. At its annual convention here, the federation passed several resolutions, all urging a more "decent" standard of living for the elderly.

Pope Paul Now 75

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul turned 75 today with every indication he intends to stay on as leader of the world's 600 million Roman Catholics. Birthday greetings poured into the Vatican from many of the world's leaders. The pontiff's call for bishops and cardinals to resign when they turn 75 sparked speculation that he, too, would step down. But he has made clear he believes a pope cannot resign.

Union Leaves CNTU

QUEBEC (CP) The 28,000-member Quebec Provincial Civil Servants Union voted in a referendum Monday to disaffiliate from the Confederation of National Trade Unions. Jean Paul Beaulieu, president of the civil servants union, told reporters he interprets the results as proof that the members have had enough of the political orientation of the CNTU in the last couple of years, especially since public service contract talks with the Quebec government began.

Arctic Freighters Sought

OTTAWA (CP) — An external affairs department official confirmed today that Canada is negotiating with West Germany for the development of a transportation network to ship natural resources out of the Canadian Arctic. Under the proposal a subsidiary of Krupp Industries would build a fleet of ice-breaking freighters to carry raw materials from deposits in the eastern Arctic to smelters in Western Europe.

Dental Workers First

TORONTO (CP) — Before Canadians can seriously debate a national pre-paid denticare system, a new class of dental workers to provide most common dental services is the first step, says Hamish Meister of St. Monco. Without the new class of dental workers, Mr. Munro said, national denticare — even limited to children only — would be impossible without disrupting existing dental care services.

Concern Shifts To Quality

BRAMPTON, Ont. (CP) — The concerns of the municipal politician gradually have shifted from dollars and cents to the quality of life, Premier William Davis of Ontario said here Monday night.

Mr. Davis, who amicably opened the new Chinguacousy Civic centre, said municipal governments have changed their concepts and their procedures to adjust to their communities.

He said that municipal officials, in mapping out the growth of their communities, were ruled chiefly by population, industry, new homes and schools.

"Municipal governments are now concerned about the kind of community they have and the kind of urban growth they develop," he said.

Mr. Davis said all three levels of government now must attempt to balance "the need for increasing economic growth and the kind of life they provide for their citizens."

Norway Rejects Euromart

OSLO (Reuter) — Norwegians decided today that they did not want their country to join the European Common Market and in a national referendum gave a stinging rebuff to pro-Market Prime Minister Trygve Bratteli.

Bratteli conceded defeat to the anti-marketeers when almost complete returns showed that 53.4 per cent had voted against membership in the European Economic Community to 46.6 per cent in favor.

Asked after he conceded defeat whether this meant that his government would resign, Bratteli replied: "It means that the Bratteli government resigns should the outcome warrant that we should not become a member of the EEC."

Gloves to Come Off

Irish Talks Move to Control of Police

DARLINGTON, England (Reuter) — Northern Ireland politicians meeting to discuss the future of Ulster, were expected today to tackle a potentially stormy point of disagreement—who should control the police force.

After reaching a large measure of agreement Monday on the first day of talks, the delegates from three of Northern Ireland's seven political parties face a split over the important police issue.

"The gloves will come off now," said one source close to the British government, which organized the gathering.

The parties attending the thrice-day conference near this northeast England industrial town are the Protestant dominated Unionist party—which ruled Northern Ireland until the suspension of the Ulster Parliament last March—and the Alliance party and Northern Ireland Labor party, smaller groups having mixed Roman Catholic-Protestant support.

However, the discussions have something of a holiday ring as the four other parties are boycotting them.

G. Leighton Thompson Rejoins City Hall Staff

Former assessment commissioner with the city of Belleville and now regional assessment commissioner at Trenton, G. Leighton Thompson is to return to city hall as assistant city manager.

City council approved the appointment Monday, with Mr. Thompson's duties to commence November 1.

The position of assistant city manager was created by council to provide for continuity in the office after City Manager J. R. Reynolds retires next June.

Mayor C. Russell Scott said the decision by council was an important one.

Mr. Thompson joined the city hall assessment department back in 1967 and served as city assessment commissioner from 1969 until Nov. 1970, when he became regional assessment commissioner in Trenton with the provincial takeover of the assessment function.

Today, Mr. Thompson expressed his pleasure over the prospect of returning to Belleville's city hall.

But he felt the three years as regional assessment commissioner in Trenton had been important for him.

"The position has broadened my views considerably," he said.

Moose Hunt This Year

TWEED — Moose hunting will be permitted in the northern reaches of the Quinte district this year.

The season will coincide with the annual deer hunt — which opens Nov. 6 and runs two weeks north of Highway 7.

This is where the district's small moose population is scattered, a natural resources department spokesman at Tweed said today.

The big game animal has always been sparsely present in the northwest end of the district. Moose have made such areas as Herschel and McClure townships in Hastings County, the north end of Wesleyton Lake and west of Marmora Lake.

Their numbers are not plentiful — just representative," said the wildlife official, and the decision to permit hunting is approached cautiously.

Open seasons are declared only every two or three years, depending on the moose population — estimates of which are based on observation when hunting is permitted.

The last moose hunt season in the area was two years ago, said the official.

All-Candidates Night Oct. 11

Candidates for the three parties in Hastings and Prince Edward-Hastings ridings have been invited to an all-candidates night Wednesday, Oct. 11.

The discussion — open to the public — will be held at Centennial Secondary School beginning at 8 p.m.

So far, only the New Democratic Party has confirmed that its candidates will be there. They are Elridge Brebner in Hastings and Richard Lunn in Prince Edward-Hastings.

Doug Whitney, campaign manager for Prince Edward-Hastings Conservative candidate George Hees, indicated Mr. Hees will also be on hand unless he is called 'out of town on a speaking engagement by party leader Robert Stanfield.

The other nominated entrant is George Cunningham, Liberal in Prince Edward-Hastings. He has not yet confirmed whether he'll attend.

Both the PC and Liberal candidates in Hastings have yet to be nominated. Invitations to both men will go out immediately after nominations meetings tonight for the Conservatives and Wednesday for the Liberals.

Milt Johnston, host of CJBQ's phone-in program What Do You Think?, has agreed to act as moderator.

He'll direct a panel of four who will ask the candidates questions before turning the discussion over to the audience for written questions.

On the panel are William Hackley of Belleville, Carl Eisenberg, a Loyalist College student from Stirling, and two other members, one of whom will be a political science student from Prince Edward Collegiate.

Each candidate is allowed a five-minute introductory statement.

Sponsoring the night is the Political Action Committee of the Quinte District Labor Council.

Seniors Request Downtown Centre

And they would like to see either an addition to their present quarters or a new senior citizens' centre — in the downtown area.

This was made known to city council Monday in a resolution from the senior citizens' body which was passed on to council.

Alderman Robin Jeffrey said there had been hopes for incorporation of a senior citizens' centre in a possible new senior citizen housing complex in the downtown area, but excessive land costs had ruled out construction.

Instead, two senior citizens' complexes of 80 units each were to be built on the city's west side — one at the Albert College Manor city playground site on Wellington Cres. and the other on Bridge Street opposite the Belleville Fairgrounds.

Ontario Housing authorities have, set Thursday of this week as the date for a meeting in Toronto with city officials to discuss incorporation of a senior citizens' centre in one of the two new complexes, but Ald. Jeffrey felt the discussions would be pointless.

"There is no use going to Toronto," she said. "The senior citizens want the centre to be downtown."

Acting on the suggestion of Mayor J. R. Scott, council voted for the delegation to go to Toronto, taking with it a representation from the senior citizens' group to make their wishes known.

Duck Hunt Opens Well

Area duck hunters shot far better than the national average during this past weekend, which marked the opening of duck season, said a spokesman for the Napanee division of the ministry of natural resources.

Jack Stewart, deputy chief ranger, said his department recorded 37 hunters in the bush and on the water in the Napanee division which includes Belleville and Trenton.

These were interviewed, showing a total 1,361 man-hours were spent hunting for a total kill of 417 ducks.

This makes an average of about 1.6 ducks per hunter said Mr. Stewart, as compared to the national average of two ducks per hunter and less than one duck for each hunter.

The mallard was hardest hit by hunters, followed closely by Blue Wing Teal, Blacks and Wood Ducks.

Mr. Stewart was satisfied that this was a safe weekend for hunters as well as a successful one.

"We recorded no incidents of safety violations or trespassing," said Mr. Stewart. "This is really good hunting," he said.

Duck season continues until Dec. 16.

Seniors Request Downtown Centre

And they would like to see either an addition to their present quarters or a new senior citizens' centre — in the downtown area.

This was made known to city council Monday in a resolution from the senior citizens' body which was passed on to council.

Alderman Robin Jeffrey said there had been hopes for incorporation of a senior citizens' centre in a possible new senior citizen housing complex in the downtown area, but excessive land costs had ruled out construction.

Board Freedom Said Restricted

Do school boards really control the educational destinies of the areas they serve?

James Clarke of Hastings County board of education thinks last night that they don't.

"We don't have the freedom we would like to have," he said. "We haven't much of a choice."

Mr. Clarke said that if the board "answered their (the ministry of education's) rising clarion call for local autonomy" trustees would probably opt for more teachers rather than better school facilities.

"Does the ministry really care — after all, they are all in for several years?" he asked.

Mr. Clarke's admitted "digression" came as trustees last night debated expenditures for renovations, alterations and additions to schools next year.

The board finally took the first tentative steps in a new course in capital financing. It decided to ask the ministry of education for approval to spend slightly more than $1 million out of current operation, costs for capital programs.

In fact, the board would scored only 15 per cent of this sum on its buildings — the provincial government will give grants for 85 per cent of the total cost.

But this sum is not transferable — the board cannot decide to put money to ward more teachers instead of improved buildings.

Later, director of education Eric Rusnacos said the financing of capital expenditures out of current operating costs could indirectly influence the pupil teacher ratio. By freeing $5 per cent of th costs, it gives the board room to man oeuvre in other directions. This county board has never before taken advantage of the opportunity to meet maintenance and renovation costs from current expenditure.

There are hidden savings to be reckoned with as well. When the board sells debentures to finance a capital program, including an oil boom, major boat, electric general, floodlights, radio chemicals, clothing and tools. The units will supplement the environmental co-operatives such as the one in Belleville. Tanks, working with the co-operatives, will enable equipment to be sent in an oil spill scene with a minimum of delay. The unit serving this area will be located in Kingston.

Names Confusing Alderman Says

Street names in Belleville should be tidied up to do away with the present confusion.

This is the contention of Alderman Ernest David, who Monday at city council asked why continuing roadways couldn't have the same name throughout their entire length instead of being known by different names.

For instance, he couldn't see why Hanna Ave. which actually is an extension of Bell Blvd. west of Sidney wasn't called Bell Blvd. throughout its length.

Neither could he understand why there should be three Front Streets — South Front, Front and North Front — when they were all the same roadway.

The alderman admitted that the matter might sound trifling but he assured that different names for different sections of the same street could be confusing to a stranger.

And recalling an instance when he opened a business on Front Street some years ago, said they confusion could be costly.

He also told he was located on "Upper" Front Street, he naturally assumed it was North Front Street and had his letterheads printed accordingly. When he learned he was located on "Front Street" he had to have letterheads reprinted.

Open House Proposed For New-old City Hall

The city has spent thousands of dollars in the past year or so renovating and redecorating city hall and May or J. Russell Scott feels an open house should be held to show the place off to citizens.

This year, new heating and air conditioning equipment has been installed, and the council chamber of the century old city hall has been completely done over with new wall panelling, acoustic ceiling tiles and new lighting.

And over the years almost all of the city's former department offices have had the same treatment.

Still to be installed in the council chambers are new window drapes and floor carpeting.

Mayor Scott said Belleville had one of the most attractive and impressive city halls in Ontario and one that he could rest well over $1 million to replace.

"Citizens should be proud of their city hall," he said.

Oil Spill Units Set Up

Environmental first aid in the event of oil spills in the Bay of Quinte and Lake Ontario will soon be available in Belleville.

This city has been chosen as one of the 23 centres in Ontario to have an oil spill co-operative, geared to contain and clean up accidental spills.

In addition, seven oil companies have banded together to place spill control units and trained crews in strategic locations in the province before the end of the year.

Each of the ten mobile units contains a variety of equip

Initial work in establishing the co-operatives was done by the Ontario division of the Petroleum Association for the Conservation of the Canadian Environment (PACE) an association of major oil companies.

Crash Victims Identified

The two men killed Monday when their half ton truck collided with a west-bound CNR daylinor near Bath have been identified as John Pathias, 19, of Enterprise and Dale Lockridge, 18, of Newburgh, driver of the truck.

Police said the two men were on their way to work at a construction site when the truck apparently skidded through a flashing signal barrier. There was heavy fog in the area at the time.

The inspect caused the front coach of the two-car train to become derailed, blocking both the east and westbound tracks. The eastbound track was cleared later.

Cablevue to Transmit Educational Programs

The Ontario Educational Communications Authority, in co-operation with Cablevue (Belleville) Limited, will provide 18 hours per day of educational television on local cable Channel 2, starting late in October or early in November.

The new Channel will feature a wide range of educational and informative programming geared to all age and interest groups.

Reginald Loader of Belleville, who as a member of OECA's Eastern Ontario regional council has been instrumental in bringing the new television service to the area, said he is excited about the possibilities opened by educational television.

"I've seen the educational programs now available to Toronto residents over educational Channel 19 and am very happy that residents in our area will now be able to take advantage of them," he said. "I am particularly enthused about the prospects for adult education in the area."

Roy Taylor, sales and promotion manager for Cablevue, said "we are happy to have the opportunity to provide a programming service that area residents would not otherwise have access to.

Belleville - Trenton's new Channel will form part of OECA's provincial broadcast service. It employs a new type of network distribution called "bicycling".

This involves the videotaping of most of the programming each day of OECA's anchor station, CICA TV, Channel 19, Toronto.

OECA then ships the videotapes to Belleville Cablevue's headquarters where the programming is then fed through the cable system to subscribers. This method has worked very well during an initial experiment in Northern Ontario and recently was offered to all Ontario cable companies.

Other eastern Ontario communities that have taken advantage of the service include Brockville and Pembroke.

Local viewers will have a voice in the programming and policy of the new station through OECA's 15 member regional council for Eastern Ontario whose job it is to advise the authority on educational communications matters. The council meets once a month throughout Eastern Ontario and welcomes the views of local residents.

Pet Bylaw Back for Study

Local pet lovers owning numerous dogs and cats got a reprieve at city council Monday, when a draft bylaw limiting the number of pets was sent back to the resolutions committee for further consideration.

The proposed draft bylaw would have provided a limit of two dogs and three cats at any dwelling unit.

The bylaw incorporated and updated a number of existing bylaws dealing with the keeping of all animals within the city.

But the bylaw was questioned by Alderman Paul Russell who pointed out it could affect the Quinte Exhibition and also land within the city limits that is still used for farming.

Limiting the number of dogs and cats that can be kept in the city was suggested after a complaint from the Cedar Street area where the odor from one property where many cats were kept, was forcing neighbors to keep their windows closed and was reducing property values.

Mail to Millhaven Prisoner Cut Off

By BRIAN AMARON
Staff Reporter

Thomas Lepine is a 19-year-old inmate at Millhaven Penitentiary.

He has been knocking around in reformatories and prisons since he was 10 years old and currently is completing a three-year term for theft with violence.

Despite his pleas, his family has disowned him. He has never had a visitor at Millhaven and until last June, had never received a letter.

They began to correspond frequently, each claiming to have written at least 15 letters in the last four months.

At the beginning of September, Carol decided to pity a visit to her imprisoned pen pal. Following regulations, Lepine mailed prison director C. D. Clarke to have Carol's name placed on his list of persons with visiting rights, only to have the request turned down.

A few days later, on a memorandum dated Sept. 12, Carol received notice from H. S. Bell, the prison's deputy director, informing her that correspondence between her and Lepine had been curtailed.

Neither Carol nor Lepine knew the reason. But a friend of Carol's, Mrs. Virginia Palmer, had dealt with the prison on previous occasions and talked Mr. Clark for an explanation.

The unsavory element, the director told her, was a 48-line poem called Adam and Eve that Carol had included in her last letter to Lepine. The poem describes — in lurid detail — what might have happened when Adam and Eve lost their fig leaves.

Carol, who is 18, claims the poem is nothing more than a joke, "something different instead of just about me and my home." But Mr. Clark views it as something else.

"It would be wrong of me to say I encourage any 15-year-old girl who is not in an inmate's family to have a relationship," he said when contacted Monday.

He went on to describe his stand.

"It is the policy of the Canadian Penal Service to facilitate correspondence and visiting rights to anyone who can be expected to make a contribution to an inmate in the institution or to his rehabilitation," he said. "I don't think any 15-year-old who is a stranger to an inmate is likely to make a contribution to the inmate."

He said that although regulations grant him the right to censor mail, the practice is "exceptional". In fact, he says he has enforced direct prohibition only twice since coming to Millhaven.

Contraband is forbidden, of course, but he did not place the poem in this category.

Carol thinks the prison is withholding the truth.

"I think they're nailing for something so they could stop Tommy and me from writing to each other," she says. "If he had started the Kingston riot and I wrote asking about it, then they'd have a right. But this way, they have no right."

Mrs. Palmer, common law wife of Billy Knight, a fellow inmate of Lepine's and the man who, through Mrs. Palmer, put him in contact with Carol, is more direct.

She says the prison is attempting to sever relations between Billy and other inmates because, as Billy puts it, he is an "instigator." The link between Mrs. Palmer, Carol, Lepine and Knight appeared easy to break because Carol is only 15 and "won't speak up for her rights," she says.

Both prisoners occupy cells in Millhaven's solitary confinement section, although for different reasons. Lepine was caught popping pills in the prison while Knight is being protected from other prisoners and guards who resent the fact that he was not charged after taking part in the Kingston Penitentiary riots last year. Other inmates who pleaded guilty received five additional years on their sentences.

Both Carol and Mrs. Palmer insist there was nothing wrong with the poem, particularly in view of permissive regulations regarding erotic material that were introduced following the Kingston incident.

"There aren't any swear words in it," adds the girl's mother, Mrs. Carol Watters. "You have to use your imagination."

Mr. Clark refused to say where the line on erotic literature is drawn in penal circles.

"To my knowledge it's not a problem one way or another in the institution," he said.

Carol and Lepine also claim many of their letters never reached their destination, despite the fact that they contained nothing that might be construed as contraband or, for that matter, erotic.

On this matter, Mr. Clark commented: "I couldn't verify that. Sometimes people forget how many letters they have written."

Mrs. Palmer says she was told by Knight that Lepine has become very depressed since the prison cut off his correspondence. She is worried he will "go off the rung soon" unless he is given some sort of hope.

She claims to understand inmates' minds better than most outsiders, having worked for several years with Springboard, a federally-sponsored organization that helps young prisoners' spirits.

She was annoyed when, after calling Mr. Clark to check into the correspondence pile-up, she was told "this isn't a lonely hearts club prison," and may appeal the case to a higher power.

In the past, she has spoken with Solicitor-General Jean-Pierre Goyer and once received a letter from Governor General Roland Michener about open visits to Knight.

"I won't give up, because I'm a trouble maker," she says.

Humane Society Asks Council for Assistance

The Belleville branch of the Ontario Humane Society wants to meet with a committee of city council to discuss future operations of the local animal control centre.

Thomas L. Hughes, general manager of the Ontario Humane Society, yesterday frankly admitted in council that the local branch was in financial difficulties and offered a number of alternatives to the present operation.

He said that the increase in the per capita grant to the society voted by council early this year had helped but had not offset the organization's deficit.

Mr. Hughes admitted that the Society had possibly been too ambitious when it purchased the Eastern Brooders' premises on the outskirts of the city in Sidney township.

The Sidney property had been purchased with the view of operating a regional centre and to some extent this goal had been realized with Belleville and Trenton both subscribing to the service.

But Trenton had dropped out and the addition of smaller municipalities had not been sufficient to keep the operation out of the red.

One of the alternatives suggested by Mr. Hughes was that the society might sell its Sidney township property and move to a smaller setup thereby reducing overhead.

Or, he said, Belleville might build its own animal pound and hire the Humane Society to operate it.

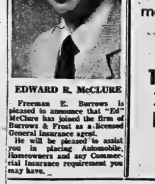
Another alternative suggested was that the city hire its own warden with the Humane Society operating the pound.

A fourth suggestion was that, instead of the present per capita fee, the city agree to an operating budget which could be presented by the society before the end of the year.

Council agreed to set up a committee of council members and city hall staff to meet with the Humane Society and discuss the possibilities.

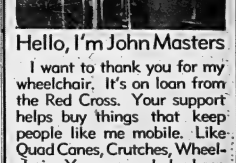
Jeffrey Proposes Evening Meetings

Late afternoon meetings of Belleville city council could be a thing of the past if a notice of motion introduced Monday by Alderman Robert Jeffrey gets the okay of council at its next meeting.



The notice of motion calls for the start of council meetings at 7 p.m. instead of the current 4 o'clock afternoon time.

Since the council meeting time was switched to 4 o'clock many years ago, there have been occasional complaints that the time made it difficult for the average citizen to attend at the council chamber.



On the other hand, however, a 7 o'clock start could mean that heavy council sessions might not be completed until near midnight.

TV Propaganda

The CBC and American channels have been busy presenting film by Eric Ericson of Swedish television showing damage to civilian targets allegedly caused by United States warplanes.

We have no reason to doubt that some U.S. bombs have hit civilian targets. We do wonder though if some other foreign television company (or even Sweden's) will give equal time to Communist North Vietnamese executions of village chiefs in the South and shelling and machine-gunning of refugees. And if they do, are they prepared to send it to Hanoi for showing to the North Vietnamese populace?

Even if the Swedes comply, will Hanoi then permit such a showing? The answer of course is no, but we are afforded a good example in this situation of how the television networks here at home are being used and how the North American public is being given a distorted or one-sided view of this phase of the war in Vietnam.

The Swedish film appears to be factual enough and Erickson's dialogue notably fair in his presentation, but it is nevertheless one-sided without any comparable program on what the Communists have done to innocents in Vietnam. And it also reflects the rather leftish leanings of the present Swedish government.

The most recent film from this source represents a classic propaganda coup by the North Vietnamese. It shows three American pilots and their families being conducted on a tour of bombed civilian targets in North Vietnam. The men were to have been released the other day but apparently were held back to permit them (and the outside world) this view of what American bombs had done.

City Crime

The armed robbery at the Black Hawk motor hotel at the weekend is a sinister development. It has been such a relative sinecure over the years that we might have been excused for feeling a little self-satisfied.

And yet the potential for it is gnawing. The city's population has increased in the last few years and while we have gained some very desirable citizens there remains an element in our midst which necessitates the police always being on the alert.

Whether this was the work of local or outside hoodlums is of little consequence. The fact that it happened at all underscores that Belleville cannot take its relatively crime-free image for granted.

Free that is of the more serious type of crime involving dead weapons. Mostly the city's problems of this nature have been from petty thieving. And times have changed in that sphere too — in the Looking Backward column recently we saw an item referring to a jewellery robbery in the city back in 1942. Nowadays thieves seem to lean more to stereo and related equipment and to syringes from doctors' offices. The latter of course are a target for the junkie fraternity who languish in the shadowy world of drugs.

But whatever the type or extent of crime here, the need for continued vigilance by both police and public is growing.

The Word Game

Politicians — of whatever party affiliation — learn their gobbledegook early in the game. Larry Fleischman is 23 and the new Youth Director of the Ontario Progressive Conservative Party. A former student president at the University of Western Ontario and latterly a student of community development with the Citizenship branch of the Federal Government, he has released a statement setting out his priorities. It came in a recent news release from party headquarters: "There obviously exists a very direct correlation between the ability of a legislative member to be truly representative and the level of interaction he has with his community. It is essential at this point in our history, that we encourage dialogue between the political and non-political elements by establishing mechanisms through which people will be encouraged to use their creative abilities in assisting provincial plannert. Only through a system of dialogue can there be long-term benefits. Realizing that the conflict of ideas is indeed dynamic, it is my intention to assist youth to organize in such a way as to encourage this energizing element."

Canada—U.S. Economic Declines Worries Observers

By JOHN D. HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

"Both sides went automatically and immediately to the preservation of the new economic concept." These words at the conference of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce in Ottawa came from Mr. C. Trowbridge, president of the prestigious Conference Board of New York. He was speaking, and in philosophical terms about the Canada—United States relationship, but with cold and frank logic about how this has declined economically.

The "open border concept" was the one which prevailed in the St. Laurent and Pearson years, when like-minded Canadian and American bureaucrats resolved trade and balance-of-payments problems with little communion.

Mr. Trowbridge, an American business executive and economist with an impressive personal pedigree, wasn't telling the Canadian audience anything they don't know. But he was being incisive and hard about problems facing our two economies which have not existed before with such intensity.

For him, the underpinning of the future Canada—U.S. relationship would be economic policy as opposed to any other kind, conceivably on political or cultural affairs.

What are the intensified trade and financial problems which have deteriorated this relationship in the last few years?

Mr. Trowbridge listed the following. First, the automotive pact which is currently working in our favor and according to him, represents an annual deficit to the U.S. of about $300 million in the Canada—U.S. trade balance. Second, the very controversial DISC schemes affecting tax advantages to American multi-national companies which are prepared to manufacture within the U. S. instead of abroad.

Third, the growing economic nationalism in Canada, a world phenomenon which in the recent years of the "open border concept," the 1950-1960s, was not yet a Canadian experience American industry need worry about. But today it is a major factor in their decision-making about long term Canadian operations.

Fourth and very important to him, since he was speaking to private industry, the increasing role of governments in deciding how industry will take part in the national economy. Such legislation as the recent Foreign Takeover legislation, (which died on the order book with the last Parliament) would give government a new say in who will own an existing Canadian company.

Finally Mr. Trowbridge came close to suggesting in that a good deal of this has happened since the Trudeau Liberal government came to power. Perhaps so but only in some instances.

Canada did not originate the potentially-crippling DISC program. President Nixon did. But a middle power like ourselves lacking the security of the predominant U.S. market—into China via the recent record-size Canadian trade mission—and into Latin America and South East Asia must be very engaged in a legitimate shift in foreign economic policy.

No one, including the Americans, wants all this trade eggs in one basket.

Ontario Government Going Through Shaky Period

By DON O'HEARN
From The Intelligencer's Queen's Park Bureau

TORONTO — For a long time now, a good many people have been preaching that Ontario needs a change of government.

The Progressive Conservative regime has been in office for 29 years. And aside from the fact that just on the realities of life this is too long for any party to be in power, there have been weaknesses showing through.

Among them have been smugness, arrogance and autocracy surfacing as careless spending, delegation of too much power to the civil service, and generally uninspired government.

One consequence of the recent troubles of the Davis government is that at last we should see if not a change at least a very substantial improvement in the government in those areas in which it has become weak through old age in office.

The government has had a shock.

Not as great a shock as a government that has been defeated or nearly defeated. But about as close to this as can be.

And this should mean substantial differences in attitude, and in turn, better approaches towards government.

We should not, for example, get as much glossy living at the taxpayer's expense.

It is doubtful if now there will be cases such as that of the second level sachem who recently had his driver take him home 12 miles at night and then come back and pick him up in the morning.

Nor is there likely to be as much waste as there has been during the years of the Big Blue Machine.

The government is going to be more careful in its dealings with the people of the province.

More attention will be, or should be, paid to the opposition. Government security has been threatened, and with the threat there should be a lot less smugness.

Perhaps there should be much more imagination.

A government under pressure, really strong pressure as this government now is must think. It is forced to think. And think hard.

So that, generally speaking, because of its trials we should see a better government.

It won't be quite the job that ideally is needed, of course.

Only a new party in office can bring about the basic changes—the new broom—that it seems every jurisdiction needs from time to time under our system.

The fat will still remain in the civil service, for example. And the little empires which infest government will continue.

But at least there should be improvement.

Kindergarten Affords A Shock or Two For Kiddie

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

I hesitate about writing a letter of this nature and yet I think the public interest demands it.

I have heretofore very happily had four children go through the public and high school systems of this city without any cause whatsoever of complaint.

In the eight days since my five-year-old started kindergarten in this city, she has been exposed already to four-letter language by other children in the kindergarten, including particularly a four-letter word beginning with "f" and what is far more serious yesterday, she came home saying that two little boys had persisted in lifting her skirt to look at her panties.

One can only be sorry for the little boys using this language and acting in this fashion, since they are the obvious products of the home environment of people who have no respect for themselves and little or no interest in the proper rearing of their children.

One can also sympathize with the plight of the public school board of this city who have to deal with people like this type of atmosphere and this type of conduct.

It is my hope that my little girl has suffered no serious harm from this unfortunate conduct, having received reassurance and explanation, and also firm instruction to protect herself and I give due warning to the parents of little boys who complain about black eyes from my child, that they have earned it and deserve it, if their incomprehensible failure to instruct and discover examples of conduct to their children is allowed to instruct that to at least some extent the criminal justice is the important matter of department.

When I was a boy we used to be marked upon deportment just as in Arithmetic and English, and although I am well aware that the deportment marks of yesteryear produced many problems, I am wondering if the results of the cure are not worse than the disease.

If children are not disciplined and taught to behave by the parents, then it is left to the proper role of the State to do so, as part of our mutual delegation of powers, but I think that the best interests of all of us, including those who use this language today and lift skirts today are going to be in Juvenile Court in a few years, and in the meantime will have left a path of class disturbance and emotional intrusion, and value derangement through the whole system.

I would not turn children into the automata of many years ago, but since the family does not do its job, and since the role of the Sunday School and the church has gradually diminished as a moral regulatory force, particularly for children, it is more and more the necessary role of the school, and therefore the Board of Education to formulate more psychologically acceptable mechanisms and methods for the assistance of teachers to ensure at least a minimum level of decency in the conduct and speech of children for the benefit of themselves, the protection of other children, and it is further the duty of all citizens to back up the Board of Education if it does in fact embark upon a reasonable role of paternal discipline of the children.

If for one will certainly do so with all my heart after the above happenings.

In closing may I exhort all parents of young children in our city which we all love, to remember that respect and a conduct that a little child is watching and listening.

CONCERNED PARENT

City Hall Appointments Criticized

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

In looking through some back issues of magazines, two letters to the editor caught my eye. One pointed out some of the ways that Communism has infiltrated our society, the other claimed that the first writer was "barking up the wrong tree", and proceeded to point out some of the shortcomings in our own system of government.

It is true that our system of democracy and free enterprise has many faults, but the difference between it and communism, or any of the various forms of socialism lies in the fact that we can change it . . . they can't.

If our democracy is not working as it should, we have only ourselves to blame. For years we have been very careful not to get involved in anything. We were too late to get involved with such things as finding out how places such as Pol Pot's were being run. We were much too busy, to do much about the Watergate affair, or the search for the retarded or even schools were being run. We decided that politics was 'dirty' so we didn't get involved with any party to help select candidates, many of us didn't even bother to vote when an election came up. Oh! of course we grumbled about the way the government was running things, but getting involved . . . not us.

Since true democracy is government of the people, by the people, we must all pause it constantly to keep it working. If we fail to see that honor and decency are upheld, and that justice is given to all, then the forces of oppression quickly move in.

Communist Infiltration

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

In the last few years there has been a very public interest and involvement. People have come forward and made their views heard on a variety of subjects, and the influence which they have had on the government, is proof that we are still living in a democratic country. We still have a long way to go in the battle against corruption of various forms which has infiltrated our country. It won't get any better unless we wish it to do so we will everything be of little avail. Some of the campaign promises etc. Things will only really improve when we start asking, "What can I do about it?" instead of "What are they going to do?"

In taking a place trip a few weeks ago I had the opportunity of looking at the clouds from a different side. They lay below us like a solid carpet of billowing loveliness tinted with rainbow colors by the evening sun.

One can scarcely compare a modern plane with our shaky old democratic system, but one might well compare the sunlapped clouds to the picture which communism and the various form of socialism presents today. Each appearing so solid and lovely that we are all enticed to desert our democratic way of life, and accept into that scene which appears as solid and lovely as the rainbow colored clouds — to discover too late that these systems are also just as unstable as the clouds.

Electrician's Complaint

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

I feel that I must take issue with the following statement made by Maurice Rollins in the September 15 issue of The Intelligencer: "there is no need for building tradesmen in the Belleville area to be idle, in fact he said it was almost impossible to hire local bricklayers, Plumbers, and electricians."

As an Electrician for the past 20 years and having been out of work since January 1972, I find this an exaggerated statement. I am registered at Canada Manpower as also are many other Electricians. So far they have found me nothing. Most contractors in the area I have canvassed and scan the "Help Wanted" column in the Intelligencer every day. I would ask Mr. Rollins has he or his subcontractors contacted Canada Manpower? Advertised in The Intelligencer? Or where do they advertise for help.

Mr. Barlow was born on the old Bleecker Farm on the exact spot where Belleville now stands. He remembers when there was a toll gate on what is now Dundas St. at MacDonald Ave. He helped draw stone for some of the oldest buildings in the city, including the local city hall which was built "about 1874".

Housing Costly

Hamilton Spectator

House-buying financial guidelines in proposed National Housing Act amendments dramatically illustrate how costly private home ownership has become for the average-income city dweller.

New mortgage arrangements would allow 30 per cent of a family's monthly income to go to house payments — mortgage principal and interest and taxes. Not all of a working wife's income could be included for purposes of calculating the percentage.

The present guideline is the limit at 27 per cent, counting up to half the working wife's income. The old rule of one-week's pay for a month's housing has been obsolete for years.

The trend in NHA guidelines reflects a general pattern in housing costs in large urban and single-family homes, in public and private housing.

Shelter—one of the basic necessities and a gauge of a man's living standard—has demanded a steadily - rising share of a family's budget. It is no longer unusual for a family to spend a third of its income on housing. Most contractors in the area allow when private home ownership, attainable through the earnings of one breadwinner in each family, was taken for granted. But housing that can demand — and get — 30 per cent of two combined incomes suggests that not all of Canada's living standards have improved during this last quarter century of growth and prosperity.

Post Office Debate Looms

TRENTON (Staff) — Plans are shaping up for a vicious debate over the proposed municipal office-parking garage on the site of the former Trenton Post Office.

A special Ontario Municipal Board hearing scheduled for 11 a.m. Thursday at Trenton Community Gardens is expected to attract a large number of protesters as well as a formidable group of those in favor of the proposed development.

An unidentified group of Trenton businessmen are providing the services of a lawyer to speak on behalf of those opposing construction of the building, which would retain the former post office tower in the design.

In making this announcement today Mayor Duncan McDonald said he was highly in favor of both sides being properly represented — the town by Belleville lawyer J. D. Tempieman, the protesters by a solicitor whose name was not released.

"Regardless of whether the objectors to this project a minority or a majority I feel the citizens are entitled to equal representation and am very pleased that some of our leading businessmen have provided this," Mayor McDonald said.

At a council meeting last month the Mayor expressed concern that legal facilities for the objectors had not been provided.

He feels that "for a hearing as important as this" as many opinions as possible from both sides should be aired.

The main thing right now is that people in the community are being represented at no cost to them and this is the fair way of handling it," he said.

Naturalist To Speak

Alma Wallis, well known naturalist and former Belleville resident will return tonight with an illustrated lecture on the Canadian north. She will speak at BCI auditorium at 8 p.m. under the sponsorship of the Quinte Field Naturalists.

Mrs. Wallis was raised in the Hudson Bay area and was a hunter and professional trapper before moving south and continuing her hunting with a camera. She makes annual trips to the sub-Arctic to study plant and animal life and bring them back on film. She has also made a camera safari to Africa.

Van Inspected

The emergency van of the Thurlow Township Fire Department was the subject of keen interest Thursday by members of the Hastings County Council as they stopped off at the Corbyville fire hall during an all-day tour of the southern part of the township.

The department emergency van was donated by the Belleville Yardmen Benefit Fund and was outfitted by the volunteer firefighters themselves.

Included in the van's equipment are portable pumps, fans for sucking smoke from burning buildings, first aid equipment, jacks and various other tools for freeing persons trapped in buildings or wrecked vehicles.

Although operated by Thurlow volunteers from their Corbyville firehall, the emergency van is not intended for use in Thurlow alone.

"It is intended for area use and will go anywhere in the district," said Deputy Reeve Borden Forsythe.

Man Injured In Car Crash

PICTON (Staff) — A three-car pileup on Main Street early Sunday caused an estimated $2,400 and sent one motorist to hospital.

Injured was 45-year-old Stanley Stevenson, Main Street, whose car collided parked vehicles on Main Street opposite a coin laundry, said police.

Damage to the Stevenson car was estimated at $700 by police.

A second parked vehicle owned by Florence Allen of Bloomfield received an estimated $1 000 damage.

Mr. Stevenson was taken to Prince Edward County Memorial Hospital where he was treated for unspecified injuries.

Equal Rates Sought

Telephone companies outside Ontario, Quebec and parts of the north are bringing their long distance rates in line with those set by Bell Canada last year.

The Trans-Canada Telephone System has applied for the rate changes effective Nov. 5. Rates in areas served by Bell will remain the same.

If the application is approved, a one-minute minimum rate will go into effect for customer dialled calls. there will be lower rates on long-haul customer - dialed calls and extended late night calling periods.

Cost of short-haul calls will increase as will operator-handled calls and person - to - person calls.

The only significant difference between the Bell Canada rates and those in areas not served by Bell is the discounts. Bell gives a 33 1-3 percent discount in the evenings and on Sunday a 50 2-3 per cent discount from midnight to 8 a.m. Outside Ontario and Quebec the discount will by 30 per cent and 50 per cent.

E. G. Thompson, Bell's local manager says the proposed rate schedule is designed to encourage customers to dial their own calls and take advantage of the "economics of the automatic switched network.

Home Movies?

Not quite. That would be pointless. After all, there are management accountant lectures to attend with professional teachers. But students have access to prerecorded tapes when they're preparing for examinations.

What a great way to review. You relax and listen. Kind of like going over things with a professor before the exam. Students must be pretty enthusiastic.

Bible Translator Speaks Of Life in New Guinea

ROSLIN — Miss Joan Baxter of Toronto, a member of the Wycliffe Bible Translators and has spent some time in New Guinea spoke briefly at the Sunday morning service in St. Paul's Anglican Church, Roslin, of the work being carried out there in the translation of the Bible into the native language and of the great need of the people.

Following the service she spoke to the Sunday School in the Parish hall. The speaker noted that New Guinea is an island north of Australia and half of the island is ruled by Australia. In that part alone, there are 700 different languages and so far only 100 have been translated. She showed a number of beautiful slides of the country which is most primitive with no railways and the few roads are poor and often muddy. The aeroplane is used extensively and pilots are important, numerous air strips are needed to land on, and even then, they have to travel a number of miles on foot to reach some of the villages.

Raw Kaw is one of the main vegetables and is much like a sweet potato. The leaves are on stilts and have grass roofs.

The highland parts are bushy jungle and there are ornamental palms in the low lands. Poinsettias and orchids grow in abundance. There are many beautiful birds — cockatoos much like a parrot and the Bird of Paradise, which is only found in New Guinea. Native men and women live in separate houses.

Women do the work and carry heavy loads in billam bags on their head and back. Men are quite artistic and beautiful carvers.

Kuni grass which grows on the mountain tops is used for the grass roofs.

Miss Baxter showed how food is cooked in pandy. They dig a large pit and put stones in the bottom which have been heated in a fire. There is first a layer of vegetables, then a layer of banana skins, more vegetables, then skins and if meat is available it is placed on top, then more skins and then water is poured in to create steam. All is covered with earth and left three hours to cook. When uncovered it is peeled and is very tasty. Coffee is grown extensively.

Workers go out in teams to the villages. Radio communication and the two-way radio keep the workers in touch with home base. One of the highlights is when the translation is ready, at which time they have a dedication service and the portions of Scripture are sold to the native people.

The speaker also displayed a number of carvings and artifacts.

Miss Baxter hopes to return to New Guinea shortly.

MR. AND MRS. STEVEN L. TEBWORTH

Tebworth — Young

The Church of St. Michael the Archangel, Belleville, was the setting for the double-ring wedding ceremony, on Saturday, September 2, 1972, of Deborah Catherine Young, daughter of Mrs. Thomas Cecil Young of Belleville, and the late Mr. Thomas Cecil Young, and Steven Lloyd Tebworth, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Tebworth of Belleville, Rt. Springbrook WI Marks 75th FWIO Anniversary

SPRINGBROOK — On September 19, the Springbrook Women's Institute held a tea in the basement of St. Mark's Anglican Church at Bonarlaw. This tea observed the 75th Anniversary of the Federated Women's Institutes of Ontario. Attended by women help of celebrate this event.

Mrs. George Williams welcomed everyone and gave a special welcome to the Institute members from Stirling, Ivanhoe, Rylestone and Marmora. She then read a poem of friendship.

Mrs. William Barlow presented a short address from which she mentioned that there were three kinds of women— those who make things happen — those who watch things happen and, those who don't know what is happening. A moment of silent prayer in respect of the early women pioneers, followed the address, with a special prayer by Mrs. Lloyd Crawford.

Mrs. Clayton Burkitt in centennial dress, presented the story of the Women's Institute, with the belief that unanswerable needs were an encouragement for the Institute. She traced much of the history of the founder of the Women's Institutes, Mrs. Adelaide Hunter Hoodless. She finished her story with a poem that expressed the 'kind' of 'rights of women" that God will bless.

Mrs. Percy Richards were given by Mrs. Goldie McIlwrick the representative Stirling WI. The first song was written by Mrs. Ken Bloodworth, Mrs. Adelaide Hunter Hoodless. Mrs. Percy Carmen represented Ivanhoe WI read a humorous poem.

A time of group singing led by Mrs. Goldie McIlwray was enjoyed.

Mrs. Roy Finch representing Ryiestone WI read a poem "What the World Would Be Like If" explaining some of the "ifs". A poem written by Mrs. Mrs. Dave Wellman of Bonarlaw titled "If You Belong To The Institute" was read by Mrs. Cyril McKeown. This poem gave some of the benefits the WI members enjoy. Another poem "The New Member" written by Mrs.

A display of Coffey introduced the guest speaker Peter Enright who showed slides of his trip to Rome, Spain and Germany this summer. Mrs. Clare Brownell thanked Mr. Enright and presented him with a gift on behalf of the members.

Everyone enjoyed lunch.

If You Are Lonely - - Do Something About It

By DORIS CLARK

Teens, twenties, elderly we-down, all write in with the same theme of loneliness. Which is a sad state of affairs. Ever hear of picking yourself up by your own bootlaces? The logician says it can't be done. The social worker says it can.

If you're lonely, starting at a new school or college, or getting over losing your best friend or husband, do something about it. Throw a party, one that can help you make a new friend. Years ago I wrote about Hallowe'en fun and so many people cottoned to the idea that I wrote another bit about how to do it.

When people dress up and masquerade it sets a mood that makes for merriment. Somehow we can lose our self-consciousness behind a mask. And there's no law against it!

If you are one of the lonely ones, I challenge you. Get some new things happening in your life. Write in for the two leaflets (1) Throwing a Hallowe'en Frolic, and (2) Hallowe'en —A Night That's Meant For Fun, enclosing 20 cents for each one, and a large, self-addressed stamped envelope. And have a ball!

* * *

Dear Doris: For some years past we are asked what I would like to know is, when a salad plate is served with stalk celery, green onion, carrot sticks or radishes, are they used as finger foods?

I have seen people cutting their celery, radishes, etc., into small pieces. I did learn that lettuce, if hard to handle with a fork, could be cut with a knife.

When a cluster of grapes or a bunch of cherries are served on a fruit salad plate, are they then finger food? The pear or peach halves served on a salad plate should they be broken with a fork or cut with a knife? — Little Things Mean Lots Things: I know. It happens to all of us — sooner or later we catch ourselves looking around to see what spoon or fork others are using.

When items like celery or carrot sticks are served whole and dry they are considered finger foods, even if they are part of a salad plate. Same with cherries.

But if they are chopped up and in the salad, use your fork. The fork cuts foods soft enough for such treatment; but when a knife is needed, transfer the fork to your left hand and use the knife for cutting.

Via your stamped envelope I am sending you my 36-cent book list "Manners and Etiquette," which recommends the best etiquette books available.

Dear Doris: I know I am still in love with him. He was a young officer in the military. I was young and pretty and every number he would dance with me. We wrote to each other when he was in training. We were in love.

I cannot forget him after all these years. I know he must think of me. I was 19 and he was 22. Our ways separated in such a simple way. All I want to do is to meet him and explain to him what happened. He was such a gentleman and I a lady.

I know where he is; such a short distance from me. Please tell me good news and how I can get to see him. — Jay

Dear Jay: "He either fears his fate too much, or his deserts too small. Who fears to put to the touch to win or lose it all."

You've got to care enough to stake a new overture in spite of a chance of failure. Make sure first that he is still single and there's where I'm going to be. Then inviting him in for a cup of coffee. Explain that you want to explain.

If, indeed, he thinks of you still, you may start something.

Doris knows Canadian resources and can guide you to the help you need. Write to her, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for private reply.

Mirror of Your Mind

by JOHN CONWELL

Is discipline quickly forgotten?

NO; a child readily learns his lesson when he is told not to do something and realizes that the parent who is laying down the law really means to enforce it. This doesn't mean that the youngster submits meekly, though. After all, there is no more inventive genius than that of a child; and while he will not completely disobey a parental order he will try a dozen or so other means to do exactly what he has been disciplined not to do.

Does room decor reflect personality?

YES, but more subtly than people realize. To put it another way, an individual will decorate a room to express a point rather than for it to "be" that person. As Virginia Frankel says in "What Your House Tells About You" (Trident), an attractive woman will "do" a room in fashionable style, but she certainly will make sure that the decor won't upstage her. Her guests should feel comfortable, but she wants them to remember her, not the room.

Can a couple be overconfident?

NO; as a matter of fact, a husband and wife may not be confident enough. For instance, it may seem that a husband and wife are asking a lot of each other in thinking that their love could sustain them in whatever situation confronts them. At the same time, however, there will be occasions when the husband, say, wants to discuss a particular subject, yet he will not say a word because he is afraid his wife won't understand.

September 16 Mrs. Frank Parks celebrated her 90th birthday at her home in Coe-ger.

Miss Heather Parks, Belleville, and Miss Karen Lott, Amherst, great granddaughters, were in charge of the guest book, which was signed by nearly 150 guests.

The lovely birthday cake, made and decorated by Mrs. Grant Parks of Belleville was in the shape of the number 90.

Lunch was served by the granddaughters, ably assisted by Mrs. Norman Coe, of Carp, and Mrs. Arthur Parks of Madoc, in the kitchen.

All of her family, eight of her 13 grandchildren and 19 of the 27 great-grandchildren were in attendance.

Mrs. Parks is in excellent health and lives in her own home in the summer months.

50 Attend ESP School

TWEED — This year saw the opening of "Pax Centre" — Canada's first immersion school for ESP, Psychic and Mind Development. Over 50 students from across Canada and as far south as Maryland, U.S.A. attended classes throughout the summer. People from every walk of life, from student to scientist came to expand their knowledge and concepts of themselves and the entire scope of metaphysics.

The themes were endless: dreams, personality survival after death, latent developments of science in proving the existence of the human aura (sometimes referred to in Christian terminology as the "Halo"), the aura's significance in the fields of psychology, philosophy, religion and medicine, prominent issues on abortion, ecology, meditatin, astral projection, and the individual's responsibility in meeting the challenges of today.

The final immersion course to close off this highly successful summer season began September 18 and will last until Sept. 30. Any interested persons are most welcome to give the centre a call at 478-5180, and arrange attendance for this course.

Ann Landers

Color of Skin Inconsequential

Dear Ann Landers: Your reply to the dark woman whom people frequently mistook for a foreigner was beautiful, and I hoped to use it the next time I am asked why I have only one child, or a similar "nosyyou-bizniss" type question. But I don't think I will use it when I am asked, "What is your nationality?"

I live in a university community where some of the most beautiful and intelligent women are neither American nor white.

I am frequently asked if I am French, Italian, Spanish and so on. I really don't mind. In fact I am slightly embarrassed to admit that I am plain old White-Anglo-Saxon-Protestant.

Recently someone asked, "When did your family come here from Greece?" I zapped her by replying, "About 300 years ago, but it wasn't Greece. It was England."

Since you once lived in New Orleans you undoubtedly know that many people who are classified Negro have lighter skins than some people who are classified white. Labels don't mean much anymore, and it's about time we like to see this in print but I doubt that your Southern readers would allow it. — World Citizen

Dear Citizen: Many of my Southern editors are more apt to print this than some of my Northern editors. You'll look a long time before you find newspapers that are more progressive and courageous than the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, The Louisville Times, Atlanta Journal, St. Petersburg Times and The Greenville, Mississippi, Delta-Democrat—to name just a few.

Dear Ann Landers: As a fashion editor whose family contributes to Ivy League Alumnae funds, I was ticked off by the letter from an Ivy League couple who returned to their alma mater and decided to withhold their financial support of the university because the kids on campus were "such grubby looking slobs."

I think it's great that a few pairs of jeans can see a student through college and the important money goes instead to appropriate places, such as books and living. This is a far cry from the way it was in my day when a girl's wardrobe cost almost as much as her tuition.

I'm proud to see the students at McGill University. They come from Southeast Asia, the African states, the U.S. and Canada—secure in their jeans, dismissing clothes as "unimportant" and getting down instead to the real values of learning and exchanging ideas.

Those appliques of mushrooms, sunflowers and hip slogans that the North American kids have devised to patch the holes in their jeans have as much originality as the styles used on the streets of Paris and London. And they are fashioned out of leftovers, from mom's scrap bag. Give them credit, Ann. They're great—Wind Reader, Stanford Canada

Dear Wind: Right on, doll. When I went to college a cashmere sweater was a status symbol and a run in a girl's stocking was a catastrophe. I see now how shallow those values were.

I applaud the de-emphasis of clothes, but there's an important distinction between being casual and being sloppy—and here's where I have trouble with the youth of today. Too many students, both in high school and college, need a closer relationship with shampoo, baths and a change of duds.

Lewis

Resource Industry Welfare Princes

WATERLOO, Ont. (CP) — The "princes of the corporate welfare bums" are the resource industries, NDP Leader David Lewis told a class of ecology students here Monday.

Mr. Lewis, mulling a southern Ontario campaign tour, told the University of Waterloo students that the mostly-foreign-owned mining and oil companies not only avoid paying their share of taxes, but make huge profits without creating much employment.

The New Democrat leader has narrowed his "corporate ripoff" theme in recent days to a concentration on the resource industries, saying the high-employment manufacturing companies "relatively pay their share."

"Stories of huge employment in the resource industries are, unhappily, myths," he told the students.

"Employment in metal mining increased just 1.2 per cent between 1961 and 1968, and employment in mineral fuels increased 3.1 per cent, while that in manufacturing increased by 28.7 per cent.

"Many resource exploitations is clearly not the way to beat unemployment."

Appealing to the students' academic concern for the environment, he said "broadscale exploitation of our resources is being carried out without any long-term plan for the future."

"There is little regard for the aesthetic consequences at a time when world population is expanding so rapidly that we must conserve the recreational and wilderness areas that remain."

In Brantford, Ont., where NDP candidate Derek Blackburn won a spring by-election last year, Mr. Lewis joked at a suggestion from a high school student that U.S. corporations are "raping" Canada's wealth.

Answered Mr. Lewis: "As a lawyer, I know there cannot be rape when there is invitation and consent."

His solution to foreign ownership was to invest both public and private money in mineral development.

In such a case, he said, the government must have equity, or part ownership, in the enterprise.

A question asked both by the Waterloo university students and those in a Paris, Ont., high school was whether the NDP favored legalization of marijuana.

Mr. Lewis said it should not be legalized so that it could be sold "like popsicles." But the drug, he said, should be removed from the Narcotics Control Act and the Criminal Code, and be placed under the non-criminal authority of the Food and Drug Act.

Mr. Lewis was to fly to Vancouver today to start a campaign hop eastward across the Prairie provinces.

PM Advised To Swear In French

VANCOUVER (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau should swear in French if he doesn't want to shock the English - speaking public, Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin said in an interview Monday.

Commenting on the use of a well-known four-letter word by Mr. Trudeau on Saturday, Mr. Pepin said using French-Canadian expletives "might be the answer for the prime minister."

He said if people are upset about Mr. Trudeau's swearing "it might have something to do with cultural differences."

"French-Canadians are easier on swearing than English-Canadians appear to be," he said.

"Personally I swear only in French." Mr. Pepin added with a chuckle.

"Puritanism is not foreign to Canada. People make a difference between what you do in private or in small groups and what you do in public.

"This seems to be an important difference. The implication is that if you swear, make sure no one hears you.

or only a few people hear you."

In Quebec, swearing is more of a habit, Mr. Pepin said, so that Quebecers will even swear coming out of church.

Mr. Pepin was in Vancouver to address the annual meeting of the Canadian Graphic Arts Association.

No Action Canada On Oct. 30 Ballot

OTTAWA (CP) — No candidates will be listed on ballots under the Action Canada or Modernization labels in the Oct. 30 federal election.

Jean-Marc Hamel, chief electoral officer, has announced their deletions from the official registry of political parties in the latest edition of the Canada Gazette.

The deletion comes about because neither party was represented in the Commons before Prime Minister Trudeau dissolved Parliament for the election and they did not comply with a requirement to file, over the signature of the party leader, a statement in writing "confirming or bringing up to date" the information contained in the original applications. Such information must be filed, under the Canada Elections Act, by the 60th day prior to voting day.

Registration of parties allowing candidates to be identified on the ballot by party affiliation is being used for the first time in the forthcoming election under voting changes made in 1970.

Action Canada was formed by Paul Hellyer, former Liberal MP for Toronto Trinity who became an independent MP, and refused to Conservatives.

Modernization, called the Mod party, is a loosely-knit organization of indeterminate size headed by Glenn Pylypa, 28, of Edmonton.

Lewis' CMHC Charge Denied

OTTAWA (CP) — A spokesman for Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. Monday described as "ridiculous" a charge by NDP Leader David Lewis that CMHC staffers worked overtime during the weekend "booking" housing figures for political use by the Liberals.

"It just doesn't make sense," said George Hunt, CMHC information director.

He said that 30 to 40 staff members worked voluntary overtime but insisted they were only catching up on their work at the behest of the corporation's year.

"Right now we are at our peak period with housing programs being rounded off, loans put through and builders going to work on projects."

Mr. Hunt described this as mere routine.

"What's so strange about that? Doesn't everybody work overtime, either at the office or take work home when the load is heavy?"

Mr. Lewis raised the issue Sunday at a Toronto meeting of NDP workers. He said a member of the CMHC staff provided his Ottawa office reporting that staffers had been ordered to work overtime preparing an answer to NDP election campaign proposals on housing.

The NDP leader contended public servants were being used by the government to "cook" housing figures in an attempt to discredit NDP programs. He said it was improper for the governing party to use civil servants in an election campaign.

Stanfield Declines Judgment; Trudeau Rests

VANCOUVER (CP) — Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield refused Monday night to pass judgment on Prime Minister Trudeau for his use of profanity Saturday night.

At a news conference shortly before he left for two days of campaigning Mr. Stanfield told a questioner the prime minister's behavior and language are "his problem."

Mr. Trudeau used a four-letter word to indicate that a Victoria protester badgering him during a walk in town should remove himself.

Mr. Stanfield said the Canadian people can form their own judgment about the use of that kind of language without any help from him.

"I'm more concerned about what he does or doesn't do rather than what he says," Mr. Stanfield said.

CALGARY (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau resumes his federal election campaign today after a two-day break as a guest at the ranch of Senator Harry Hayes.

The prime minister, accompanied by his wife and son, Justin, flew into Calgary Sunday morning and has made no public appearances since.

New Dodge Electronic Ignition System. It makes your life a little simpler.

The first question you're going to ask is, what is it?

The second. How is it going to simplify my life?

O.K., to answer the first part. In any conventional ignition system the mechanical breaker points may be the cause of some problems. Knowing this, Chrysler engineers developed a solid-state electronic system (all 6 & 8 cyl. engines) that eliminates the need for breaker points and condenser, and their resulting maintenance headaches.

That essentially, is what the new system is.

Now for what it can do for your car and your wallet.

For starters your car is going to start better at mileage levels when mechanical systems normally start to deteriorate.

DODGE BUILDS IN THE SOLID DIFFERENCE

What will it mean to your pocketbook? Because there are no points to wear out, no condenser to replace, the cost of tune-ups drops considerably.

The new electronic ignition system is just one of the many standard features built into Dodge.

New front disc brakes, (except Dart with 6 cylinder engines), unibody construction, torsion-bar suspension (except Colt) and new emission control systems are among the impressive list.

Innovative engineering plus extra care in every detail, make us believe your new Dodge is the best Dodge we've ever built.

Extra Care in Engineering... it makes the difference.

Canada Picks Referees

MOSCOW (CP) — Team Canada faces a crucial test tonight in the seventh game of its eight-game series against the Soviet Union's national hockey team. Russia now leads the series 3-2 with one game tied, and another to be would gain entre the Soviets at least a split series.

Canada exercised its right to pick officials for tonight's game by choosing Uve Dahlberg of Sweden and Rudo Balja of Czechoslovakia, who also refereed the Friday night game's 5-4 loss for Canada.

The Canadians attached the two West Germans who officiated at their 3-2 victory Sunday for alleged bias.

Coach Harry Sinden said he had been given word "from the top" that Franz Bauder and Josef Kompalla would not be assigned to the eighth game of the

Both teams have planned lineup changes for tonight's game.

John Ferguson, the assistant Canadian coach, announced the suspension replacement of Ken Dryden is goal by Tony Esposito, even though goalie writers in Russia picked Dryden as a star of Sunday's game.

The other Canadian change will be Bill Goldsworthy for Rod Brennan tap Brett, leaving Gary Bergman, Pat Stapleton, Brad Park, Bill White, Jean Ratelle and Guy Lapointe on defence.

Forwards for tonight's clash are Ron Ellis, Phil Esposito, Dennis Hull, Rod Gilbert, Goldsworthy, Yvan Cournoyer, Paul Henderson, Jean Ratelle, Frank Mahovlich, Peter Mahovlich, Clarke and Peter Mahovlich.

The back-up goalie for Esposito is expected to be Ed Johnston.

Boris Kulagin, the Russians' assistant coach, did not specify what changes he planned in his lineup. However, there was speculation that Valeri Kharlov might return to if Canadian fans became too enthusiastic.

Eagleson himself had been run-in with the police. The first was when he restrained a Russian fan who slash his fist in the face of Mrs. Joe Krycka, wife of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association's president.

"It shows you their mentality," Eagleson said, adding that the police wanted to throw him out.

Then, at the end of the game, he was prevented from going back to the dressing room with the Canadians. Eagleson said Henderson pushed one police man aside and Park used his on-ice skills to cross-check another.

He added that he himself gave a third good shot.

Problems also sprouted in the locker rooms.

Ahearne said the game scheduled for Prague next year take place unless the money was forthcoming.

He added that the contest would take place with or without Ahearne's permission.

Kryczka went on to say Ahearne had threatened to bar the Czechs from the "world championships if they played professionals without his permission.

"But that would bring the Russians down on them. Ahearne is out, the United States is in it again and without the Czechs the world champion what sort of championship would there be?"

Eagleson refused to comply, and said later he thought the Russian director was worried about the "drastic action police might resort to if Canadian fans became too enthusiastic.

Bulky NHL Schedule Under Way Oct. 7

MONTREAL (CP) — The bulky schedule in the history of the National Hockey League begins Oct. 7 with seven games that night.

The menu for the league's 30th season stretches through 624 games and contains 78 contests more than last season's schedule due to the addition of two new teams—Atlanta Flames and New York Island ers.

The schedule is 25 weeks in duration and stretches through 25 weekends before it finishes April 1 with six games.

As in past seasons, more than half the schedule is made up of weekend games, with 188 planned for Saturdays and 147 scheduled for Sundays.

The next most active night is Wednesday, when 141 games will be played, followed by 78 matches scheduled for Thursday and 77 set for Tuesday. There will be 56 games, 39 on Fridays and two on Mondays.

Because there now are two divisions of eight teams each—the Islanders will play in the East Division and Atlanta in the West—the schedule is unbalanced to allow each team to play 78 games.

Each team will play four games, two at home and two away, with each other club, plus one additional game with each other team. These latter 13 games will be alternated home and away this season and in 1973-74.

In addition, each club will play another three games against teams in its own division. No team shall play any other team more than three times at home in either of these two seasons.

As a result, some teams could face an opponent five times over the season while playing six times against another team. The allotment of these extra games was determined by a lottery which consisted of selecting teams at random by division and matching them to other teams of the same division.

Opening night will see Minnesota North Stars playing at Montreal, Chicago Black Hawks at Toronto against the Maple Leafs, New York Rangers visiting Detroit Red Wings, Atlanta at New York Islanders, Boston Bruins at Seals at Vancouver Canucks, Philadelphia Flyers at St. Louis against the Blues and Los Angeles Kings against the Penguins at Pittsburgh.

The only two teams not in action on opening night are Buffalo Sabres and Buffalo Sabres. Both swing into play the next night.

The 36th annual all-star game, in which the East Division meets the West, is scheduled for Jan. 30 at New York.

Lancaster Bruised

REGINA (CP) — Saskatchewan Roughriders received some good news Monday when doctors reported that quarterback Ron Lancaster has bruised ribs, a painful injury but one that should allow him to keep the Western Football Conference club's playoff hopes alive.

It had earlier been feared that Lancaster's ribs had been broken.

At the same time, it was reported that former all-star defensive tackle Ed McQuarters needed surgery Monday after suffering ligament damage to a knee in Sunday's 19-16 loss to Winnipeg Blue Bombers.

George Reed, Riders' star fullback, also was injured in Sunday's game and doctors have diagnosed the ailment as a hairline rib fracture.

Hull Plot Thicker

CHICAGO (AP) — A United States District Court judge Monday ordered an anti-trust suit filed filed by Winnipeg Jets and Chicago Cougars of the World Hockey Association against the National Hockey League transferred to the federal court in Philadelphia.

The action was taken because a federal judge in Philadelphia is expected to rule Oct. 10 on an anti-trust suit filed by the WHA against the NHL which alleges the NHL reserve system violates the Sherman Anti-Trust Act and monopolizes professional hockey.

Council Jerome H. Torshen of the Cougars asked Judge Bernard M. Decker Monday to issue a temporary restraining order against Chicago Black Hawks of the NHL prohibiting them from attempting to enforce the reserve clause in its contract with star player Bobby Hull.

Hull has signed a long-term $2.75 million contract as player-coach with the Jets, allegedly in violation of the NHL reserve clause.

Judge Decker transferred Torshen's request for the temporary restraining order to the Philadelphia court after Torshen said he would appear again Tuesday requesting the

The Philadelphia suit contains the same allegations as the suit which Judge Decker

Both suits asked the court to declare null and void the reserve clause in the NHL standard player contract, which permits Chicago to keep player to whom he has been allocated or not play at all.

Still pending in Circuit Court is a contract dispute between the Black Hawks and Hull, which centres on Hull's jumping to the Jets in violation of his contract with his Black Hawk contract.

Hull signed the Jets' contract June 27. It becomes effective Oct. 1, the day his current contract with the Black Hawks expires.

Nicklaus Holds Lead

NEW YORK (AP) — Grier Jones's playoff victory over Dave Marad Sunday in the $100,000 Robinson, Ill. Fall Golf Classic was worth $20,000 and vaulted him into fifth place in the year's money-winning race for the PGA Tournament Players Division announced Monday.

Jones's victory was the biggest of the year pushed his earnings to $212,626.

Jack Nicklaus, who skipped the Robinson Classic, continued to be the year's top money-winner with $288,462. He was followed by Lee Trevino, $230,162; George Archer, $140,102; Jerry Heard, $132,382, and Jones.

King Jumpers Ordered Back

LOS ANGELES (CP-AP) — Three hockey players from Los Angeles Kings must return to the new World Hockey Association have been ordered by a state judge to fulfill their National Hockey League contracts this year.

Judge Charles Church of the California Superior Court issued a preliminary injunction last Friday in a suit brought by the Kings over the playing rights to Doug Barrie, Bob Wotowich and Jim Johnson.

Widens Gap

BOSTON (AP) — Ilie Nastase of Romania maintained a comfortable lead in the $175,000 Grand Prix tennis tournament after last week's figures released Monday show. Nastase, seeking the $50,000 top prize in the men's competition, has 543 points, 121 more than second-place Stan Smith of the United States.

Carter Can't Answer Bell

TORONTO (CP) — Aldo Carelli of Toronto was awarded a technical knockout Monday night over Harold Carter when the veteran from Cleveland failed to enter the bell for the seventh round.

Carelli, third-ranked Canadian middleweight, twice knocked down the once world-ranked Carter in the sixth round. Each time Carter got back on his feet referee Jack Reynolds stopped the fight to answer the seventh round bell because of a thumb injury.

McCutcheon Meets Waterloo

PETERBOROUGH ont. (CP) — University of Waterloo, paced by Peterborough native Tim McCutcheon, won its second consecutive university and community college invitational golf match Monday.

McCutcheon, who was the individual winner Saturday in a tournament at Georgetown, Ont., was second Monday to Dennis Charlebrois of Ottawa's Carleton University.

More than thirty new improvements.

This year, the '73 Plymouths are more beautiful than ever. But many of our important engineering improvements don't even show. And we count them as most important. They make the '73 Plymouths safer, quieter, smoother-riding and longer lasting than ever before.

Extra care in engineering...it makes the difference.

NEW Quieter Cars for 1973
The '73 Plymouths are the quietest cars we have ever made, inside and out. Passenger compartments have been surrounded with sound insulating materials packed into critical areas of the cars body. Plymouth's Unibody helps too. The one-piece welded body and frame stays tight and quiet for years.

The major cause of noise in a car today is roadshock travelling up through the suspension and into the body of the car. To cut most of this noise we isolate the front and rear suspensions with rubber. Chrysler and Fury have had this quiet feature for some time. And We have now added this system to our Satellite line. Ask your Plymouth dealer to explain all the Chrysler Quiet features.

Electronic Ignition — Now Standard
Last year Chrysler introduced the Electronic Ignition system on some Plymouth models. Now it's standard on all 1973 Plymouth engines built in North America. The Electronic Ignition system eliminates breaker points and condenser. This means your engine will stay in tune longer and go further between tuneups. And it also means that your exhaust emissions will stay cleaner too.

NEW Emission Control Features
We're all working toward cleaner air. That's why all '73 Plymouth engines are equipped with an exhaust gas recirculation system and automatic vacuum spark advance control system, for controlling oxides of nitrogen. Also, we've added an electric assist choke to help reduce emissions during starting and warm-up.

NEW Higher Impact Bumper
If you take a little bump, we want you to get off without a scratch. That's why we've added full length reinforcement members front and rear. And strengthened the existing front members. For even more protection, we've added rubber guards front and rear. They'll take quite a punch, without anything getting hurt.

Disc Brakes Standard on Most Cars
Disc brakes have greater fade resistance than conventional brakes. They perform more smoothly, stop your car in a straighter line, and are more effective at fast freeway speeds. Front disc brakes are now standard equipment on all Plymouth cars (except six-cylinder models).

NEW Higher Speed Starter Motor
Quick starting is important, so we've developed a new, higher speed starter motor for our 1973 360, 400 and 440 cu. in. V8's. That, together with our Electronic Ignition, should give you one good start after another.

NEW Mechanical Plating Process
To help the exposed, critical safety parts on your new Plymouth stand up to the ruining effects of rust and corrosion, we've devised a new plating process that applies powdered particles of aluminum, tin or zinc to protect them. Every 1973 Plymouth has it.

NEW Electronic Engine Function Tester
Chrysler is dedicated to building cars and trucks to the highest quality control standards. To further raise the standard of Quality Control, we have introduced the Electronic Engine Function Tester. We call her "Miss EFT". Miss EFT tells us all about an engine when it's running. She tells us many things we couldn't find with conventional equipment. Engines that pass Miss EFT's test get a Quality Control Tag. She really helps us build better cars.

Here are just a few of the many engineering improvements made to the 1973 Plymouth models. Your Plymouth dealer will be happy to explain them all.

Driver Retires At 78

YONKERS, N.Y. (CP) — Earle Avery, 78, will be honored in trackside ceremonies tonight at Yonkers Raceway when many of his fellow trainer-drivers and friends will pay tribute to him for his 54 years in harness racing.

Avery, a native and resident of Woodstock, Ill., is the oldest active driver on the Greater New York racing scene. He tops the New York list which also includes Sacker Werner, who is 73, Bob Walker, 69, Jimmy Jordan, 67, Al Burton, 65. The only active driver who beats Avery in longevity is Joe Rylan, 80, who does most of his racing outside of New York, especially in Philadelphia-Maryland-Delaware circuits.

Paul Vineyard, a contemporary of Avery's, is 82, and will be at the Avery ceremonies. Paul, accepting an invitation to attend, wrote from his home in Hollywood, Fla.: saying: "I can't believe Earle is really retiring and only 78 years old. I have not retired from the sport and was 82 last April."

The Avery night has also attracted such veterans as Hugh Bell, 76, still competing at Vernon Downs, N.Y., Hanover Hall, 68, retired, and Morris MacDonald, 67, active in Canada as well as at U.S. tracks.

Delvin Miller, master of Meadow Lands Farms and famous as the breeder of the great Adios, is another colleague of Avery. Miller will be on hand to present Avery the Grand Circuit Award of Merit Medal. Miller is president of the Grand circuit.

Through his 54 years, Avery claims over 4,000 victories but only 1,250 of those are official within the U.S. Trotting Association. The rest were made before the days of the USTA, when Earle raced in Canada and at fairground tracks around the eastern U.S.

Avery's horses earned about $3.5 million over the last half century and more. A good deal of that money was won for Norman Woolworth, the proprietor of the Clearview Stables of New Canaan, Conn., for whom Earle has been the private trainer-driver for the last 15 years.

The Avery-Woolworth combination is one of the best known in harness racing. Earle praises Woolworth as the man who "never interferes with me at the horse sales or during the racing season."

Spitz Avoids Ceremony

LONDON (AP) — Mark Spitz, swimming hero of the Olympic Games, and British pentathlon gold winner Mary Peters put personal security first Monday and stayed away from a special awards presentation in London.

Spitz was awarded a trophy as outstanding athlete of the Olympics by the British firm of insurance brokers. But it was accepted on his behalf by William Weld, counsellor for public affairs at the United States embassy in London.

Weld told reporters: "Spitz is tied up with business affairs in America, but I understand he was partly for security reasons he decided not to come to London for the presentation."

Argos' Magic Playoff Number Now 8

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian Football League's statistician dusted off his magic number system Monday and applied the number eight to Toronto Argonauts' hopes for a playoff spot in the Eastern Conference.

That means Argos will have to clinch themselves or after eight defeats and one victory this season and win all five of their remaining games while counting on Montreal Alouettes to lose at least three of their remaining six.

If Montreal loses more than three, then the number of Argo wins necessary would drop accordingly, since the combination of the two records is the magic number.

Argos, with Pe worst record in the league, have games coming up against Edmonton Eskimos, Montreal, Calgary Stampeders, Ottawa Rough Riders and Hamilton Tiger-Cats. Montreal's remaining games are against Winnipeg Blue Bombers, Edmonton, Toronto, Hamilton, Ottawa and Saskatchewan Roughriders. Ottawa and Hamilton lead the EFC with 12 points each while Montreal has nine points and Argos two. Montreal's magic number to clinch the playoff spot over Toronto is four.

The magic number for Ottawa or Hamilton finish first over each other is six, which both have already clinches playoff berths.

Out West, British Columbia Lions with four points, and Calgary Stampeders with six, are still in the running for playoff berths while Winnipeg, Edmonton and Saskatchewan battle for the lead.

The Blue Bombers with 11 points, two ahead of Edmonton and Saskatchewan, need three more wins to be sure of a playoff berth, while the Eskimos and Roughies need four victories each to make playoff positions, regardless of other team losses.

The individual scoring races, meanwhile, still have Ottawa kicker Jerry Organ leading the East and Winnipeg running back Mack Herron in the West.

Chiefs Back on Winning Track

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — It was actually a rather lackluster victory over one of pro football's young, struggling teams, but for coach Hank Stram of Kansas City Chiefs it may as well have been the game of the year.

"It was an important game for us," said Stram, after his Chiefs came from behind to edge New Orleans Saints 30-17 on Monday night in the National Football League's nationally-televised game.

The Chiefs were sidetracked en route to the Super Bowl last season by Miami Dolphins. When the Dolphins beat the Chiefs again last week, they were sitting on a two-game losing streak in league play.

"This was a pivotal game for us," said Stram. "We've been fighting desperately to get some consistency in our game. We've been tight, but the team loosened up some tonight and I'm pleased."

Except when they were dropping it, the Chiefs did move virtually at will against the Saints.

Quarterback Lenny Dawson wound up with 21 completions on 29 attempts for 280 yards. He had one intercepted when his receiver slipped down.

The Chiefs netted 324 yards offensively to 164 for the Saints.

The Chiefs averaged a six-yard gain on their first-down plays, not including a 44-yard Dawson pass to tight end Morris Stroud which set up a field goal.

The Saints did a credible job of rushing Dawson, although they only dropped him for losses twice.

Ryan Joins '300' Club

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Nolan Ryan of California Angels has joined an exclusive strikeout club of American League pitchers that includes the legendary Walter Johnson.

Johnson's unbelting fastball helped him record more than 300 strikeouts in a season way back in 1908. Others who have reached that plateau are Rube Waddell, Bob Feller, Vida Blue, Mickey Lolich, Sam McDowell and now, Ryan.

The Angels' hard-throwing righthander fanned 12 Texas batters to bring his season's total to 300 as he beat the Rangers 2-1 on a three-hitter Monday night.

"Sure, I've given the 300-mark some thought," said Ryan, "but not a lot of thought until my last start when I got only four strikeouts in nine innings against Kansas City. . . .

"I got a little worried about it again tonight when my fastball was very ordinary for the first six innings."

His "very ordinary" fastball got eight Rangers on strikeouts in the first six innings. Ryan then used his strikeout pitch to get out of tight situations in the eighth and ninth.

Only one other game was played in the major leagues Monday night as Tom Egan's two-run homer in the fifth inning broke up Jim Rooker's bid for a shutout and gave Chicago White Sox a 2-1 victory over Kansas City Royals.

NOLAN RYAN

Ryan's successes no doubt should have New York Mets zeroing in on him for a starting job this past winter. He was one of four players sent last June from the National League club for Jim Fregosi.

"I felt all along that I could be a winning pitcher in the major leagues if someone let me pitch every fourth day," said Ryan. "Pitching every 10th or 12th day just isn't often enough to keep your rhythm and build your confidence."

With one out in the California eighth, Ryan doubled, took third on Sandy Alomar's bouncer and scored when Mickey Stanley's bouncer skipped through first baseman Larry Biittner's legs.

Pinch-hitter Randy Elliott came through with a run-scoring triple in the eighth inning to help Lee Stange down Los Angeles. The game was tied 2-2 when Elliott tripled home the tie-breaking run and then scored himself on a wild throw.

Los Angeles pitcher Claude Osteen had singled across the tying run in the bottom of the seventh inning before giving up Elliott's hit.

Jenkins Sees Strike Threat

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Ferguson Jenkins, 25-game winner with the Montreal League Chicago Cubs, said Monday a second strike is a strong reasons by the Major League Baseball Players' Association "could easily happen" if the owners reject any of the current "critical" issues before them.

Jenkins, from Chatham, Ont., native, here to open the United Appeal campaign, said the transfer of equity from the players' medical plan built up through several seasons to the players' pension and retirement fund and an increase in the minimum wage to $13,650 a season from $13,000, were the critical issues facing the owners.

Williams May Drop Reins

DALLAS (AP) — Ted Williams is expected to announce this week what he intends to do about the last year left on his Texas Ranger contract. The odds are he won't be spending it as manager.

"I hear visit with Williams will get you a report on Texas dove hunting, the fact he uses a double-barrel shotgun on woodcock in New Hampshire, and anything else you want to talk about except a straight answer on his plans.

"Only one did he use—they" to refer to the Rangers.

"The season's been a grind, no doubt," Williams said. "I imagine owner Bob Short will announce something about midweek.

"I hate losing but this club will have to suffer a few more years before it moves into the first division. They have potential down the road . . . maybe in three years. Things can happen fast."

Sanguillen Still Stoic

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Manny Sanguillen is in a batting slump, the first of his free-swinging major-league career, but his disposition is bright as ever.

"No, I am not worried; I know I'll get over," the grinning Pittsburgh Pirate catcher said after going 0-4 in a recent game.

Though he still has a relatively-high .283 batting average, Sanguillen is about his trade's 20 points since July 30.

In that period, he has managed 18 hits in 80 times at bat for a .213 average—far below normal for the .313 lifetime hitter.

Saints' Centre Has Good View

By ERIC EMERSON
Sports Staff

If you're looking for the brains behind Belleville Bulldog's ability to ask them an effective centre? He's the man in the middle of centre ice.

The trend of Monday's Bay of Quinte senior OCSSA tilt between Quinte Saints and Trenton Tigers scrapped the by now much touted theory that the first half with the 6-time bowling champion Saints with an 14-13 lead.

It was natural enough, then, that the most astute observation on the game's eventual outcome, came from Quinte centre Ralph Lepore.

"Trenton's rough up the middle, eh Ralph?

"Yew, they're not. Our offensive line doesn't have the experience right now. Once the line gets settled down we'll be flying," observed Ralph.

Lepore's prediction accuracy matched that of his third baker mate, as the Saints became really on offensive yardage in the second half, and scored only one offence last year played," he noted. "A couple guys have problems with cable as it took a while for the line to start working as a unit. Once they did, they really played well."

Trenton coach Stan Nigro, on the other hand, was more impressed by his club's performance. "They're just a good defensive football team," he praised. "And of course, Meagher played well. He always does."

Saints' quarterback Rick Meagher did indeed play well, passing for 2 touchdowns and scoring two more himself.

Meagher's passing attack was the only thing that kept Quinte in the game during the first half, as Trenton appeared to be winning the Ross battle. The Saints were unable to move the ball down the ground, while Trenton fullback Don Armstrong was the king of runs, shredding Quinte.

The Tigers opened the scoring in the second quarter when halfback Duncan Armstrong capped off 12 yards on a reverse to give Trenton a 6-0 lead. The Quinte offence then took after Beck with Meagher connecting on a 30-yard pass to flanker Steve McDowell and Paul McQuaid booting his 20-yards on the Saints only significant rush of the first half. From there Meagher swept 16 yards for a major score.

The little quarterback came right back after that with 30-yard completion to wide receiver Jim Beardsmore and McDowell to set up a 32-yard straight pitch by end Stan Brooks. "We had a little trouble hanging up at first," said Beardsmore, "but everything started clicking offensive coach Paul Perdue with the team's passing success. "He's put in all new pass patterns, and with a few more practices out there, it's pretty tough to cover."

Halfback Duncan Armstrong momentarily swung the first half momentum away from the Saints with a catch from Dave Harvey, a kick from Dave Harvey, the ball out of the air after it had deflected off the hands of Quinte defensive back George Hymers, for his second touchdown of the game.

Quinte' Ken Vos returned the ensuing kick-off back 69-yards on the last play of the half's last real threat by safety Darryl Donnelly before he could break into the clear.

The Tigers were unable to move the ball in the second half against Quinte's very tough Quinte defence and partly due to an injury to Tiger quarterback Beck, forced him to one carry. His tough first year had set up Trenton's passes and sweeps in the first half.

"I don't think we played a good game at all," said Nigro of his team's effort. "We didn't have one real shocker out there and they were talking instead of hitting."

Rookie flanker John Maxton was prominent in the second half for the Saints, catching scoring passes of 22 and 25 yards in his first regulation football game. He had another touchdown pass nullified by a penalty.

Meagher scored the game's final touchdown by scrambling 15 yards as a broken play. He was good on out of four convert attempts, while Trenton punted a pair of singles.

Inside linebacker Mike Maye played a fine game for the winners, helping on the run and getting an excellent drop into the short pass zones. Middle guard Rodney Hines and safety Peter Vos were other Saints' standouts. For Trenton, safety Darryl Donnelly was the beacon of an inexperienced defensive back field.

The defending conference champions scored on a fumbled punt recovery in the first quarter and recovered a fumble on Quinte's first offensive play to set up a seven-yard touchdown plunge by Mark Petrie.

The Tigers carried a 14-1 lead into half time, adding their other major in the final quarter on a 25-yard passing play to Peter Hastings. Bob Oliver kicked two points for the convert, while Bob Wallbridge booted the Saints only point.

Defensive ends Glen Ogden and George DiFrancesco and backs Bob Beedle and Blaine Rittinger were Trenton standouts. For Quinte, the defensive backwards included Pat Gilmour, Andy Vos and Gord Mader.

Collegians Making Best Pitch

BCI soccer teams continue to make a successful Bay of Quinte OCSSA pitches.

The junior Collegians beat Centre Hastings 4-1 Monday night for their second win in as many games, while the senior were coming back record with a 10-0 drubbing of Madoc.

BCI seniors tallied five times in each half to completely dominate Centre Hastings.

Dave Van Vliet opened the BCI scoring by heading in Tony Dawson's corner kick. Minutes later Dawson lofted the ball again with brother Gary cashing in this time. Tony Dawson added two more goals before the half, while Gary picked up yet another tally for the brother combination.

In the second half, Charlie Nesterovski renewed the Collegians' attack, while Tony Dawson completed a hat trick. Two more tallies by Nesterovski and a single score by Steve Redure rounded out the scoring.

The senior Collegians had opened play last week with a 4-1 win over Moira's defending Bay of Quinte champions, while the juniors began their title defence with a 3-2 tie against the Trojans.

Deke by Duncan

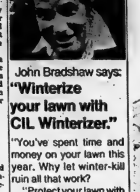
Minor Hockey Seeks Sponsors

The Belleville Minor Hockey Association isn't looking for the shirt off your back. They'd just like you to help put sweaters on the backs of some minor hockey players.

The association is still in need of five sponsors for the upcoming season which gets under way Oct. 15. Interested parties should contact Don Gavey, Anita Watkin or Blake Meyers.



Weeding Out Bad Apples

It just take a couple of bad apples to make things complicated for the rest of Belleville's Minor Hockey barrel.

Citing one instance of a boy registering for first-year novice play when he was bantam age, BMHA president Don Gavey announced today minor hockey participants who did not produce their birth certificates on registration must do so on the night of their first game of the 1972-73 season.

"We don't like to be nasty about things but it looks like we've just got to do it," said Gavey, noting that there will be a convenor on hand at each house league level's season opener to check birth certificates.

Those who had them checked at registration — about 50 per cent of the boys — are okay."

John Bradshaw says:
"Winterize your lawn with CIL Winterizer."

"You've spent time and money on your lawn this year. Why let winter-kill ruin all that work?

"Protect your lawn with CIL Winterizer, like I do.

"CIL Winterizer conditions grass against snow-mold, winter-kill and death from sheer starvation. It really does a tremendous job. Use it now."

Russians Coming!

"It's a note from his mom. He can play Sunday if he eats promises he won't get hurt."

Belleville area hockey fans will get a first-hand look at what Team Canada is being faced with in its current series with the Soviet Union.

Belleville Quintes today confirmed a Friday, Jan. 5 Memorial Arena game against a touring Russian team that almost certainly will include members of the Soviet National Team.

Season's subscribers to the city's senior A hockey entry — to date numbering over 200 — will have first grabs at the $2.50-odd tickets, which will sell at less than half the $7.50 Canadiens paid to watch the Russian Nationals in their four-city Canadian stopover earlier this month.

While they know that game will be a sellout, the Quintes immediate concern is ticket sales for tonight's 8:30 pre-season exhibition with Kingston Aces.

Tonight will mark Belleville's first meeting with one of the other seven OHA Senior A entries. The Quintes tripped the Central Pro League's Yukon Oilers 5-3 in a Saturday exhibition outing.

Payne Again Heads Lacrosse

Roy Payne will continue at the helm of the Belleville Minor Lacrosse Association following the election of officers last night.

He was returned as president at the association's first general meeting to arrange plans for the 1973 season. Other executive members selected were Mike Finnegan, first vice-president; Jack Donald, second vice; Audrey Cox, secretary and Wally Ulyniuk, treasurer. Marv Schmidt was appointed as statistician.

The executive discussed plans for next season, including the possibility of arranging minimum wage fees for the coaches.

Read Leads Parade to Rostrum

League champions from Read led the trophy parade at Friday's South Hastings Baseball League awards banquet.

They captured the team championship trophy, while pitcher Larry Coffey won the Jack Stewart Memorial Trophy as most valuable player in the playoffs and Peter Read captured the 'Most Centennially Player award.

Latta's John Masterson earned the MVP during the regular season, while manager Howard Skelly split the pilot award with John Tweedy and Larry Adams of Plane's Corners.

Kick in Time Saves Rollins' Nine

Rollins Construction got the most mileage out of a Howard and Robert Kirk Monday night to take a 3-0 lead in the Commercial Softball League finals.

Second baseman Dale Duvall led off the bottom of the ninth with a solid single to centre that was kicked into the right field corner by Pug Kellar while attempting to make the c h. Duvall steamed into third on the play and scored on a sacrifice fly by Wayne McTaggart to give Rollins a 1-0 win.

Both teams had missed earlier scoring opportunities. Rollins' centrefielder Steve Lind nailed Kellar at the plate in the first inning after the Howard and Robert counterpart doubled and attempted to score on a single by John Campbell.

Rollins lost a second-inning scoring opportunity when Wayne McTaggart was caught in a rundown between Lind and home.

Ling, Duvall, McTaggart, Curl Bonnhower and Al Ferguson singled for the winners with Kellar, Campbell and Pat Asselstine getting the Howard and Robert hits.

Fourth game in the series is scheduled for tonight, 8 pm at the Alemite.

Plane Tykes Topple Peewees

Plane's Concrete tyke all-stars squeezed past Gagne Masonary Sunday in the third and deciding game of the Thurlow peewee championship.

Dave Blakely and Tom Masterson hurled for the winners with Willie Gagne and Gary Badgley handling the losers' assignment. Blakely, Boyd Sullivan, Jeff Heggie and Doug Yeker doubled for the tykes with Rick Landry crashing a homer and single for some on a single by John Campbell.

Friday, the Thurlow Minor Sports Association will hold a fund raising dance at the Club Cedars in Canniton. Tickets will be $1.00 per couple with proceeds going to further minor sport in the township.

Who Has Spare Harp?

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

Over the years, like every other guild in the country, the Belleville Theatre Guild has had its leaky moments to get the show on the road.

Now it looks like the guild will have to travel pretty close to heaven to clear the newest hurdle.

Prop mistresses, directors, actors and just about everyone who has anything to do with the theatre have been scratching their heads for the past five weeks to get the most important single prop of the coming production of Arthur Miller's The Price.

As Ted Bairstow, principle actor in the play and past director of the guild, explained at last night's rehearsal, "there does one go to find a full-size harp."

It is not only a problem of finding the instrument, but coaxing its owner into lending it to the theatre for two weeks.

In their search for the harp, prop people have covered both Hastings and Prince Edward Counties, Kingston and Toronto.

"We think there is a harp out there somewhere but we just can't find it," said one discouraged hunter.

The play involves the sale of furnishings from a house and the main piece is the harp.

The harp signifies the luxury and extravagance of the family and also, if their is no harp there is no luxury or extravagance of production.

The harp does nothing in the production besides sit there and it sits unmoved throughout the entire play, plucked once or twice by the prospective buyer, Solomon, played by Al Keating and by the family.

Great comes to worst, the guild has the plans ready to build a harp, but this is not the most satisfactory way of getting around the problem.

"Besides it looking exactly like a home made harp, when someone plucks it, it is going to sound exactly like a home-made harp," said another spokesman. "It is also going to cost $200 and how many times will we be able to use a harp," asked Mr. Bairstow.

The search will go on, at least until the first week in October.

The play has to be ready for the second week of the month.

The guild offers complete security and will supply a good home for any willing harp.

Insurance on the building will cover anything from its walls but members of the guild guarantee that the harp will not be moved about and extreme care will be taken during its star on stage.

The play opens Oct. 18 and reservations are available by calling 967-1442.

Oh, by the way, if you have a harp that you can spare for a short time, call the same number.

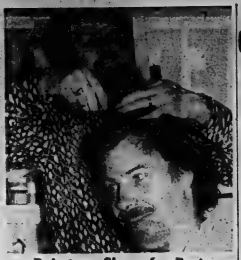
Cable Fare Criticized

Small communities around Belleville are better served by their cable television companies than is the city, trustees and administrators of Hastings county board of education indicated last night.

Trustee James Clarke noted that a new cable company serving the Napanee - Deseronto area, is offering Canadian educational TV, an educational channel from the United States and a local community outlet.

Frank Tate, a supervisor-dent, said that the cable TV company in Madoc offered one full university credit course and 12 local programs on activities at Centre Hastings Secondary School to viewers in the area.

"I'd love to see our cable system in Belleville get off its rear end, because they're not providing the service," remarked trustee James Clarke.



"We need more competition in cable TV," grumbled an anonymous voice from somewhere around the board table.

A full report on educational use of television will be presented to the board in the near future, director of education Fife Runacres said.

Two Escape Injury

TWEED (Special) — Two men escaped injury yesterday when their cars collided at the intersection of Highways 7 and 37, five miles north of Tweed.

Robert Haynes, 24, of RR 1, Midhurst, Ont. was eastbound on Highway 7 when he came into collision with a car driven by Oswald Mieske, 34, of RR 1, Cheyne. Mieske was westbound, attempting to make a turn south on Highway 37 and was following a tractor trailer that was also southbound. The Haynes car received $2,000 damage and the Mieske car received $800 damage.

Bairstow: Shorn for Part

On the Other Side

Ted Bairstow, director of last year's season of the Pinnacle Playhouse, has turned to acting this fall, and says he enjoys being "on the other end of the stick, even though I had to cut my hair and shave off my beard for the part.

"The one major change I have had to make in my approach is begin thinking like an actor and not like a director," he said.

"There is a little piece in me that persists in operating like a director and this can be a bad thing because it disturbs the concentration that is most important while trying to do a part effectively," he said.

Mr. Bairstow never acted in any form of production until his third year at Queen's University.

In that year and successive years, he has appeared in five major roles and six minor character roles.

"Lie. (Elizabeth Marshall) is a very strong director and is great at relieving me of the director role.

"At first glance, The Price by Arthur Miller, is a heavy, heavy play.

"She is turning it into a very human, very warm story of a family," he said.

By JEANE DIXON

Aries (March 21-April 19): Is new understanding, to celebrate. Present your requests. Once you have the day started, you can settle negotiations. Caution. In peaceful cooperation.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Try new ideas in anything but financial arrangements. There you should wait. It's a good day to bring in extra help.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Stop going around in circles over the same old set of stories and problems; get off on some tangent or other for a better perspective.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Set something aside for the future. Look for an exceptional chance for advancement. Family cooperation runs well enough to bring results.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Lively discussions, possibly v o l u b l e dissent mark the early hours, from which you can progress to a well-stated basis for collaboration.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Present your grievance, if you have one. By evening you are generously to be disregarded.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Comes the breakthrough, you see a way of doing things more effectively, learn a new approach, if you are alert.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Early vagueness settles quickly into incomplete but clear information, enough that you can take action. Be nimble-minded.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Come to terms with rivals, adjust differences wherever they chance a flare; welcome. Your cheerful mood is catching.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): The search for information widens—there is a great deal to learn and apply in your creative activity. Have a check-up.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Bridging the gap between differing disciplines is easier once you get started. You have everything to gain by trying.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Your mood swings from down to up. Difficult questions need open debate. Outsiders' opinions are generously to be disregarded.

To Your Good Health

Presence of Loop No Reason for Fear

By G.C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 38, in good health and have one child. My first pregnancy was very easy.

This time it is complicated by the presence of an IUD or "loop" in the uterus. So far my doctor has warned me only that the danger of miscarriage is more pronounced in such a case.

But two friends who have been nurses for many years have told me that there is a perforation of the uterus, possibly resulting in the need for a hysterectomy or even death in some cases. I am also concerned about the danger of damage to the baby. Please discuss.—S.S.

Your doctor deals with you frankly. There is risk of a miscarriage, but that is not the same as saying that miscarriage always occurs. There are plenty of healthy babies who were born with the "loop" still expelled at the same time with the baby.

I am somewhat disturbed at former nurses upsetting you with such gloomy stories. In one thing, such complications as perforation of the uterus or injury to the baby are most unlikely. For another, the IUDs or "loops" have been modified considerably in the last few years, minimizing the danger.

And finally, what purpose is getting you all wrought up served—here's nothing to do about it? You may be asking, "Why not remove the loop now?" This has been tried in the past, but usually unsuccessfully because it means loss of the baby then and there.

True, there are miscarriages because of the presence of the loop, but there are also many more which occur without it, in spite of the loop. One way you have any hope of the baby; the other way (just relaxing and letting the pregnancy progress normally) allows reason for substantial hope.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Many things have been said about menopause, but when has a person really passed that stage of life?—C.T.

Never. Menopause isn't something that starts and stops. It is a point in a woman's life when ovulation (and menstruation, as a result) ceases.

Asking when menopause is past is like asking, after a person has reached adulthood, when adulthood will be over.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: It appears that I have tendonitis at the wrist. I can press the ligament at this pain and it is very sore. While it may cause no discomfort while the arm is relaxed, it is so painful in certain movements that I cannot use my arm in many capacities.

I am 68, have no other infirmities, but this condition has crept up on me in the last couple of months. Is there a home cure or any relief? Will it disappear in time, or become worse? —F.J.B.

Tendonitis (inflamed tendon) most usually results from excessive wear, tear, gout, occupational other causes. At the elbow the tendon is near the surface, so there is a palpable cause.

Usually the irritation subsides —particularly if the related muscles are rested as much as possible. Trying to "work it out" is the wrong way; continued use will prolong the inflammation, just as a wound can't heal very well if the patient keeps picking off the scab before it is ready to come off.

Heat (hot compresses or other forms of heat) is very helpful. Often, injection of hydrocortisone gives prompt relief, but it still pays to rest the elbow until healing is complete.

Women In Accidents

TWEED (Special) — Two Elzevirs area women, Mrs. Helen Lessard and Mrs. Alice Berthe Rose, were taken to Belleville General Hospital early Sunday morning after their car crashed north of Keller's Brides on Highway 62 north of Eldorado.

The car took out guide rails, a section of wire fence and rolled over police said. Damage of $1,500 was reported to the 1967 model car.

Both women were treated and released from hospital.

In a Saturday accident on County Road 7-A south of Marlbank, police said a pickup truck driven by Mrs. Toni Yvonne Hartin of Rohlici rip-ped into guide rails and a chain link fence doing $700 damage to the vehicle.

Neither Mrs. Hartin nor her two small sons, passengers in the vehicle, were injured.

Christian Youth Centre Now Open

FICTON (Staff) — An interdenominational Christian youth centre "to bring Christ to the people" has opened here three nights weekly.

Named One Way, the centre at 235 Main Street is staffed by keen and adult volunteers prepared to discuss problems with visitors.

Chairman for the group sponsoring One Way is Rev. Robert Gibb of the First-color Baptist Church.

Mr. Black stressed the project is interdenominational and was organized "by Christians in town."

He described the drop-in centre as "a place to reach the young people and to let them get acquainted with the proper way to live."

Plans for One Way began more than three months ago and the movement was boosted through a donation to the First Baptist Church received from the estate of a former Bellevillite resident, the late Flora Bell.

A portion of this donation was used to finance the centre, which has been furnished entirely from proceeds of these.

Mr. Black explained persons who come to the drop-in centre with special problems can be referred, if necessary, to other sources for needed help.

"We feel it is a direction from God that we should do something a little more than go to church on Sunday."

Mrs. Borden Cleave, of Bloomfield, an active supporter of the drop-in centre, said several Picton teens used to hitch-hike to a similar centre in Trenton.

Although local response to the centre is not great as yet, Mrs. Cleave is confident more and more teens will stop in that and enjoy coffee during the winter months.

One Way is open each Wednesday, Friday and Saturday night and if its popularity increases, eventually will include open other nights as well.

"We will talk about any problems they have in life," said Mrs. Cleave as she discussed the teens who come to the drop-in centre. Mrs. Cleave is treasurer for One Way, while secretary is Pat Heap, Bloomfield.

Conflict of Views on Guidelines

TORONTO (CP) — There is some conflict of views among Ontario politicians over Premier William Davis' new rules governing financial holdings by cabinet ministers to forestall conflict-of-interest situations.

Most of those interviewed go along with the premier's new guidelines though there are some firm dissenters over cabinet ministers' husband-and-wife investments and other restrictions on outside activities.

One Conservative back-bencher in the Ontario legislature, who preferred anonymity, said he once had cabinet aspirations but is "not sure" now because "I've got a lot of land around and it's nobody's damn business what I do on my own time as long as it doesn't mean a conflict of interest."

Laura Sabia, a former St. Catharines alderman and an unsuccessful Conservative candidate in the last federal general election in the Calgary-Conservative federal cabinet minister, and Dr. Morton Shulman, New Democratic Party member of the legislature for Toronto High Park.

Mr. Shulman, member of the last Parliament for Prince Edward-Hastings, said the guidelines should be "the minimum." When he entered the Diefenbaker administration he sold his stocks and bought Canada Savings Bonds. He would gladly do the same again.

Dr. Shulman scoffed at any suggestion that cabinet members paid $25,000 a year would suffer financially. After their tenure, there were always appointments to boards and commissions and "you don't see any ex-ministers on welfare."

Stephen Lewis, Ontario NDP leader, said good candidates will not be discouraged from running by the new rules, and Donald C. MacDonald, former provincial NDP leader and now national party chairman, agreed.

Trailer Park Decision Delayed

TRENTON (Staff) — The matter of Cecil Plachta's trailer park on the Carrying Place Road was tabled by Murray township planning board Monday night pending further reports from the Hasburton, Kawartha, Pine Ridge District Health Unit.

Mr. Plachta has extended the boundaries of his trailer park beyond those set down by township council. At its meeting last week, council referred the matter back to the planning committee, which earlier had recommended the Plachta application to extend boundaries be turned down.

Upon examining the property council did not approve land set aside for playground. They recommended a section of the Plachta property next to the Carrying Place Road (Highway 33) be retained as greenbelt. It was on this section of land that Mr. Plachta began developing trailer sites, claiming he did so before council refused to expand the geographic boundary limits for the trailer park.

As councillor J. Stanley Down put it when the owner approached council last week, "we as a council would be swamped with petitions if you start putting trailers on the highway."

Originally, Mr. Plachta asked for permission to establish 61 trailer lots in five rows. Council approved 43. Since then, the park owner has developed approximately 35, leaving 8 right of which lie on property not approved for development.

Four Guests At H and S Meet

Hastings County Council of Home and School Associations will have four guests at its next meeting, Oct. 2, at 6 p.m. in the board room of the board of education office, 301 Bridge St. East.

On hand will be the Ontario president, Mrs. A. G. Miller from Woodbridge and three special projects vice - presidents for region C: Mrs. W. A. Bottom of London, Ont.; Mrs. R. Wilson of Peterborough and Mrs R. S March of Belleville.

The public is invited to attend the meeting and question the speakers.

Return Visit Planned

The burgomaster of Lahr, Germany, Dr. Phillip Bruckner, and other civic officials from that city will not back for variety when they make a return trip to Belleville next month.

This Sunday Mayor J. Russell Scott and other city representatives will fly to Lahr with the air force where, for the next week, they will take part in ceremonies marking the "twinning" of Belleville and the German city.

Then, from Tue. 7 to 14, the Lahr burgomaster and a party of officials from that city will visit Belleville.

While in Canada they will be accommodated at the Canadian Forces Base at Trenton.

Plans are already going ahead for the entertainment of the Lahr officials while in the Quinte area.

Mayor Scott said tentative plans call for a flight over Niagara Falls, a visit to Upper Canada Village and possibly a train ride to the Bancroft area. Hopefully, he said, there would still be still some fall leaf coloring for the visitors to see.

Board May Get Grant

By incorporating themselves as a Community Centre, Board Trustees of the Hastings county board of education may pick up 25 per cent from the provincial government of the cost of building a new track at Trenton High School and improvements in school playgrounds at other centres.

But Belleville will not qualify for any government grants because it is over 25,000 in population and therefore exempt.

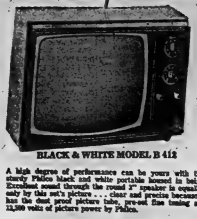
David Smith, community school co-ordinator, is now examining all playground improvements over the last three years to determine if any are eligible for the 25 per cent grant. As a Community Centres Board, the Hastings county board of education can claim 25 per cent, up to a maximum of $20,000 for school facilities that are also used by the neighborhood community.

History Unfair To Sam Hughes?

Canadians don't accept the fact they have enslaved national figures and don't give them the credit they deserve, according to Alan Capon, Picton bureau chief of The Kingston Whig-Standard.

Such a man, Mr. Capon told the Rotary Club Monday was "The Incredible Sam Hughes" as his address was titled.

Regarded by some of his First World War contemporaries as "mad." General Hughes to Mr. Capon's view was a "true eccentric." He was odd and peculiar in the ways for instance, Winston Churchill was.



A native of Ipswitch, England, Mr. Capon sees Hughes as a national hero and a man of great accomplishments rather than one who was blamed for blame after blame. It was time, he said, to assess what the general had done for Canada, for he had been ill-treated by historians and his political enemies pursued him beyond the grave.

Mr. Capon said General Hughes was one of the few Canadians who foresaw World War I — and, as Minister of the Militia and Defence, one of the few who saw that Canada was prepared for it.

The Kaiser had said the Commonwealth would not come to the aid of Britain. It did, of course, and Canada was first in line, putting it on the path to full nationhood. Hughes organized the Canadian Expeditionary Force and later, through the "shell committee", organized the production in Canada of necessary munitions for the war effort.

South African exchange students Sonja Johnson and Dale Lumley were among the guests at lunch and, noting this, Mr. Capon said that some of the most unusual episodes involving General Hughes took place during the Boer War. Mr. Capon, judging from reports, the general would have had Canadians believe he won the war.

Author of a book on the general, entitled "Paths Lie Gently, Mr. Capon credited General Hughes with quickening the pace of industrialization in Canada and said "he created what others wondered." A copy of the book was presented at the meeting in aid of the Ontario Society for Crippled Children.

CP News Briefs

Industry Blamed For Throw-aways

TORONTO (CP) — Consumers have not really demanded the throw-away bottle or soft-drink can, says Everett Biggs, deputy minister of the Ontario environment department.

Mr. Biggs told the Ontario Soft Drink Association Monday that the new containers are a result of promotion by the container manufacturing industry and the big retailers. He said non-returnables are not wanted by the consumers and bottlers, but seem to be wanted by the supermarkets.

"We want to get back to the returnable and re-usable container. We want to stop this proliferation."

Reduce Fares

LONDON (Reuter) — Prime Minister Edward Heath ordered the world's airline chiefs Monday to reduce fares or lose their customers to the charter companies.

In a speech to 300 executives from 168 world airlines, Heath said he is opposed to shutting the charter companies which are capturing a growing share of air travel with lower prices.

The speech was delivered at the opening of the 30th annual general meeting of the International Air Transport Association's three-day session.

Accord Signed

BONN (Reuter) — West Germany and China have reached agreement on the establishment of diplomatic relations, Foreign Minister Walter Scheel told a news conference Monday. Scheel also said he will visit Peking Oct. 28 to conclude negotiations.

What A Haul!

TORONTO (CP) — Thieves probably thought they made the heist of a lifetime when they looted the Royal Ontario Museum of the Hope diamond, the Great Mogul diamond, the Tiffany diamond and the Stewart diamond during the weekend.

However, the theft turned out to be an almost wasted caper because the diamonds were only copies of the world famous gems and were made of quartz. Their value is $200.

He said standardization of soft drink containers to simplify recycling is not the answer.

Hess Book Is Vetoed

WEST BERLIN (Reuter) — The former American governor of the four-power prison in prison at Spandau has been forbidden to publish a book he compiled in collaboration with the prison's only prisoner, Rudolf Hess, deputy Rudolf Hess, a U.S. official said Monday.

A spokesman for the U.S. mission here said Col. Eugene Kiel, who retired last April, had prepared a manuscript on Spandau on information available to him as a prison official.

Hess, who completed his 25th year in the Spandau jail in July, has been a prisoner since he made his lone, abortive peace mission to Scotland in 1941. In 1946, the Nuremberg war crimes tribunal sentenced him to life imprisonment on a charge of helping prepare an aggressive war.

No Pictures

CALGARY (CP) — Justin Trudeau had an impromptu meeting with the press aboard the prime minister's aircraft Sunday but it was off the record for photographers.

Margaret Trudeau and her son paid a brief visit to the rear section of the plane as it flew from Vancouver to Calgary.

Press photographers covering Prime Minister Trudeau's campaign shot pictures of Justin astride a stuffed toy tiger, but a press secretary refused to publish publication, explaining that there has been a long-standing rule against use of pictures shot during campaign flights.

Killed by Gas

TORONTO (CP) — A city works department employee who fell down a manhole was killed by sewer gas Monday after four firemen spent 45 minutes in a rescue attempt.

Raymond Blows, 44, was still alive when firemen reached him, but he died later in hospital.

A works department official said Mr. Blows, a city employee for 11 years, was entering a manhole to check the sewer when he was overcome by the gas and plunged 40 feet.

A fireman who attempted a quick rescue without a mask also was overcome by the gas.

Course Offered

OTTAWA (CP) — Three Canadian colleges will offer a one-year course this fall to train Indians for careers in counselling and guidance with the Indian affairs department.

The department announced Monday that the program follows a pilot project in such courses initiated in Ontario and Alberta in 1971.

The courses will be offered at Lethbridge Community College in Alberta and in Ontario at the College of Education of the University of Toronto and the Algonquin College of the Ontario Institute of Western Ontario in London.

Staff Problem

TORONTO (CP) — Data processing centres for insurance companies are going to require less and less staff, a life insurance executive said Monday.

"The major problem for data processing management for the remainder of this decade is not to find enough highly skilled people and retain them, but the placement elsewhere in the company of the people we already have that will no longer be needed," said William Thomson of London Life Insurance Co. of London, Ont.

Strike Ends

LINDSAY, Ont. (CP) — Members of Local 1281, Textile Workers Union of America, have ratified a 32-month contract with Brinton Carpets Ltd.

The contract, which ends a 10-week strike, provides for wage increases totalling 70 cents an hour on a base rate of $2.79 an hour.

About 250 are employed at the plant.

Ontario Upset With Offer

TORONTO (CP) — Provincial Treasurer Charles MacNaughton took a dim view Monday of a federal government offer to participate with Ontario and Metropolitan Toronto in major planning projects for the Toronto area.

The offer was made last Thursday by Urban Affairs Minister Ron Basford in a letter to MacNaughton. Among other things, the proposal suggested the federal and provincial governments form a joint action group to determine policy.

In a news release, Mr. MacNaughton responded:

"We are not looking for gimmicks to solve the serious problems facing our large urban areas."

Prisoner Swap

BONN (AP) — West Germany announced Monday it has secured the release of more than 200 political prisoners in East Germany in exchange for two German women accused of espionage against West Germany. The two are Inge-Lore Weber, a 45-year-old East German, and her accomplice, Irene Schulz, 53.

Gets UN Post

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim appointed a retired Swedish diplomat Monday as his special representative to seek a settlement of control over Southwest Africa. Waldheim announced that Alfred Martin Escher, 68, will arrive in New York in the next few days for consultations and the beginning of his mission.

In Niger

NIAMEY (Reuter) — A Canadian development mission has arrived in Niger to inspect progress on a 200-mile road along the bank of Lake Chad which is being built with Canadian aid. The team is led by Jacques Guerin, vice-president of the Canadian Agency for International Development.

Rice Crisis

PHNOM PENH (Reuter) — The Cambodian government ordered Monday emergency rice imports to be put on sale in Phnom Penh, with a ration of 11 pounds a person a week. The government has taken over all distribution of rice to meet a national food crisis. The United States has been flying about 120 tons of rice daily from Saigon.

Fish Gets Man

BRISBANE, Australia (Reuter) — A sailor aboard a game-fishing boat was speared through the chest by a 500-pound marlin off Cairns, 1,040 miles north of here. Jim Byrne, 36, was taken to a hospital where doctors said the marlin's spike narrowly missed his heart and lungs.

Team Canada Balks At German Referees

Under $100 1-way

LONDON (CP) — Britain has given the nod to an unprecedented "walk-on" jet service to North America, designed to operate daily with one-way fares well below $100.

The Civil Aviation Authority, the government's regulatory agency, announced its approval Tuesday. The service now needs only the sanction of the International States aviation control body to begin operation next April 1.

Under the proposal, passengers would not be able to book in advance. They would simply arrive at Stansted Airport near London, or John F. Kennedy Airport in New York, and purchase a ticket for the next scheduled flight.

A spokesman for Laker Airways, the company planning to run the new operation, said he is confident the number of persons who have to be turned away because flights are full will be small.

If Laker wins U.S. approval, and most officials here believe this is almost certain, the company will begin with one daily flight in each direction between London and New York in winter, with an extra four flights a week in summer.

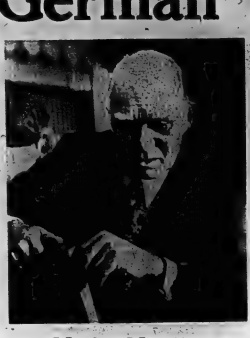
One-way flights in winter months will cost slightly more than $80. One-way tickets in summer months will be about $92. A regular one-way winter fare between New York and London now is about $215. The one-way summer fare is $290 and up, and the between-seasons fare, now in effect, is about $240.

Big Turnout Expected

URANIUM CITY, Sask. (CP) — A heavy turnout of voters was expected today, despite unseasonably cold weather, in the third Saskatchewan byelection since the New Democratic Party scored a dramatic upset over the Liberals 13 months ago.

Standing in the legislature is NDP 45 and Liberals 15 with the one seat, the remote northern riding of Athabasca, vacant.

There are about 4,200 eligible voters in the far-flung riding and returning officer Peter Rees said Thursday that "there is definitely a lot of interest so we are expecting a lot of people to come out and vote."



The Athabasca byelection became necessary Feb. 14 when the results of the general election June 23, 1971, were controverted by Judge A. H. Bence of Court of Queen's Bench.

Fight Goes On In Ireland

BELFAST (AP) — Guerrillas battled with British troops today while Northern Ireland's politicians planned to argue over who will control security in Ulster.

Troops said they hit two gunmen in a shootout in a Roman Catholic district of Belfast. One of the gunmen was believed to have died, but there was no official confirmation.

Money Matters

The Governor of the Bank of Canada, Louis Rasminsky, leans over the back of his chair to converse Tuesday with another delegate at the International Monetary Fund meeting in Washington. The week-long session is in its second day with 145 nations in attendance.

Finance Minister Cool to U.S. Stand

WASHINGTON (CP) — Finance Minister John Turner of Canada says the U.S. proposal for reshaping the world monetary system is really "only a statement of ideas" on monetary reform.

Most of the finance ministers and central bankers attending the International Monetary Fund's—annual meeting withheld substantive comment after Treasury Secretary George Shultz sketched the U.S. plan Tuesday.

Turner told a news conference Shultz had "stated a very strong opening negotiating position" for the U.S. He had set a "highly constructive" tone for the "tough negotiations ahead."

While he welcomed the tone of the speech that didn't mean he was "condoning" any of the U.S. positions.

Shultz proposed that countries with balance-of-payments surpluses should be under as much pressure to change their currency values as those in deficit.

The pressure should come from new international economic sanctions, he said, including the right to impose import surcharges against a country with a chronic surplus. Another sanction would be the loss of any right to convert accumulated foreign currency holdings into reserve of another country.

Shultz proposed new flexibility for the monetary system including a wider range of permissible international values for the dollar. The dollar would be able to swing in value as much as any other currency can.

Now, because the dollar is the centrepiece of the monetary system, it is limited in the extent to which it can fluctuate in value.

Other currencies can swing in value by nine per cent against each other, but the dollar is limited to a total 4.5-per-cent range.

This is much too rigid, Shultz suggested.

If the U.S. plan is adopted, the dollar would lose its cornerstone role as the currency in which the monies of other countries are valued.

Instead, Shultz said, all currencies, including the dollar should be stated in terms of Special Drawing Rights, or "paper gold" now worth $1.08 each.

S D Rs are tip newly created international reserve asset designed to supplement gold and settle debts between governments. They are look-keeping entries, with value based only on mutual trust and confidence.

Shultz said gold should be phased out as a reserve asset.

Turner insisted it was "not going to get into technical issues of the (Shultz) speech." There were touchy negotiations ahead.

Speed of progress on the U.S. proposal "depends on how the new Group of 20 get on with their work," Canada is going to suggest that the group report back "in two or three months or so" in what progress they are making. "Very difficult political issues" associated with would have to be considered also by the individual governments.

He would be seeing Shultz and it was possible U.S.-Canada bilateral trade matters would come up but he agreed, in reply to questions, that it would be difficult for the two countries to make specific progress now in the atmosphere of approaching elections in both countries.

Hockey Series May Be Over

MOSCOW (CP) — A dispute over referees erupted between Team Canada and Soviet hockey officials today. One Canadian spokesman said: "It looks serious, there could be no eighth game."

Canada and Russia are tied 3-3 in victories with one game tied and the final game in the series set for Thursday night.

Canadian coach Harry Sinden called "an important news conference" but later cancelled it, sending word that the Russian negotiators were discussing the problem among themselves and further word might be forthcoming during the evening.

The problem came up slightly before lunch time, when Sinden, assistant coach John Ferguson and director Alan Eagleson were called to a meeting with Russian officials.

Kirill Romanski, vice-president of the Soviet Ice Hockey Federation, and coaches Vsevolod Bobrov and Boris Kulagin were the Russian negotiators. Andrei Starovoitov, president of the Russian association, was in Vienna for an international meeting.

Eagleson said the Canadians made their position clear—that they will not accept two Swiss German referees for the crucial final game—and left the Russians to make up their minds.

It was expected a news conference would be called either late tonight or early Thursday to announce a conclusion.

Speculation here was that the situation would be resolved by a compromise with one of the West German referees working with one of the other pair.

The West Germans, who came under severe criticism for their handling of the sixth game of the series here Sunday, are Josef Kompalla and Franz Baader.

The other pair, who kept Tuesday's several game well in hand, were Uve Dahlberg of Sweden and Rudolph Batsa of Czechoslovakia.

Convoy Said Spotted

KAMPALA, Uganda (AP) — Ugandan military spokesmen said late Tuesday that a large convoy of vehicles carrying Tanzanian troops had been spotted moving through northern Tanzania towards the Ugandan border villages of Mutukula and Nkagali.

He added, in a reasoned broadcast by the government-run radio here, that boats "suspected to be carrying troops" had also been seen heading for the eastern Ugandan town of Tororo from Mwanza, on the southern shore of Lake Victoria.

Cuban Claims Cure for Blind

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP) — A Cuban refugee has told fellow ophthalmologists he has developed a new treatment using heat which restored near-perfect vision in 18 persons declared legally blind.

At the same time, Dr. Asher Gasset was quoted as his announcement to the 7,000-member Florida chapter of the American Academy of Ophthalmologists and Otolaryngologists in Dallas on Tuesday that the University of Florida released its research—findings to the Gainesville campus.

Dr. Gasset said he and his research team have had "promising preliminary results" in experimental work on human corneas, a condition causing the cornea to become thin and bulge almost to cone shape.

The researcher also suggested the heat could be used treatment, which takes less than nine minutes, may have potential for correcting extreme near-sightedness caused by irregularities in the curvature of the corneas.

The Florida team's procedure involves heating a pencil-slim probe to about 122½ degrees Fahrenheit and swiftly applying it to the protruding cornea.

Ten patients volunteered for the heat treatment instead of the more complex corneal transplant. All were previously declared legally blind, with vision of 20-200 or worse. Dr. Gasset said. Half of them could not tolerate contact lenses because of their misshapen corneas.

Over a period of several months following application, the beam restored the cornea gradually flattened with little or no scarring.

Dr. Gasset said that as their corneas flattened, patients experienced a decrease in the degree of myopia (near-sightedness) and corneal astigmatism, a common defect caused by irregularities in the curvature of the cornea.

The treatment at Gainesville—called thermokeratoplasty, or TKP for short—restored the volunteers' vision to 20-40 and in more cases to 20-30 or normal sight, Dr. Gasset said.

But he added, "The technique must be studied extensively with longer term evaluation of volunteer patients before it can be accepted for general use."

The Front Runner

Jack Ellis looks as if he'd just finished a race as he mops brow between meeting Conservative convention delegates in lobby of Madoc high school last night. Real race — for candidacy in byelections — was yet to come as party workers voted their choice. Former Belleville mayor emerged victorious from that contest.

Mr. Ellis won the most-debated local Conservative convention contest in years by defeating:

Macdonald Smith, Belleville businessman, school trustee and prominent, local Conservative, on a second ballot and

The contest drew more than 1,200 to Centre Hastings Secondary School, an eager harvest which underscored the event's significance for party supporters and public.

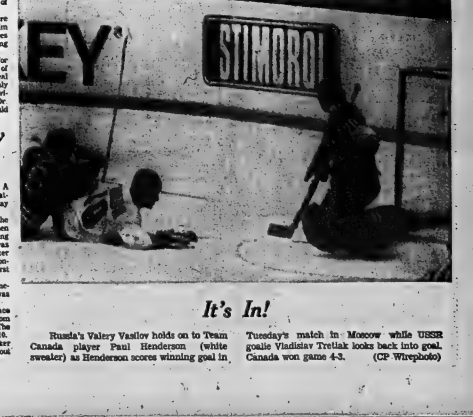
Fourth Boy Attacked



WATERLOO, Ont. (CP) — A fourth teen-age boy was attacked by a strangler Tuesday in a field in Waterloo.

The boy, 14, was crossing the field at about 10:30 p.m. when a man leaped at him, seizing him by the throat. The boy was able to fight off his attacker and was not choked into unconsciousness as were the first three victims.

The boy called police immediately and a search was started.

The last attack took place Sunday evening, not far from the most recent attack. The first attack took place Sept. 10.

In each case, the attacker was described as a man, about 18, with long, brown hair.

Grills' Farewell In Character

MADOC — For Lee Grills it was a standing ovation. But no leaf burning. He is the true political animal.

Anything so dramatic would have been untypical for the hometown politician who is as apt to ad-lib a speech anyway — warmed only to the Kingston title: The Friendly Metropolis.

But such a basic approach was enough to win the confidence of fellow Hastings Conservatives for two decades and seven elections. And that of the electorate which voted him a 13-year parliamentary career.

Characteristically, he reviewed that career in simple terms. Personality had seen him introduced as Mr. Grills. But he quickly put such convention to rights.

"The name," he reminded the crowded auditorium, "is still Lee. It always will be. Never mind the minister.

"We've been a happy family together for so many years," Mr. Grills told the crowd of more than 1,200 supporters and spectators his retirement decision helped draw to Centre Hastings Secondary School. "And I was happy to be one of them."

His years in Ottawa meant more than politics. Once, he'd been told he'd had more studies visit him from his riding than ever other MP.

"I had many visitors. Many visitors."

But politics? He'd often heard it pondered if a politician could be honest.

"There's no reason under God's heaven why a politician can't be honest. And I hope I've proven that."

But politics too, had proven something about his country for a man who started on a farm, became a dairyman and began public life in rural local government.

"I think it's a pretty wonderful country when a farmer's boy like me could get elected to parliament. You don't have to be a millionaire. You don't have to be any particular person. You just have to be a good public servant to get elected."

His only political reference was the oblique caution: "We must be responsible leaders in government downgrade our party lines — and all that our soldiers fought for and all that we've worked for."

Then he took his final bow to an ovation.

Also drawing plaudits was the personality Mr. Grills has always depended on his "running mate" — his wife of 42 years. Service, now receiving from a serious illness that necessitated intensive hospital care. Concern for her health was a factor in his decision to quit public life.

Later, with a candidate chosen and supporters departing back to the hometown wards to wage the first campaign without a Grill's banner since 1952, the veteran pondered the possibility of a "second career life."

But would he adapt to it easily

"Not completely," he admitted.

With his wife's health improved, he hopes to take time for some travelling. There'll be "some business interests" to occupy some of his time.

And, there'll still be Ottawa visits. "I'll take the odd trip to see friends — on both sides of the House."

Lee Grills Waves Farewell

Ellis on Second Ballot

There was good reason for the expectancy.

Last night's nomination fight was precipitated by retirement of Lee Grills, the first chosen party candidate two decades ago, who has held the Hastings seat 13 years. The riding is the Quinte hub of what traditionally has been considered a Tory stronghold, and a candidacy — when it falls vacant — is eagerly sought.

How the convention's 483 delegates voted in both ballots was not known. By longestablished custom the votes — counted behind closed doors — are never made public.

In all, it took almost two hours to stage both ballots before recording officer Hastings County Administrator Carl Bateman confirmed Mr. Ellis as the Convention's choice.

Immediately after confirmation of his win Mr. Ellis went, before the convention and applauded for his united support for his candidacy.

"You're going to have to fight for a new name and a new face. If we are going to do it we have to do it, together," said Mr. Ellis

Of the two defeated contenders, Mr. Boutter, who made one of the most rousing speeches of the three, later frankly admitted he was disappointed at his loss, but said he realized he'd sought the candidacy as an underdog.

Mr. Smith said he had "enjoyed the experience" of seeking his party's candidacy.

Mr. Ellis, a Belleville alderman during 1959-63, was elected mayor in 1964 and defeated by Mayor Russell Scott in 1967. Since then he has been out of public view.

While he had aspirations for higher office while in city politics, he admitted later, he did not firmly decide to seek last night's nomination until Mr. Grills announced his retirement Sept. 18.

Earlier, in his speech before the convention, he said he promised delegates "to be the most available member you ever had.

"I intend to be in the riding every weekend and at least one night during the week," he added.

Mr. Ellis also promised to stay in contact if the constituency if elected by having phones throughout the riding where messages could be left for him to return a call. Phones would be placed in Bancroft, Marmora, Madoc, Tweed, Deseronto and Belleville.

Hees Outlines Policy

MADOC — Bilingualism in the national public service is certain and impractical as practised by the Trudeau government — a policy it pursues to the advantage of its "own supporters," says George Hees.

Job opportunities and promotion in the public service are being denied persons who are not bilingual, the Prince Edward - Hastings MP and leading Progressive Conservative campaigner told last night's party nomination convention for Hastings riding here.

There are only "relatively few" areas in Canada where both languages are freely and constantly used, and where bilingual civil service could be required. "It's completely unfair to stop a person getting into the civil service or into their promotion because they're not bilingual — because only a very small proportion of those people in the civil service need to know those two languages," said Mr. Hees.

A Conservative government would: (1) Shape an export drive to enlarge markets and establish new ones which would reduce price-decreasing surpluses and (2) Revamp the Farm Credit Corporation to advance farmers loans akin to those given industry which are largely forgivable if certain production standards and deadlines are met. (3) Interest-deferred loans would be advanced young farmers seeking to start their own operations. (4) Capital gains tax would not be levied when a farm is passed on within a family.

That will enable a family farm to stay within a family," said the MP to applause. "That is going to enable the family farm to be the bedrock of the farming industry of Canada . . . Farming always has been . . . the bedrock of the Canadian economy . . ."

Died of Old Age

The pigg tree that has stood before Ontario School For The Deaf for more than 100 years fell to the woodman's axe today. Old age took its toll, killing the tree that for years supported the Christmas decorations for the school. No tree will be planted in its place, a spokesman for the school said today.

Snowmobile Laws To Be Tightened

TORONTO (Special) — A select committee studying the use of snowmobiles plans to seek changes in legislation this winter to control petty trespass, limit noise, and increase safety standards, says Alex Carruthers, chairman.

The committee, appointed June 20 by Transportation and Communications Minister Gordon Carton, will present an interim report to the legislature in November.

Mr. Carruthers told the Toronto bureau of The Intelligencer he hopes the recommendations will result in changes this year. He said the important areas concern trespass and noise which are the leading causes of complaints.

The committee, he said, will recommend legislation to control trespassing by snowmobile operators and set a noise limit in the area of 68 decibels (sound of a business office).

The committee is also studying the need for firmer controls in the field of snowmobile safety. Emphasis is on greater steering and braking ability, a stronger lighting system, and a visual warning system such as an antenna and pennant.

Since its formation the committee has met with snowmobile manufacturers, individual snowmobile operators, and representatives of snowmobile clubs.

Mr. Carruthers said the committee has found people either favor or oppose snowmobiles. There is no middle road, he said.

Trips to northwestern and northeastern Ontario are planned this fall to study the use of snowmobiles for commercial rather than recreational use.

The committee is studying the effect snowmobiles have on ecology. At present it is generally accepted snowmobiles damage fall wheat crops, however, there is no indication grass and other vegetation is damaged, he said.

The ministry of agriculture and representatives of the snowmobile industry are continuing studies to determine the long term effect, he said.

In announcing the framework of the committee, Mr. Carton set out seven guidelines. The committee was to consider the safety of the operator, safety of the vehicle and equipment, operation of the vehicle on public roads, and in other public areas, control of trespass, effectiveness of existing legislation, identification of vehicles, and environmental considerations including noise.

Members of the committee are Mr. Carruthers (PC-Durham), Frank Drea (PC-Scarborough Centre); Hugh Edighoffer (L-Perth) Burt Grenna (ND-Sudbury); Bernt Gilbertson (PC-Algoma); George A. Nixon (PC-Dovercourt); Richard F. Ruston (L-Essex-Kent) J. E. Stokes (ND-Thunder Bay); James Taylor (PC-Prince Edward-Lennox); Thomas Wardle (PC-Beaches-Woodbine) and Paul Yakabuski (PC-Renfrew South).

Three of the committee members are snowmobile owners while the other members have driven snowmobiles, says Mr. Carruthers.

While the committee is directing its study toward snowmobile legislation the purpose is to look at the complete area of all-terrain vehicles.

Early next year, following presentation of the interim report, the committee will study the use of trail bikes, mini-bikes, and hovercraft.

Mr. Carruthers said a study into the use of all - terrain vehicles is required as recreational vehicles are coming onto the market a time when people have more leisure time.

Snowmobile Show Nears

PICTON (Staff) — The third annual snowmobile trade show sponsored by the Picton Racing Committee opens this weekend in the County Centre.

Proceeds will be used toward promotion of several snowmobile events this winter.

Snowmobiles, all terrain vehicles, snowmobile suits and accessories will be displayed by dealers throughout the county.

One Fell Swoop

Wolves Prowl Near Marmora

MARMORA — Howling of wolves in a fairly common sound at night in many areas of Marmora Township but lately the wolves are getting much bolder.

Patrick Bertrand, RR 1, Marmora, discovered he had lost six lambs from his flock when sheep were brought in for shearing last week.

While not certain wolves got the lambs, Mr. Bertrand knows for sure a wolf killed one of his ewes Sept. 12th. Brian Bertrand was on his way to his parent's home that day when he spotted a wolf in a nearby field. He went to borrow a gun from neighbor William Doyle.

When the two returned they found the wolf had killed a ewe. A chat was heard and may have wounded the wolf before it took off into the woods.

Earlier this year while the first crop of hay was being baled, the men saw a wolf dashing into the field, grab a woodchuck and make off with it.

More recently, another son, Larry, saw a wol in the same field where he was plowing.

First she saw it and then she didn't is how a neighbor reacted when suddenly the house next door wasn't there anymore. Located on Station Street, near Club Canara and the old Salvation Army building, the house, until three months ago, was rented by three families. Fire had damaged the home and had since been left vacant. "First I saw someone taking windows and frames and the next thing I know it's just sitting there like a lump, as if something big leaned against it." said the neighbor.

Cannifton Road Crossing Referred to 1973 Council

City council this week approved of a traffic committee recommendation that the proposed CNR grade separation in the Cannifton Road area be referred to the 1973-74 council for consideration.

Consulting engineers in a north-south arterial road study gave four possible alternatives for location of the grade separation but city council was unable to come up with a firm decision as to which should be accepted and it was referred back to the traffic committee.

And approval of plans for the proposed concrete bridge at Dale Road at the city's eastern limits is still in the future.

The secretary of the railway transport committee, Canadian Transport Commission, has requested the city to make a further submission for the project.

The matter was brought to the attention of the traffic committee at its last meeting with the feeling being that further action on the proposed project should await submission of the city's official plan.

Council agreed with the traffic committee's suggestion.

Council went along with the request of area residents to have a walkway on Herchimer Ave. to Crestview Ave. fenced.

Construction of a six-foot chain link fence was approved providing funds were available for the project.

Council approval was given for the extension of sanitary sewer and water service to serve the Greek - Canadian Orthodox Community Church to be erected at the corner of Avondale Road and Harder Drive.

City and public utilities approval for the extension was required as the church site is just outside the city limits in Sidney township.

Piston Pushers Plan Disaster Exercise

The Piston Pushers Motorcycle Club Inc., of Foxboro, are rolling up an emergency headquarters for the village of Frankford, using some of the resources of the Quinte Emergency Measures Organization.

Ian Reilly, president of the club, and Angus Duffy, chairman of the EMO, announced today the emergency centre would begin Friday, at 7:30 p.m. with a simulated disaster.

There will be a main balloon aircraft crash within the village limits and it will be the responsibility of the club to handle traffic control communications and emergency aid.

Members of the club have been trained in the past few months and but this will mark the first time they have handled the entire show themselves.

Headquarters for the exercise will be in the municipal building at Frankford.

PM Angered

Prime Minister Trudeau's famed intellectual honesty has come forth again with a choice put-down of a Vancouver heckler.

The demonstrator, Nick Shugalo of the Vietnam Action Committee, was being persistent and abrasive to the point of being tiresome. People like this cannot be expected to be countered effectively with kid gloves. At the same time Mr. Trudeau has to remember his position. He is the Prime Minister and if he is angered — and it seems he had a right to be on this occasion — he would be better off expressing it with greater delicacy. And especially while visiting his wife's home town.

He has a reputation to maintain — as suggested by a foreword to "Conversations With Canadians," a book of Mr. Trudeau's speeches published by the University of Toronto Press.

The foreword, by special assistant Ivan Head, quotes an Australian MP as saying, "this man has done more to change the interpretation Australians have of their politicians than anything else that has happened in the last ten years." And there was the Canberra newspaper which spoke of Trudeau speeches "so beautifully worded they almost sound like poetry."

We'd of course scorn some of the poetry of our day, as in motion pictures, is not without realism of expression and tone, but this is not what the newspaper had in mind. Besides, as well as being the art of the possible, politics can also be well served by language that combines grace with clarity. If Mr. Trudeau has this necessary touch at times in his prepared speeches, it is clear that in the rough and tumble of the hustings the old Adam can get the better of him.

The Distaff Side

It may be less of a surprise that Mrs. Margaret Trudeau went, unrecognized in Vancouver when it is realised that she prefers to keep her private life to herself, to stay out of the limelight and particularly to stay out of trouble politics. The Prime Minister himself said recently that his wife would go on the campaign trail only if she herself desired it.

The Vancouver trip of course provided her with an opportunity to see her family and to take baby Justin along. When she has appeared in public Mrs. Trudeau projects an image of quiet charm. She would appear on that trail in Russia a while back but in recent days she is reported to have fainted at a meeting the Prime Minister was addressing and this could mean the strain of these days is telling on her.

If the Prime Minister's wife is not actively campaigning, as Mrs. Nixon is doing in the United States, Opposition leader Stanfield has strong support from his wife and daughter Mimi. The latter is a winsome lass who looks very much with it and this can only be to her father's advantage wherever she appears.

Miss Stanfield featured in political cartoons during her father's visit to Toronto a couple of years ago and she is making the scene in similar fashion again in the current campaign. "No, not that daddy," she is saying to Mr. Stanfield in a cartoon of recent days, "let me see if I can explain exactly what rip-off means."

It is an inviting standoff, this one of the fair sex in this election year of 1972. We wonder will it end with any of the ballyhoo and matching girls in straw hats and minskirts which Paul Hellyer and company brought into the fray during the leadership battle of 1968.

It's Done

The captains and kings of the Bay Bridge construction gangs have departed and, true, we are left with a brand new surface but also the prospect of a long wait for what is really required — an overhead bridge.

We wonder if Health Minister Dr. Richard Potter, the member for Quinte riding, succeeded in getting Highways Minister Gordon Carton down at some suitable peak hour during the summer as anticipated? In any event the stopgap job has been completed and the silence is a little eerie.

Gone from the scene also is the venerable Quinte Belle which lay at anchor beside Bay of Quinte Fisheries and which was used to transport broken concrete from the bridge to the new East Zwick's Island park site. There has been renewed activity here in recent days, with trucking and what looks like some preliminary landscape work. We look forward to continued development at the site even now as the year goes into decline.

P M Sheds Playboy Image for Man of Decision

Campaign Strategists Work on Charisma 1972-Style

By RICHARD JACKSON
from The Intelligencer's
Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Just listen to the party leaders . . . going to talk issues, they swear.

Charisma? Image? Style?

Never, chorus Prime Minister Trudeau, Conservative leader Stanfield and New Democratic chief David Lewis, for once in tune together.

Well, that is what they may say, and they might even believe it themselves.

But do not swallow a word of it.

For no matter what the leaders say, the party campaign bosses are telling it differently.

While the leaders will be dealing in what they think are the issues, in speeches and press conferences and assorted public appearances, they will be doing it in such a way as to polish the old image with a new sheen.

They are presenting the Prime Minister as a dedicated, decisive leader, addicted to hard work in the public interest.

The Conservative leader they are having come through as the honest, decent, straightforward, good management man you can trust to be right this time.

The NDP image - makers are tempting David Lewis to reflect the reasonable alternative opposition leader, the tough fighter standing up for the little man and best able to keep Trudeau in check.

The campaign planners long since have taken extensive surveys to pin down what the voters like — and do not like — about their leaders.

The idea is to go upbeat on the positive and ignore its silliness, hoping nobody will notice, the negative.

So the surveys show — confirming the popularity polls — that Trudeau's strongest appeal is that of the bold, decisive leader quickly rising to the occasion to face the crisis.

The Liberal campaigners will never admit that the Prime Minister's peak in the public popularity polls came when he used the War Measures Act and the armed forces to crush the Quebec terror.

The surveys established on the negative side of the Prime Minister what the public liked least was his frequent flippancy, frivolity, and sometimes downright rudeness.

And they established, finally that few taxpayers are indifferent to the Prime Minister. Either they admire him or detest him, with seldom middle ground.

So the campaign picture to be projected is of the Prime Minister hard at work at his desk or busy with the affairs of business in cabinet — which, the Liberal election managers say, will be the case, with Trudeau making only short in-and-out dashes from the Capital and spending more time on the job of running the country.

Do not look then for the carefree swinger of the supermarket campaign of four years ago.

He is a married man now, and a father, with a deeper sense of national responsibility, and the careless rapture of the 1968 election career something now only for the memory book.

Confirming it, Consumer and Corporate Affairs Minister Robert Andras, the Liberal campaign chairman, says calmness is out.

Over in Conservative campaign headquarters they have pre-packaged Robert Stanfield for 1972 — solid, sound, decision-making, dependable leader of long years of public service, with experience, confidence and obvious ability the added ingredients.

Confidence is the keynote . . . confidence of the leader in the field and his own confidence in himself.

They are selling him as the man who can get things done.

Stanfield's the one who can handle unemployment and inflation, they say, and so as issues he will have ready-made his "welfare mess," and the soaring cost - of - living.

There is public anger over abuses of welfare, of unemployment insurance, of wasteful make - work and - jobs costing more and more millions while taxes are scheduled to increase another three percent in three more months, and prices rise.

Stanfield is expected to come on as the know - how leader who can take charge.

Running deep and silent, and perhaps more exciting, is the bilingual issue we will challenge both leaders.

David Lewis?

Same old socialist stand, whacking what he slickly calls the "corporate welfare bums," while antagonizing his supporters among the individual welfare bums free-loading on the poor deluded taxpayer who somehow strangely still powers working to feather it.

"That reminds me. The druggist phoned . . . something about the prescription he gave you being recalled."

Lawrence Could Have A Bright Ottawa Future

By DON O'HEARN
From The Intelligencer's
Queen's Park Bureau

It will seem strange not to have Secretary for Justice Allan Lawrence on the scene here any longer.

For nearly 15 years Mr. Lawrence has been one of the most compelling figures in the legislature.

He always has been an ardent politician, of course, starting as a youth in the Young PCs.

But he combined his politics with a drive, flair and independence which set him apart.

Nine critics him for switching to the federal field.

Since he lost the leadership race to Premier Davis there has been little for him here.

The justice secretaryship, though it sounds impressive, doesn't give the scope for action that his temperament demands.

And with Mr. Davis firmly in the saddle there was little future.

So a change of arenas was called for.

It will be interesting to see what manner of mark Mr. Lawrence makes on the federal scene.

He could have a bright future in Ottawa.

He certainly will be in his party's first rank and his debating ability should bring him quickly to prominence on the national scene.

Whether he can go beyond this to the main chance is another question.

It is assumed that Mr. Lawrence has his the back of his mind some day succeeding Robert Stanfield.

The possibilities of this are not to be discounted.

The Lawrence campaign for the Ontario leadership was a big surprise and he demonstrated that when he has his eye on something he can put up a tremendous fight.

However, it appears that when Mr. Stanfield does step down there will be a lot of competitors for his job and whether this Toronto lawyer could swing the national support he would need has to be a big question mark.

This, of course, is a problem for the future.

For now Mr. Lawrence has the pressing business of trying to get himself. Most, people seem to think he will do this easily.

Ads Bug South Africans

John Orpen in The South
African Financial Gazette

South Africans have precious little faith in the credibility of their newspapers. And — with many obviously cannot bear to tear themselves away from their translators — they nevertheless rate radio as the most damning medium inflicted on the country.

These attitudes are brought to light in a recent survey on media undertaken by Market and Opinion Surveys for Cincmark.

Media covered include newspapers, cinema and radio.

The only group which doesn't rate newspapers as the most unbelievable medium on offer, is the English-language group — which awards radio that accolade without dubitation. But South Africans as a whole, the Afrikaans language group at the 16 to 24 year old group, and the high income family group, all give the lag to newspapers.

When it comes to advertising, however, all groups are agreed. The incredibility of radio advertisements cannot be beaten by any other media.

Despite the fact that all groups regarded radio — either as a medium per se or from the advertising angle — as being the most annoying of all media, the Afrikaans language group goes off on its own in rating radio as being more entertaining and giving a more vivid impression of events than even cinema.

In addition, the Afrikaans language group — and women — said that they would rather sit and listen to the radio in the evening than go out to the cinema. But they were the only two groups who felt this way.

With one exception, all groups said they would like to see advertising removed from radio programs before seeing it removed from anywhere else.

Quite obviously, certain of the survey's findings reflect differences in the life styles of the various groups living in the country. Thus the Afrikaans language group which lives to a greater degree than its English language counterpart in platteland areas, has developed a greater reliance on radio as means of entertainment— if only because cinemas are not as readily available, as in urban areas.

Sesame Street' Is Back

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

We wanied Sesame Street and we got it! I am one of hundreds of mothers who started to scream when we learned that our local channels to televise such favorites as Ernie, Bert, Oscar and Big Bird. We attacked CKWS with phone calls, letters, and demonstrations; and they listened! I think it only fair now to sincerely thank the management and staff who listened.

Even though the moderator of a certain afternoon radio program attempted to convince us that we were being "stupid," and "childish", and called our efforts "crap"; we continued to bombard CKWS.

Isn't it amazing to note the public voice can still be heard and that mothers and children are concerned, with pleasing their viewing audience?

I hope the mothers who cooperated with our efforts to bring Sesame Street back will remember now to thank the manager of CKWS for that special report he made on Channel 11, on September 18, saying, "Yes, Sesame Street will return at the usual time on September 25."

Remember Hungary in 1956

Editor,
The Intelligencer,

On October 22nd, Hungarians across the nation will honor the memory of the Hungarian Freedom Fighters who, in 1956, rose up some 300,000 strong and tried to throw off the yoke of their communist oppression. Not as strangely, the subversion of the democratic system was observed in Hungary as far back as the 1948 elections when Hungarian communists and various socialist parties formed a "coalition" designed to gain control of the country "democratically" but which, once in power banned all opposition and quickly emerged as a puppet of the USSR — as was witnessed when Soviet tanks and troops rolled into Hungary to put down the uprising.

Canadians would be wise to recognize this pattern of "communism by stealth" which often masquerades as "democratic" — much as Fidel Castro masqueraded as a champion of democracy — until he gained power — at which time he cynically revealed himself as a long time member of the Cuban Communist Party!

We can best remember the infamous betrayal of the Hungarian people by re-dedicating ourselves to the true ideals of freedom and social justice for all — not one-sided bid for power by socialists or Fabian Socialists who masquerade as "liberals" and once in a while as "conservative"!

For as the Hungarian Patriot, Polish and Czechoslovak Canadians were to discover — the price of freedom is eternal vigilance!

PEI Now Lowest On Incomes Totem Poll

Ottawa Citizen

Prince Edward Island, which now has the lowest personal income average of any province — replacing Newfoundland — would no doubt prefer to forego the distinction. The whole Atlantic area, however, is far below the national average of $3,465, reinforcing the need for a stronger attack on regional disparities.

Prince Edward Island's figure is $2,188, little more than half of Ontario's $3,967. Even though Ontario's rate is the Country's highest, as great a discrepancy is bound to create bitterness.

For the rest of the Atlantic provinces, the result isn't much better. Nova Scotia, the wealthiest, had an average income of only $3,018.

Perhaps the most discouraging element in the figures is the slow pace of improvement, both in the Atlantic provinces and Quebec. Ontario's latest year was less, per capita, than in any of the other provinces. The regional incentives program isn't working to the degree it should, for they are still significant.

Employment At The UIC

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

With regard to Colin Bruce's article on the UIC, often reference is eloquence. Mr. Cuddy has demonstrated his skill through his paucity of words.

If Mr. Cuddy does not know how many people he employs and has no facts and figures to disprove those of Mr. Hockley, then it follows that Mr. Hockley's facts and figures are correct and Mr. Hockley knows more about management than management knows itself.

The UIC has acquired an estimable reputation for incompetence. Hence, the above stands to reason, even if Mr. Hockley were very little about management.

The intended, part - time employment of up to 130 possible "moonlighters" should be monitored. Statistics Canada states moonlighting causes 30 per cent of the unemployment. By employing moonlighters, the UIC has discovered a novel way to perpetuate itself and keep its favorite sons and daughters, the ministers of management, in bread and butter.

Mr. L. Cousineau will be intrigued to learn, about this scheme in more detail.

To the dismay of crowds, there was no shower of dirt or even a boom when every successfully blasted the bedrock in the excavation at the corner of Front and Bridge Streets. RC Teachers Here Satisfied

Separate school teachers from Hastings and Prince Edward counties won't be present at the demonstration Thursday at Queen's Park when members of the Ontario English Catholic Teachers' Association press their demands for collective bargaining.

William Guay, president of the Hastings - Prince Edward unit of the OECTA, said teachers here decided that although collective bargaining is desirable the demonstration method of seeking it is "objectionable."

"Our relationship with the board is so good we didn't want to do anything to put things back three years or so," he said today.

Teachers with the Hastings-Prince Edward separate school board signed a salary contract last spring. Many of the teachers who will take part in the Toronto protest work for boards that have not yet signed a salary agreement for this year. Of the 16,000 separate school teachers in Ontario, about 11,300 have no salary contract.

Among those travelling by bus to join the demonstration in Toronto are a group from the Frontenac - Lennox and Addington counties separate school system. Teachers there have no contract and are still being paid at last years rate.

Mr. Guay said collective bargaining would eliminate the situation many Ontario teachers find themselves in every September — no salary contract for the current school year.

But a report by Judge R. W. Reville has recommended regional collective bargaining. This, many teachers feel, would take away the autonomy of local school boards.

"There will have to be a lot of changes in the recommendations of that report," said Mr. Guay.

Outdoor Seminar Scheduled

Ontario will play host this year for the first time to an international conference on outdoor education.

Among the seminar leaders will be Hastings county's coordinator of outdoor education, Wayne Brooks.

About 300 delegates from Canada and the United States will attend the conference near Dorset, in the Haliburton region, Sept. 28 through Oct. 1.

The host is the Council of Outdoor Educators of Ontario. The group has planned a varied program of activities ranging from sailing and mountaineering to freshwater studies, motion picture filming and pioneer life.

"We in Ontario offer programs that will really open their eyes," said Mr. Brooks. Five specialists in outdoor education from Hastings county will attend the conference with Mr. Brooks acting as one of the leaders of the seminar on outdoor education for primary pupils.

Improvement Board Set Up

City council this week approved the bylaw formally establishing a board of management for the Belleville Downtown Improvement area.

The board will have five members, with Alderman Jack Ireland as council representative. The other four members will be named by the Downtown Association.

Purpose of the bylaw is to allow the association to raise $35,000 through a special levy on members for improvement of the downtown area.

Trudeau Stands on Liberal Record in West

CALGARY (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau made his first election campaign thrust into Alberta Tuesday and strongly defended his government's stand on unemployment insurance benefits, the Quebec terrorist crisis and lighter penalties for marijuana possession.

He told a Calgary rally attended by an estimated 5,500 persons that the freedom of all Canadians would have been endangered during the 1970 Quebec crisis had the government acted when a "lunatic fringe" threatened the country's unity.

Mr. Trudeau, answering a questioner who wondered how he could reconcile use of the War Measures Act in Quebec with a speech on civil liberties made when he unveiled a statue to Louis Riel, said Riel surely had a chance to promote his ideas through a political party.

"The separatists do have a party in Quebec," he said. But some people are unwilling to wait for the majority to accept their ideas democratically.

"They will blackmail the government, they'll blackmail the nation, they will hold a gun at the head of an innocent man.

"I say in cases like that the first job of the government is to govern."

In Medicine Hat, he told about 700 persons there was no scandal about the fact the job-creation fund now is "hundreds of millions" of dollars in deficit.

Also in Medicine Hat, he told a middle-aged woman that he was more concerned about the use of liquor than about youth taking light drugs.

He visited Medicine Hat and Lethbridge before returning here Tuesday night for the rally.

Mr. Trudeau said opposition parties are trying to make an issue of the unemployment fund deficit and he can't understand why.

When Parliament changed the unemployment commission act and boosted benefits, it stipulated the government would put "gobs of money" into the fund if unemployment went beyond four per cent of the work force.

It was agreed that in such situations the economy should be stimulated by deficit financing, whether in public works or other sectors.

The financial position of the jobless fund was made known quarterly or semi-annually, he said. At the proper time, the government will make the deficit figure known.

"So what's the problem?" asked Mr. Trudeau.

"Where is the scandal?" he added later, an apparent reference to Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield's suggestion that something was amiss.

Mr. Trudeau took exception when a Medicine Hat woman suggested the country was going "down the drain" because of youth living on welfare and taking drugs.

Young people working on Opportunity For Youth programs were doing a service, he said. Those passing through communities were not a drain on federal taxpayers.

Mr. Trudeau said youth appeared to have learned their lesson from drugs and were "backing away" from them.

But Canadian society as a whole continued to take pills and tranquilizers and consume alcohol. Canadians should respect their bodies more, he said.

At Lethbridge, he said his government's policies in the last four years were aimed at equalizing opportunities for Canadians regardless of where they lived.

Thus, the Official Languages Act allowed Quebecers to talk to their federal government in their own language.

The regional economic department had spent about $1 billion—half of it in the Maritimes—which once was rich enough to help others—to help slow-growth areas.

He elaborated on the theme in Calgary, saying that the Maritime provinces received twice the per-capita grants that Quebec did.

He also told reporters at the Calgary rally that it is too early to say whether the federal government will compensate Prairie farmers for crop damage suffered in last week's snowstorm.

Early reports say the snow caused damage estimated at $30 million.

Mr. Trudeau campaigns in Region and Winnipeg today. Thursday he returns to Ottawa.

'Peg Teachers Sued

WINNIPEG (CP) — A court began hearing a damage suit Tuesday concerning the withdrawal by teachers of lunch-hour supervision at some Winnipeg division high schools.

Winnipeg school divison No. 1, the largest a the province, is seeking $41,128 in damages from the Winnipeg Teachers Association in the civil action.

Carmen Moir, superintendent of schools in the division testified the school board had to hire commissionaires and parents to supervise the high school lunches.

The withdrawal of services began June 1, 1976, and Mr. Moir told Mr. Justice John M. Hunt in Manitoba Court of Queen's Bench the withdrawal is continuing.

The school division originally sought damages of $8,782, the amount Mr. Moir said was spent on commissionaires between June 1 and Dec. 31, 1976.

He said the amount of the claim has been increased to cover costs incurred by the board to June 30, 1972, the end of a school year.

The school division contends the teachers defaulted on a collective agreement, while the teachers' association says the agreement was' violated.

During 1976 contract negotiations, the teachers began withdrawal of services they regard as voluntary, including lunch-hour supervision, extra curricular and tutorial activities.

The withdrawal has been limited since November, 1976, to the lunch-hour supervision

The case continues.

Hockey Fan Arrested

MOSCOW (CP) — Canadian embassy officials are working for the release of 18-year-old Pierre Plouffe, water-skiing champion of Quebec province, arrested here Monday afternoon.

An embassy official said Plouffe had been warned about blowing a bugle at Sunday night's Canada-Russia hockey game and that later he had become involved in an altercation at a hotel, in which some glasses and bottles were broken.

"We are told he paid a fine and was released. The following night he was picked up in his hotel room while dressing to go for dinner with his mother.

"All we can say at the moment is that we're looking into the situation."

Tremor Report

BUENOS AIRES (Reuter) — An earth tremor shook a wide area of western Argentina Tuesday causing panic in several cities. There were no reports of serious damage or casualties in major centres, but experts said the effects could have been more serious in remote Andes mountain areas along the Chilean border.

Conservatives Cite Wheat Sales Success as Campaign Plank

OTTAWA (CP) — The Progressive Conservative party held a splendid sales message for Prairie wheat growers in seeking to retain power in the 1983 election campaign.

"You grow it and we'll sell it," said three agriculture ministers Alvin Hamilton, forecasting a billion-bushel grain market in 1964.

Nine years later, Prime Minister Trudeau is taking the Western grain bull the same thing with six weeks to go to the Oct. 30 election.

In between those two events, the grain industry has demonstrated again its vulnerability to boom-and-bust market conditions regardless of what party holds power.

However, there is one common factor. In both instances, bad Soviet crops have helped generate booms.

But the political impact is less easily gauged despite the efforts in 1963 and in 1972 by the government of the day to take advantage from big grain exports.

The Conservatives of John Diefenbaker lost the April 8, 1963, election as the Liberals formed a minority government. But Conservative Prairie support was almost intact with 41 of the then 65 seats in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta.

The Liberals had made a gain of one, to three seats, and the NDP and Social Credit each still held two.

By dissolution last Sept. 30, Conservatives had 20 of 46 Prairie seats and the Liberals and NDP each 10.

Mr. Trudeau last week in Saskatchewan, in pledging a billion-bushel export target, referred to a "fantastic record" by his government and predicted Otto Lang, justice minister and the cabinet spokesman for the Canadian wheat board, vs the "greatest wheat salesmen since Confederation."

But for the Liberals, as for the Conservatives in 1963, darker days are not too far in the past.

Their political critics accuse them of having sold for too low a price before the Soviet-generated price explosion and of having contributed to the depressed Prairie grain economy before a resurgence started in 1978.

Mr. Hamilton, seeking a political comeback in Saskatchewan's Qu'Appelle-Moose Mountain riding, emerged as champion salesman of all era when China first entered the market in 1961. Before that, there had been years when Canada was lucky to export 300 million bushels of wheat compared with the record 595 million in the crop year ended July 31, 1964.

Mr. Hamilton, squeezed out in his Qu'Appelle seat by redistribution in 1968, was defeated in Regina East by the NDP.

The Liberals began on top in 1963 with those huge exports swept to demand by the Soviets, whose virgin-lands project in the east had succumbed to drought.

Gradually, as farmers stepped up production and markets began to stabilize, the picture darkened.

Surpluses began to reappear. Canada, Australia and the U.S., which had been unable to cash in on the Soviet market in contrast to the new buying spree by the Soviet Union this year.

International grain traders once again began to attempt pricing arrangements to gear production to demand. That failed in the late 1930s. Suppliers entered a period of price cutting and Canada in 1939 experimentally brought in a program to cut wheat production dramatically by paying farmers not to grow wheat.

Caouette Says Grants Helping Fund Campaign

WINNIPEG (CP) — Real Caouette celebrated his 53th birthday Tuesday by charging that some regional expansion funds are pouring into Liberal election coffers.

Talking to reporters after receiving a birthday cake at the Winnipeg Press Club, the Social Credit leader said big corporations are receiving regional expansion grants and some of this money is helping to finance the $5 million to $8 million Liberal campaign.

"They are giving millions of dollars to rich industries," he said.

"Part of this money is used to help the Liberal party to maintain their campaign to get into power in Canada."

He said rich corporations are channelling money into the Liberal and Conservative party election funds to be sure they have feet in both camps.

During a busy day which included three television interviews and a public meeting in Altona, about 70 miles south of Winnipeg, Mr. Caouette received repeated good wishes on his birthday.

He was given a birthday cake at the press club and a piece of cake and a carnation at the Altona meeting. The crowd of 100 in an Altona public school gymnasium stood to sing happy birthday to the party leader.

In an interview on the French-language CBC television station CFWT, Mr. Caouette said he opposes increasing the number of official languages in Canada.

He said he favors multiculturalism with various ethnic groups maintaining their cultures in Canada.

"I have nothing against that," he said. "But here in Canada ... should all remain Canadians."

Commenting on the division by a Quebec provincial Credit ite to run as a Conservative in the federal election, Mr. Caouette said the man is automatically expelled from Social Credit ranks.

He was referring to Lucien Bachand, a vice-president of the Ralliement Creditiste of Quebec, who has said he intends to remain a Creditiste despite his decision to run as a federal Conservative.

"He was a personal friend of mine," Mr. Caouette said. "But I don't even want to see him any more because I don't deal with people like that."

The Social Credit leader also said he agrees with New Democratic Leader David Lewis's campaign against "corporate welfare bums." He said he does not understand why big corporations should increase their profits at the expense of the taxpayer.

Mr. Caouette's one-day visit to the Winnipeg area climaxed his tour of Western Canada. He returns to Ottawa today to tape some television broadcasts before beginning a two-day swing through Ontario.

Adversary Defends O.M.B.

TORONTO (CP) — Lawyer David Greenspan said Tuesday the Ontario Municipal Board should be protected from threats to its powers by municipal politicians.

Mr. Greenspan, who has represented many Toronto ratepayers' groups before the board, was testifying before the select legislature committee studying the board.

He said it is "one of the province's major public services as well as development" since it as a good reference.

It provided "a fair forum of final resort" for citizens feeling municipal governments have acted against their best interests.

However, town planner John Bousfield said board hearings are often unnecessarily long and costly.

Mr. Bousfield, former Scarborough planning director, said the Ontario government has far too much power over municipal planning matters.

The OMB should not be permitted to overrule the decisions of elected officials, he said.

FigurMAGIC International

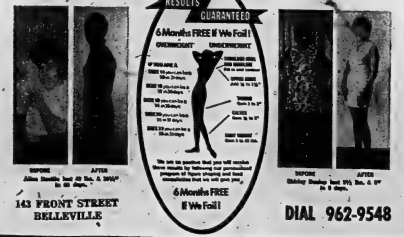
Dedicated to Figure & Beauty Care

An important announcement to the ladies of BELLEVILLE AND SURROUNDING AREA

FIGURMAGIC IS OFFERING A FREE 3-MONTH MEMBERSHIP* TO ALL FORMER MEMBERS OF MISS RENE'S SALON

*There are absolutely no strings attached to this gesture, you are under no obligation whatsoever for enrolment. We make this offer to substantiate our good faith and to maintain your confidence in our industry as a whole. This offer will be honored at any of our locations in Ontario.

FIGURMAGIC CARES ABOUT YOU . . .



Figuremagic International is a Canadian company which has a rapid expansion program. To date, there are over 75 Salons in Canada, and plans for the future call for at least 1000 salons within the next 5 years. These will include locations in the United States as well as in Europe and Australia.

The success of Figuremagic is founded on a very realistic approach to the twin problems of health and figure shaping. A new concept in beauty care is heard of that could almost be called "TLC" — tender, loving care! The pretty instructresses design an individual program for each woman, with guaranteed results if she follows it faithfully. They make a real effort to closely interview each woman, not only when she is in the Salon, but also by keeping a close watch on her diet. This is accomplished by means of a "Food Diary", which, if conscientiously observed by the member, is guaranteed to help her lose the required amount of weight. She dutifully keeps track of every morsel of food eaten, records it in her "Diary", and shows the little book to her instructress each time she visits the salon.

The Salons are pleasant, friendly places to visit, decorated in pleasing, feminine colors, and each has the latest in figure improvement facilities. A unique aspect of cameraderie is apparent in all of these, and since, they are for women only, it is FUN to get away from the daily routine for awhile, and, for a brief period, to enjoy a wholly feminine atmosphere.

And, even though a woman may have physical problems, she can, with her doctor's approval, still benefit from the controlled exercise program.

The Salons are open 6 days a week, with, as stated before, guaranteed results, and to date, our ladies have lost thousands of pounds, and miles of inches.

Ann Landers

References at Family Get-togethers Disturbing

Dear Ann Landers: I am a young woman in my 30s so this letter is not the complaint of a semi-naive young girl. I have a niece who is 39 years of age—and she just loves to latch on to me at family parties, especially when others are within hearing distance, and tell me how her mother (my younger sister) always used me as the example of the "bad girl" in the family during her growing-up years. Her favorite quote is, "Mom would always say to us, 'You don't want to grow up to be like your Aunt Betty, do you?'"

I have been deeply hurt by these references in the past and cannot for the life of me figure out why her mother would do this to me. I was not the perfect girl, but then I was no tramp and I see no justification for such vilification. I would never permit a child of mine to treat any of my sisters in this manner.

Another family party is coming up and I dread it. Can you think of a tactful way to head off my niece's inevitable comments?—Deeply Hurt

Dear D.B.: There is no tactful way to head off a bubblehead with a mouth that runs on a trolley. Your best approach is to stop her dead in her tracks. The minute she starts to spin the broken record, let her have it. Tell her you are bored with that piece of history and if she can't think of anything else to say to you, silence would be a welcome improvement.

Dear Ann Landers: You said in a column not long ago that it is in poor taste to make reference to gifts on a printed invitation. What is your opinion of an invitation that suggests to guests that they bring their own tuque to a 25th wedding anniversary party? Thank you.—BOSS

Dear MGB: "Bring Your Own Bottle" parties aren't my cup of tea, although they serve a purpose for some people and some occasions. A 25th anniversary with written invitations is a special event, however, and tradition says the host should furnish the refreshments—whatever they are.

Dear Ann Landers: I am 16 years old and tired of people telling me that my generation is the worst ever. Why don't they understand that every generation of parents and grandparents were horrified by "the younger generation" and believed they were going straight to the dogs? Will you please do teen-agers everywhere a favor and tell them to stop being paranoid?

"Children of today love history. They have bad manners, contempt for authority, and they show disrespect for their elders. They no longer rise when others enter the room. They contradict their parents, chatter in company, gobble up delicacies on the table, cross their legs and tyrannize their teachers."

Those lines sound as if they were written by someone who has forgotten his youth. Actually they are a paraphrase of what was written by Socrates, somewhere between 469 and 399 BC. So you see, Ann, we are not in a class by ourselves after all.—Relieved 1972 Model

Dear Cat: I've said it before and I'll say it again. A generation that is against war, interested in social justice, deplores hypocrisy and racism and is determined to save the environment can't be all bad. I see a great deal to admire in this present generation of young people. Moreover, I predict many of the 1972 Hellcats will be the ultra-conservative pussycats by the time they have children of their own.

Many Groups Use Doris' Skits

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: A group asked for humorous skits for church or institute. Your answer was sending them a list of skits and games, underlining the ones most probably suitable for their needs. We also are a private (mixed) organization and had in mind petitot on short skits. Would you be kind enough to send us that a list?

I very seldom miss reading your column. Advising on frustrations, mischoccupations, morals, is the toughest task and I credit you with intellectual insight and informative sources in your answers.

Human behavior is very perplexing at times so diplomacy, common sense, reasoning, must be the forerunners of our thinking in trying to solve the to-date complex. These qualities which you seem to possess, make your column attractive. — Bliss You.

Dear Bless You: A list of suggested skits and games is on its way.

I enjoy your comments; but you'd better ascribe it to one bonehdermerit and a little nervous imaginative, too, when it comes to sticking my neck out! But then, the perplexities of human nature are what make it all so intriguing.

Dear Doris: I have three children. My husband has a very good job but all he'll give me to support myself is $18 a month. Out of that I buy my smokes and that is about all. He has never clothed me, and not one of the children; my sister keeps my two youngest in clothes.

He has even had the family allowance cheque put in his name. Says that the money he earns is all his; I don't earn any of it.

Yet I am the one that does house. What are my rights? Fed Up

Dear Fed Up: Your rights? You share whatever your husband has. He has made up a rule about earning and owning the money, and you have let him get away with it. He is living in a distant past — the past of the lord-and-master fiction; and getting away with it.

Are you sharing the children with him? Does he play with them? Have you unwittingly cut him off from home interests and responsibilities?

Better talk with a third party; a professional person who can help you look at what you are doing, what he is doing; and how you can begin making your marriage into an equal partnership.

Dear Doris: You are barred by fiscal dollars and cents for not mentioning Scottish birth certificates, when you were dealing with the subject. The address to send it to is Registrar General, New Edinburgh House, Edinburgh 1, enclose a money order of the equivalent of 73 pence. Sugar, honey, — Aunt Bill

Dear Scotty: I realized we had left Scotland out after the item had gone to press. Our Scottish friends will be glad to have this information.

Doris welcomes your comments and ideas. Write to her, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for private reply.

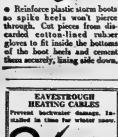
Mirror of Your Mind
by JOHN CONWELL

Is it cowardly not to fight back?

NO, not even if two dippolents are nearly equal in size, strength, age, etc. Sometimes, when young people have an angry confrontation, they will get into a fight before realizing what they've gotten themselves in remiring their differences with physical forces. Older, more mature adults, though, should be able to derive greater satisfaction in settling disagreements by means of the intellect once that distinguishes man from brute.

Can a child love negligent parents?

YES; even if a child's parents supply only the barest necessities for survival, they are the only means of support the youngster knows. A son, for instance, will try to win their approval somehow, by working hard at school, for example, or by helping around the house. Of course, the emotional problems are almost sure to set in when the child's defenses break down—the desires that shield him from the truth that his parents reject him.



Must a couple have the same ideals?

YES—as far as the goals a husband and wife want for each other. This does not mean they have to see eye-to-eye on every issue that comes up. They need just as well have opposing political views, sociological theories, etc. The saving grace in such a marriage is their love. This is the vital element that enables couples to have totally different interests in some areas yet encourages them to stress those ideals they have in common.

New Costumes

QUEBEC (CP) — The 15 young women acting as hostesses at this year's Quebec Provincial Exhibition are sporting bright new costumes. Attired in red pant suits topped with white bowler hats edged with red, the girls don red-and-white belted raincoats when bad weather strikes. The costumes and hats were all designed and manufactured locally.

Matte Jersey A Favorite for Fall

NEW YORK (CP) — Fabrics play an important role in this fall's fashion with matte jersey the favorite. It's also chosen, classy feminine qualities typify fall of 1972 and it has both daytime and evening life.

For daytime, matte jersey appeared in a luxe-length burgundy dress with a wide self-knot belt by John Anthony, one of the class-cut classic styles that won him a recent Coty Fashion Award. He also showed a number of matte jersey cards, a favorite with him, to be worn with shawl or cape.

For evening, matte jersey was equally effective in the Malcolm Starr collection. One handsome topaz style included both a plunge neckline and the new deep dolman sleeves. Another evening concept by Nat Kaplan was the marriage of matte jersey skirts, both knee and floor lengths, with metallic brocade bodices.

Matte jersey, of course, means Jersey with a dull finish. Traditionally jersey is a flat knitted wool fabric, usually made on circular machines and has the comfortable and stretch. It can be knitted in a variety of weights and patterns. With the advent of man-made fabrics there's now also synthetic jersey.

Jersey gets its name from the Channel island. Its fishermen wore knitted pullovers and caps. Jersey stepped into high society some 90 years ago when actress Lillie Langtry wore the first jersey dress to the races at Longchamps in Paris.

She was born on Jersey and decided to use Jersey. But being Lillie Langtry she had the famous couturier, Worth of Paris, make the gown. Its description sounds much like fall. 1972: "A deep blue pleated, skirt united to a tight-fitting bodice with a red sash." Lillie and the dress were a sensation.

Lillie, of course, set many styles. She was the darling of the era. Kings and princes squabbled to be her escort. She owned a white yacht larger than that of the King of England, ran a racing stable and owned a fantastic collection of jewels. Obviously anything that the Jersey Lily introduced found immediate acceptance. So jersey came full blown into the fashion world.

Naturally there were seasons when jersey wasn't popular. But every decade it seems to have emerged again as a favorite. In 1941, for example, the interest in new draped styles brought its return. In the spring of 1957 wool jersey was back in a big way, especially for cocktails. By the fall it emerged as the popular cost and silk fabric. Again in 1963 jersey was important. Now for fall, 1972, is back where Lillie Langtry started it, at the top.

Incidentally, home sewers must take extra care with wool or rayon jersey. It's stretchable. So use extra pins, every inch or so, when pining the pattern on, to make cutting accurate. Use sharp pins so as not to pull the fabric. Use straight seam binding on any bias seams. Pin a strip of thin paper to the fabric before using the sewing machine. This helps avoid stretching or puckering. The paper can be torn away after the seam is stitched.

Other fall styles in wool jersey include Geoffrey Beene's blue coat-dress and Adele Simpson's a three-back black dress with its own jacket, black fox collared and cuffed.

Women Writers Wanted

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto's newest publishing house has an open-door policy for aspiring writers.

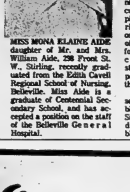
Anyone can walk in with a manuscript—providing they're Canadian, and female.

Talent helps, too.

"We're trying to encourage Canadian women to write," says Sandra Foster, "but we won't publish them just because they're women."

One of the founders of the Canadian Women's Education Press, she says the venture "will only publish good material, but if people submit something to us that isn't up to our standards, we try to give them creative criticism."

The publishing house was started last February by a group of women who call themselves a "Women's Liberation collective."



Its staff now numbers 18, half of them volunteers and half paid by a Local Initiatives Program grant, first obtained last winter and then extended until the end of September.

The group's first book has just rolled off the presses. Its called Women Unite!, and is an anthology of articles on the women's movement in Canada.

Members of the collective say it grew out of the lack of strictly Canadian material available for women's studies courses in schools and colleges in Canada.

The collective's first book covers most elements of concern to the women's movement in Canada.

Included are articles on the history of the movement in Canada, co-operative day-care centres, abortion laws, the status of women, working women, and sexual myths.

MISS MONA ELAINE AIDE daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Aide, 298 Front St., W., Stirling, recently graduated from the Edith Cavell Regional School of Nursing, Belleville. Miss Aide is a graduate of Centennial Secondary School, and has accepted a position on the staff of the Belleville General Hospital.

Broadcasting Policies Costly But Necessary Says Juneau

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's broadcasting policies have created a costly system, Pierre Juneau told an international symposium on cultural and linguistic diversity Tuesday. But it is a necessary means of coping with "a social reality with which broadcasting s y s tems must deal."

Mr. Juneau, chairman of the C a n a d i a n Radio-Television Commission, was elaborating on a paper he had prepared for the symposium, attended by more than 25 government and academic experts from 25 countries.

"Even in very wealthy countries, there are very few systems like this," he said, pointing out that Canada has a high number of available broadcasting outlets per capita in comparison in most developed countries.

"In Canada, the effects of the electronic media pull in the directions of both homogenization and fragmentation. The problem for the executors of national broadcast policy is to steer a course between both forces.

"The culturally heterogeneous state is almost an aberrant form. . . . Cultural heterogeneity may be a desirable reality, not a cross to be borne bitterly. Individuals and cultures mature in the process of challenge-and-response with other cultures.

"Canada as a basic principle has chosen a bilingual system of broadcasting and one that makes room available to all majority cultures possible.

"The idea is that each group should make a concrete cultural contribution to the national broadcasting system, so that all groups may benefit from the encounter. But the success of a society in achieving this goal will be as much a measure of its will and imagination as of the technologies at its command."

Mr. Juneau directed many of his remarks toward a statement by Dr. Y. V. L. Rao, communications specialist from Singapore, who said fostering and encouraging diversity within a country was a luxury poorer countries could not afford as it would impede development.

The CBTC chairman agreed that "African and Asian nations have to maintain their particular identities because they have the same complexities that we have."

"On the other hand if they don't develop a dialogue with the rest of the world, then it is very bad for their own culture."

Women Said Near Slaves

OTTAWA (CP) — Jamaican women are being used as near-indentured servants, a provincial government report indicated Tuesday.

The women, the report says, are lured to Canada by glowing descriptions . . . produced by Jamaican agencies and find themselves employed as domestics working long hours for pay far lower than they were told to expect.

The situation was revealed by two Ottawa university students working for the ministry of community and social services this summer.

They found that some of the women were told they owed five years work to their employers, who had paid part of their transportation costs from the West Indies.

The students discovered the situation when they sent out letters offering assistance to new arrivals in Canada.

Man Hit by Shotgun Blast

NORTH VANCOUVER (CP) — A convicted drug trafficker whose wife lost both legs in an underworld bombing in 1976, Tuesday had his legs shattered by a shotgun blast.

Boyd said they believe a man who stepped out of the shadows and shot Dallas Boyd, 41, at point-blank range in the underground parking lot of an apartment block was a hired gunman.

Boyd, they said, was the suspected intended victim of a car bombing at Boyd's home Feb. 21, 1976.

Instead, his wife Jeanette was the one who started up the family car that day, touching off a dynamite bomb taped under the hood. Both her legs were amputated. Boyd was not in the car.

Boyd was taken to the same North Vancouver hospital about 4 a.m. Tuesday after he had bobbed and crawled up a flight of stairs from the underground parking lot and aroused the apartment's black manager.

Police said after Boyd had undergone extensive surgery that he likely would keep his legs, but had suffered "extreme damage to both knees."

The shooting occurred seconds after Boyd had parked his car and was walking towards his suite on the first floor.

The gunman stepped out of a shadow area and at a range of about seven feet fired one blast from a single-barrelled shotgun.

The gun was found later a short distance from the apartment block where it had either been discarded or dropped accidentally.

Police said Sgt. was significant that Boyd was shot in the legs and not murdered.

"It was, in effect, a face-to-face confrontation and all the gunman had to do was to raise the barrel of the shotgun a little bit and Boyd would have been a dead man," said one police officer.

Boyd has admitted convictions for drug trafficking, drug possession and car theft dating back to 1956. But he says he has had no contact with the underground since 1973.

His condition Tuesday night was listed as satisfactory.

Boyd and his wife have been separated for several months, police said.

Pacific Rim Station Opened

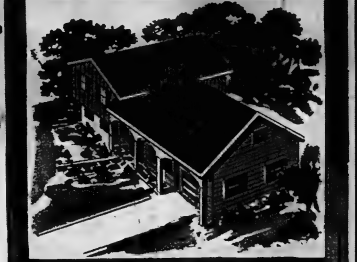
LAKE COWICHAN, B.C. (CP) — Canada's first Pacific coast domestic earth station was opened six miles south of here Tuesday by federal Communications minister Robert Stanbury.

The station, on an 83-acre site, will transmit through a concave dish 100 feet in diameter. It will relay color television and some 2,500 telephone channels to Pacific Rim countries.

Initially, the Lake Cowichan station will be working directly with others in Australia, Hong Kong, Japan and the Philippines. Early next year service will be extended to New Zealand and China.

After opening the station, Mr. Stanbury activated a switch which projected a film from Canberra, Australia, and while recuperating at her home in Darby, Vt., from a case of pleurisy.

Author Better



BURLINGTON, Vt. (AP) — Author Pearl Buck was reported in improved condition Tuesday by physicians at Vermont Medical Center. Miss Buck, 80, was admitted to the hospital Sunday after she developed abdominal discomfort while recuperating at her home in Darby, Vt., from a case of pleurisy.

MEMO FROM HELEN GAGEN

STILL TIME TO STORE FOR WINTER USE

This summer's poor weather has cut production of many backyard-grown vegetables. The smaller harvest is reflected in higher prices now, and importers say their vegetable prices will increase still more next winter.

If you have the facilities, you will be wise to freeze some autumn vegetables at their peak and can tomatoes, and pickle beets, for cold weather use.

Those who have suitable cool, dark storage space should also put in a supply of potatoes, onions, cabbage and turnips, in preserve style.

My bulletin this week at your Miracle Food Mart Information Desk gives some freezing hints, and a recipe for pickled beets.

Stanfield Skyhopping Through the North

DAWSON CREEK, B.C. (CP) — Robert Stanfield met stiff cheering, shouting, placard-waving and a dog named Trudeau Tuesday in a varied day that saw him fly almost 800 miles to speak in support of one candidate.

The Conservative leader spoke on a radio program, conducted a brief interview, addressed his first meeting of university students in the federal election campaign and mainstreeted in three sections of Vancouver.

After that he flew, first in his chartered jet and then in an elderly DC3 propeller aircraft, to this northern city of 18,000 to speak in support of Charles Oberle whom Conservatives say has a good chance of capturing the Prince George-Peace River seat from the Liberals.

"I'd fly twice that far to win a seat," a Conservative said as Mr. Stanfield continued to campaign hard to gain representation in a province that had no Conservative MPs in the last Parliament.

Mr. Stanfield returned to Vancouver Tuesday night and was to leave for the Fraser Valley to speak in support of other Conservative candidates officials have hope for.

The crew of the Conservatives' Air Canada chartered jet said that since the start of the campaign Sept. 30 the plane has flown about 25,000 miles in 50 hours of flying time. It has been out of action only 45 minutes.

During a morning open-line radio show Mr. Stanfield was needled by one listener over the fact that a family concert in Nova Scotia received government incentive grants.

At the University of B.C. he was greeted by students who demanded his reaction to such things as laws affecting homosexuals and abortion and his attitude toward the Vietnam war and the supplying of Canadian armaments to the U.S. armed services.

While mainstreeting in the Vancouver South and Vancouver Centre constituencies, a small child gave him a large red heart-shaped lollypop and he met a poodle named Trudeau. It bears the registered name of Pierre Elliott Trudeau "Nice dog," said Mr. Stanfield to the owner.

At Dawson Creek he told about 800 persons who filled a school auditorium that there should be joint Canadian-American negotiations aimed at improving the Alaska Highway which starts here, but he did not mention paving the gravel highway.

Wherever Mr. Stanfield spoke he reiterated his demand that the government say how much of a deficit is being run up by the unemployment insurance system.

Prime Minister Trudeau told in Medicine Hat, Alta., meanwhile, that the system has a deficit of several hundred million.

On the open-line show, Mr. Stanfield was told by one listener that while he criticized the government's spending tradition of incentive grants his party — Conservative Industries Ltd.—had received a grant.

Mr. Stanfield said he had nothing to do with the operation of the firm and that he presumed that the grant had resulted in expansion and thus more jobs. Conservative officials said later that the firm in question, N.S., was founded by Mr. Stanfield's grandfather, was left to his father, and now is operated by a brother and a nephew.

Mr. Stanfield had parcels used some shares in the company but had nothing to do with its operations.

Mr. Stanfield in an interview with reporters called for more details from the government on discussions with West Germany about a proposal for the shipping and processing of ore from Baffin Island.

Touching on a strong local issue, he said the Conservative government would do all it could to stop giant American carrying Alaska's tankers from using the Strait of Juan de Fuca, but admitted he wasn't sure anything could be done.

At the University of B.C. Mr. Stanfield declared that the Vietnam war was a U.S., not a Canadian, election issue.

He said a Conservative government would permit research in universities for the Canadian armed services.

Edible Oil Report Incomplete

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal health department is studying effects on health of partially edible oils used in margarines, salad dressings and other oil-based products, but final results are not yet available, Dr. Keith Murray, chief of the nutrition research division, said Tuesday.

He was commenting on a report that the health protection branch is considering imposing a limit on the amount of margarine used in margarine-making.

Dr. Murray said the research division has been conducting experiments "for a year or more" and that the program has included tests on digestibility of marine oils as well as vegetable oils such as rapeseed and soybean.

The program is part of a series of research projects being carried out in government departments or through research grants, to determine the effects of fatty acids on health, especially on blood vessels and heart disease, he said.

Research has linked heart lesions with the amount of hydrogenated oils used. Experiments have shown that fat infiltrates the heart muscles of rats when they are fed on a diet high in hydrogenated oils.

PASSAGE TO AMERICA — Terry Coleman

This is the story of more than two million men, women and children who left England and Ireland to go to North America in 1846-55, which were by far the busiest years of British emigration in the nineteenth century. Why did they go, and what did they leave for? The difficulties of the long voyage and the adventures encountered after they arrived in New York, Montreal or Quebec, makes fascinating reading.

THE ENCYCLOPEDIA OF CANVAS EMBROIDERY STITCH PATTERNS — Katherine Ivrys

Most books on embroidery contain some stitch patterns, a chapter on color and design, some directions for make-up, etc., but nothing quite complete. This book covers one phase of embroidery only and does it thoroughly. It contains almost all known stitch patterns for canvas embroidery and is an invaluable help to needleworkers in all stages of the craft. The beginner can easily follow the directions and will be able to use the most intricate patterns, whilst the more advanced worker who has mastered the basic stitches and wants new patterns with more variety will also find plenty of interest.

FISH IN THE LAKE — Frances FKegerald

The title of this book "Fire in the Lake" comes from the I Ching, the Chinese book of changes, and it is the image of revolution. A great deal has been written about American involvement in Vietnam, and in Frances FKegerald's book we see how the Americans utterly misinterpreted the realities of the country, how they and the Vietnamese failed to understand each other's acts and motives. It ends with a powerful account of this "downward spiral" into a tragic tangle of political deception and human misery.

THE SECRET ARMY, THE IRA, 1916-1974 — J. Bower Bell

Mr. Bell spent more than two years doing on-the-spot research in Ireland and interviewed scores of IRA participants. As a result, his book is a vivid picture of the many tragic and foolhardy escapes of the IRA and a vital chronicle of its growth and development. The struggle for an Irish Republic has a history of almost two centuries and the IRA itself is over 35 years old. Time and again its means have proved inadequate, its opponents too strong, yet it has endured.

THE THOROUGHBRED — E. S. Montgomery

The Thoroughbred is planned as a text for the student or horseman to study and as a handbook to be used as a stepping stone to learning about the thoroughbred. In the past five decades the horse has been forced off the farm and replaced by cars, trains and airplanes. This book is a complete reference book on the breeding, foaling and rearing of the thoroughbred.

HOW TO AVOID BEGINNER'S MISTAKES IN SELLING REAL ESTATE — Tim Kirk

This is a book for the real estate salesman or woman — starting out in the business and who wants to move up quickly to greater success and a higher income. Some of the invaluable pointers Mr. Kirk gives to make you a top money-earner — how to make the telephone a positive selling partner — how to sell a house upon inspection — now and where to locate customers that are definite buyers and are just waiting to be approached by a salesman—and many many more selling techniques.

ANAF News

The Alec Adams night was a great success when one of the biggest crowds in a long time enjoyed the comfort of the Tartan Lounge, the songs and MC-ing of the inimitable Bill Salter and the augmented orchestra of Cam Walsh with his toe tickling music. Old Propaganda Pete rolled in about ten o'clock and he MC spotted him. Someone had informed Bill that it was his wedding anniversary and, you guessed it. He immediately called on the orchestra to play the Anniversary waltz and got Edna and Art up to dance it in solitary splendor and finished up with Let Me Call You Sweetheart in which everyone joined in the dance and sang the refrain in the happy couple. It was a great evening and thoroughly enjoyed by all.

At the general meeting on Thursday Oct 12, commencing at 1:30 p.m. before the social meeting starts, there will be the initiation of new members and the presentation of some 25-year pins.This will be followed by short talks on their overseas experience on their exchange visits with Hungary and Japan by those two fine air cadets, Lt. Hammond and K. Watson. It should be an interesting session and a good turnout is expected.

A team of Unit 281 golfers participated in the last Provincial tournament. They were up against some tough competition but succeeded in winning third place. A notice has been placed near the new trophy cabinet and, if you are interested it would be appreciated if you would sign the sheet. It is hoped to get started this coming Wednesday, to line up a schedule.

Next Saturday it is hoped to get the afternoon darts started again and also the opening of Mr. and Mrs. darts tournament. Remember the date, Oct. 7.

Gloomy, overcast skies with the threat of more rain accompanied by a chilly wind set the general public appreciated the splendid sacred concert played by the RCSCC Quinte while the RCMP Guard of Honor at the seating accomodation and provisions, 8th Squadron, half about thirty all ranks that paraded with the veterans and auxiliary members behind the combined color party and the Duke of Edinburgh Unit 281 Pipe band. The Unit Padre, Cyril Betts, gave the service and remarked that though we were there in remembrance of our departed comrades, the widows and families of these comrades needed the help and assistance to, in some measure, compensate for their tragic loss of their dear one and his support.Lt(N) Pay. Ian Rollies laid the wreath escorted by Legion President Harold Vaughan and unit 26 president Henry Ford while the RCSCC Quinte Band and the Unit Pipe Band played the last Post, Lament and Reveille.

Canada Squares Series With Soviets, Page 20

Howard and Robert Printing second baseman Rusty Garvin covers first in time to retire Rollins' Al Ferguson on a sacrifice bunt attempt. The Printers rebounded from a 4-0 deficit last night to edge Rollins in the first win of the Commercial Softball League finals. The Constructionmen hold a 3-1 lead in the series which resumes Thursday.

Rollins Fumble Title Chance

By ERIC EMERSON
Staff Sportswriter

A funny thing happened to Rollins Construction on their way to the Commercial Softball League championship.

At least it was funny if you weren't one of the 75 fans who paid their way into Alemite Field last night. They were subjected to a boring, choppy, uninspired softball performance.

Howard and Robert Printing may have had their minds on their upcoming OASA semi-final series, or the fact that they'd been beaten three straight times by Rollins in this best - of - seven series. Whatever the reason, they played most of the game as though a Rollins' win was predetermined.

The Constructionmen managed to re-vamp this line of thinking, however. They bested the ball five times in two innings, blowing a 4-0 lead and eventually winding up on the losing end of a 5-4 decision.

The winning run, fittingly enough, came without the benefit of a single base hit. Gary Geyer opened the bottom of the eighth by reaching second on a two-base throwing error by Dale Duvall. Geyer was followed by a walk to Moe Hunter.

Rusty Garvin's routine grounder to short appeared to be the first out, but base umpire Moe Huddleston ruled that first baseman Al Ferguson had taken his foot off the bag too soon. Despite Rollins' vigorous protests the decision held, leaving the bases loaded with none out.

Ken DeMille struck out Bob Ebbier for the first out, but Ken Genereaux executed a sacrifice fly to left, scoring Geyer with the winning run.

The Printers had tied the game 4-4 in the seventh. An error and two walks loaded the bases for Dwight Rathwell, who singled sharply to left. Outfielder Dave Adams, who came into the game in the sixth when Rollins substituted for their entire starting outfield, had the ball bounce past him for a two-base error. Rathwell wound up on third, subsequently scoring on an error by Duvall.

Rollins had opened the scoring in the first, when Duvall tripled following Carl Boomhower and scored on Lloyd Rollins' single. Rollins themselves threw to third to nail Duvall trying to stretch the hit into a double.

Their other pair of runs came in the third, when Steve Lisg tripled and scored on Ken Genereaux's double before Ralph Plane poled a homer to deep right field

Henderson's Goal Evens Series

MOSCOW (CP) — Paul Henderson, bouncing off a Russian defenceman in the dying moments of the game, has turned the Canada-Russia hockey series into a sudden-death affair.

His goal, which came with dramatic suddenness, gave Team Canada a 4-3 victory Tuesday night to tie the series at three games each with one tied. The final will be played Thursday night.

Coach Harry Sinden said later: "It forced an eighth game, which might just well be the most exciting game of hockey ever played."

And coach Vsevolod Bobrov capped one of his own players:

"Our defence played well, but (Gennady) Tsygankov cost us the winning goal."

Pill Esposito scored two for Canada with Rod Gilbert and Henderson getting the others. Alexander Yakushev scored two for Russia, Vladimir Petrov getting the other.

The teams were tied 2-2 at the end of the first period and there was no scoring in a somewhat slow second period.

Esposito opened the scoring when Ron Ellis and Brad Park dug the puck out of the corner to the left of goalie Vladislav Tretiak and fed the big Boston Bruins centre right in front of the goal.

Park was the goal on the first Russian goal. Vladimir Shadrin fed a lead pass to Yakushev at the blue line and Park fell while turning, allowing the Russian to go right in on Tony Esposito and put the puck between his pads.

hooking but announced at conference, when Vladimir Vikulov had the puck deflected onto his stick off Park's skate and fed Petrov who went in alone on Esposito, drew him and flipped the puck high into the open corner.

Just over a minute later and with less than three minutes to play in the period, Jean-Paul Parise and Serge Savard set up Esposito's second goal in the game.

Savard, playing with a cracked bone in one ankle, dug the puck out of the corner and fed Parise at the blueline. Parise passed weakly ahead to Esposito — standing between him and Tretiak directly in front of the net—and Esposito fired through a maze of legs.

With little more than a minute to go, Tony Esposito was felled by a hard shot that caught him under the chin. He went to the bench for minor repairs and returned.

During the scoreless second period, seven penalties were called and at one time T e a m Canada was playing three men to Russia's four.

The third period was little more than two minutes old when Dennis Hull and Jean Ratelle worked the puck out of the corners, sending it sliding behind the net to Gilbert. Gilbert swung the puck in front of Tretiak as the Russians were caught in the corner, and tucked a backhand behind the goalie.

About 30 seconds later, Gary Bergman was caught holding on Yakushev and with 11 seconds left in his penalty, Yakushev scored the Russians' second power-play goal of the night.

The third period was fast but, when asked by a Russian newspaper man why it was so rough, Sinden replied:

"It wasn't rough by our standards."

Referees Ivo Dalberg of Sweden and Rudy Batja of Czechoslovakia had their hands full preventing a full-scale fight, however, when Boris Mikhailov, who had tangled with two other Canadians previously, kicked Bergman behind the Canadian net and the teams paired off with gloves off. Mikhailov and Bergman drew roughing majors.

The Henderson goal came off a scrambly play and the Russians became disorganized. With 1:21 left in the game, Ellis relied Tretiak with a shot that appeared to hit the Russian goalie in the face. Tretiak took off the injury and continued in the net.

Sinden said the refereeing of Dalberg and Batja was better than had been experienced in Canada's games, with 3-2 by Canada.

"But we're still having difficulties understanding the interpretations of the rules in international hockey," he said.

Bobrov agrees that "the referees did make certain errors during the games."

"It was a hard game to officiate," he said.

It was announced that Dalberg and Batja would officiate the final game Thursday. In the normal rotation, Josef Kompalla and Franz Baader of West Germany would have worked.

Sinden said agreement had been reached between the two teams so that the West Germans—whom he had called "incompetent" after the Sunday game—would not appear.

"We had to promise not to bump against or otherwise manhandle the officials in the game," said Gary Bergman had to promise not to shoot at Sobrov any more," Sinden said.

"I didn't call him anything I don't call other coaches," Bergman said.

Thursday Game Settles Series

MOSCOW (CP) — "This has forced an eighth game—which might well be the most exciting game of hockey ever played."

That was Harry Sinden's assessment moments after his Team Canada collection of National Hockey League stars had defeated Russia 4-3 Tuesday in a scrambly game.

The victory put Canada—2-1 one time down 3-1 in games—even with the Soviet Union at 3-3 with one game tied, setting up Thursday's encounter as a sudden-death affair.

In the normal course of rotation of officials, Tuesday night's game was handled by Uve Dalberg of Sweden and Rudy Batja of Czechoslovakia. Sinden said: "The officiating was better than (in the) last game."

HARRY SINDEN

After Sunday's contest, won 3-2 by Canada, Sinden complained that the West Germans who refereed the match were "incompetent" and said he would try to see they did not work another.

Tuesday night it was announced that "by an agreement worked out between the two clubs," Dalberg and Batja would work the final game also.

"While they were better than the officials on Sunday, we're still having difficulty understanding the rules interpretations in international hockey," Sinden said.

Vaseleid Bobrov, the Russian coach, said: "The referees did make certain errors during the game but it was a hard game to officiate."

But Bobrov laid the loss directly on one of his own players.

"Our defence played well," he said "but Gennady Tsygankow cost us the winning goal."

They appeared him out but the puck shot between them.

Henderson went to his left, around Tsygankov, picked up the puck right in the slot and shoved it between the skates of a surprised Vladislav Tretiak.

The hitting was heavy on both sides and the Russians' smooth-skating, pattern passing game suffered as a result.

Aked by a Russian to explain the dirty play in the third period, Sinden replied:

"I can't explain the dirty play of your No. 11 (Boris Mihailov). I just don't understand it."

Sinden said the Canadians had to make two main concessions to get the Russians to agree on Dalberg and Batja for next game.

"We had to promise not to bump up against or otherwise manhandle the officials in the tunnel—and Gary Bergman had to promise not to shout at Bobrov any more."

Bergman was surprised at the condition involving him.

"I didn't call him anything I don' call other coaches," he said.

British Heavy Pencils Dates

LONDON (AP) — With sweat still dripping from his brow after his knockout fight heavyweight title defence Tuesday night against Chris Finnegan of England, champion Bob Foster pencilled in his next two dates which could be in the same ring.

The first, yet to be finalized will be against Muhammad Ali over 15 rounds in November. The second will be a return against the left-handed Finnegan, "who gave me my hardest title fight ever," as Foster admitted later in his dressing room.

London promoter Jarvis Astaire was confident Tuesday of getting the fight with Ali for the same Wembley ring, with satellite television screening for the United States.

Foster, 33, had a hard fight for his $360,000 purse against the 28-year-old British, Commonwealth and European champion.

"He was tough, brave, and a good boxer, and a left-hander as well," said a weary Foster. "He went 14 tough rounds with me, and that's gotta be the best.

"I forecast he would drop to five rounds, and nine rounds is a long way to be wrong."

Finnegan had been given little chance against the hard-hitting champion, making the 11th defence of his title.

"But he hurt me with a shot to the body," said Foster. "I felt something in me as a left-hander. I'm glad he couldn't punch as hard as I can punch."

Foster, spurred by angry words from his seconds, connected with the payoff punch, a right to the 14th round.

It sent Finnegan onto the bottom rope and he was still out when his seconds took him to his corner.

"I wasn't hurt," he said later, "just knocked clean cold."

Said Foster: "I sure am going to try for more money when I meet him again. You betcha there's gotta be another fight."

"I'm ready when he's ready," said Finnegan. "Shall we make it tomorrow?"

Cahill Leaving?

MONTREAL (CP) — Television station CFCF-TV said Tuesday night head coach Leo Cahill of Toronto Argonauts will be replaced shortly despite recent assurances from the Toronto management to the contrary.

The station said that it had learned from reliable sources that Cahill, whose Canadian Football League Argos have only one win in nine starts this season, will be replaced within the next two weeks by Bob Ward, former Montreal Alouette defensive coach.

The report said the Argos are negotiating with Ward, who was with Ottawa Rough Riders as an assistant before joining the Alouettes for their 1970 Grey Cup performance.

Ferguson Living Up to Early Maple Leaf Expectations

By Frank Tarsitano of The Intelligencer

TORONTO Toronto Maple Leafs approach the start of the 1972-73 hockey season with great expectations for coach George Ferguson.

The 39-year-old Trenton native showed well in the first week of training camp including an impressive performance in pre - season action against Chicago Black Hawks.

But the six-foot centreman would only allow that his play to date is the minimum that she has been "all right, I guess."

Ferguson centres a line with rookie Randy Osburn and Dick Kehoe. The trio represents Leafs' first two draft choices this year and last year's first pick.

The jump from Junior A to the National Hockey League will be difficult but not all that new to Ferguson. He compares it to moving from Midget hockey to the Junior A ranks as he did three years ago when he left Trenton to play with Oshawa Generals.

"The style of play is there here. You have to check a little more, and it's a little harder to score points," said Ferguson.

He was able, however, to muster three points in Leafs' first two exhibitions. Against Chicago he blocked a drive from the Toronto blueline and skated in to drill a 30-foot shot past goalie Gary Smith. Earlier in the game Ferguson assisted on Osburn's first goal as a Leaf.

One night before Ferguson scored the winning goal against Philadelphia when he beat Bob Taylor on a screened shot.

Playing professional hockey has been Ferguson's biggest ambition since he was 10 years old. However he says he has only taken the game seriously for the past two seasons which he spent as a Toronto Marlboro.

GEORGE FERGUSON

"When I came from Oshawa, it was an entirely different organization. Oshawa was having losing teams at the time while the Marlboros he scored 36 goals and had 38 assists. The Leafs made him their number one choice in the amateur draft last June.

Arriving on the scene at the same time was the World Hockey Association. Ottawa Nationals drafted Ferguson and pursued him while they attempted to bustle veteran centre Dave Keon away from the Leafs.

A few weeks after Marlboros were eliminated from the Junior A. playoffs by Peterborough, Ferguson was in contract with Allan Eagleson, executive director of National Hockey League Players Association, who negotiated the offers of Ottawa and Toronto.

"He's a great guy," says Ferguson. "He does a heck of a job."

The job Eagleson did for Ferguson was estimated to be worth $125,000 for the rookie. He reportedly received a $50,000 bonus and a contract worth $65,000 for two years.

"Ottawa was offering me quite a bit more money than Toronto was. But I didn't really want to go to the WHA," he said.

Ferguson is the highest paid first year player in Leafs' history but the team management feel he can live up to his back account. Eastern Canada scout John Brenner praises him highly.

"He's good on faceoffs, he's a good penalty killer, and he has a great shot. He's got it all. Sometimes he wants to pace himself and you have to keep after him to forecheck. But when he scores a goal, he really starts to go," says Brewer.

The former Leafs' goalie adds, "He's a good fighter, too. I've seen him in a few battles. He can really handle himself."

When the NHL season opens next week Ferguson will probably play with the Leafs. Many rookies serve some time with Tulsa of the Central League but Ferguson seems to fit in well enough to stay with Toronto.

"I would be disappointed if I was sent down," he said. "I feel I would be letting myself down."

He admits he has a bit to learn and improve on. Faster skating and better checking are the centreman's two objectives in training camp. He hopes to develop these assets through practice and keeping his eye on the Leaf veterans.

"They all help you a lot. You can learn from just watching guys like Keon and Ullman," he says.

Printers Surprise

The city softball team that many observers wouldn't have picked to go far in Ontario Amateur Softball Association playdowns begins semi-final activity this weekend.

If a third and deciding game is necessary, it will immediately follow Sunday's scheduled 6 p.m. Alemite tilt.

Crookston Wins

Top Woman Comedy Writer In $100,000-A-Year Bracket

NEW YORK (AP) — When other girls went out on dates their mothers told them to behave. Or to home by 11. Gail Parent's mother always said: "Now don't be so funny."

But funny she remained, so much so that at 33 she is in the $100,000-a-year bracket as a comedy writer. And her mother's worst fears were not confirmed: Gail got married a week after she graduated from New York University.

For five years, Gail has been a major writer with the Carol Burnett TV show. She is the only woman with a top comedy writing job in Hollywood.

Gail has also written four TV specials, for The Move of The Week. She's done a movie, is working on a Broadway play and has written a book, Sheila Levine Is Dead and Living in New York. The book, a comic fantasy based on best-seller list, is the story of a New York girl's desperate attempts to get married.

How do you become a comedy writer?

"Nobody starts out to become comedy writers," said Gail. "I just hoped I would get married in college so I wouldn't have to worry about what I was going to do.

In high school she had memorized every skit of Nichols and May, then a popular comedy team. "Other kids had rock idols, I had Nichols and May." In college, she cast Shaw, also a devout Nichols and May fan. Gail and Shaw began improving their own skits.

They started selling one-liners to Vaughn Meader, the comic who did The First Family albums during the Kennedy administration. They soon earn $30 a week skits they sold to a New York nightclub.

They studied apartment buildings where young couples seem lived, offering them material.

They even did a television show, writing the skit, hiring the comic . . . and disappearing.

Their big break came with the album satirizing the wedding of Lucy Baines Johnson, President Johnson's daughter. Carol Burnett's husband, who is the executive producer of the show, heard it and hired them.

Gail and her husband, Lair Parent, moved to Hollywood where they live with their two sons, aged three and eight.

Her husband was one of her former teachers at NYU and now is directing TV films for the University of California.

How does he react to having a comic around the house?

"Wonderful!" she said. "He only gets upset when one of the children does something that requires discipline. I see something funny in it and laugh instead."

She said she is trying to break herself of the habit of a l ways saying something, usually funny, but sometimes not. She recalls with horror the time a suitor gave her a solitary rose.

"I couldn't just enjoy the moment like most girls do, I looked at it and said, 'Well, that one's nice. Where are the others?' I mean that's the way I am."

Richard Boone's A Location Man

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — After a seven-year absence, Richard Boone is back on television, as uncompromising as ever in his judgment of the ethics of the networks, the ratings and the frustrations of making a western on a backlot.

"I don't even like being here," said Boone, who has now taken up residence in St. Augustine, Fla., after several years in Hawaii. "There are so many nice places in the world."

Boone sat in his dressing room-office at Universal Studios. His dark brown hair was almost to his shoulders and his grey sweatsuit was almost his chin for his role in Hec Ramsey on NB's Sunday Mystery Movie.

"If we go beyond the current commitments, whatever is made after that will be made away from the studio system," he said. Boone is committed to four 90-minute shows and the two-hour movie that kicks the series off Sunday, Oct. 8.

First on his schedule after Hec Ramsey, however, is an American western to be filmed entirely in Israel. It will be his eighth trip to Israel, where he previously made the movie Madron.

Boone has always preferred location shooting.

"The backlot is an indescribable mess," he said. "Visually, it looks fine.

"But creatively, you can't work there. You're playing a scene and a pint-and-a-half has arrived up 15 feet away and a pilot, on a headphone says, 'There they are ladies and gentlemen, acting just for you.' And you're trying to concentrate on a scene."

Boone said if the show is successful, future episodes will be made in Tucson or Santa Fe.

That success, of course, depends on the ratings—a subject that brings Boone to the boiling point. He said his first series, Medic, was put on "for just one reason—to knock Lucille Ball off top notch." It failed to do so and NBC cancelled it after two years.

His next series, Have Gun Will Travel, rode high in the ratings and Boone left it a millionaire in 1963 to put together a repertory company for author-playwright Jim The Richard Boone Show on NBC. It was cancelled after the first year.

He said: "I was bitter about it then and I still am. It was a stupid decision. The show was just beginning to catch on."

In Hec Ramsey Boone plays a gunfighter, who went off to London and Paris to learn scientific crime-fighting. He returns around 1900 as a deputy chief of police in a midwestern town.

McGovern Claims Biased Reporting

NEW YORK (AP) — It's been slightly less than three years since Vice-President Spiro Agnew's accusation that many network television reporters were biased against President Nixon.

On a special edition of NBC Reports Tuesday night, it appeared that the question was not if bias existed but to what degree of fairness in this presidential election year.

This time the gripes didn't come from Agnew or another administration spokesman; they came from Frank Mankiewicz, chief strategist for Senator George McGovern's campaign.

Mankiewicz claimed that television coverage of the South Dakota Democrat had been unfair by being, among other things, overly anxious to get administration reaction to McGovern's campaign speeches.

On the same show, a top Nixon aide, William Safire, insisted the media in general "is trying to be straight and fair" in covering the campaign.

Other panelists offered their views, but the mini-debate between Safire and Mankiewicz was the real show.

Their skirmish left the impression that the Republicans, for a change, generally are satisfied with media coverage of the campaign while the Democrats have grown extremely unhappy with the reporting of major newspapers and television networks.

The taped, two-part program was broadcast a day after McGovern charged that the administration has successfully intimidated the television networks in the field of broadcast journalism.

The show's second segment explored the question of whether media treatment of Senator Thomas Eagleton's medical disclosures was fair or whether it unjustly forced Mc Govern to drop him as his running mate.

Eagleton was invited by NBC to appear on the program, but declined the offer. A close friend, former Senator Joseph Tydings, took up the cudgel for him.

Of the four panelists on this segment, the best summaries of opposing views were provided by Tydings and Benjamin C. Bradlee, executive editor of the Washington Post.

Tydings said he thought the week-long coverage of the Eagleton episode produced an unfair result and unjustly "denied the American people the right to vote on the issue."

Said Bradlee: "I think reporters are newspapermen and a first-class job. I think television did a poor job, bordering on bearbaiting. And I think the editorial response . . . was so wide it is generally hard to say whether it was good or bad."

What the Stars Say

By JEANE DIXON

Thursday, Sept. 28

Aries (March 21-April 19): The love you have now is brighter than usual; be helpful in putting it into beautiful use. Other people pose difficulties.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Plenty of surprises for you which have served their function, the realization of outstanding accounts, should characterize your day.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Active early and partner-pleasing personal welfare vigorously — the world is yours to help you today; do as! Calm down in a hurry.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Much of your thinking is on individual that you may have difficulty conveying information, or understanding.

Leo (July 23 - Aug. 22): Temptation is to waste time with friends. Get your work done early to free yourself to more pleasurable pursuits.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): What you may think is secret isn't for long. If you can get an advantage from learning first, take it promptly and go on.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Gather all cautions, seek some common understanding on which to formulate plans. Group goals can be quite discouraging.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Unnoticed help comes in odd or unexpected forms, but make full use of it. Basic conditions have improved somewhat.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Social and business contacts require more than ordinary attention. Somewhat yourself down rather than have others knocked off for you.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): A cautious presentation of your theories and the evidence supporting it wins acceptance. Be careful with all mechanical things.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19): Young people require a great deal of attention. With much to do, you take leadership without question.

Pisces (Feb. 20-March 20): Turn on your friendliest side for all to see. It's time for good relationships to grow, despite general tension. Be confident.

Specialist Needed For Eye Jerking

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Our grandson, 14 months old, has nystagmus. Is there any cure? Would glasses do any good? He has the horizontal jerking of the eyes.

He seems to tilt his head back to one side. Does this make him see better? Is it a handicap? I haven't been able to find much information about nystagmus or do hope you will be able to give me the answers.—G.M.P.

The answers? Too big an order! But one thing is certain: He has an eye defect, or perhaps a combination of eye defects and, yes, it is definitely to be a handicap for the little fellow.

Nystagmus, or rapid movement of the eyes, can occur very early in life — it can develop later in life from a variety of causes.

There are a score of different types of nystagmus. Movement can be from side to side, or up and down, or in a circular motion. There are a variety involving slow movement in one direction, then a rapid movement the other way.

In short, nystagmus is a complicated matter, and I couldn't say yes or no as to whether glasses would help. If there is a refractive error, then glasses, of course, would help. But the nystagmus is due to some other kind of ailment then glasses would not be the answer.

Nystagmus, for another thing, may be associated with amblyopia (poor vision from various causes or another). Whether this accounts for the youngster tilting his head is something I can't answer, except to say that it is a fairly standard way children go in an effort to see better.

I confess this isn't a very satisfactory answer for you, but I don't think it is possible to give information about nystagmus for so many possibilities involved.

The best specific piece of advice which I can give is that this child should be cared for by a fully-qualified eye specialist. His troubles are not the kind which will correct themselves or "go away as he gets older." He needs careful and detailed diagnosis, and whatever appropriate treatment is indicated after the source of his trouble has been determined.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I was in the hospital three years ago and had to have many iron level shots in my buttocks. The shots hurt, and I've a few marble-like deposits beneath the skin which are painful at times. Will they eventually disappear and what really causes them?—H.D.

After three years it is doubtful if they will disappear. They represent scar tissue that occurred because the injected material can sometimes be irritating and cause mild inflammation. They are not harmful however.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 80 years young but sometimes have a slight dizziness and poor balance. Do you consider ecotrin, Geriatrin or Dramamine tablets an advisable treatment—Mrs. C.S.

Maybe. That or other antidizziness medicines may help — but the effectiveness depends on the cause of the dizziness. If you have anemia or some other blood disorder, that's what needs treatment, rather than drugs to treat the symptoms.

Eye and ear disorders should be checked, and treated if possible.

If it is a matter of adjustment of your blood pressure, do not leave the antibody from a lying sitting or standing position.

Not all dizzy spells come from the same cause.

Calgary's Mayor Rod Sykes Is A Tough Verbal Battler

CALGARY (CP) — When Mayor Rod Sykes goes on the warpath nobody is immune from his verbal hatchet. Targets include the federal and provincial governments, the police department and the news media.

He is at his best in contention situations and one of his favorites is taunting the city police.

"I'm not proud of being in the only province in the country without a sales tax," he said. "I think a sales tax is the fairest of all because it only taxes people with money to spend who are actually spending it.

"If it is selective you can be sure that it doesn't affect food or children's clothes or books or drugs . . . things that are necessities of life, so it can in effect, to a degree, be a luxury tax."

The tall, thin 43 - year-old mayor, serving his second term, said: "You are made to be trod on. You can't take a strong stand without treading on toes. I've alienated people—people who thought a Tweed suit is appropriate dress down, rolls over and plays dead when the going gets tough."

He said he backs the average citizen because "I have a special responsibility to the people who can't speak for themselves."

"I will fight for a square deal for a rich man if he's right, but there is no way that I have to bend over backwards to look after him or worry about his interests . . . because he's able to look after them himself."

Mayor Sykes, father of five children, void of other views as fast as questions were asked.

"I don't like politics and I've never made any secret of that. I think it's a dirty business, there have to be better ways to earn a living."

Of the news media, he said:

"Most of the press, the media, I run into, are pretty good people . . . trying to do a tough job. It is a tough job because you're meeting deadlines . . . the average politician that I've seen lies down on his back for the press, he's just so grateful for any kind of publicity or exposure that he can get that he will do anything for them.

"My attitude is very simple: Look, you fellows can criticize me all you like but it isn't a one-way street. If I don't like what you say, right or wrong, I'm going to tell you so the way I always have—to anybody, to your face.

"I think the news media have quite a bill of house-cleaning to do in their own backyard and so I'm trying to remind them of that. And their attitude is that politicians aren't supposed to answer back.

"That's the Mayor Sykes, a mild - looking man behind horn-rimmed glasses, the man who in 1969 auctioned off the mayor's traditional limousine supplied by the city. He now rides in a police car with a police chauffeur.

"I don't like the old Cadillac, white glove image, the limousine bit. I don't mind riding on other people's backs. However, I've been embarrassed a few times when I've had to pick up visitors at the airport because the police often send me dirty cars."

At first he only wanted to run as an alderman in 1969 to shake up the city administration he had often criticized.

"I'd been pretty critical of government, particularly local, as being complacent, lacking leadership. I was also doing a bit of public speaking and encouraging businessmen to quit bitching and do something. Finally, I felt I'd better shut up or do something myself."

In 1969, his main priorities were public housing and an open administration. Both promises have been kept but Mayor Sykes said he wants more improvement along those lines.

He defeated Mayor Jack Leslie, a former city official straight term, during his first campaign. Mayor Sykes received 56,342 votes or 60 per cent of 94,046 votes cast in 1968 compared with Mayor Leslie's second-place total of 37,694.

Last year, Mayor Sykes defeated four others easily with 63,170 votes or 57.9 per cent of votes cast.

After his second victory, he said his objectives remained the same as he pushed ahead government, housing and even with his programs for open playground.

"That's what the people have voted for, isn't it?"

Mayor Sykes married his French-Canadian wife, Gisele, 18 years ago, was born in Montreal but raised in Victoria. He was an accountant with a national firm in Victoria, Vancouver and then Montreal.

In 1961, he joined Canadian Pacific and took charge of economic and financial studies in the company's research department. The following year he moved to Calgary where he helped organize Canadian Pacific's real estate subsidiary Marathon Realty.

On his position as mayor, he says:

"I can't afford what I'm doing. I'm earning less money than I ever did in recent years here and I have far, far less security and a far less pleasant life. If we've got to be crazy to be here."

He earns about $27,700 annually, covering expenses, and has resisted any revision of salaries for council and himself since he's been in office.

"There's half of a cleanup to do in city hall, we've got to make this a more effective administration. When we have done our job, then we can look at ourselves and say: 'To hell we don't we deserve an increase in salary'."

He does have a problem that bothers me greatly. It's a simple fact that Western Canada and Alberta in particular have no strong federal voice. Ottawa ignores us as we behind legs and calls the shots the way they really are in Ottawa.

Mayor Sykes, who works 12 to 13 hours a day, said government is interfering in areas "that don't belong to government."

"Government is interfering in family life, education to an excessive degree and in business to an excessive degree. And the consequence is that the range of conflicts between the citizen and government is growing."

He said there has to be a future for local government because "the best government is the one that is closest to people and the one they relate to."

"I can see all kinds of govand almost being eliminated but I can't see local government being eliminated . . . but I think you could eliminate provincial government with probably very few people going to the funeral."

But the problem of national unity was greater and Mr. Trudeau himself must be held chiefly responsible.

"If we see the self-appointed great defender of national unity—or national integrity as he now is calling it—cropping up ever closer to disintegration through the politics of confrontation and intransigence. "We see a man whose motto could very well be, 'Après moi, le deluge.'"

But the problem of national unity was greater and Mr. Trudeau himself must be held chiefly responsible.

Wagner Gets Tough With PM

TORONTO (CP) — Claude Wagner, Quebec's new Progressive Conservative chief, accused Prime Minister Trudeau Tuesday night of fanning the separatist movement and invited its adherents to turn to the "imaginative and compassionate" leadership of his own party.

In his first speech outside Quebec since returning to politics from the bench three weeks ago, the former provincial Liberal justice minister said the prime minister is "leading us ever closer to disintegration" and is deceiving the country with claims that national unity has been achieved.

While he had a deep faith in the federal system, he had no faith in the way it is being operated today or in the men running it.

Mr. Wagner's toughly-worded speech was delivered at a dinner meeting of the Toronto Junior Board of Trade, which also has invited Finance Minister John Turner to speak later in the campaign.

He said the ordinary citizens of Quebec and the rest of Canada have the same concern, of being overtaxed, undercounselled and forgotten by the federal government. It was little wonder that Mr. Trudeau preferred to talk of "national integrity" and sovereignty in the abstract.

"Such is the degree of deception practised by the Trudeau government, that, having betrayed its commitment to the ordinary Canadian, it now seeks through sophistry and profanity, through petulance and uncertainty, to divert attention from the real issues of this campaign."

Accusing much of his speech to the separatist movement, Mr. Wagner said most observers agree that the strength of the Parti Quebecois has been increasing since 1970, and the reason was "the frustrations and difficulties" of trying to operate the federal system under the present Ottawa government.

The Trudeau government consisted of "narrow-minded, rigid men who feel that all parts of Canada must be forced into the same mould, men who think they and they alone know what is best for all areas of the country, systematically refusing provincial suggestions and proposals on the spurious ground that national unity requires national uniformity."

While Mr. Trudeau rode to power on the back of a separatist movement in 1968, Mr. Wagner said, now he is trying to convince English-speaking Canadians that only he can keep the separatists in their place.

"In fact, he has done more than any other man to strengthen and fan the separatist movement.

"We see the self-appointed great defender of national unity—or national integrity as he now is calling it—cropping up ever closer to disintegration through the politics of confrontation and intransigence. "We see a man whose motto could very well be, 'Après moi, le deluge.'"

But the problem of national unity was greater and Mr. Trudeau himself must be held chiefly responsible.

Complaint Results In Offer of Job

VANCOUVER (CP) — An unemployed Vancouver man who phoned Prime Minister Trudeau on an open line radio show here Saturday says that as a result he was offered a federal government job which described his call to the prime minister as "my little revenge with Manpower."

The man said he had followed all the rules in looking for work since he was laid off from a three-year job in a sawmill shortly after coming to B.C. from Ontario a year ago.

He said he has graduated from high school, completed one year of a three-year business administration course, has worked as a salesman and lab technician.

But because he did not want to go into sales again and had no definite job desires, the man said he was classified as a warehouseman "where I have no experience and no chance of getting a job."

"I'm not sure if it was all up (to Trudeau) or not, but I walked in today and they just changed my classification and there was a job available," he said.

Radio Veteran Dead at 82

CHICAGO (AP) — "Howdy Amos . . . Howdy Andy"—for 32 years those familiar words opened a radio show that captivated millions of Canadians and Americans.

For addicts of the Amos 'n' Andy Show, there also were the Kingfish, and Sapphire and Madam Queen. And there were the Beauty Parlor and the Fresh Air Taxicab Co.

But it was the Negro dialect of two white men, Charles Correll and Freeman Gosden, which drew North Americans to their sets week in and week out after the show went on network radio in 1929.

On Tuesday, the deep voice of Correll was silenced by death. Four days after he entered hospital in the wake of a heart attack, Correll died. He was 82.

Born in Peoria, Ill., Correll started in 1902 and lived in Lewiston Hills, Calif., a few blocks from Gosden, now 67.

Correll and Gosden met in 1918 as fellow members of an amateur theatrical group touring the South.

They formed a two-man team and toured tent shows in the South, sometimes singing duets.

In 1920, Correll and Gosden started a blackface minstrel show on Chicago's WGN which they called "Sam 'n' Henry."

When they changed stations an NBC they had to find a new name for their act because of the WGN contract.

On an elevator ride to their first broadcast they overheard a man greet two other men as "Handy Andy" and "Famous Amos." Their search for a new name ended.

The show went coast-to-coast on Aug. 19, 1929, and the Amos 'n' Andy Show soon became the most popular in the country.

Restaurants frequently boosted the volume of their radio sets when the show came on, to satisfy their customers. Motion pictures often were cut at mid-reel so audiences could tune in on the doings of Amos and Andy.

In 1939, with television taking shape and more of the audiences, Amos and Andy left the air.

Posties' Demands Would Cost Public

MONTREAL (CP) — The federal government would have to raise personal income tax rates or find annual rates if the post office accepted current contract requests, or the 28,000-member Postal Workers Union, Postmaster General Jean-Pierre Cote said Thursday.

Speaking at the opening of a $1-million mail processing plant in nearby Lachine, Mr. Cote said the union's demands would cost $289 million a year and this, added to the current $200-million deficit of $20 million, would result in a total annual deficit of $300 million.

Mr. Cote said such a deficit is unacceptable because it would require raising personal income tax by two per cent, or increasing first class mail rates from eight to 13 cents.

Increases would follow in other classes of mail and there would be a loss of large volume customers he added.

Mr. Cote also criticized union leaders for allowing "the rumor of a possible strike at the post office to spread" and said they must learn the public is losing patience with strikes.

Negotiations with the union are at the conciliation stage. A strike could come before the Oct. 30 federal election.

Blass Bids For 20 Wins

By BRUCE LOWITT
Associated Press Sports Writer

Roberto Clemente would dearly love to get his 3,000th major league hit in Pittsburgh but the Pirates' Steve Blass isn't too concerned where he gets his 20th victory—or, for that matter, whether he gets it at all.

"Either I do or I don't," Blass said Tuesday night after winning his 19th of the National League baseball season, scattering eight Philadelphia hits as the Pirates beat the Phillies 5-1.

"I certainly want 20," added Blass, who would become the first Pittsburgh hurler to reach that plateau since Vernon Law did it in 1960. "but I'm not going to worry about it."

Blass still have one more regular-season start, that one against New York Mets, whom he beat last week, then he'll rest until the start of the playoffs against Cincinnati Reds and likely Don Gullett, who had his problems Tuesday night.

Atlanta Braves ripped him for seven runs in six innings and handed him his 19th loss in 18 decisions en route to a 18-9 victory over Cincinnati.

In other games, the Mets downed St. Louis Cardinals 3-1, Chicago Cubs blanked Montreal Expos 6-0, San Francisco Giants defeated Houston Astros 5-2 and Los Angeles Dodgers beat San Diego Padres 7-3.

Clemente picked up a pair of singles against the Phillies to raise his major league hit total to 2,998, putting him just four short of a lofty mark reached by only eight other players in the history of the game.

STEVE BLASS

Pittsburgh has two more games in Philadelphia before returning home to face New York and Pirates manager Bill Virdon announced right after that game that, if Clemente reached 2,998, he'd be benched until the start of the series with the Mets.

"That's what I want," Robinson said. "I play all my life in Pittsburgh."

The Pirates bunched all their runs against the Phils in the fifth inning. Al Oliver doubled in two, Manny Sanguillen singled for two more and Blass slugged for the final run.

Rich Carr, Dusty Baker and Earl Williams drove in two runs apiece for the Braves, who battered Gullett and two relievers for 13 hits.

Baker hit his 17th homer while Hank Aaron hit his 32nd, the 673rd of his career, putting him 63 short of Babe Ruth's all-time record. Those homers countered two by the Reds' Johnny Bench, who leads the majors with 38.

Jerry Koosman of the Mets had a no-hitter for 6 2-3 innings but needed middle-inning help from Tug McGraw.

The Cubs remained 4½ games ahead of the third-place Mets in the East as Milt Pappas twirled a four-hitter against the Expos for his 18th victory of the year and 13th in a row.

Billy Williams singled home one run and Glenn Beckert singled for two more in Chicago's four-run third inning. Williams hit a two-run homer in the fourth.

The Giants wiped out a two-run Houston lead with a four-run fifth and Bobby Bonds drilled his 30th homer in the seventh to give the victory to Sam McDowell.

The Dodgers got two-run homers from rookies Ron Cey and Joe Ferguson that provided Mike Strahler with his first complete game in the majors.

Scott Haunts Red Sox

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

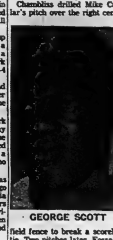
George Scott helped Boston Red Sox win a pennant in 1967 and could help them lose one in 1972.

The former Boston slugger, dealt to Milwaukee Brewers last winter, returned to haunt the Red Sox Tuesday night in the midst of their tension-filled American League East baseball race.

"If I say I'm not fired up playing here, I'd be telling a lie," Scott said after hitting a two-run homer at Fenway Park that led the Brewers to a 6-4 triumph over Boston.

The defeat cut Boston's lead in the East to a half-game over Detroit Tigers and kept the four-team race alive.

The Tigers and New York Yankees, both idle Tuesday night, gained ground on the Red Sox. The Yankees moved within 1½ games of Boston in a tie with Baltimore Orioles, who lost 3-2 to Cleveland Indians.



In the other games, Kansas City Royals downed Chicago White Sox 2-1 and California Angels slipped Texas Rangers 3-1. Rain washed out a twi-night doubleheader between Minnesota Twins and Oakland Athletics.

The Red Sox were unable to hold a 4-0 lead built on early two-run homers by Carl Yastrzemski and pitcher Marty Pattin. The Brewers tied it by the eighth.

Brock Davis touched off Milwaukee's winning rally with a lead single and eventually came around with the first run on Ellie Rodriguez's sacrifice fly.

Chris Chambliss and Ray Fosse hit consecutive home runs in the fourth inning to lead Cleveland over Baltimore, dealing the Orioles their 32nd one-run defeat of the year.

Chambliss drilled Mike Cuellar's pitch over the right centre field fence to break a scoreless tie. Two pitches later, Fosse hit another Cuellar delivery over the fence.

Steve Busby pitched a five-hitter and Ed Kirkpatrick slammed a home run as Kansas City beat Chicago and dropped the White Sox four games behind Oakland.

Busby, 22, gave up an infield single to Carlos May in the second inning, then didn't allow a baserunner until there was one out in the sixth.

Williams Whips Expos

MONTREAL (CP) — Billy Williams drove in three runs with a single and his 25th homer of the year and Milt Pappas won his 18th straight game as Chicago Cubs clamped Montreal Expos 6-0 in National League baseball action Tuesday night.

The Cubs got to Montreal star Bill Stoneman, 11-14, in the third inning, breaking up a scoreless tie with four runs.

Pappas led off with a single and was sacrificed to second by Don Kessinger before Jose Cardenal walked.

Williams drove in Pappas with a base hit to right and Cardenal scored on Jim Hickman's sacrifice fly.

Wim Van est and Kessinger on base in the fourth. Williams smashed a John Stroumayer pitch over the right field fence

Ottawa Squeaks Past Lions

TERRY WELLESLEY

VANCOUVER (CP) — "Hell, they got the two interceptions and that was the ball game."

Eagle Keys, who has taken on the appearance of a battered bloodhound as his British Columbia Lions staunch loss after loss in the Canadian Football League, had hit the nail on the head in describing his club's last-minute 20-17 loss to Ottawa Rough Riders in an interlocking contest Tuesday night.

Don Moorhead, who had sparkled up to the last five minutes of the game, was the victim of but touchdowns by Jim Evenson and Jim Young, and a 36-yard field goal by Ted Gervais after an Ottawa touchdown by Terry Wellesley, had given the Lions a 17-14 edge going into the last five minutes.

It was at that point that Moorhead made his first major mistake, calling a screen pass to Monroe Eley.

Defensive end Wayne Smith of the Riders smelled it out, slid along the line, and grabbed the ball with eager hands. The interception gave the Riders a first down on the Lions 41.

The Riders couldn't convert the opportunity into points, but they had the Lions bottled in deep.

A no-yards penalty on a subsequent kick by the Lions gave the Rough Riders the ball on the B.C. 27. Two running plays later, Gerry Organ booted a 36-yard field goal to tie the game.

The game still wasn't lost. but Moorhead did it again, this time throwing an errant pass to defensive back Rod Woodward, who picked it off and scampered out of bounds on the B.C. 18 yard line.

Quarterback Rick Cassata ate up the clock and moved the ball close enough to make the winning points almost automatic.

Organ stepped up on the B.C. 32 and drilled the field goal.

Keys took full blame for the errant screen pass that set up the winning surge.

"I told Don (Moorhead) he had to quit being cautious," Keys said.

"We had to throw the ball. They made a hell of a play on it. That damned screen pass just killed us."

The Riders took a disputed 18-9 win over Edmonton Eskimos Saturday.

Cassata came on for the Riders and also was ineffective until the last few minutes. His only moment came on the first Ottawa series in the second half, when he flipped a swing pass to Wellesley for a 47-yard touchdown. Organ converted both.

Keys had the last word.

"We were the winners of the game for 55 minutes," he said.

Unfortunately, the game lasted the full 60 minutes.

Wellesley Joins Leaders

Gerry Organ opened up a 32-point lead atop the Eastern Football Conference scoring race Tuesday night, kicking two late field goals that pulled Ottawa Rough Riders to a 20-17 win over British Columbia Lions in a Canadian Football League interlocking game.

The young Ottawa kicker, who als converted the two Rider touchdowns, now has 68 points. Ian Sunter, the rookie Hamilton Tiger-Cat kicker, is runner-up with 58 points.

Ottawa's Terry Wellesley moved up into the scoring leaders with his third touchdown of the season.

CNTU Hit By Vote

MONTREAL (CP) — Quebec's union movement, which struggled for life under authoritarian rule and then flowered in the Quiet Revolution of the early 1960s, now is suffering from self-inflicted wounds.

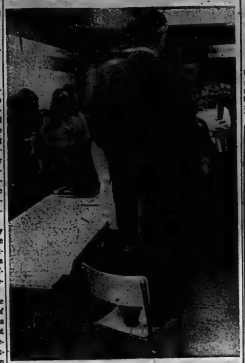
A vote by the 30,000-member Quebec Provincial Civil Services Union to bolt the Confederation of National Trade Unions is the latest blow. Results of a referendum were announced early Tuesday.

"The CNTU is badly wounded," commented Abbe Gerard Dion, veteran labor expert and social reformer, in a telephone interview from his office at Laval University in Quebec.

Several shocks have hit the CNTU since a coalition front of Quebec labor federations staged a strike last spring, but Father Dion singled out a recent disaffiliation vote by workers at Asbestos, in the Eastern Townships.

Some 1,200 plant employees at Canadian Johns-Manville in Asbestos decided in a majority vote on the weekend of Sept. 16 to bolt the CNTU and they are expected to vote again soon on whether to join the newly-formed breakaway Centrale des Syndicats Democratiques.

"The Asbestos workers are the people who put the CNTU on the map after all," said Father Dion, 58, labor professor at Laval and editor of a labor quarterly for many years.



He was referring to a violent five-month strike staged in 1949 by asbestos miners which was finally settled on terms broadly favorable to the Canadian and Catholic Confederation of Labor—now the CNTU.

Successive labor legislation and governmental attitudes of that period were replaced in the 1960s when the new Liberal regime of Jean Lesage opened up Quebec society.

Father Dion predicted a year ago, however, that spills lay ahead for the union movement because of political and radical trends advocated by union strategists.

He estimated Tuesday the CNTU has lost 60,000 of its former membership roll of 225,000 and he predicted that "the movement for disaffiliation will keep on increasing."

"The grassroots of unionism in the CNTU have, over the last two years, become lost in a mass of undefinable ideology," said Jean-Paul Brehmer, president of the breakaway union of civil servants.

Assistance Asked For New Arrivals

TORONTO (CP) — Local residents have been asked to open their homes to Asian refugees from Uganda to help them settle in the city.

The Toronto reception committee for the refugees—comprised of representatives from the local Asian community and the three levels of government—also is appealing for volunteers to help meet the refugees and show them around Toronto.

"We are looking for families—Canadian or Asian—who would be willing to take a refugee family into their home until they can get settled in more permanent accommodation," Anand Chopra, committee secretary, said Tuesday.

Mr. Chopra said the committee is compiling a list of employment opportunities and wants to hear from anyone who can offer a Ugandan refugee a job.

The committee, financed partly by the federal government, also will help provide contact between the refugees and Asians already here.

An information centre has been set up and a housing register opened.

The first large refugee group—183 persons—is due to arrive in Montreal by charter flight today from Entebbe.

Protest Jailing

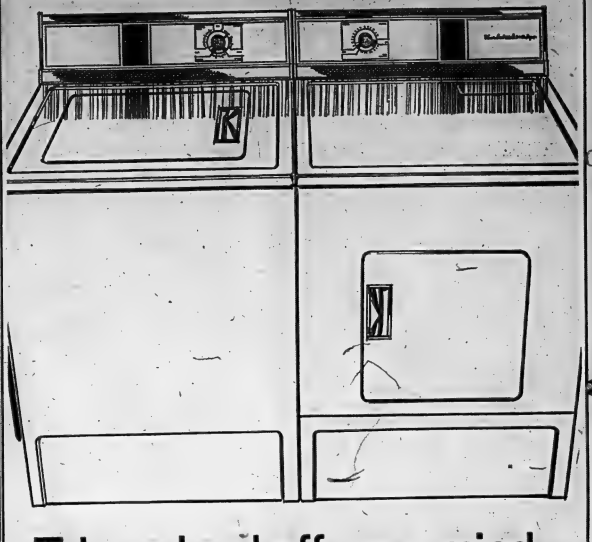
JERUSALEM (AP) — Police wielding clubs charged a mob of several thousand Orthodox Jews who rioted Tuesday to protest the jailing of two comrades who blew up a sex boutique. The state radio said 13 rioters were arrested.

Canada-Germany Talks Preliminary

OTTAWA (CP) — Talks between Canada and West Germany on the development of a shipping network to move arctic resources to Ruhr Valley smelters have been described as "preliminary in nature" with no commitments made.

Northern Affairs Minister Jean Chretien said the talks, which officials in both countries confirmed involve construction of ice-breaking freighters to move iron ore from Baffin Island, are similar to other "informal" exchanges on other northern development matters.

"The implications of such a project are being examined to ensure that Canadian interests would derive maximum benefit in any co-operative venture. Among these interests are marine and resource industries, Canada's international trade, the northern people and the scientific community."



But no firm proposals have been received from the Germans and the matter has not been discussed at the ministerial level. He described the talks as "exploratory discussions." No commitments had been made.

His statement followed one by Progressive Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield, demanding to know "what measures the Trudeau government is taking to protect Canada and her people in this deal."

"I want that information immediately," Mr. Stanfield said during an election campaign visit to Vancouver.

Easter, in Bremen, West Germany, an official of the A. G. Weser shipbuilding company said the idea behind the talks is to open isolated Canadian areas for German exploitation at home.

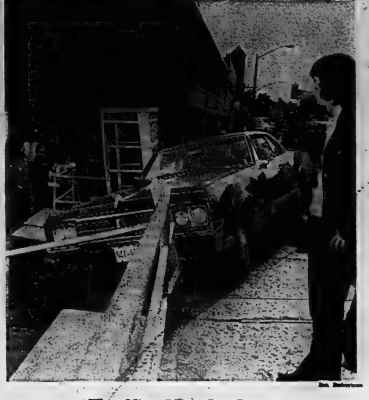
No Truce With Terror Sharp Advises UN

Peace Deal Denied

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Saying there "must be no truce with terror," External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp of Canada called on the General Assembly today to take stiff action on international terrorism.

What, if anything, came from the Paris sessions remains a secret held by a handful of administration officials.



Kissinger talked to President Nixon by telephone Wednesday night after his return to Washington and will provide a couplete report at the White House tonight after the president returns from a campaign trip to California.

"I can't say anything," Kissinger shouted to reporters.

Although Kissinger wouldn't discuss the meeting, the 18th secret session and the only one to last more than a day—White House Press Secretary Ronald Ziegler said in California the report of an accord had "no substance."

Substantive or not, the story originated by White House correspondent Clifford Evans had a major effect on the New York stock exchange, which closed Wednesday.

Speculators operating on the basis of the Evans story and other subsequently denied rumors sent the Dow Jones average climbing more than 18 points.

Traffic Headache

This car, driven by Lu-Ann Whitley, was the fifth involved in an eight-car accident yesterday afternoon at the intersection of Front and Dundas Streets in Trenton. It skidded on sand, spread by public works employees on spilled gasoline and antifreeze following a four-car chain reaction rear-end collision, coming to rest with wheels hanging over the road surface. Two other cars, whose drivers slowed to view the scene, were slightly damaged after the Whitley vehicle's accident. For story see page 2.

No Foundation

PARIS (AP) — North Vietnam's chief negotiator, Le Duc Tho, said today that rumors about an imminent agreement on ending the Vietnam war are "without foundation and contrary to the truth."

They, who had just participated in two days of private meetings with U.S. presidential adviser Henry Kissinger, made the statement as he arrived for the 181st meeting of the peace talks.

Deficit Now $543 Million

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's deficit in international payments for goods and services rose by $72 million in April, May and June to $543 million by mid-year, Statistics Canada reported Wednesday.

The deficit compared with a surplus of $281 million in the first half of last year and one of $348 million in the whole of 1971. Canada had a surplus of over $1 billion in 1970, but this has been moving into a deficit since the last quarter of last year.

Terrorists Invade London

LONDON (AP) — A car exploded and burst into flames in north London today, killing a man trapped inside and raising fears that Irish terrorists were moving into this capital.

Scotland Yard ordered a strict clampdown on information about the incident.

The outlawed Irish Republican Army terrorists have often threatened to extend their bombing activities to London and other British cities. One of their favorite tactics has been to leave bombs in parked cars outside British government installations.

The car bomb in north London exploded near an army barracks.

The IRA wants to drive the British out of Northern Ireland and unite with the Irish republic.

World Must Agree

WASHINGTON (AP)— Henry Kissinger is back in the United States after a two-day meeting with top North Vietnamese negotiators, a meeting the White House denies produced a settlement of the war.

Sharp told the assembly there had been significant advances during the last year in the quest to find permanent peace and it would be "bitter irony" if the prospect of a saner world instead became a world "in which the stream of violence simply cuts new channels."

He admitted the field of political terrorism is formidable, but asked: "How can the world, which has declared slavery, piracy and the slave trade beyond the pale of civilized life, fail to outlaw terrorism?"

Sharp praised Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim for including the subject of terrorism in this year's agenda and said that he had made no direct reference to the U.N. call for a study conference early next year to draft new laws on prosecution and extradition of terrorists.

The Canadian minister's address was generally optimistic in reviewing diplomatic achievements of the last year but his comments on terrorism were among the sharpest spoken during the first days the assembly has been in its general debate.

"There are those in the world who appear to believe that the norms of civilized international life are not for them," Sharp said. "They consider that they have a right to pursue their grievances with kidnapping, piracy, murder and indiscriminate terror and violence."

He said Canada "has had its tragic experience of violence of this sort" and said Canadians instinctively share the shock terrorism produces wherever it occurs.

Sharp noted some UN members were opposed to a drastic but the assembly's agenda contains and admitted the world body would encounter trouble in trying to halt acts of violence.

But he added: "The problem cannot be ignored because it is difficult; there must be no truce with terror."

Sharp spoke warmly of improved relations between the great powers, in Europe and between the separated nations of Germany and Korea.

Liberals Choose Candidate

In his moment of victory, at the Liberal nominating convention at Centennial Secondary School last night, Frank Follwell (right) raises hands with contender Dr. John Hartt after he won the party nomination.

Follwell Wins

Hastings Liberals have marshalled behind a political veteran in a bid to retrieve the riding in the upcoming federal election.

He is Frank Follwell, former parliamentarian, one - time mayor of Belleville, leading city realtor, active in community affairs and familiar personality in the constituency.

Mr. Follwell last night was nominated Liberal candidate in the Oct. 30 election campaign by a convention at Centennial Secondary School which:

—Introduced a fresh, frank, style to local convention politics, short on ritual ballyhoo, long on participation.

—Saw the nomination sealed by a longtime, outspoken Conservative, Belleville physician "Dr. John Hartt.

Dr. Hartt, at once an acknowledged critic of federal Liberalism from Conservative platform, last night publicly proclaimed disenchantment with his former party. Although names were mentioned, Dr. Hartt's nomination speech was barbed with obvious references to former mayor Jack Ellis, named Tory candidate Tuesday night.

There now is a "real need" for Hastings to have a "new, capable and credible member on the government side," said Dr. Hartt.

Joan Macdonald, director of the Ontario College of Nurses, cuts ribbon to officially open Edith Cavell Regional School of Nursing Wednesday. The building, named after the woman who lost her life helping Allied soldiers escape occupied Belgium during World War I, was built for $40,000 less than predicted.

Job Creating Plan Announced

TORONTO (CP) — Manpower Minister Bryce Mackasey has announced a $46-million program to create jobs.

The program, which becomes effective Dec. 1, will cost employers more than a similar program run last winter. In that one, the federal government paid employers 75 per cent of the direct wages paid to workers and employers paid fringe costs in training courses.

In the new program, the federal government will pay 75 per cent of direct wages during the first half of training and 50 per cent during the last half.

Mr. Mackasey told a news conference Wednesday the incentive still is generous enough to attract employers to the programs.

He said that in training workers in areas where there are skill shortages, the employers' interests are greater and, therefore, the government will pay only 50 per cent of salaries for the first half of training and 25 per cent for the remainder.

The training of workers to meet skill shortages and the shared-cost training of the disadvantaged are aspects not present in last winter's plan.

In training of the disadvantaged, said Mr. Mackasey, the public interest will be paramount and employers will be asked to take on some "very difficult problems."

On-the-job training, which created 42,000 jobs last year, will be continued this winter and be expanded into a new and permanent Industrial Training Program.

Mr. Mackasey said closer ties between the manpower department and the Unemployment Insurance Commission will be created by formation of a job information centre where unemployed persons will be able to get the latest information about jobs available from computer-based job banks. He said people will be able to walk into manpower centres and browse through the jobs available, much as they are able to browse in a book store.

Another level will deal with people who are not ready for a job and who need counselling, training or help in moving to places where suitable jobs are available.

A third level would consist of a "specialized team approach" to deal with hard-core unemployed. He said only 17 per cent of those on welfare could sort if jobs were available to them.

Nurses Need Educational Facilities

By BRIAN AMARIOR
Staff Reporter

Graduates of the Edith Cavell Regional School of Nursing will have a sound basic education but facilities must also be provided to allow them to continue learning.

The advice comes from Joan Macdonald, director of the Ontario College of Nurses, who was guest speaker at the school's official opening Wednesday afternoon.

Miss Macdonald stressed the need for continuing education throughout her address, citing national and international reports that point out the necessity both community and health circles for continual development and renascence.

"Students must have opportunities to learn without hindrance," she told her audience of nurses and hospital officials. "The public must have opportunities to describe their problems and participate in solving them."

A recent UNESCO study, noted Miss Macdonald, suggests the keys to educational reform are democracy, flexibility and continuity.

Major Fire in Paris

PARIS (Reuter) — The worst fire in Paris since the Second World War was still burning today after destroying one seven-storey building on the Champs Elysees, and all but one floor of a second and half of a third. An anonymous telephone caller told a radio station: "Black September has struck and will strike again." The Black September Arab guerrilla organization claimed responsibility for the murder of 11 Israeli sportsmen at the Munich Olympic Games and has been linked with a spate of letter bombs mailed to Israeli diplomats around the world.

State of War Ends

PEKING (AP) — Premier Chou En-lai announced tonight that China and Japan have decided to establish diplomatic relations and terminate the 22 year-old state of war between the two countries. A Japanese delegation said after their meeting: "Our major problems have been solved."

Family Heads Jobless

OTTAWA (CP) — Statistics Canada reported Wednesday that of the estimated 542,000 persons unemployed in July, 368,000 or 25 per cent were heads of families. There were 141,000 family heads unemployed in July last year and 142,000 in July, 1970. Both were 28 per cent of the total unemployed.

Jobs Are Offered

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Manpower says householders have promised to a call to help Asian refugees from Uganda with offers of jobs and temporary accommodation, a spokesman for the Toronto Uganda Committee said Wednesday. He said more than 200 callers offered aid during the first day of his committee's appeal.

Mao Has Miseries

TOKYO (AP) — Mao Tse-tung is reported to have said visiting Japanese Premier Kakuei Tanaka in Peking that he is suffering from rheumatism. Correspondents of Asahi Shimbun, reporting from Peking, quoted the Chinese Communist party chairman as saying Wednesday night that his legs are slightly weak because of the affliction. Mao is 78.

Liberal Convention Told PM's Leadership Strong

Strong political leadership, with an ability to make decisions, has carried Canada through economic difficulties in current prosperity, Prime Minister Trudeau's parliamentary assistant said last night.

International recession and world monetary and inflation problems, the T.S. Irwin case systems have been among the government's economic challenges, Barney Danson, MP, York North told the Hastings-Frontenac Conservative convention at Centennial Secondary School.

"We've come through all of these because we have leadership which is strong," he said.

"We've had a prime minister who has the guts to make decisions . . . to do things, which are unpalatable to some other, but always necessary. The sort of leadership we have been looking for in this country for a long time."

Reconstruction in Canada is creating more jobs than most countries.

Explosive Comments

Dr. Lionel Dockrill, at last night's Liberal nominating convention, rocked Centennial Secondary School, proclaiming his party is be the only government. He refused comment after his address. More than 300 attended the convention which chose Frank Follwell as the Liberal candidate for the Oct. 30 federal election.

Follwell Selected

"Especially after Tuesday night, I can't see any such available person filling this need locally from the High Park Progressive Conservative party," he said.

Dr. Hartt was the only one of three nominees proposed to the convention to contest the Follwell nomination.

Dr. Lionel Dockrill — another city physician and Progressive Conservative who defected to Liberalism in 1963 — and Spokesman Ken Douglas both declined to let their names go forward.

When Mr. Follwell's nomination was announced, Dr. Hartt moved that his candidacy be declared the convention's unanimous choice.

The open convention, which drew almost 700 — 362 of them registered voters — was the first of its kind in Belleville. Liberal constituency officials insisted voting rights to anyone registered as a party member three days before nominations — abolishing the open convention idea originally proposed by Tolten, Sims, Hodgett, Dockrill, Design for the project was to have been completed by August 1, but the firm said there had been a delay as a result of two deaths in the family of the project engineer.

Alderman Donald Sautier said he was not happy or entirely with the performance of the consulting engineering firm.

Policy On Costs Queried

The policy of construction project estimates being made before contracts have been let or are called for the work was questioned in city council this week.

Commenting on the estimated cost for a road and sewer project for which tenders are to be called, Mayor J. Russell Scott said the whole council might be making a mistake in letting the calculations be known.

The comment was made during discussion on the delay of plans for an extension on University Ave. which are being prepared by Totten, Sims, Hubicki Associates. Design for the project was to have been completed by August 1, but the firm said there had been a delay as a result of two deaths in the family of the project engineer.

Alderman Donald Sautier said he was not happy or entirely with the performance of the consulting engineering firm.

Nurses

Ideally, the nursing school should allow all an opportunity to study in a system free of strict pre-requisites and set curricula, while at the same time enabling them to meet changing needs in technology and life style.

Once working, the nurse becomes part of a team of health professionals. Nurses are "needed central to high quality care." Her knowledge should be combined with those of other medical personnel to provide a continuum of skills to problems so that no skills are lost or over utilized.

Miss Mackenzie, a graduate of Belleville General Hospital, also had a word for the school's curriculum advisory committee, which she said "where possible should be placed on nursing related to prevention of illness," he said. "Maintenance of an optimum level of health and skills (is) essential to assist people to solve their own problems."

Before ending the ribbon to open the building — built for $1,100,000 and under the $1,200,000 architect cost — she stated: "I hope the doors of opportunity for nursing education will be opened for the nursing population and interested citizens."

Prior to Miss Mackenzie's address, greetings were delivered from members of Belleville civic council, including retiring Hastings MP Lee Grills, Clarke Rollins, Belleville Chamber of Commerce manager, and J. Russell Scott and Phillip Rickard, director of Bulleville Council's board of directors.

Also present were representatives of Trenton Memorial Hospital and Prince Edward County Memorial Hospitals, which, together with Belleville General Hospital, make up the region's feeding Edith Cavell School.

Later in the afternoon was J. W. Deacon, chairman of Belleville General's board of directors, for an unusual comment.

First Frost Hits North

TWEED (Special) — The first frost of the fall hit the country north of Belleville last night with temperatures ranging from 27 to 32 at Bancroft and 30 at Tweed.

The southern regions of Hastings and Prince Edward county are still free from the frosty menace and Belleville 37 degrees.

The duty forecaster at CFB Trenton, Ont., issued a frost warning for today and Friday with a low of forty 40 tonight and cloudy skies tomorrow morning.

Prince Edward county farmer William Nightingale said the wind and gentleness of water kept the county just above the freezing point last night. He said the effect of the latmatoes and canning corn crop is still in the fields and a few more days of warm weather should see them harvested. The frost, he said, can withstand temperatures as low as 25, but tomatoes will not survive below 32.

Boy Injured

A seven-year-old boy was held overnight at Belleville General Hospital after being struck by a car on East College St. Wednesday.

William Dunsworth of 72 McFarland Dr., suffered a head injury when a car driven by Winnifred Pettifor of 222 Herchimer Ave., knocked him to the ground whilt the boy was on his way home from school. No charges were laid.

Coon Causes Anxious Time

MADOC (Staff) — A friendly raccoon caused some anxious moments Wednesday for residents of Norwood Road near Marmora.

A couple called the Ontario Provincial Police when the coon — about three months old — insisted on sleeping on their property. When they found her could get within a few feet of the animal, they immediately suspected rabies.

Constable Don Creelman of OPP Madoc detachment arrived soon after to find what looked like the remains of a collar around the raccoon's neck. He also pulled several porcupine quills out of its fur.

Const. Creelman thinks the animal was a pet, now on the loose. But to be safe, he advised the couple of symptoms to look for in case the animal has rabies.

Meanwhile, the raccoon reportedly curled up in the back yard.

The project, organized by the Ontario Arts Council, will involve many schools which it is hoped, will use it as more than an art department project.

The geometric design of some of the art works illustrates mathematical concepts while the refraction of light as it strikes several pieces of sculpture relates readily to science and physics.

The cost for the exhibition at Pinecrest is under $200 and the art works displayed will be offered for sale on the night of the exhibit. Prices will range from $3 to $15. The art show contains works by 21 resident Canadian artists, most of them living in Ontario.

Catalogues, educational material and study guides will be included as well as cardboard fold-up display pedestal for the works.

The one show will begin at 8:30 p.m., Friday, Sept. 29 in the auditorium.

Admission is $2.75 at the door and advance tickets at Sam the Record Man are selling for $2.25.

The project follows closely on the plans of a 1969 Swedish experiment in which 1,300 simultaneous exhibitions were held with three-quarters of a million persons in attendance.

Daniel Bakey, principal of Pinecrest school expressed enthusiasm for Ontario and observed "It's a tremendous thing, something we should promote."

Firemen, Workers Scramble to Save Garage

Three Accidents Involve 8 Cars

TRENTON (Staff) — Three accidents at the intersection of Front and Dundas Streets in Trenton yesterday afternoon involved a total of eight cars as well as Trenton PUC, Bell Canada and town police.

It all began when four cars were involved in a chain reaction rear - end collision. Works department employees sanded the scene after cars were removed. A fifth car driven by Lo-Ann Whaley of 23 Maser Cres. was making a left turn from Front when it skidded on the sand, oil and antifreeze, struck a second car, jumped the curb, smashed swing bridge guard rail, knocked over a PUC transformer and damaged a telephone booth, coming to rest with wheels hanging over the road surface.

While PUC workers were cutting power from the electrically charged railing and city workmen were cutting rails to enable them to free the Whaley vehicle, two other cars were slightly damaged in accidents when drivers slowed to view the scene. No damage estimates are available and no injuries were reported.

Picton Boy Hit by Car

PICTON (Staff) — A Prince Edward County child was taken to Prince Edward County Memorial Hospital early this morning with injuries sustained when he collided with a car on Scibaric Road.

Injured was 7-year-old Darren Barker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Barker, RR1, Bloomfield. The boy was treated for concussion. Driver of the car involved was Lorne O'Hara, 48, of RR1, Bloomfield. Constable R. L. Boreman of the Picton Detachment of the OPP investigated.

Flash Fire Hits Garage

TRENTON (Staff) — Gasoline being drained from a car gas tank by fire repairs is believed by employees to be the source of an early morning, high - level flash fire, Buick Sales on Eight St.

While neither firemen nor officials at the downtown showroom and repair garage have decided on the official source, one mechanic on duty at the time of the 7 a.m. flash fire explained it this way:

Pointing to a flame charred gas tank on the floor of the repair shop, he said, "This was a tank somebody brought in to get fixed. It was being drained and then the first thing I knew flames were going along the floor."

Dealership owner John Davidson explained further: "The fire was a flash thing. Very suddenly, flames were up to the ceiling."

His estimate of damages were available but Mr. Davidson himself described it as "a cosmetic nature," such as superficial charring, smoke damage, burned surface paint and wiring. Two cars in for repairs were also heavily charred. Some roof damage is also anticipated.

Firemen had to climb on to the roof to extinguish flames visible from the area of the skylight.

"It was not as serious as it could have been," Mr. David-son said. "We are only a block from the fire department and they got here immediately, literally as quickly as we got the fire extinguishers under way."

The owner said future flame-ups, all however now under cutting them, the motor-driven doors were lowered, having considered flames within the repair stall area.

This is the first fire for Davidsons and Mr. Davidson has high praise for his mechanic on duty at the time of the "funny" about their work, es-

Others moved vehicles away from the building.

As well, a fire investigator Keith Brown, assisted by secretary Nicki Lane and two other office employees helped move office papers to the safety of the sidewalk, watched by large crowds of onlookers.

Apple blossoms in September? That was the reaction of Blake Weese, 53 Pine St., when he noticed the pink buds on a neighbor's tree. An avid gardener, Mr. Weese trimmed the tree at the beginning of the month and suspects the late cutting may be responsible for the unusual combination of crab apples and blossoms.

Election Outcome Now Guessing Game

Minority Government Could Have Advantages

By FARMER TESSINGTON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—One of the latest cooling theories of politics in Ottawa is that there is nothing basically wrong with a minority government. When Canada went through a succession of minority governments in the late 1920s and 1930s, leading to a cycle of six elections between 1957 and 1968, there was a belief the country would be better served with a more stable, majority government. But the past five years of majority rule have not produced a noticeably improved House of Commons or any greater efficiency in the passage on legislation.

New Democrat and Social Credit leaders David Lewis and Real Caouette both went on record recently that they would have no objection to the return of a minority government. Mr. Lewis stated flatly that Stanfield also would not be averse to a minority government, whether it was his own or Mr. Trudeau's.

The news media, and particularly the Ottawa press corps, spent months predicting when the election would be called and urging the PM to go to the country. Now that he has compiled his newest game is to forecast the outcome. The consensus is the Liberals will be returned in a minority position. It makes you wonder if the expense and time of the campaign could not be saved by allowing the Press Gallery to hand-pick the MP's who will form the 29th parliament of Canada.

Just how significant is the English-speaking back-lash in Canada against the government's bilingual policies? There are a number who claim it will be the most important single issue of the election campaign but that it will be an "almost forbidden" issue, rarely referred to openly by candidates of any party. It manifests itself in quiet ways such as English-speaking resentment against regulations requiring manufacturers to put bilingual labels on their packages.

One Southern Ontario Conservative MP was advised to send out warnings to the supporters in his riding to turn all the cans and bottles so only the French wording could be seen on the shelves. This would so irritate the Anglophones, it was claimed, that they would react by voting against the government candidate. To his credit, the MP declined to act on the advice.

While on the subject of bilingualism, a tip of the hat is due Mr. Stanfield for his surprisingly successful use of humor in the other official language. The least fluent of the four parties leaders in their second language, nevertheless he can receive and reply to questions in French with a reasonable degree of skill. His effort over the past few years tends to downtrop the oft - repeated theory that you have to learn French an English-speaking person must start at a young age.

If you want to be elected as a Member of Parliament in Prince Edward Island it seems to be an advantage to have a last name starting with "Mc" or "Mac." The Island province sends four MP's to Ottawa and in 1968 the winners, all Conservatives, were Angus MacLean, Heath Macquarrie, Donald MacDonald and Melvin McQuaid. Four of the five candidates running in this election with Mr. McQuaid declining to seek re-election.

This opens the possibility of the Liberals winning his Cardigan seat on October 30 as they have nominated a strong candidate in the person of provincial agriculture minister. His name — and you guessed it — is Daniel J. MacDonald.

Ellis Wins Nomination

Former Mayor Jack Ellis' victory over Macdonald Smith and Donald Soutter for the Conservative nomination in Hastings brings the local election process another step forward.

Mr. Ellis is the youngest of the three relatively young men who contested the nomination and his win means he is in the forefront of the political campaign scene again.

A city businessman and a vigorous mayor for some years in the mid-sixties, Mr. Ellis should prove a formidable campaigner. As mayor he was unstinting of his time and his concern for the city's interests. It is the kind of background that will stand him in good stead if he is elected on October 30.

Shades of the Past

Gerald Stevens comes to Belleville next month from the Canadiana Gallery in Toronto of which he is administrator and he will be conducting another of his popular courses in Early Canadian Antiques and Canadian Art and Design at Loyalist College.

Before taking up residence in Toronto some years ago, Mr. Stevens lived in one of those delightful Ontario stone homes on the highway out of Brockville near Mallorytown. This route (No. 2 to Gananoque and beyond) once was used by hosts of people who remember the dangers of the two-lane scenic route alongside the St. Lawrence. The latter was the scene of frequent accidents before and during 1967 and Expo. How fortunate is a dodger of those routes — the foregoing, now much less heavily frequented and consequently safer, and 401 which in those days had not been completed.

Another point of interest about these days, when Mr. Stevens lived in that part of the country he was a member of Kyles' office club in Brockville, one of those informal gatherings which once for the most part, who got together daily for a cup of coffee and a chat.

Restaurant owner Bert Kyle had been in business in the same location for half-a-century or more. As already in his younger days — he used to tell of his long-distance runs — he was also one of nature's gentlemen. He took a personal interest in virtually everyone who entered his establishment. Young and old, he would sit down in a booth and chat with them, frequently jesting with the younger folk. On the walls were paintings by local artists and photographs by Brockville photographer George Chamberlain.

Mr. Kyle was in his eighties when he died a couple of years ago, but he had been keen and alert almost to the end. He drove his car with a Monday morning visit to Ottawa his and his wife (who predeceased him) had been to say Watertown at the weekend. In latter years though he gave up driving and son Bill, who helped run the business, drove him back and forth. Around November Mr. Kyle celebrated his birthday and members of the coffee club helped celebrate it with him at an annual dinner in the Revere hotel.

Mr. Stevens no doubt remembers those days, just as he will be telling students here about other earlier times and personalities during his course at Loyalist.

Unisex!

Remember in times past when a boy would not be caught dead playing games with a girl.

The young women students of Belleville Collegiate at least seem to have been liberated in this regard. Driving past the other day we saw a couple of girls mixing it with the best of them in the sport of soccer practice. At one point a blonde lass was dribbling rings around her companions, with one young man in hot pursuit trying to make a tackle.

Clad in their natty red track outfits, the girls might have drawn an interesting reaction from Sidney township farmer William Rinnan if they were around today. Writing to his mother in Ireland (as recorded in Gerald Boyce's work, Hutton of Hastings) in 1834, he wrote, "the ladies are princesses in their dress, but I don't think much of their minds from what I have seen."

Well the girls are still princesses in their dress — those who bother to get out of jeans that is — and their minds have a range their sisters back in the 19th century would never have dreamed of.

Davis Seeks New Provincial Treasurer

By DON O'HEARN
From The Intelligencer's Queen's Park Bureau

Premier Davis has a key appointment to make in naming a successor to Darcy McKeough.

The appointment of Charles MacNaughton is just a stopgap. Mr. MacNaughton has spent his time in the treasury bit easier.

It is said he was reluctant to take the temporary post but agreed for the sake of the government and to give the premier a chance to get things sorted out.

The sorting may not be easy. These days the treasurer is recognized as the second top man in the government.

So that whoever the premier appoints will automatically go up in stature. And there will could be reasons why he wouldn't want to give this stature to some of his colleagues.

But beyond this the treasury is a job that calls for definite abilities and not many men in the present government would have these.

John White, minister of industry and tourism, has a good grasp of economics which is one of the abilities called for.

But White has been giving good leadership in his present portfolio, an important one. And chances are Davis will want to leave him in it.

Again, the premier probably will have considered Attorney-General Dalton Bales for the appointment. Davis has been close to Bales and has respect for him.

But in view of the recent conflict-of-interest incident his appointment as treasurer would be open to public misunderstanding.

One man in the background who is being talked about a lot is the minister of consumer and financial affairs, Eric Winkler.

Winkler has done an outstanding job in his portfolio and also has been house leader for the government.

In addition, he is an old pro politician, having served as PC whip in the Diefenbaker era, and seems to be able to grasp finance.

He could turn out to be the choice.

Threat to World Security

By JOHN D. HARBRON
Forcifn Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

If a holocaust is to deprive us our time, where will it come from?

Inter-continental ballistic missiles fired from the Soviet Union, possibly even Communist China? A Soviet land invasion of Western Europe? Some unpredictable but foreseeable breakdown in the fail-safe system which could send nuclear weapons or nerve gas into the air whose use was intended?

These are all the classic fears of how we might wipe ourselves off the earth. Science fiction which plays on these fears and adrenalin flow is one of the best both from outer space and from within the earth itself has been joined by genuine thrillers of what might yet be, such as the movie Dr. Strangelove.

All these morbid but understandable preoccupations with what might have been, what might yet be, probably account for the great success of the British book "If Britain Had Fallen." In 1940 that book by British journalist and radio producer Norman Longmate.

Mr. Longmate's book speculates about Britain losing the famous Battle of Britain of the summer of 1940 and is based on actual German records outlining procedures for a British occupation. This makes it even more fascinating than if based only on a journalist's speculation.

Special SS Commando units would be trained to take over ancient British institutions like the church and nobility—and most interesting, private British clubs. The SS leaders had been told they could break down the aristocracy which made Britain weak and brought about her defeat by demanding the servants in their clubs to find out what Britain's leaders were really like.

The King and Queen would be flown to the Bahamas where the Duke of Windsor was Governor General. In Canada, Prime Minister Mackenzie King, no Anglophile in any case, would avoid the Royal Family and the Churchill government both together and apart, in their sheer prestige would have reduced the Canadian government to a lowly, even colonial status in its own capital.

And again much of this is in the records, this time from cabinet minutes of the Canadian and British governments as a public admission of such possibilities by them no expert than former top bureaucrat, diplomat and onetime Prime Minister, Lester B. Pearson.

But Britain didn't fall. Nelson's column was therefore not moved piecemeal to Berlin's Unter den Linden. Hitler's armies stayed from the French beaches and headed for the Russian steppes and a grimmer destiny.

In spite of its documentation and the premise of defeat in that long ago summer of 1940, much of this must be fairy-tale fantasy. Because if the holocaust now comes, it will come from events unshackled in our history. These are the slow, subtle and inside-in breakdowns of our societies by the urban guerrilla and the anonymous terrorist—the Munich, the mass murdering bombs in mailboxes—more attacks against a much more complex fabric of civilization than we had even in 1940.

Or if Third World worries are your point of departure, it will come from the time bombs of billions of poor people on earth with not enough land to survive on.

If ecological balance is your worry, the current breakdown of the "biosphere" with the omissions of tens of millions of cars, trucks, buses and boats, will leave no air to breathe by when, who knows, 2000 AD?

By comparison, even the dire threat of 1940's wartime summer seems like child's play.

Progress Overtakes City Trees

Editor,
The Intelligencer;

Regarding letter's in The Intelligencer as of Sept. 20, 1972, Elm and Dutch Elm disease.

If too like trees and find it very depressing to see them cut down for a highway or new by-law lady stated, a strip of cement.

Oh well, let me be realistic? Who really wants trees and the fresh air that goes with them with a bigger highway people can enjoy the unhealthy environment of our grand cities? To me I would rather look at trees than cement.

Also regarding the Bible not, Some say "BIG LOSS," but I ask how long until lessons are being given on such things as starving and killing people and also pornography.

Well it cure is great to see progress, and I hope they soon discover a way to live on the moon, we all may need to live there someday, God help us!

Snowmobiles Harm Hearing

Ottawa Journal

A government-funded McGill University study has revealed that snowmobiles have caused permanent hearing loss to Inuit Eskimos in the Eastern Arctic community of Pangnirtung. Snowmobiles are important in even more appalling: 83 per cent of the village's men have suffered permanent damage.

In the North, snowmobiles have been indispensable. In many cases making dog teams obsolete. Because noise of snowmobiles for hunting and fishing expeditions, sometimes operating their machines for as long as 14 hours a day.

The snowmobile has caused a minor social revolution in the North. Because the machines have done in easing the hard life of the Eskimo, it must be the damage. This need not be.

The McGill report's recommendation that our plugs be used by Eskimos operating snowmobiles for extended periods is not enough. The federal Government has a responsibility to order industry to muffle snowmobiles properly, the noise of which even many southern Canadians find unbearable. Urban Canada has exported enough mistakes to the North.

Divorce Around the World

Hamilton Spectator

Love makes the world go 'round? Well, not really.

Divorce, South African style: A wife was granted a divorce after her husband tried to electrocute her while she was taking a bath.

Divorce, French style: A young wife fell in love with another man. She tried to kill her husband by mixing poison in his wine, but he simply complained of the bitter taste and refused to drink. She fed him poisonous mushrooms, but he vomited them up. She gave him poison instead of sleeping pills, and he only complained of a headache. Finally she forced her new lover to kill her husband. Seeing times when he slept, but the knife broke after the third stab. When he was discharged from hospital a month later, the husband was charged with murder.

Divorce, Malaysian style: A court in Malaysia has ruled that a man married according to Chinese customary rites may unilaterally divorce his wife under the seven grounds laid down in an ancient Chinese law book: Disrespect for the husband's parents, talkativeness, jealousy, barrenness, theft, adultery. In the confession by the wife of any serious disease such as leprosy or smallpox. The husband in question had divorced his schoolgrapher wife by telling her

Psychological Services

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

It was with some concern that I read Mrs. Williamson's column in last night's paper. She has suggested me on a report which I asked at a combined meeting of the local ACLD and CEC chapters.

I addressed to the director of education a question concerning the present state of psychological services. I asked not about a "breakdown in psychological services" but rather about the effects of "the present day disruption in psychological services".

Beavers Just Too Busy to Live

By MARGARET HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

HILLIER — Hillier township council this week opened fire on squatters trespassing in Partridge Hollow.

A beaver lodge constructed without benefit of a building permit has created flooding problems as its tenants determinedly dammed a nearby culvert in the stream.

Although township workmen have unclogged the plugged culvert on several occasions, the persistent beavers have re-dammed it and now must be shot in an effort to stop flooding.

Yesterday morning Hillier roads superintendent Morley Minaker and truck driver Donald Alexander aided by Harry Alexander cleaned the culvert using a single plow to remove debris piled in it by the beavers.

A rope was tied to the plow, passed through the culvert and secured to a tractor at the other side of the road. The tractor was used to pull the plow through the drainage culvert.

Last night hunters kept a vigil at the dam to fire on the beavers as they continued operation.

Mr. Minaker said this is the first occasion in his 36 years as road superintendent that beavers have created a problem in the township.

A department of lands and forests spokesman, R. W. Ferguson, chief ranger at Napanee said today a regulation to allow the shooting of beaver was introduced approximately 10 years ago.

Until recently, Prince Edward County did not have a large enough beaver population to create a nuisance.

Mr. Ferguson said there is "nothing new and unusual" in shooting the breed-tailed master engineers and it is done on a legal basis.

He explained the increase in the beaver count here is being appraised through increased complaints, especially in the flat lands.

Land owners can shoot the beaver if they inform the ministry of the number killed.

If the problem areas damaged by beaver are kept open until the trapping season opens on November 1, the department of lands and forests will send a trapper to eliminate the animals.

At this time of year, however, the beaver are in poor coat and their pelts have little value on the market.

Mr. Ferguson reported that 15 years ago beaver were trapped by the department and removed to other areas for release.

He said the animals were captured in 30-pound traps which resemble Gladstone suitcases. A notch was cut in the dam and the trap was set to be triggered by the beaver as they swam there.

This highly humane method of disposing of nuisance beaver was complicated by a transportation factor.

Mr. Ferguson, who at one time numbered this among his duties, noted the trapped beaver complete with 30-pound traps often had to be carried half a mile to a waiting vehicle. "It became such a burden it was no longer possible," he added.

Beaver now are trapped in this way only when requests are received for one of these industrious animals as a fall fair exhibit.

Mr. Ferguson observed in his past 15 years with the department he has watched the beaver grow to a huge population in the north end of Hastings County. The overflow of beaver has spread to Prince Edward, Kingston and Wolf Island and may be due to a cycle or to government management.

He described the present beaver population as the largest in 100 years.

Government management could have influenced a beaver boom after the last war when each trapper was limited to one beaver for each beaver house.

In the 18 years that, followed, Mr. Ferguson said this regulation had great effect.

Mr. Ferguson said it is unusual for beaver to pioneer housing developments in Prince Edward since poplar, their favorite food is not plentiful here. They also have learned on a bodge podge of willow, birch and other trees, this misguided ingenuity are fitting on the luckless engineers.

Mr. Ferguson said the beaver causes no real damage except where flooding is concerned because of their dams.

He described them as "persistent little brutes" and said if a dam is destroyed by man the beavers will rebuild it promptly.

At this time of year beaver become aggressive in their dam building since they are preparing for winter. Logs and small sticks are submerged for their food supply when they snack throughout the cold months.

The dams are at their highest level now as beaver scheme to float wood held in their teeth.

The chief ranger offered a tribute to the beaver when he remarked that the average man is incapable of building a dam without cement. The beaver does this swiftly and well. "They are very ingenious," concluded Mr. Ferguson.

At Partridge Hollow, hunters with no appreciation for this misguided ingenuity are firing on the luckless engineers.

Beaver Trouble

The persistence of beaver in keeping this Hillier township culvert plugged despite repeated clearings by road crew has signed the death warrant of the well-meaning rodents. The beaver have continually plugged the culvert to raise the water level of Partridge Hollow and council has decided to destroy the animals. Roads Superintendent Morley Minaker holds arrest of debris used by the beaver to plug the culvert.

Report Seeks to Cut Red Tape

From the Toronto Bureau Of The Intelligencer

TORONTO — Recommendations to cut red tape and return some authority to councils will form the basis of a select committee report to the legislature on the Ontario Municipal Board, says John MacBeth, chairman.

To speed up procedures the board is expected to recommend a quota system for debentures, direct application to the minister for annexation plans, and an end to the court room system of conducting hearings.

Mr. MacBeth said the committee wants to find ways to reduce the workload of the board in areas of zoning, annexation, assessment, and debentures.

The Toronto lawyer said he foresees a debenture quota system whereby municipal councils can obtain funds up to a fixed amount without board approval. Such a quota system, he said, would end the need for "routine matters" as in the case of a $5,000 road project. At present all debenture plans are submitted to the board for approval.

Another recommendation seeks to permit municipalities to submit annexation plans directly to the minister for final approval. Annexation hearings are time consuming because of the court system which is followed.

"The big hurdle is no longer getting council approval for plans, it is getting board approval," he said.

Mr. MacBeth said committee members are questioning the usefulness of the adversary system which sets the board up as a "severe court".

Because of the heavy workload resulting from the scope of the board combined with the court system, dealing with applications, long delays are resulting, said Mr. MacBeth. A case may take several months before reaching the board and then it is dealt with in a matter of minutes, he said.

The chief objection to the board, as it exists, is the amount of technical procedure which a municipality must go through in filing an application.

Mr. MacBeth said the committee can do its best work in introducing recommendations for legislation to reduce the workload and thus speed up the process.

Premier William Davis, in announcing the formation of the committee June 30, set six guidelines for the 11 members to follow. He wanted a report containing recommendations on the purpose, jurisdiction, structure, procedures, appeal process, and board relationship with provincial government, local government, and citizens.

No Need to Plot For Sincere Love

Dear Landers: I have been reading your column for a long time and believe that you give very sensible advice. But I think you could do a little better with one problem that pops up often. Even though you didn't ask for my help, I'm going to offer it because I've had some practical experience in this area and you haven't.

I am referring to women over 24 who have been going with a guy five or six years and they can't get the dude to make it legal. These dames need a lesson in the plan that works. You might not consider my plan honorable, but believe me, it's a great way to find out if the guy will ever marry you—or if he's worth marrying at all.

Tell him you're pregnant and check his reaction. If he says the baby can't possibly be his and accuses you of cheating on him, or gets mad and tells you how dumb you are for getting pregnant, or offers to give you

MARITAL PROBLEMS

KUALA LUMPUR (AP) — Malaysian policemen have been warned that they can be fired for having too many wives. The inspector-general's office said some men with three or four wives had become inefficient because of family squabbles. Eighty percent of Malaysian policemen are Moslems, allowed up to four wives at a time under Islamic law.

The New Morality -- Complete Confusion

By DORIS LAKE

We hear a great deal about the 'new' morality and what this ought to mean to young people. What it has meant to many of them is complete confusion. What it has meant to others is going along with the crowd".

It seems to me every young person has to make the decision about his own behavior himself; and then be ready to take any consequences.

There is a college chaplain who has written a book about it. He examines several behavior within and outside of marriage, from the standpoint of "situation ethics".

He makes an argument for an enlightened approach to human sexuality; and against a rigid rule-oriented approach to decision-making.

The book is full young unmarried adults, but it should appeal to anyone, young or old, who is concerned about moving people in general and the individual in particular toward a humane and meaningful morality.

Dear Doris: My husband of one year has to be on the go constantly. His nights are booked solidly. None of these activities include me.

I have confronted him about doing something with me one night a week. He says there isn't time.

Then I decided to be very busy and show him that two could play this. Instead of being hurt, this is just what he likes.

But it is not what I like, without him. — Lonely Though Married

Dear Lonely: My guess is he has lacked creative satisfaction in the past, and is finding self-expression and importance by being a "joiner" now. It is ok., even good, for husband and wife to have some activities apart, but there's a limit!

He has not yet realized just how fulfilling a happy marriage can be. You need interests you can pursue together, at least part of the time. You need things to talk about and you need to share your ideas. Perhaps when the babies start to come he will take a look at this. He is supposed to be making for himself.

I suggest a talk with a social worker — and a few activities of your own outside your home. But don't let yourself go stale and make use of this transition time (for I feel he will change) to improve a skill, make a friend, or do something enjoyable for your community.

Dear Doris: I am interested that there are now several branches of the Canadian Association For Children With Learning Disabilities. I am enclosing 10 cents and want Camilla M. Anderson helpful. The title is "Jane, My Brain Damaged Daughter".

While Doctor Anderson points out that it is not easy to decide just what the term "normal" means, the consideration that there is a group whose behavior is different from the majority, in some ways.

She adds, "there are, in fact, some experts in the field who regard these people as suffering not so much from brain damage, as from a mechanical failure to integrate the various sensory modalities."

Incidentally, I had just read the book by Doctor Anderson when you had a quotation from it in your column. Her story makes our problems small by comparison. — A Parent Neighbor Helps

Dear Parent: Others will also find the book by Doctor Anderson reveals hope and encouragement with time. The unfortunate aspect of this conclusion is that for countless people it simply is not true."

Efforts are being made now to help with this "normal lag" where it does exist, and to discover ways to get around the obstacles to learning which certain children have from very early years.

Doris can help you with that puzzling decision. Write to her, enclosing a stamped, self - addressed envelope for private reply.

Miss Joan MacDonald, RN, BN, MA Director, The Ontario College of Nurses chats with Lee Grills MP and J. W. Deacon, Chairman, Board of Directors, in the Edith Cavell Regional School of Nursing library yesterday afternoon. Later, she gave an address for the school's official opening and cut the ribbon.

NSA's First Fashion Endeavor

Canada has come to the fashion world and last evening, members of the National Secretaries' Association, Bay of Quinte Chapter gave an illustration of fashion designers' latest creations for "Great Autumn '72 with Fashion and Flair" in the BCIVS auditorium. Over 30 fashions mostly Canadian accessorized by the latest shoe styles from Montreal, the shoe capital of the world, were modelled.

The 13 models, who ranged in sizes from junior to mature figures, chose their own fashions. Jackson - McIlveer who was selected for the Province of Ontario's Judy Award last year, the Oscar of the fashion world, showed the latest creations for career women.

Mrs. Marlene Phillips, commentator, began the show saying, "A little planning and a little imagination and you'll be the girl that gets the second look". Co-ordinates with skirts, jackets, sweaters and pants were shown for casual or business wear in mix and match combinations. Palazzo pants or dance pants, a new style on the market now, appear in the high waist.

For the cold wintery days, the furry hood and trim are styled to knee or below-knee lengths. The freezing mind is gone. There is a slight hint of the 30's in winter coats as well as several pant suit designs.

In evening wear, whether entertaining or partying, the Oriental look was introduced to the audience. The Kabucki dress which features a mandarin collar with comfortable high waist has been created in vivid colors.

Shoes and handbags modelled previewed the return of the sling-back low heel in soft suedes, wet look and plain leather. For the Palazzo pants, the five-inch heel is ideal.

Modelling for the first NSA fashion endeavor were: Mrs. Helen Asselstine, Miss Bonnie Burley, Mrs. Catharine Ellis, Mrs. Phyllis Graham, Mrs. Marian Hunter, Mrs. Ann Kay, Mrs. Mary Ketcheson, Mrs. Barbara Miller, Mrs. Fay Morden, Mrs. Kathryn Pfeiffer, Miss Linda Whitehead, Mrs. Moira Williams and Mrs. Helen Vice.

TOO BUSY TO RETIRE—Lotta Hitschmanova, founder and executive director of the Unitarian Service Committee of Canada, works in her Ottawa office on the committee's annual drive for funds and gifts of used clothing. A former newspaper woman in her native Czechoslovakia, Dr. Hitschmanova usually works seven days a week, averaging 14 hours a day. She says she hasn't time to retire. (CP Photo)

No Time to Retire Says Director

OTTAWA (CP) — Lotta Hitschmanova says she hasn't time to retire.

The founder and executive director of the Unitarian Service Committee of Canada says she usually works seven days a week, averaging 14 hours a day. In the last 12 months, she has had eight days of rest.

"The only thing that would force me to retire is illness," she says. "Fortunately I'm so strong. My doctors are amazed."

She insists the day will never come when her task of providing clothing, food, shelter, education and Canadian foster homes for tens of thousands of needy third world inhabitants is complete.

Her chin narrows with the dedication that has characterized her 27 years of service committee work in Canada.

Dr. Hitschmanova is busy launching the annual drive for funds and gifts of used clothing. The campaigns opened Sept. 11 and continues until Christmas. This year's goal is the largest ever—$1.5 million to finance more than 100 projects in 13 countries.

The Unitarian Service Committee's newest projects were begun in Bangladesh last year to provide emergency aid and housing to Bengali war victims.

"I guess you could call my job an emotional one. . . . Some of the scenes I saw during my travels last year still haunt me.

"They spur me on and do not allow me to take any rest."

She declines to discuss her past, except to say she has never married and was forced to flee Czechoslovakia alone when the Second World War broke out, leaving her family behind. She worked in France in 1941 with the American USC, helping refugees blacklisted by Hitler.

"My whole life today belongs to the public. My private life and memories must be mine alone."

The almost constant touring proves both a physical and emotional strain.

"I go from utter bliss at seeing some of our tremendous successes . . . to total despair. There are so many areas of need and yet so often the USC has to say no. We're utterly overcommitted. It's heartbreaking."

Despite the apparent abundance of voluntary agencies, Dr. Hitschmanova insists that the total need has still not been satisfied.

"There is underlapping of work overseas. Only in the developed countries . . . is there overlapping of emergency aid."

Lotta Hitschmanova has become for many people the personification of the entire Canadian USC—a label she tries to escape.

"It's not a one-woman-army job," she insists.

"The USC has so many friends without whose help we could not continue our projects."

Rose Trial Is Adjourned

MONTREAL (CP) — Jacques Rose's second trial on a charge of kidnapping former labor minister Pierre Laporte of Quebec has been adjourned until an appeal has been heard by the Quebec Court of Appeal on the first trial.

Rose also is charged with non-capital murder in Mr. Laporte's death in October, 1970.

At the start of a day of legal wrangling, Mr. Justice Noel Barbeu of Court of Queen's Bench postponed trial on both charges until November.

Mr. Jacques Barbeu adjourned proceedings Wednesday until Monday when the 118 jury candidates for the second trial are to be informed of the postponement.

The first trial on the kidnap charge ended May 11 with a hung jury and a new trial was ordered by Mr. Justice Eugene Marquis, the presiding judge.

Defence lawyer Robert Lemieux appealed Mr. Justice Marquis's refusal to recuse me the first jury in the kidnap case.

The appeal, filed in June, has not been heard, preventing the start of a second trial on the charge.

The Crown refuses to proceed with the non-capital murder trial until the second kidnap trial has been completed.

Sampshire Greens Subject of Study

HILLSBOROUGH, N.B. (CP) — Crithmum maritimum, commonly known as sampshire grass, doesn't require saline soil to survive, is mentioned in Shakespeare's King Lear, and might be economically feasible under cultivation.

These are some of the more interesting facts turned up by two young people from this small Albert County community in a study they carried out this summer on a $3,796 Student Opportunities for Youth grant.

Alexandra (Sandy) Porter and Wade Wilson decided last April to apply for the grant to undertake a biological, economic and cultural study of the diminutive plant that abounds on the salt marshes along the Petitcodiac River and Shepody Bay.

Twenty-year-old Sandy, a fourth-year psychology major at Mount Allison University in Sackville, N.B., admitted she still doesn't like the taste of the greens cooked. "But they're not bad raw." She had never eaten them before the study began.

Wade, who graduated from the town's high school earlier in the year, had eaten the greens as a traditional family dish for most of his 18 years.

He says they learned that the greens, which come into season about July 1 and are past their peak by the middle of August, can be pickled, frozen, boiled or simply eaten uncooked.

The first settlers in the region depended on pickled sampshire greens to help them through the winters until fresh produce could be grown in the spring.

The greens are still gathered by many people in the area who consider them a delicacy, although a telephone survey carried out by the students showed that more than half of the people interviewed hadn't eaten the greens or even heard of them.

Stores in the town and nearby Moncton sell greens picked by local residents for prices ranging from 50c to 75 cents a pound. And at Shediac-Cape, Sandy decided, it shouldn't be too difficult to make more money. She and Wade observed "all we could carry" in a garbage bag in about 30 minutes.

Whether it is possible to cultivate the greens is another matter. The study showed the plant, although it tolerates saline soil where few other forms of vegetation will survive, will grow on salt-free land. It seems the plant's occurrence on marshes is chiefly due to lack of competition from other plant life.

Egg Board Rule Vetoed

MONTREAL (CP) — The Court of Appeal ruled Wednesday that Quebec's egg marketing board regulations are unconstitutional when applied to shipments from other provinces.

The ruling by three of five judges in the province's highest court overturned a decision last September by a Superior Court judge who rejected an injunction petition presented by an Ontario wholesaler.

The court's decision coincided with an order by FEDCO, the egg marketing board, and the Quebec agricultural marketing board to stop applying regulations instituted in May, 1971, against Rudy Krall and Sons Ltd., of Perrolia, Que.

The court also ordered the Quebec agricultural department authorities to reimburse the company for the seizure and sale of 1,238 cases of eggs in June, 1971.

The injunction petition attacked the validity of the FEDCO regulations as applying to eggs produced outside Quebec on the grounds that the province could not legislate restrictions governing interprovincial, national or international commerce.

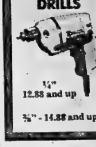
The majority opinion was expressed by Mr. Justices Edouard Rinfret, George R. W. Owen and Antoine Rivard. Mr. Justices Roger Brossard and Francois Lajoie dissented.

The majority ruling was that the lower court judge was wrong in declining to consider the constitutionality of the Agriculture Marketing Act and regulations adopted under its authority.

Mr. Justice Rivard recalled that Mr. Krall testified that 75 per cent of his egg business has been done in Quebec prior to the FEDCO regulations and that the province imports 45 per cent of its eggs needs from other provinces and outside the country.

Pair Sentenced

CHATHAM, Ont. (CP) — Two Chatham men were sentenced to penitentiary terms Wednesday for indecently assaulting a teen-age couple last August.



Dan Eugene Pryor, 22, was given a three-year sentence for an attack on a 17-year-old girl and Frank Edward Crosby was sentenced to four years for indecently assaulting her 16-year old male companion.

Mr. Justice J. G. O'Driscoll said it was "shocking" such an incident could happen in a park in the centre of a city.

Doctor Wins Suit Against Hospital

TORONTO (CP) — Mr. Jus- graduate of the University of tice D. A. Keith of the Ontario Supreme Court has awarded a doctor from nearby Richmond Hill $5,000 and costs against a Toronto clinic hospital for the wrongful dismissal.

The judge found that Dr. William Bigelow, a 1957 medical log to be opened in the spring of 1971.

Mr. Justice Keith held that Dr. Bigelow's conduct in no way justified his dismissal and that he was entitled to damages for wrongful dismissal and reinstatement in his former position.

Dr. Bigelow had claimed $9,600 for loss of wages, $50,000 for loss of reputation and costs.

The doctor testified that he and his colleagues went out to look at some real estate and were gone for about 90 minutes.

Judge Keith said there was overwhelming evidence that Dr. Bigelow is a dedicated young doctor and there was no evidence that his slightly prolonged absence had an serious consequences.

Man Acquitted

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — An Ontario Supreme Court jury acquitted Frank Delaney, 34, of Muncey, Ont., Wednesday of an eight-count charge of fraud Joseph French, 32, also of Muncey.

Delaney was charged with the fatal shooting of French last July 27 in nearby Muncey.

Delaney had pleaded self defence, saying he lived in terror of French and that he was try to protect himself.

Delaney testified that French came out of a Muncey store and threatened him. He said he thought French was going to throw a knife at him.

Court was told the men had been feuding for the last five years.

Youth Worker Attacks Government Handouts

TORONTO (CP) — A former youth worker in Toronto's Yorkville district has written a book in which she attacks government grants to individuals and groups in the alternate culture.

Called The Big Rip-Off, the book was privately printed by Erna Kalman.

She said in an interview that printing cost her $6,000, which she paid with the help of her friends. Her share of the $1.50 retail price is 40 cents, and will make her $36,000 less printing costs, if it sells out.

She claims she advances in the book rests on two points: The so-called alternate culture does not have the answers to social ills and Ottawa is behaving unfairly by forcing working taxpayers to pay bills for the few grants.

She says the grants have created "a breed of professional citizens who succeed to be sustained."

"That is a very dangerous thing because it is stripping them of their integrity."

Alderman-Lawyer In Favor of OMB

TORONTO (CP) — Hamilton Controller Brennan Turkstra chairman Wednesday that land developers are sometimes forced by delaying tactics of municipal politicians by a form of "sophisticated corruption."

He told a legislature committee studying the Ontario Municipal Board that developers sometimes offer fat legal fees to get favorable votes from politicians.

Mr. Turkstra, also a member of the Hamilton planning board said shortly after he was elected his law firm was of fered the chance to represent a real estate agent in a major land deal.

He testified that a check revealed the people involved in the purchase also were involved in a controversial project he had to vote on as a member of the planning board.

"No one ever called me and said that if I voted a certain way the fees on the big deal would be mine," he said.

"No one had to call. the message in a very sophisticated way was clear."

It is one thing for grant recipients to practise their doctoring the ways it is another thing for them to do it at public expense.

She singles out the Opportunities for Youth Program and the Local Initiatives Program as disastrous giveaways.

She said she could have spent more time on research and writing but said:

"I hurried it up Joe to the (federal) election."

Gets 10 Years

CHATHAM, On. (CP) — Gerardus Deves, 21, of nearby Dresden, was sentenced Wednesday to 10 years in penitentiary for the rifle slaying of another Dresden man in August, 1971.

Deves, originally charged with non-capital murder, was convicted of manslaughter last week in the death of Fred Richardson, 23.

Court was told the shooting occurred in the town dump after Deves' wife, who had been living with Richardson, refused to return to Deves.

Mistakes Admitted

SLAVE LAKE, Alta. (CP) — There have been "slip-offs" and mistakes of the department, Hillier Department of Regional Economic Expansion and other government industry programs, Jean Marchand, minister of the department, said Wednesday.

But, he said in an interview, criticism made by Davel Lewis, leader of the New Democratic Party, had no basis in truth or were based on selective statistics.

Mr. Marchand and Al Adair, Alberta minister without portfolio, signed an agreement renewing federal-provincial economic development of the area.

Under the agreement, Ottawa will supply $9 million in loans and grants to the province for projects including road, school sewer and water and expansion of the Slave Lake Airport runways.

Law for Writers Revision Touchy

QUEBEC (CP) — Legislation relating to the professional secrecy of journalists should be worked out slowly and gradually, the dean of the law faculty at Laval University told a legislature committee on press freedom Wednesday.

Robert Reid said the administration of justice certainly would be improved if a journalist was obligated to reveal his sources of information.

"But it is preferable to have a little less administrative justice in order to guarantee the public information to which it has a right," Mr. Reid said.

The dean and Emilien D. Lemoignan, also of Laval University's law faculty, published a report last June saying that the government must protect the professional secrecy of journalists on the condition that certain restrictions are left to the discretion of the courts.

Mr. Reid said it is essential that journalists be given the same professional recognition as lawyers, notaries or doctors and that they establish their own code of ethics.

More Grants Offered... But

NORTH BATTLEFORD, Sask. (CP) — Having drawn widespread attention to his campaign on "corporate rip-offs," NDP Leader David Lewis surprised at least some of his listeners here Wednesday by saying even more grant should be afforded to industry.

But two new conditions should be attached, he told more than 300 wheatland residents who were jammed into a school auditorium as a fall snowflurry settled outside.

Only Canadian companies should benefit from government incentive grants, he said, and the government should then have equity or part ownership in firms accepting them.

This would put an end to government encouragement of "low sell-out of Canadian firms to foreign-owned corporations" and through part ownership, give the government more control over company operations. As it is now, he said, a corporation can take federal money and then, a few years later, pull up stakes and move elsewhere.

The "corporate cookie jar" joked Mr. Lewis's stock of campaign slogans during the evening rally as he charged the government's regional economic expansion department with the granting of billions of unproductive incentive grants. His attack on the program was based on its "haphazard and planless" administration rather than its basic principle of fighting regional disparity, a principle that the NDP "endorses wholeheartedly."

But, he said, "hundreds of Canada's most successful corporations have had their sticky fingers into the cookie jar that has become known as DREE—the department of regional economic expansion—and if you were to compare it to the amount spent on social assistance for people, you would see people get only crumbs.

"The cookies and cakes go to corporations with fat assets squirrel on the rich diet of tax incentives and grants spoon-fed to them by the Liberals and Tory governments. The NDP on the other hand, was the "party of the people, not the hand-maidens of the corporations."

Five new companies—all foreign-owned—were added by the Trudeau Liberals' backer to his "honor list of corpora's welfare bums." The companies, he said, have all been promised unnecessary millions by "corporate magnates" Jean Marchand, minister of DREE.

The major addition to the roll is that of Computing Devices of Canada Ltd., a firm Mr. Lewis said received nearly $11 million in incentive grants before being taken over two years ago by Control Data Ltd. of the U.S. Now, he said, the computer company has been promised another $7½ million by the trade department for construction of a new plant.

The other grant beneficiaries joining the roll are Procter and Gamble Ltd., $1.1 million; Union Carbide Ltd., $1.2 million; B. F. Goodrich Ltd., $1.1 million; and IBM Ltd., 36 million.

Over the last six years, $417 million in "so-called 'incentive grants'" have been handed out, said Mr. Lewis, to "corporate panhandlers who have cynically asked: "Can you spare a million, buddy?"

Repeating his earlier claim that Northern Electric Ltd. laid off 2,000 workers during the same five-year period in which it was granted $38 million, he called it "hogwash" that the incentives create work.

"All they have created is a corporate rip-off that has unequal in the industrial world."

Earlier in the day, about 30 wheat farmers stood pointedly outside Blaine Lake, Sask., community hall while a chartered bus brought the NDP leader from Saskatoon or drizzle from Saskatoon.

Blaine Lake, with a population of 300, is a typical Saskatchewan farm town with its row of tall grain elevators towering over the railway line and the false-front buildings along the unpaved main street. Mr. Lewis told the farmers and their wives that "the NDP is a people's party" and would fight to preserve the "human relations of rural Canada.

"One of the dangers of our society is bigness," he said, and added that a healthy farm life is worth much more than a crowded existence in Toronto, his own hometown.

It's The Real Thing

Wagner Tagged 'Law and Order Man'

GRANBY, Que. (CP) — The "law and order man!"

The English exclamation in a French milieu caused perhaps the heartiest laughter of the day when Claude Wagner, campaign leader of Quebec's Conservatives, began a three-day swing through the Eastern Townships Wednesday.

The words were spoken by a workman at a nearby Watelon mushroom cannery when he came unexpectedly face-to-face with Mr. Wagner, who promptly grabbed him by the hand.

"C'est ca, c'est ca—that's it, that's it," said Mr. Wagner, joining in the laughter.

But the campaign indicates that the handsome candidates seeking a broader image have a public mind—no matter how proud he may be of the law- and-order label has followed him from his early crime-busting days as Montreal crown prosecutor.

The 47-year-old former radio and one-time Quebec Liberal justice minister is putting emphasis on problems of employment and cost of living, plus his charge that Prime Minister Trudeau's version of bilingualism is dangerously rigid.

"I am a federalist," Mr. Wagner declared. "I believe federalism has all the advantages for the happiness of the population. We have to interpret the Canadian constitution in the same spirit as Confederation."

Factory Conditions

Union Aims At Assembly Lines

DETROIT (AP) — The United Auto Workers say they'll force auto-makers to "humanize" the assembly lines, hire more workers and give more paid time off, perhaps as much as an extra month a year, in 1973.

Leonard Woodcock, head of the UAW's Ford Motor Co. department, gave the first formal glimpse of the union's plans when he spoke to the UAW's National Ford Council here Tuesday.

UAW officials said one reason they will stress non-monetary issues is that they expect President Nixon to be re-elected and a new, stiffer wage freeze to be imposed.

"We've heard indications the limit might be as low as 4.7 per cent," one official said. "And if we can't get our fair share in the pay envelope, we'll get it this way. Besides, the time is right to do something about factory and assembly line conditions."

UAW contracts with Ford, General Motors and Chrysler expire next September. Bannon said the largest company has not been chosen.

As we go into the 1973 auto negotiations," Bannon told the 200 UAW local officials from Ford plants, "we have to do something about the conditions employees work under."

Fatigue, he said, conditions fill people with dread. Some the thought of entering the plant every day. And they become so frustrated they take it out not only on their fellow men, but on the product."

Both Ford and General Motors officials have indicated they will fight any attempt to change the operation on the assembly lines, he said. "But we will present the issue and we will fight for it."

Bannon also offered a proposal for 10 per cent more paid time off—32 work'ng days a year—and said it would not cause expensive plant shutdowns because it would force the auto-makers to take 10 per cent more workers.

He said overtime must be reduced so more workers can be hired and present workers can enjoy their leisure.

Auto workers went on strike against General Motors at the big Norwood plant near Cincinnati for 174 days, mainly over working conditions.

The strike was the longest against a GM plant and was settled Wednesday when UAW Local 674 ratified a new contract at the GM Assembly Division at Norwood. Apparently there was no assurance the major grievances had been settled.

The contract, approved by a 964-to-28 per cent margin by the plant's non-skilled workers and a 94-to-4 per cent margin among the skilled workers, satisfied the employees' seniority, overtime and shift preference grievances.

But Richard Minter, Local 674 president, said the international UAW organization had said for 174 days, mainly over production standards grievances be dropped.

Trudeau

Won't Change Right to Strike Law

WINNIPEG (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau said Wednesday that federal legislation giving public servants the right to strike has been so successful he will not change it at this time.

He said a news conference here that few strikes resulted from legislation passed under the Pearson government. Regardless of his personal feelings, said the prime minister, he would not tinker with a law that boasted a 98-per-cent success rate.

Mr. Trudeau got a warm reception in four hours of vote-seeking in Regina earlier Wednesday.

Some 2,500 students watched the prime minister deal easily with questions from the floor and an open-line radio program on CKCK.

About 1,000 students, who have their first vote in a federal election, jammed into a school gym to watch Mr. Trudeau live. Another 1,500 saw the prime minister on closed-circuit television.

Later more than 1,200 persons crowded a downtown theatre for a rally on behalf of two Liberal candidates in the Regina ridings. Both seats now are held by New Democrats.

At the high school, Mr. Trudeau said the words he utttered in a man's ear in Van-

Macdonald Raps 'Tory Rednecks'

MONTREAL (CP) — Energy Minister Donald Macdonald said Wednesday night the Liberals face stiffer opposition in the campaign for the Oct. 30 election than they did in 1968. He criticized some aspects of the Progressive Conservative attack on the government.

"There is opposition this time. This is not 1968 all over again," he said at a Liberal rally.

Mr. Macdonald said "there is the same quality of meanness and pettiness in those who are going Conservative".

He referred to "Tory rednecks" whom he described as couver last weekend were "between him and me." If Nick Shagala, who demonstrated against the Vietnam war, was the kind of man to "appeal to the mass," then he could invest anything he wanted to.

This was a reference to Mr. Trudeau's telling the Shagala

English-speaking Ontario residents who can't stand French-Canadians.

"They do more harm to national unity than anything Mr. (Rene) Levesque could do."

Mr. Macdonald referred to a speech this week by Claude Wagner, Conservative campaign leader in Quebec, and said Mr. Wagner was being enlisted.

"Mr. Wagner can well go to Toronto and accuse the prime minister of threatening confederation, but his friends in Ontario are themselves against French - Canadian representation in Ottawa."

Stanfield

Body to Be 'Nation's Conscience'

NORTH VANCOUVER, B.C. (CP) — Robert Stanfield outlined a five-point Conservative environment policy Wednesday night under which pollution of the air, water and land probably would receive tougher treatment.

He also continued his fight with Prime Minister Trudeau over the state of unemployment insurance finances, charging the prime minister with apparent "backdoor dictatorship."

The environment policy was unveiled in Capilano constituency of Environment Minister Jack Davis before a cheering crowd that jammed a small theatre which fire officials said had a capacity of about 700 persons.

"This must not be a matter of political squabbling or fee constitutional nitpicking," he said.

"This is an urgent national problem that demands national solutions."

The five points:

—Establishment of a national environmental council which would publicize relevant facts about pollution and advise both the federal government and Parliament on how to combat them.

Mr. Stanfield said this group would be the "conscience of the nation."

—An urgent study on the development of a large-scale anti-pollution industry. This was in answer to statements by Mr. Davis that jobs come before fighting pollution. "I say we can and must do both because both are urgent," Mr. Stanfield said.

—Action with the provinces to review pollution laws and where necessary stiffen penalties for polluting land, water and air. Mr. Stanfield said fines set by the Liberal government are totally inadequate and amount to a licence to pollute.

—Land regulations covering all territorial seas to govern the movement of dangerous cargoes.

—A strengthened environment department where the present "patchwork quilt" would be replaced by a department with authority to deal with all matters of pollution control.

In his continuing unemployment insurance financing fight with Mr. Trudeau, Mr. Stanfield said that at Medicine Hat, Alta., earlier this week Mr. Trudeau had said the scheme is running several millions of dollars in defecit.

The prime minister had said it was known when the scheme was changed last year that "gobs" of federal money would be needed and that, in the words of Mr. Stanfield, the government made a "conscious decision to take this course to stimulate the economy."

"If this is true, such action constitutes the most fantastic scandal since 1926 when the Liberal government of that day blackened the honor of Parliament."

This was a reference to the use of money by the St. Laurent government to end the pipeline debate.

"If it is true, Mr. Trudeau has in fact confessed to running a kind of backdoor dictatorship," Mr. Stanfield said

"If it is true it is a scandal that strikes at the very soul of our system of government."

Strip Palace Edict Given

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Four Starr's Strip Palace, convicted last February of permitting an indecent performance to be presented, had their convictions quashed Wednesday.

At the same time, the conviction and fine of $600 against the company through which the four operated the premises was upheld by County Judge T. J. Jacob.

Convictions and fines of $100 each against three strippers at Tracy Starr's, Yani Johns of Toronto, Bea McDaniels and Marie Matthews, both of Montreal, will be appealed before an Ontario Supreme Court Judge today in Toronto.

The strippers were convicted last February, the same time the then-owners of Tracy Starr's Pagioni and Neda Nicoloff of Toronto and Murray Kirsh and Martin Blendelman of London, were fined $150 on each of three charges of permitting an indecent performance on three consecutive days in August, 1971.

At the outset of Wednesday's hearing, the crown attorney said he agreed with the appeal against the former owners but did not elaborate. Th motion of appeal said it was based solely "on the grounds of fact and law."

Witness Saw Men Kicking Companion

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — A 46-year-old Quebec man testified Wednesday he saw five men kicking his travelling companion after leaving a wooded area in north London where they had lunch last July 26.

"I turned around," said Jean Jacques Renier. "Andre Tremblay was on the ground. And the five were on top. All five were kicking."

Renier's testimony came on the third day of the trial of five men charged with the non-capital murder of the 35-year-old Tremblay of Baie St. Paul, Que.

The five, who have pleaded not guilty, are Bernard Pierre Joseph Laperle, 32, Normand Joseph Lanoie, 26, Pierre Loubier, 27, Jean Paul Lacourciere, 47, and Jean Louis Huot, 32, all of no fixed address.

Renier said that when he looked back "I saw the men in the woods. . . ." He said he kept walking because he was "afraid" and the five men rejoined him and returned to a downtown bar.

Renier, testifying through an interpreter, said he and Tremblay travelled to London by bus from Montreal, arriving July 25. He was going to Ipperwash, near Sarnia, to work Renier said.

He said he and Tremblay met Loubier and Lanoie at the Salvation Army. The four went in a park in the city's north end where they met the other three accused men.

The seven of them walked to another park where they drank wine and beer and ate lunch, Renier testified.

About 3 p.m. they were leaving the park, walking along a dirt road, when he heard the words "nut good," Renier testified.

He turned and saw the five men kicking Tremblay, he said. He kept walking, turned again and saw the men in chest-high weeds. He could not see what the men were doing in the weeds, he said.

He continued walking and was joined by the five men.

The trial continues.

College Named

TORONTO (CP) — One of Ontario's two new community colleges has named itself Canadore—a combination of Canada and Northern Corridor.

Canadore, which was the North Bay campus of Cambrian College in Sudbury for several years, was made lodger status by the provincial government earlier this summer. It has 630 day and 1,200 evening students.

The Sault Ste. Marie campus of Cambrian also was separated but has yet to choose a name.

Jet Service

SUDBURY (CP) — Air Canada will replace all Viscount turbo-prop aircraft on direct flights between Sudbury and Toronto with DC-9 jet service starting Oct. 29.

A company spokesman said this will mean increased passenger capacity and shorter travelling time. There will be no reduction on the number of flights.

Peter Pemberton, Air Canada manager for Northern Ontario, said the airline now has 1,954 seats weekly to Toronto but use of the jets will bring this total to 2,585 seats weekly—an increase of 23 per cent.

WHA Applies Finish

TORONTO (CP) — The World Hockey Association is experimenting with a shooting-gallery finish to decide who, if anyone, is what would otherwise be a tie game.

Colored pucks are also among the changes the WHA hopes to introduce to hockey when the league's 11 teams open their first season Oct. 16.

The league's rule book, now being printed, contains basically the same rules as apply to the National Hockey League, said Lee Meade.

But perhaps the most important difference is that the WHA will have a sudden-death, 10-minute overtime period if games are tied at the end of regulation time.

That period is the rule book but the league is also experimenting with the shooting-gallery finish in some of its exhibition games, although the league spokesman sounded skeptical as the chances of it being adopted this season.

The purpose of the shoot-out would be to produce a winner if there was no scoring in the 10-minute sudden-death overtime.

The shoot-out would be conducted this way:

Each coach would select several of his best shooters. Starting with a player from the visiting team, the teams would take turns handing a shooter to face the opposing goalie as on a penalty-shot situation.

Other rule deficiencies with the NHL involve the Reid man into a fight and forward passes.

The NHL's third-man-in rule calls for a game misconduct. The WHA rule calls for a 10 minute misconduct and a $100 fine but if the same player is in third man into a fight again in the same game, he is thrown out of the game.

WHA rules also will allow forward passes from the defending zone up to the opposing blue line providing the pass receiver does not cross the center red line before the puck. Such a pass would be called offside in the NHL.

Another WHA rule will eliminate icing the puck by a team killing off a penalty. That rule used to apply in international hockey but it has since been changed to conform with the NHL which allows a penalty-killing team to clear the puck from their defending zone down to the opposition's goal line.

Vickers Snaps Tie

Rookie Steve Vickers broke a 3-3 tie early in the third period Wednesday night to launch New York Rangers to a 6-4 win over New York Islanders.

It marked the first meeting between the two teams, the Islanders making their debut in the National Hockey League.

In other NHL exhibition action, Montreal Canadiens dumped Boston Bruins 6-3 at Halifax, N.S., Detroit Red Wings defeated Detroit Red Wings 5-3 at Windsor, Ont., Buffalo Sabres scored a home ice 7-3 victory from Chicago Black Hawks, Atlanta Flames whipped Pittsburgh Penguins 7-2 at Sudbury, Ont., and New Haven Nighthawks, a new American Hockey League franchise, held Minnesota North Stars 3-3 at New Haven.

Billy Harris, Islanders' No. 1 election in the NHL's universal junior draft last June, scored twice for the Islanders while Germain Gagnon and veteran Eddie Westfall collecting one apiece.

Steve Shutt's goal 36 seconds into the game and Montreal surging into a 4-0 first-period lead. Guy Lafleur added two

Espo on for 24 Goals...13 by Russia

MOSCOW (CP) — Paul Henderson of Toronto Maple Leafs has the most goals—six—going into tonight's final game of an eight-game Canada-Russia hockey series, but centre Phil Esposito of Boston Bruins and Alexander Yakushev are tied in the points race.

Each has played in all seven games.

Henderson has eight points on six goals and two assists; Esposito has the most points with eight on five goals and four assists.

Statistics kept by Ron Ashbrewer of the National Hockey League office show Esposito is by far the most prolific shooter in the series.

He has had 42 shots on goal and 75 shots at goal. Espo has been on the ice for 11 goals by his own team and for 13 by the Russians—the worst goals-against record in the tournament.

Leading in the frustration department is Russia's Alexander Maltsev. He has had 36 shots on the net and 52 shots at the net and has yet to score. He has four assists.

Shots on goal are those that either enter the net or are stopped by the goaltender. Shots at goal are those directed netward that are blocked by any player, such as defencemen or goaltender, or which go into the net.

Only two Canadians are into double figures in the goals-against column—Esposito and Brad Park of New York Rangers. Although Park has been on the ice for 12 goals scored by his own team—second only to Russian defenceman Vladimir Lutchenko—he has been out there for 11 goals scored by the Russians.

Going into the eighth game with the series tied 3-3-1, Russia has outscored the Canadian professionals 37-35. But Team Canada has had more shots on goal—231 to 200. The Soviet Union leads in shots at the goal—63 to 61.

In power-play goals, it's Russia 4 to 1 and in shorthanded goals the Russians lead 3-1. Canada has the lead in penalty shots, 100 to 63.

Of the three goaltenders used, Tony Esposito of Chicago Black Hawks has a slight edge in the averages. He has allowed 13 goals in four games for an average of 3.25. Vladislav Tretiak has allowed 25 goals in seven games for a 3.57 average.

Goalie Ken Dryden, slated to start the final game, has let in 14 goals in three games for a 4.67 average.

Bobby Clarke is the penalty leader with 18 minutes.

Canada, Russia Each Choose One Official

MOSCOW (CP) — Russian and Team Canada reached a compromise on officials for tonight's eighth and final game of their exhibition hockey series.

The conclusion ended a threat by the Canadians to not go through with the scheduled game if Iosef German referees selected by Soviet officials worked tonight's game.

A meeting, that concluded about 1 p.m. today Moscow time decided that both teams would have their choice of referees.

Team Canada selected as its first choice Uve Dahlberg of Sweden ahead of Czechoslovakia's Rudi Batja. The Soviets first choice was Josef Kompalla followed by Frans Baader.

Kompalla and Baader were scheduled to work the final game but after Sunday's game the Canadians advised Soviet hockey delegates they would not play unless Japanese TV sets and Dutch beer weren't banned at Moscow's Luzhniki attending the Canada-Russia hockey series but at the millions of capitalists watching the telecasts abroad.

A Swedish advertising agency bought the space from the Soviet government for a bargain $2,500 a sign. Sponsors of the telecasts pay up to $25,000 apiece to get their message on the air.

Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, sketched the background.

"Two days ago we reached agreement with the Russians that Uve Dahberg and Rudy Batja would work the seventh and eighth games.

"Now the Russians say they agreed only for the seventh game. They now insist on the two West Germans and there's no way we'll accept them. It looks serious. There could be no eighth game."

Under the original system, Canada and Russia alternated in the choice of referees. Under this rotation, Russia had the choice for the eighth game.

After Sunday's game, worked by the two West Germans, Josef Kompalla and Franz Baader, the Canadians called the referees "incompetent" and said they'd not be assigned to any more games.

Later the Canadians announced that the Russians had agreed.

When news the Russians were reneging reaching the scoring leader Phil Esposito, he said:

"We might just as well quit right now. If this happens I hope they don't even put me on the ice. We might as well give up and let the Russians have it. If these guys walk..."

Paul Henderson, leading the tournament in goals scored with six, said: "I don't often get upset but the last game they worked I nearly popped one of them."

Swedes Cash In

MOSCOW (CP) — Nyet, comrade—hockey fans, all those goodies advertised on the boards of the Moscow Sports Palace risk are not necessarily available at your friendly neighborhood Goum store.

Instead, the slogans in praise of American underwear, Canadian hockey sticks, Japanese TV sets and Dutch beer weren't missed at Muscovites attending the Canada-Russia hockey series but at the millions of capitalists watching the telecasts abroad.

A Swedish advertising agency bought the space from the Soviet government for a bargain $2,500 a sign. Sponsors of the telecasts pay up to $25,000 apiece to get their message on the air.

Aaron Swats Homer No. 672

By BRUCE LOWITT
Associated Press Sports Writer

Hank Aaron just goes on and on while Johnny Bench goes in streaks.

"I'd like to hit as few more home runs this year," Aaron said Wednesday night after slugging his 32nd of the season and 672nd of his career in Atlanta Braves' 8-5 victory over Cincinnati Reds.

"But I'll be satisfied if I bet 35 this year," Hall of Famer added. "It'll leave me all to tie."

And his manager, Eddie Mathews, has no doubt Aaron will surpass Babe Ruth's all-time homer record of 714.

Bench, meanwhile, has bunched his homers in spurts.

"I'm a streak hitter," he said. "I have seven homers in the last seven games I've played and I hit seven in five games earlier this year."

Two years ago he won most valuable player honors in the National League with his 45 homers and 148 runs batted in.

Bench hit his 40th homer to drive in his 122nd run—both tops in the NL—in the Reds' losing cause against the Braves.

Elsewhere Wednesday, Pittsburgh Pirates defeated Philadelphia Phillies 3-1, St. Louis Cardinals silenced New York Mets 4-0, Chicago Cubs shaded Montreal Expos 8-6, Houston Astros beat San Francisco Giants 3-0 and Los Angeles Dodgers stopped San Diego Padres 9-4.

But Sutton was even better than any of them. He had a three-hitter for his third consecutive shutout and ninth of the season, tops in the leagues.

He hasn't allowed a run in 32 innings. And Jon Ferguson's two-run double was all Sutton and the Dodgers needed to put down the Padres.

"I said put to work on outsiders, not editors!"

Orioles Near Extinct Stage

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Are the Orioles an extinct bird? Could be, at least so far as the American League East pennant race is concerned.

After a critical 3-0 loss to the Cleveland Indians Wednesday night, the defending American League champion Baltimore Orioles might be a dying breed in 1972.

Baltimore has fallen 3½ games in back of the leading Boston Red Sox and it appears that only a miracle finish could give them a fourth straight East Division pennant.

Any combination of three victories by Boston or losses by Baltimore will eliminate the Orioles from contention. The same goes for New York Yankees, who also fell 3½ behind by losing to second-place Detroit Tigers 8-5.

The Red Sox continued to rule the East by a half-game after defeating Milwaukee Brewers 7-5.

In the West, Oakland Athletics moved closer to the title by winning a doubleheader from Minnesota Twins, 1-0 in 11 innings and 3-1 in 10, while Chicago White Sox were losing a 4-3 decision to Kansas City Royals.

Elsewhere, California Angels beat Texas Rangers 3-1.

Gaylord Perry, who's been accused on occasion of throwing a wet ball, didn't let a 90-minute rain delay bother him as he pitched a seven-hitter over the Orioles.

"There's no doubt that Perry throws a strange pitch," said Orioles manager Earl Weaver of Perry's alleged spitter. "I thought he used it more than the other times he pitched against us . . . but only he would know for sure."

THE OLD-FASHIONED DEALER WITH THE BRAND NEW CARS!

Riders' Worst Fears Confirmed

REGINA (CP) — Saskatchewan Roughriders' worst fears have been confirmed: Veteran quarterback Ron Lancaster has cracked ribs and not simply a bruise as had been diagnosed earlier.

Meanwhile, the Western Football Conference club has brought Bob Waldren, a 224 pound defensive tackle into camp to replace Ed McQuarters who suffered knee ligament damage in Sunday's game against Winnipeg Blue Bombers. McQuarters is on the 30-day injury list.

George Reed also has a rib injury and is a doubtful starter in Sunday's match with Calgary Stampeders. Defensive halfback Roy Robinson is another doubtful starter with a charley horse.

Bubba Wyche likely will get the starting quarterback assignment in place of Lancaster and Steve Mohar will play Reed's spot if the all-star is unable to play. Jim Walter will fill in for Robinson.

Als' Best Not Good Enough to Beat Bombers

WINNIPEG (CP) — Montreal Alouettes played what coach Sam Etcheverry called their best game of the season, but it still wasn't enough as they fell 26-22 to Winnipeg Blue Bombers in an interlocking Canadian Football League game Wednesday night.

The win gave the Bombers a four-point lead in the Western Football Conference and left the Als with six points in the east.

Etcheverry, who said before the game he had given as far as he could with quarterback Sonny Wade, called every play and the old master quarterback nearly produced a victory from the bench.

"But don't give me any credit. It all goes to those guys over there," he said after a superb, pointing to the viral and bruised offensive linemen.

Etcheverry gave full marks to an offensive line that opened gaping holes in the Winnipeg defence and allowed running backs Ike Brown and Moses Denson to run almost at will in the first half.

The first time the Als got the football, following a Winnipeg fumble, Brown took the ball seven consecutive times for 61 yards and a touchdown.

The Montreal offence did a superb job in blocking not only the Winnipeg linemen but also middle linebacker Phil Minnick.

Brown's major was his only scoring dash on the ground, by either club, but it was the hard-hitting, running attack of the two Hams that set up the pass-running game that produced the big scores.

Wade went all the way for Montreal, hitting Peter Dalla Riva, with a seven-yard touchdown pass in the second quarter and hurling a 61-yarder to John Eason for a fourth-quarter major. Don Sweet converted all three and added a fourth-quarter single.

While Mack Herron and Ed Williams produced another solid ground game for Winnipeg, quarterback Don Jonas used his most productive weapon, the pass, to get points on the board. In addition to throwing touchdown strikes to Bob LaRose and Jim Thorpe in the second quarter and Herron in the third, Jonas booted two converts and two field goals.

To the delight of 30,136 fans, Herron scrambled for 127 yards in 23 carries, pushing his rushing total this season to 1,071 yards and adding his 14th touchdown.

Jonas completed 18 of 32 passes for 331 yards on a cool, damp night and even the 15 to 20-mile-an-hour winds that shifted throughout the game couldn't cool off Jonas

Gaudaur Ponders Edmonton Protest

EDMONTON (CP) — Commissioner Jake Gaudaur of the Canadian Football League reserved judgment Wednesday on a protest by Edmonton Eskimos following a widely-disputed penalty against the Western Football Conference team Saturday night.

Norm Kimball, general manager of the Eskimos, said Gaudaur watched films and a videotape replay of the final play of an interlocking game in which Ottawa Rough Riders of the Eastern Conference edged Edmonton 19-9.

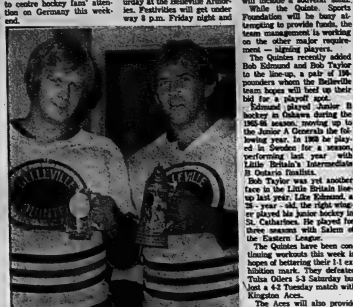
Quintes Offer Fans German-flavored Fun

With the Canada - Russia series drawing to a close, the Belleville Quintes are hoping to centre hockey fans' attention on Germany this weekend.

The OHA Senior A entry will be sponsoring a Septemberfest beer bust Saturday at the Belleville Armories. Festivities will get under way 8 p.m. Friday night and 5 p.m. Saturday, running through until 1 a.m. both nights. Admission price of $3 will include a souvenir stein.

While the Quints Sports Foundation will be busy attempting to provide funds, the team management is working on the other major requirement — signing players.



The Quintes recently added Bob Edmund and Bob Taylor to the line-up, a pair of 195-pounders whom the Belleville team hopes will lend to their bid for a playoff spot.

Edmund played Junior B hockey in Oshawa during the 1965-66 season, moving up to the Junior A Generals the following year. In 1968 he played in Dresden for a season, performing last year with Little Britain's Intermediate B Ontario finalists.

Bob Taylor was yet another face in the Little Britain lineup last year. Like Edmund, a 26 - year - old, the right winger played his junior hockey in St. Catharines. He played for three seasons with Salem of the Eastern League.

The Quintes have been continuing workouts this week in hopes of bettering their 1-1 exhibition mark. They defeated Tulsa Oilers 5-3 Saturday but lost a 4-2 Tuesday match with Kingston Aces.

The Aces will also provide Belleville's next exhibition opposition with the team travelling to Kingston Sunday for a 7:30 p.m. game at the Memorial Centre.

Toast for Two

Normally beer steins would be reserved upon request for OHA Senior hockey executives, but Belleville Mayor Wayne Brown can overlook the fact that Bob Edmunds and Bob Taylor are using them to toast their recent signings with the seniors. The Quintes will be sponsoring a Septemberfest beer bust this Friday and Saturday profits going to further senior hockey in this city. The newcomers will switch from suites to slacks Sunday when Belleville plays their third exhibition game of the season in Kingston.

Bobcats Out to Beat Metro Establishment

The Belleville Bobcats will venture into unfamiliar waters when they take to the ice Friday.

The local Junior B's will be facing an established Toronto Metro team for the first time when they face Whitby in a 9 p.m. exhibition encounter at the Belleville Memorial Arena.

The Bobcats dropped their exhibition opener 4-3 to the Peterborough Lions, but the uniforms, if not the faces were familiar ones. The Lions captured the Eastern Ontario Junior B championship for the past two seasons that Belleville participated in, in the now defunct Bague.

Exhibition play continues for the Bobcats Sunday when Kingston's Tier 2 Junior A schoolmates travel here for a 7:30 p.m. bout, while on Friday, Oct. 4, they'll be hosting a team from the Ottawa Valley Junior League.

Madoc Puts Cleats On Other Foot

Centre Hastings, which has experienced some tough sledding since joining the Bay of Quinte COSSA "AA" ranks three years ago, put the cleats on the other foot Wednesday.

They ran roughshod over the first-year Bayside seniors, winning 23-0 while their juniors were taking a 12-8 decision to give them a sweep over Bayside.

Trojan Kickers Blank Picton

The Belleville school rode the shutout combination of Rick Hurst to a 2-0 win over Prince Edward Collegiate.

In the junior game it was Moira stopping Picton 3-1. Dave Cuff scored twice for the winners with Tom Britton getting the other marker.

Defensive standouts for the winners included Pat Malloy, John Burnside and Randy Ray.

Meads Open OASA Final At Home

Mead Johnson will be putting their OASA eggs in Tom Cook's basket when they open their all-Ontario squirt championship series with Sarpia Saturday.

The Belleville hurler has faced Sarnia twice in tournament play this season, hurling 9-8 and 2-0 games both at the Ontario finalists. The Meads amassed stay will draw the starting assignment for Saturday's opener at the Alemite Field in Belleville.

Goals has been one of the major reasons behind the team's 46-3-1 record this season, compiling a record of 69-3. The righthander gets occasional relief help from Jimmy Rumzi, who pulled them out of their early game with Barrie.

Coach Herb Coltman had had the team practising every night this week in preparation for their provincial test.

The opening match of the three-game series is scheduled for 3 p.m. with the second to be played Sunday, Oct. 7th in Sarnia and the third, if necessary, the following day in Galt.

A bus will be leaving Belleville to attend the second game. Tickets will be $4 for the return trip and reserved seats will be accepted by Herb Coltman at 968-6385.

Sport Briefs

LONDON (Reuter) — Manchester United, English League First Division soccer club near the bottom of the standings, took a step towards reviving its lagging fortunes by announcing Wednesday it will acquire Ted Macdougall forward. Ted MacDougall for $200,000. MacDougall scored goals for Bournemouth in 165 appearances.

CONTRACT EXTENDED

MONTREAL (CP) — Gene Mauch, manager of Montreal Expos, has had his contract extended for two seasons of the 1974 season, Jim Fanning, general manager of the National League baseball club, announced Wednesday. Mauch's original agreement with the Expos was to expire at the end of the 1973 season.

Hydroplane racing has become a genuine family affair for Rossmore enthusiast Denny Hogue, his wife Gloria, and children Denise and David are on the road in a custom-built van almost every summer weekend to attend speedboat races in Ontario, Quebec, and the United States. This Sunday, the Hogues will make their shortest trip of the season to Oak Lake, where the Canadian National stock championships will be staged.

Hogue Makes Home Away from Home

By MAURICE SWITZER
Sports Editor

Hydroplane racing was getting to be an expensive hobby for Denny Hogue — until he made it more like work.

The Rossmore water-speed enthusiast, a partner in Riverview Auto Body, put his job skills to work last winter and transformed a panel truck into a mobile home.

"It was getting to be kind of costly — at least $20 a night for motels," says Hogue, who now piles wife Gloria, and children Denise and David into the (now cozy three-feet of head room) former dry cleaning truck nearly every weekend all summer.

This year, we only missed three weekends of racing since May 29. The only races we missed were when we took the van to Florida for a holiday."

His fourth summer of hydroplane racing, although not successful enough to put him among the point-runners on the Canadian circuit, was still an eventful one for Hogue.

Making the move up from A to faster and more competitive B stock ranks, he finished third over-all in his first attempt at Belle's western divisional championships.

But the most exciting event of the summer for Hogue and other members of the small Belleville Power Racing Club should be this weekend, when they help stage the first national championships in this area.

Oak Lake will be the scene of Canadian championships in A, B, C, and D Stock Hydro and A and B Utility classes in a program scheduled to get under way around 1 p.m. Sunday on a 1 2-3-mile course near Deloro. Canada's only the scenic Highway 14 site.

"We pretty well had to guarantee calm water, these being Canadian Nationals," Hogue noted, by way of explaining the lack of fan turnouts, of a hydroplane meet off Belleville's Victoria Park.

In addition to Hogue, other local faces to watch in Sunday's afternoon of racing include Tom Boulter, who will be running B and D Stock Hydro, Boulter, one of the leading B Stock point-getters in Canada, managed to place in his elimination in last month's American Nationals in Iowa.

Belleville racers Rick and Paul Fralick will be competing in B and C Stock, respectively.

Meanwhile, Wellington veteran Doug Thompson, who this summer piloted Don Channels B "Alky" to a world record 78 miles-an-hour around a 5-mile course, will be the favorite in a special open Grand Prix event, which should see straight away speeds as high as 100 miles an hour.

A top-flight field includes John Webster, last year's Canadian champion, in A, B, and D. stock hydro classes and Ted Alel currently high points racer in C and D stock divisions.

Sunday's top finishers are entitled to double points toward their circuit totals.

After only four years' racing Dennis Hogue can promise that spectators at Sunday's National's will be surprised by the performance.

"Speeds have really increased," he said. "And since we've been racing, speeds are about the fastest we've clocked in all classes.

"They're doing about 98 now in A Stock with those little 70-horse motors."

Big Night for B's

KINGSTON (Special) — Brockville and Belleville are the closest centres to Kingston with race tracks and the two eastern Ontario cities have always been well represented at Frontenac Downs since the 5/8-mile oval opened in 1971.

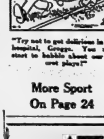
That, Wednesday night was an extra-ordinary night at the Downs for the drivers and owners from Belleville and Brockville. Of the 10 races on the card six were won by horses from either Brockville or Belleville.

Brockville horses had three wins with Orley Coville driving two of them — Anita Gay Lass and Sitve Gratian. The other Brockville victory went to Ron Stone who won the trot with Tiny Todd.

Belleville and area sulky drivers copped three also, including the featured mish. Al Vance of Corbyville drove Ruth's Daisy to the feature win, while Fred Jarrell piloted Minado to victory and Clark Newton did the same with Flying John.

Racing continues Sunday afternoon with a 10-race card for Gananoque Day celebrations. All Gananoque residents will be admitted to the grounds free of charge. Another change for Sunday is the lifting of the 50 cents parking charge.

Leave Driving to Printers!



Softball fans can take the bus and leave the driving to Howard and Robert Printing.

Police Chiefs Condemn Easy Line on Drugs

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Association of Chiefs of Police has condemned "permissive legislation or utterances on the part of any government" saying such permissiveness is "irresponsible towards the people of Canada."

In a position paper on drugs, one of a series of papers the police chiefs will be issuing during the coming months, the group says there are definite connections between many problems and higher drugs like heroin.

"If drug of a drug, and uncontrolled, all drugs eventually have the same effect."

The paper describes as "most undesirable" the fact that Health Minister John Munro said he agrees with the Le Dain commission on the non-medical use of drugs about the effects of cannabis drugs have on the maturing process of young people and the role such drugs play in multiple drug use. Fears about the effect are not supported by "hard scientific evidence," the paper quotes Mr. Munro as saying.

Those who live with it (drug use) have much more faith in the cold hard facts of life than hard scientific evidence," the paper says.

"We therefore condemn in the most categoric terms any permissive legislation or utterances on the part of any government as being irresponsible towards the people of Canada."

Canadians Fail To Make Top 16

SEOUL, Yugoslavia (CP-AP) — The first round of the finals in the 30th Men's Chess Olympiad began here Wednesday with the 32 top teams from the predominantly competing for the medals.

Second-seeded Yugoslavia defeated Switzerland in three games Wednesday, one of the more conclusive results in the uncompleted round. A fourth game was adjourned.

Top-rated Russian players lost a game to Hungary and drew one with two games adjourned. Hungary was seeded third before the tournament began.

Teams are awarded a point for a victory and half a point for a draw.

Canada, which did not reach among the top 16 teams after preliminary rounds, is playing in Group 2 of the finals.

Toronto Satchel of Vancouver won a game against Greece Wednesday and Dr. Shepard Vranesic of Toronto drew one to lead the Greek team 1.5-.5 with two games still to be finished.

Other members of the Canadian team are Peter Biyiasas of Vancouver, D. A. (Abe) Yanofsky of Winnipeg, and Bruce Amos and Lawrence Day, both of Toronto.

Levesque Slams PM, Wagner

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau wants to read something down the country's throat while Claude Wagner Devaux the "dangling carrot" technique, Rene Levesque, leader of the Parti Quebecois, said Wednesday.

This was the only difference he could see between the two opponents, he told a French language service club.

He said Mr. Wagner, Progressive Conservative caucus group leader in Quebec, "is trying to go closer to the federalists" but "is more flexible under the Progressive Conservatives."

Asked why Mr. Wagner, one was then if he hasn't changed."

Parachute Record Set

QUEBEC (CP) — Sgt. Jean Pierre Blanchet set a world record for parachute drops over a 36-hour period earlier this month by making 232 jumps.

The 33-year-old member of the 12th Armored Regiment beat the previous record of 200 jumps set in 1951 by Steve Sathos of St. Thomas, Ont.

He might have done better, but on the 200th landing he injured his knee and had to be carried back to the plane after each of the next 31 drops.

All the jumps were made from a Cessna-180.

Union Asks For Intervention

TORONTO (CP) — Representatives of the United Auto Workers and Woodbay with Ontario Labor Minister Fullerton Godeshe to press for the Chrysler's intervention as behalf of 330 striking production workers at Canadian Acme Screw and Gear Ltd.

The firm, which closed its doors a few days after the employees went on strike Aug. 22, should be forced to pay the workers 16 weeks pay in lieu of layoff notice, the union contends.

Dolan spokesman said the workers to accept a second 15-month wage freeze, ended the strike to avoid paying the termination benefits.

Mr. Gadelius told the UAW delegation that he would ask company officials to meet with him next week to discuss the situation.

Pine Trees Are Hit By Blight

TORONTO (CP) — An epidemic that has left white pine trees from Toronto to upper Georgian Bay is really a reaction to sudden changes in the weather, the Ontario natural resources ministry said Wednesday.

The condition is known as white pine needle blight and turns the needles brown.

Extremes of temperature and rainfall fell cells in the current year's needles. The ministry said it is only in the last 11 years that weather has been identified as a factor.

Fewer than a quarter of white pines are susceptible, suggesting that genetic factors are also involved.

The trees usually recover within a year.

Although the blight is common in some northern areas, ministry officials said it has been many years since it has been so prevalent in southern Ontario. Main areas of damage are in York and Simcoe Counties, eastern Dufferin County and the Georgian Bay shore from Parry Sound to the French River.

Fat Cat

There's more than one way to skin a cat. Robert Dowdell managed grab a hook, line and sinker. The Belleville resident found this 20-pound catfish Monday night while fishing in the Moira River, near International Harbour. He caught the big cat with a deep worm bait and landed it with the help of companion Harry MacDonald after a 15-minute battle.

Greeks Booted Out Early

Greek soccer champion Panathinaikos, European Cup runners-up two seasons ago, was knocked out of this season's competition in the first round when penalty kicks decided its match against OSKA Sofia in Athens Wednesday night.

Panathinaikos won the second-leg, first-round match 2-1 after extra time, but this left the teams tied 3-3 on aggregate. The Bulgarians won the decisive penalty-kicking competition.

What the Stars Say

By JEANE DIXON

Friday, Sept. 29

Aries (March 21-April 19): You are expected to do more than your share. Minor concessions serve to keep the peace while you get on with the essential work.

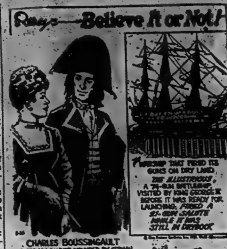
Taurus (April 20-May 20): Distraction, interruptions, diversions obscure your view, hinder long decision-making. Someone in power misunderstands your plans.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): The long shot is appealing, but unlikely to come in today. Diligent pursuit of your normal activities produces a sound achievement.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): If people are unsettled or contentious it is a reflection of your inconsistent expressions. Compromise, alleviate tensions.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): The most trivial-seeming coincidence can upset a conference on major projects. They'll push by starting under better auspices later.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Expect no fast or special handling by anybody near you, so don't be surprised. Sit tight on spending, add to your reserves.



Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 23): Nothing opens readily today, will be stickier when the time comes. Changes will be needless, confusing as you stand pat.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 21): Doing your self-reliant self is the ticket to success. Stay out of major adventures, travels, family gatherings, reunions, etc.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Be sure of your facts, then concentrate on what you can manage single-handed. You won't get any favors or special rewards.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): The urge to gamble comes, and if you can afford to lose your wager—it may be fun. You can find a better use for your money.

Ear Operation Could Be Helpful

By G.C. THORTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thorteson: I was told after an ear infection that I have osteosclerosis, and that I am going deaf. I can hardly hear out of it. I was also told I had it seven years ago, but my doctor would not agree to a stapedectomy operation at that time.

Please tell me what osteosclerosis really is. I am 49 now. Would the operation be available at this time? I've been thinking of it very seriously.—Mrs. R.S.

Otosclerosis is caused by a growth of bone inside the eardrum's thin tiny linkage of three bones that carry sound vibrations from the eardrum to the inner ear.

Overgrowth or thickening of these bones can prevent them from moving freely—and if they can't move freely, they can't carry those vibrations, and without those vibrations being transmitted to the auditory nerve, you can't hear. Or can't hear very well.

Several million people have this trouble to greater or lesser degree, but as common as this condition is, the cause is not known. (Of course, infection causes some cases.) In some instances the condition appears to run in families.

The operation called stapedectomy restores hearing in 80 to 90 per cent of cases, by freeing the linkage so the tiny bones can move properly again and transmit sound. The ear specialist does the surgery. First make sure your loss of hearing is not due to degeneration of the auditory nerve, as the operation naturally cannot do anything about that.

Without knowing the reasons involved, I cannot speculate as

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:
A X T D L B A A T B
is LONGFELLOW

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the codes are different.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♦	Dble	Pass	1 ♠
Pass	2 ♣	Pass	4 ♠
Pass	Pass	Dble	Pass

Opening lead — king of hearts.

Italy scored another sizable gain on this hand from the beneficial round of the Olympiad.

When Chemla and Lebel held the North-South cards for France, the bidding went as shown. Lebel played passes on the hand, succeeding in his strategy of sounding like a man who was grudgingly making a sacrifice bid of five diamonds over the enemy's four spade bid.

But the Italians backtracked—even though Lebel got doubled and made the contract with an overtrick or two for the Italian North-South pair play-ed the hand at the other table, the bidding went:

South	West	North	East
1 ♦	Dble	Pass	2 ♦
4 ♦	Pass	4 ♠	Pass
Dble	All Pass

Forgent and Garoux, in common with their teammates, were playing an Italian version of the Precision Club system. The opening club bid by Garoux showed 16 high-card points or more and could have any distribution whatever.

Garoux's unilateral four diamond bid had to be based on a huge hand of one sort or another, so Forgent was able to bid five diamonds voluntarily with his extremely thin values. Garoux didn't need much encouragement to go on to six, and he promptly bid the slam on the basis it was odds-on that he would not lose a club trick.

So the Italians chalked up a plus of 1,370 points at this table, having lost 860 points at the other table, and so gained 510 points, worth 9 international match points.

Forgent and Lebel, obviously, East-West for France at the second table, could have unofficed profitably at six spade doubled — down 1,100 — but Delmouly, West, had reason to hope he could beat the slam, which he succeeded, who had already shown his hand with a jump raise in spades, had an overtrick or further to say.

Tomorrow: Canada vs. USA.

Ottawa Bans Firecrackers

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The federal government's move to declare fireworks west over with a bang Wednesday with Canada's police and firemen hoping the ban will reduce fires and injuries caused by careless use.

But shares of Canada's only fireworks producer fizzled on the Toronto Stock Exchange. Hand Chemical Industries Ltd. stock dropped 70 cents to a record low of 70 cents a share following the announcement by Energy Minister Donald Macdonald. A total of 600 shares changed hands.

Besides the people who import and sell firecrackers, the only one who expressed opposition to the ban was Manitoba's attorney-general, A. H. Macdiarmid.

"I would think it would be much better for there to be a consultative process between provincial and federal governments before announcing this sort of approach," Mr. Macdiarmid said in an interview.

Mr. Macdonald said the ban, effective immediately, will restrict the use of firecrackers to persons licensed to use display fireworks under new conditions that will be implemented in the next few months. Display fireworks are the large type normally used for public gatherings.

CASTING PROBLEM

HALIFAX (CP) — "Casting is always a touchy area," says Robert Sherrin, artistic director of Neptune Theatre. "There's a problem in getting first-rate actors to come from Toronto. I find what's really lacking in Canada is a large number of middle-aged actors."

Fireworks distributors will be authorized to sell display fireworks only to persons holding a "permit of competency" issued by the energy department.

The new regulations will set down guidelines for putting off fireworks displays and the department will introduce training courses and examinations for those applying for permits.

The ban, as well as covering the sale of common noise-making firecrackers to the public, also will restrict the sale of less hazardous types of sparklers and roman candles to persons 18 years of age or over.

The ban, which will be implemented by tightening regulations under the Canada Explosives Act, was preceded by similar restrictions in many Canadian municipalities.

And in Alberta, the provincial cabinet last week approved regulations prohibiting the sale and use of fireworks except where a permit has been obtained from the fire commissioner.

Alberta's ban came after the deaths last May of two children in a fire caused when fireworks thrown into a bonfire at St. Albert, five miles north of Edmonton.

In Toronto, Dennis Lalten, administrator of the Police Association of Ontario, said the ban "will help get away from these accidents where people are killed or injured."

The police association was one of several groups which pressured the government last year to pass such legislation.

Marion Brechin, president of the Consumers Association of Canada, said she is "delighted" about the ban.

Canadian cities that now have bylaws banning fireworks include Montreal, Halifax, Charlottetown, and Fredericton, Moncton and Saint John, N.B.

Despite the ban on firecrackers in Montreal, a spokesman for the city's fire department says accidents still occur.

Marcel Lalonde of the department's fire prevention office said Montreal still has "several accidents a year, mostly involving children."

"Fireworks are still sold outside of Montreal and there's as much we can do about that," he said.

Montreal's firecracker strip, a string of gift shops on Highway 1 near the U.S. border, is crowded with protest over the federal ban.

Roger Trivel, proprietor of a shop along the strip, says he may be driven back to the wall, face rolls by the new regulations.

"They're illegal in New York, so that's how I make my money here," Mr. Trivel said of his firecracker sales.

He started his business seven years ago with $24 remaining from a welfare cheque.

Real Landry, whose "Fireworks" sign can be seen a mile away on the highway, says he will keep on selling firecrackers until he is stopped.

"They mean $3,000 profit to me each year alone. They're the only reason any Americans stop here."

Highway 1 runs north from Montreal 30 miles to the U.S. border.

In Vancouver, Peter Chew, manager of Sang Lung Jun Ltd., the largest fireworks distributor on the West Coast, said he is puzzled by the ban.

He said his company still has between $80,000 and $100,000 worth of stock ready to ship to retailers for Hallowe'en celebrations.

Air Sanctuary Said Cause For Action

OTTAWA (CP) — The national president of the Royal Canadian Air Force Association says Canada could be prevented in newer diplomatic and trade relations with countries that provide sanctuary to airplane hijackers.

Frederick Way of Calgary told a news conference Wednesday the 10,000-member association fully supports demands for tough action against hijackers made in the past by the Canadian Airline Pilots Association.

A resolution along these lines will be debated at the association's annual convention which opened today.

"We want firm action," said Mr. Way, a wartime and former hush pilot now employed as flight operations manager with the North American Air Training College of Calgary.

Plowing Match Begins

SEBRINGVILLE, Ont. (CP) — A bit of the pioneer spirit shone through Wednesday when the 39th annual International plowing match.

Despite the wet persons cheered the more than 300 competitors as they showed their expertise in handling farm equipment on the open fields near this tiny community four miles north-west of Stratford.

The Class 19 tractors with mounted plows was won by John Sheridan of Stouffville, Ont., and the Class 20 with trailer equipment went to Douglas Duskrid of Claremont, Ont.

H. R. Jarvis of Alvinston, Ont., won the Class 21 tractors with mounted plows, three- or four-furrows.

Brant County won the Intercounty tractors, two or more furrows, competition with Mike Copton, Ohsweken, Ont., and John Williams, Hagersville, Ont., at the wheels.

Second was Haldimand County, represented by Jim Weatherston and Craig Huffman, both of Hagersville. Dale Oldham of Mount Albert, Ont., and Greg Timbers of Sandford, Ont., managed a third for Ontario County.

Marathon Strike Ends

CINCINNATI (AP) — The longest strike ever mounted against General Motors ended Wednesday night with ratification at a new contract by United Auto Workers members from the General Motors assembly division plant in suburban Norwood, Ohio.

The marathon strike ended with union officials posting final results of secret ballotings on the front door of the UAW Local 674 headquarters.

The new contract was approved by 74 per cent of the plant's non-skilled workers and by 54 per cent of the skilled workers.

Union officials noted the opposition vote—26 per cent of the non-skilled classification was "very high."

Even as the votes were being counted, UAW President Leonard Woodcock joined workers in criticizing the contract proposal.

"The tragedy of the Norwood strike," Woodcock said in Detroit "is the workers are going to wind up exactly where they began."

Woodcock said the UAW's GM council will meet in emergency session in Detroit Friday to plan strategy for future negotiations with the auto maker.

GM said it was uncertain when the plant could be reopened.

The 174-day strike saw the union bargaining for better working conditions rather than money considerations.

At issue were employee complaints of alleged assembly line speedup, work force reductions and seniority rights.

Home Movie Tells Jet Story

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (Reuter) — A home movie revealed that an F-86 Sabre jet that crashed here Sunday into an ice-cream parlor, killing 23 persons, twice failed to get off the ground in attempting to take off from a nearby airport.

The movie was shown to reporters Wednesday. The color film showed that pilot Richard Hampton, 28, had the nose of the jet off the ground on two occasions before his plane finally swept off the end of the runway, flew across a four-lane city street, and crashed into the ice-cream parlor.

U.S. Visitors To Need Visa

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States began Wednesday to require nearly all foreign travellers entering the country to have visas, state department officials said Wednesday.

The tightening of entry regulations is to meet the increasing possibility of terrorist acts in the United States and during the current United Nations General Assembly meeting in New York, the officials said.

The regulations will be in effect until Jan. 1.

This means, with the exception of travellers from Canada, that anyone entering the United States even for a temporary stay of less than 10 days will need a visa.

Canadians Given Spine Tingling Reason to Cheer Team

Canadians from coast to coast rejoiced Thursday over Team Canada's thrilling 6-5 victory over the Soviets in the eighth and deciding game of the unofficial world series of hockey.

From St. John's Nfld., to Vancouver, Canadians filled out of bars, office buildings and homes to express their jubilation at the come-from-behind win.

Prime Minister Trudeau said he was "proud and happy" at the result and conceded that the Oct. 30 election campaign ground to a halt while the games were being played.

He wired Team Canada coach Harry Sinden that the country "is now in a state of enthusiastic revelry," and extended "congratulations from a proud and happy Canada."

Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield said in his telegram: "Congratulations. Magnificent. Your great team effort is an inspiring example to your country. Canadians are proud of you—the best hockey team in the world."

Outside the Russian Embassy in Ottawa, about 25 boisterous hockey fans waved Canadian flags and shouted "Esperito for Pope" and "Esperito for Prime Minister," they shook hands with embassy staff who returned out into the crowd.

Flag waving and horn-honking erupted in the nation's capital after the game.

Another telegram of congratulation went from Quebec Premier Robert Bourassa who said: "Your team work and your determination to win has earned you the admiration of Quebecers and all Canadians."

In Montreal, close to 200 people who gathered in Montreal's central station to watch the game on colored television sets were ecstatic at the result.

In St. John's, Nfld., one elementary school had pupils watching the game as part of their lesson. Nurses rejoiced in one hospital that radios were at a premium as all but the most seriously ill tuned in.

And the St. John's News carried a red headline saying "Thank You Team Canada."

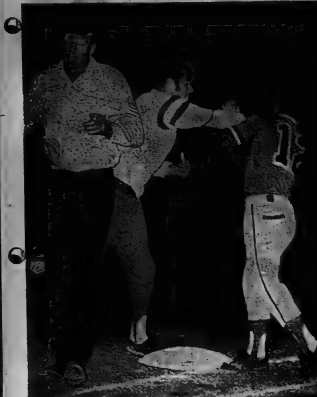
"The banner headline on the front page of The Globe And Mail in Toronto proclaimed: "From Russia with glory."

Most of the students in Toronto schools chose to watch the game after Ontario Education Minister Thomas Wells told school administrators Wednesday they were free to cancel classes if students wanted to watch the game.

And bars with color television sets in most Canadian cities were jammed.

Work even stopped on the Sir Ted freighter Aboutsworth in Toronto harbor. Captain Alexander Lotvenberger gave his Ukrainian crew time off to watch the game on the ship's television.

"Yes, two hours off today," he said. "Very special,"



Thunder Roars as Lear Gives Score

With lightning flashing and thunder pealing through the Festival Theatre, Mr. Hutt finished his speech before a packed house of more than 2,600 students.

Then he paused and announced the final score of the Canada-Russia hockey—6-5 for Canada—and made his exit.

Pandemonium broke loose in the theatre, said a festival employee. And to top it off, "they didn't even turn off the thunder."

Davis Adds 4 MPPs To Ontario Cabinet

Kerr Jumps Rank

TORONTO (CP) — Premier William Davis promoted two of his cabinet ministers Thursday and brought four freshman members of the legislature into the cabinet.

The changes:

—George Kerr, 48, from colleges and universities to provincial secretary for justice;

—Eric Winkler, 46, from consumer and commercial relations to chairman of the management board of cabinet;

—John Twining Clement, 44, to consumer and commercial relations;

—Jack McNie, 52, to colleges and universities;

—Claude Bennett, 36, to minister without portfolio;

—Margaret Birch, 51, to minister without portfolio.

For Mr. Kerr, of Halton West, and Mr. Winkler, Grey South, the moves represent promotion since they now move into the influential policy and priorities board of cabinet, an inner circle which shapes the general direction of government policy.

As justice secretary, Mr. Kerr will occupy the post vacated by Allan Lawrence who resigned recently to become a candidate in the Oct. 30 federal general election.

As management board chairman, Mr. Winkler will replace Charles MacNaughton, who has relieved of the chairman's duties to give him more time for his post of provincial treas-

Phil Esposito, Paul Henderson and Ron Ellis of Team Canada raise their arms and yell in unison after Esposito slipped the puck past fallen Soviet goalie Vladislav Tretiak during the final game of their international ice hockey series. The threesome were among the major stars as Canada edged the Russians 6-5 in the eighth and deciding game of the series. Henderson later scored the winning goal with just 34 seconds remaining to play.

Cabinet Shuffle

Margaret Birch First Woman

TORONTO (CP) — Margaret Birch, who became Ontario's first cabinet minister Thursday, almost missed her swearing-in ceremony.

Mrs. Birch, 51, was in England as a member of the select committee on the use of educational facilities, when Premier William Davis telephoned Wednesday to tell her she was to become a minister without portfolio.

She made hurried calls to the airlines and managed to get the last seat on a jet leaving for Toronto. On her arrival, she was whisked downtown by helicopter and reached Queen's Park just before the ceremony.

Her husband, Guy Birch, a Toronto journalist, had to wait in England for another plane and missed the ceremony by one hour.

Mrs. Birch, elected to the legislature last Oct. 21 as a member from Toronto Scarborough East, said she was exhausted after going without sleep for 24 hours.

Although she has not been told of her new responsibilities, she said she has several interests, including work with the mentally handicapped and housing.

Mrs. Birch, who also is chairman of the standing social development committee, said she does not feel her elevation was just a token appointment to have a woman in the cabinet.

"I would certainly hope I was not selected just because of my sex," she said.

'Now Shake Hands and ....'

Umpire Denny Hounslow figured he had things well under control when he broke up an argument between Gary Goyer of Howard and Robert Printing and Rollins Construction's Carl Boomhour during Commercial Softball League action Thursday. The official had no sooner turned his back than the pair commenced fistic action with Goyer landing a right. Both players were ejected frmo the game, which Rollins won 2-0 to give them the league championship.

Alouette Setting Records

WASHINGTON (CP) — The Canadian-built Alouette, long-lived, hardest-working of all the man-made earth satellites, celebrates its 10th anniversary today.

Ever since it was launched by the United States Sept. 29, 1962, it has circled the earth every 105 minutes and on the day of its anniversary had more the trip nearly 58,000 times.

Aside from its longevity, Alouette also holds the record for the greatest number of scientific papers based on data from a single satellite. To date more than 200 papers have been written on the information it has gathered.

Lewis Seeks Enquiry

WINNIPEG (CP) — A judicial inquiry into alleged conflicts of interest within the government's Canada Development Corp. was demanded here Thursday by New Democratic Party Leader David Lewis.

His call for an investigation followed a news report that one of the CDC directors, Douglas N. Kendall, is father of the president of a company in which the government corporation has invested $4.5 million.

Until last March — before the CDC purchase was made — Mr. Kendall was also a director of the company, Venturetek International Ltd., of Toronto. His son Jeremy Kendall is president of the holding company which specializes in high-risk investments.

The CDC was created two years ago by Parliament under a board of directors, mostly businessmen, who were to supervise the investment of both private and public money into Canadian enterprises. The $4.5-million purchase of Venturetek stock gives the CDC 35 per cent ownership.

Court Asked to Dismiss Sandbanks Trust Suit

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario government and Lake Ontario Cement Ltd., have asked the Supreme Court of Ontario to dismiss a bevvy of trust suits over removal of sand from a site beside Sandbanks Provincial Park in Prince Edward County. The motion will be heard Wednesday.

The two defendants said there is no legal cause for action, that the suit is frivolous and vexatious and that the plaintiff has no status to sue.

The suit was filed by Larry Green, a former researcher for Pollution Probe at the University of Toronto, through the Environmental Law Association. Mr. Green based his action on the trust section of the Provincial Parks Act on behalf of the people of Ontario and future generations.

Last week the law association noted pleadings closed, a legal move which barred the defendants from filing statements of defence after they missed the deadline for filing. This move was withdrawn on condition that the defendants act within 10 days, which they have done.

Russians Fight Terrorism

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Canadian External Affairs Minister Sharp said Thursday the Soviet Union has expressed concern over the growing tide of terrorism in the world.

Sharp met late Thursday with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko in a two-hour meeting to discuss current issues. He said much of the talk centred on the terrorism issue and "in principle, there didn't seem to be much of a difference in our positions, especially on hijacking."

Roblin Jeffrey Begins Campaign

TRENTON (Staff) — Calling for increased co-operation between Quinte area municipalities, and foregoing of the "customary national anthem" trend which has split the Quinte Planning Board, of which she was a member, Belleville lawyer Roblin Jeffrey kicked off her campaign for mayor of the city at a Trenton Kiwanis dinner meeting last night.

She said the problems now facing the board may exist because of absence of too many "one too" aldermen with "one but" thinking. Mrs. Jeffrey said the onus of responsibility lies with the city of Belleville to help repair breaking planning bridges.

The fighting woman aldermen from Belleville, who claims it isn't easy getting to first base with an all-male council, said last night her battle for the mayor's seat is an "up or out" campaign.

"I am one who believes that often aldermen cling to office when they should no longer be there," she said, adding she reached a decision to seek the top chair or retire, for the time being, from council.

Much of her speech dealt with the role of women in politics, jokingly referring to herself as "a bird . . . or Robin . . . in a gilded cage," a rare bird compared to the number of men involved in government.

The five-year veteran councillor drew attention to higher levels of government that are urging the "other half" of the population to become involved as candidates. "But do they make those women to improve the image of their party or so they can say to the electorate, they are broadly based?"

"But," she said, "before good times can come, women will have to take a good look at themselves. Likewise men women are willing to seek office, all the goodwill on the part of men and political parties, won't help."

Mrs. Jeffrey said she entered politics following a childhood of mixed political discussions between her parents, on their farm in St. Thomas. She said her parents offered equal family and educational opportunity to brother and sister alike. "I was never aware that because I was born female, I was limited to a certain role in life."

With mother and father in opposition, politically, "you can understand my interest in politics. We certainly heard both sides of every issue."

The battle of the political scene has been a major concern to Mrs. Jeffrey, who believes if she failed in municipal life. It would be a case of "politish being no place for a woman . . . we laid it on us."

She said her prime interest in private meetings centred on both sides: "It helps to remember that democracy itself is based on the concept of an ear as a visit to any of the three levels of legislative bodies will demonstrate."

She speaks firmly of the need for retention of green space; the "problems and desperate needs of many citizens" living under deplorable economic conditions; the need to preserve the "character" and history of the city and the need to give creative and talented women an equal chance for municipal life.

Lights to be Installed At Two Intersections

Belleville city council will be asked to approve the installation of traffic lights at Valleyview Crescent and Tracey's street as the first step in improving traffic conditions on busy North Front Street.

This was the recommendation Thursday by the city council traffic and light committee following bid by a provincial traffic engineer that an interconnected and progressive system would be the cheapest and most efficient long-term installation on the North Front Street problem.

Merv S. Stevens, traffic analysis engineer with the traffic control section of the Ontario Ministry of Transportation and Communications, told committee members that the North Front Street traffic load undertaken in co-operation with the police department revealed three major problems.

These were: 1. heavy traffic volume; 2. turning movements, and 3. the difficulty pedestrians experienced in trying to cross in the face of rapidly moving traffic.

But Mr. Stevens did not recommend pedestrian crossovers which he said would interrupt vehicular traffic and cause frequent accidents.

"They would destroy the progressive traffic pattern," he said.

The committee recommendation to council will be for the installation of the traffic lights "at the earliest possible date" meaning this year if the cost can be provided from this year's budget.

Also needed for North Front Street, according to Mr. Stevens, is a fifth lane for left turning movements.

This, he said could take the form of a continuous left turn lane up the centre of the street for use of both north and south traffic.

Mr. Stevens said this idea may sound "suicidal" but assured it was one which had proved very successful in centres where it has been introduced.

The secret to success, he said, was good marking and a bit of publicity.

To questioning by committee chairman Alderman Arthur Keegan and Alderman E. A. Orr as to where the fifth lane would be required, Mr. Stevens said there was justification for the extra lane now.

The recommendations to council calls for installation of a light at the north entrance-way to Valleyview Crescent and at Tracey Street, where motorists now experience difficulty in entering or leaving North Front Street.

The two new lights and also the one already installed at Bell Blvd. would be progressively timed and controlled through the city's central computer system at the city police station.

Installation of the lights would make pedestrian crossovers unnecessary, it was stated.

Mr. Stevens went along with the traffic study report which suggested Donald Street was a one way street from the satisfactory working of a traffic light at this point.

It was agreed was that the south entranceway to Macdonald's takeout service should be closed and an outlet be provided on Donald Street.

Committee members suggested that Police Chief Douglas Crosbie should meet with owners with the view of obtaining their co-operation in providing the Donald Street entranceway.

Crosswalks Recommended

Traffic volumes on Pinnacle Street have increased to the point where pedestrian crosswalks are necessary" at Market and Campbell Streets.

This was the decision Thursday by members of the city traffic and light committee who approved a report on crosswalks from Police Chief Douglas T. Crosbie and recommended that legal crosswalks be installed at the two Pinnacle Street intersections.

The same report recommended diagonal crosswalks at the two above intersections was made by Chief Crosbie two years ago but traffic committee members deferred action.

"We didn't think they were warranted at that time," committee chairman alderman Arthur Keegan said. "But they are now."

Chief Crosbie didn't feel that pedestrian crossovers were required on Front Street between Dundas and the Upper Bridge as they would greatly impair the movement of traffic.

In 1968 there were 25 such accidents with one fatality. In 1969, two pedestrians were killed in 39 accidents.

In 1970 the number of pedestrian accidents increased to 58 with no fatalities, while last year the number rose to 63 with three fatalities.

This past summer a man was injured when struck by a car at the Loblaw crossing and since then there have been several requests for police to man the crosswalk on busy days.

Parking Mishap Cost $860.

TWEED (Special) — A three-car accident in Tweed yesterday resulted in a total of $860 damage, when a driver's foot slipped from the brake to the accelerator while she was parking.

Mrs. Adeline Outhouse, 72, from Tavares, Florida, was attempting to park her car on Victoria St. about 11:30 a.m. when she backed into a car owned by Les Brady of Tweed. In attempting to disentangle her car from Brady's she backed into the traffic and hit a car southbound on Victoria St., driven by Mrs. Bernadette Rashotte of RR4, Tweed.

Damage to the Outhouse car was $375, to the Brady car $285 and to the Rashotte car $200.

Parking Crackdown Begins

City police have been instructed to rigidly enforce the parking regulations.

This was indicated Thursday at the city traffic and light committee meeting after Alderman Gerald Joyce received his complaints that double parking of cars and trucks was being ignored or condoned in the downtown area.

The alderman had complained about the double parking at the last council meeting and was invited to the traffic meeting to enlarge on the matter.

But the police department beat him to the punch.

Chief Douglas Crosbie said instruction had already gone out to "rigidly enforce" parking regulations.

Two Hold Sweep Tickets

Two Quinte district residents — one from Belleville and the other from Trenton, have had tickets drawn on horses entered in Saturday's running of the Cambridgeshire Handicap at Newmarket England.

However, five Canadians had tickets drawn on favored Meadow Mint and if the horse comes in first they will receive prize money of about $120,000 each, depending on the going rate of the pound sterling.

A Belleville resident signing himself as Bullet, had his ticket, PSB 88586 on Cannabis drawn while a Trenton ticket holder, Have To, had his ticket No. PTC 86284 on Warpath drawn.

Second prize winners will receive about $47,000 and third about $24,000.

Canadians with tickets drawn on non-starters or horses out of the money will receive about $1,000 each.

WILSON — In memory of a dear husband and father, Ernest Wilson, who died very 3 years ago today, September 29th, 1969.

The silent tears and make no fuss,
No one misses her more than we,
Those who say they have forgotten,
Do not know how we grieve in secret.

— The dearly loved to be forgotten
Lovingly remembered by wife Mary and Peter Lewis.

KEASEY — In loving memory of a dear husband and father Leonard Keasey who died one year ago today, September 29th, 1971.

Sadly missed and dearly miss him,
Lonely is our House without him,
Those who say they have forgotten,
— Lovingly remembered by wife and family.

NEWTON — In loving memory of our dear mother who passed away Sept. 30, 1971.

If We had seen you at the last,
And held your dying hand in ours,
We could have told you all the past
Has been forgiven.
We would not have left us last,
But when you knew the end was near,
How did we see you smile,
And speak the words we longed to hear,
We scarce can realize you're gone,
We scarce can realize it's true,
But many sweet memories,
Are left to us of you.
Sadly missed by daughter Jacqueline, granddaughter Vicky Mink and great-grandson Scott.

NEWTON — In loving memory of a dear mother Mary Ann Newton who died one year ago today, September 30th, 1971.

Sweet is the memory of our mother,
Patient kind and true,
Her thoughts of us all the world,
Will be to her to true.
Her life was filled with love,
For us she lived and toiled,
If all the world deserts you,
Remember God is left.
He all we can do dear mother,
Is pray and keep her memory green.
In our home one mother,
Patient kind and true,
Her thoughts of us all the world,
Will be to her to true.
When the time came I suffered not,
For you never observed what you went through.
Death came across and took her,
Without a moment's warning,
Don't you wish you could have told her,
Just how much you loved her.
— Sadly missed and always remembered by daughter Jacqueline, son Charles and family.

Big Exercise Near End

Stories and Photos by Ian Robertson
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — Exercise Strong Express has been described as the largest NATO combined military exercise in history, in every sense. 30,000 men and more than 300 ships and 700 aircraft from 12 countries.

The exercise which began Sept. 11, has drawn to a close and by Saturday, Sept. 30, combat troops will have arrived and been redeployed from the Canadian Forces Base Trenton Air Terminal by Oct. 2 will have returned the complete contingent, including the preliminary crews that travelled to Norway to prepare facilities for operations for the Canadian contingent.

With CFB Trenton the final stop before Bardufoss, Sola and Soma in Norway, the regular routine of the base was somewhat put to the test.

Additional flights . . . 122 in all . . . had to be scheduled at two-hour intervals. Flight crews and personnel from the 437 Transport Squadron Regiment CFB Petawawa, had to be fed and in some cases billeted during their brief stay here.

In all departments affected from food services, ground crews and aircraft loading units to the air movement unit, additional military and civilian staff had to be brought in.

And it's not over yet. Just two days after the last Canadian involved in Strong Express arrived at CFB Trenton, the semi-annual Canadian Forces Snowgoose operation between Canada and Cyprus gets under way with additional troop movements and freight handling scheduled.

While a great deal of attention is paid to the more glamorous end of the exercise . . . the flying and the aircrew tackers and defenders during troop movements . . . the unsung exploits of the behind-the-scenes cogs in the military wheel make for the success or failure of such massive manoeuvrers.

In order to present the other side of the coin, The Intelligencer was invited to tour several of these base facilities and meet members of the teams that helped get the special flights off the ground, at the same time as regular, scheduled runs were operating: the cooks, bakers and mess makers who kept the troops and air crews filled and happy; and transportation units on standby, ready with trucking from spark plugs to major engine parts, should the need have arisen.

Massive Planning Job Needed

With one aircraft leaving CFB Trenton every two hours during the exercise, each carrying 25 passengers between cargos of troops and freight, detailed planning by the Air Movements Unit at CFB Trenton, was necessary.

As Major Edgar Grose, commanding officer of 2 Air Movement Unit, explained. "There had to be a critical balance of loads . . . ammunition, fuel, passengers, freight . . . when it all part of pre-calculation."

There were 122 flights to plan, 33 of these as return flights this and next week.

Everything from napalm gas to armored personnel carriers were put into converted Hercules and 707's used for the massive air lift. A regular passenger plane takes between 15 and 24 hours to convert to a freight - carrier, with special padding and floor runners.

Because the unit had to keep regular flights in the air, carrying supplies on schedule to Goose Bay, Alert and points in Europe, the Canadian Armed Forces rented the services of one Air Canada jet to help run freight to Lahr, Germany.

On the main floor of base operations, giant plastic-covered boards line two walls. Enlisted men and officers are on duty round-the-clock, carefully recording incoming and outgoing flights, receiving reports from pilots and crew.

Because of this, operations officer Captain John Carew explained, a special command post was established for the exercise, headed by a major, with enough rank for important decisions. He pointed out that operations are usually headed by a flight control captain, with a major having over-all command.

Under this special command post head, the night-hour shifts kept close tabs on the flow of special traffic, allocating crews, and co-ordinating flights and personnel.

On the tarmac, crews were busy unloading trucks and freight, ready for their return to respective bases across Canada.

Traffic Heavy at CFB

Wartime films are well-known for their views of hundreds of trucks strung out in convoy formation, carrying the essential weapons of war and staples necessary for a highly mobile army.

During the recent exercise, roads between Camp Petawawa and CFB Trenton would have been good subjects for any aspiring war film makers, as hundreds of men, their trucks and armored vehicles travelled in convoys, soon to depart for far-off Norway, via C-130 Hercules and 707 aircraft.

Traffic jobs this propositions was the responsibility of the Departure Airfield Support Services Officer (DASSO), who had the help of the base traffic division under Captain James H. Allan.

Although Captain Allan explained his unit was on 24 hour standby, with qualified men distributed to handle all shifts, he was quick to point out that no real emergencies occurred. The only problem that faced the traffic handlers was the requirement of handling both the additional traffic and routine day-to-day activities.

Most of their traffic duties entailed providing staging areas for the convergencies, trucks to move baggage to and from aircraft, a special truck for food services that shipped meals to and from the cooks, and buses for moving troops around the base.

As well, any replacement parts for aircraft or ground troop needs, had to be handled through Captain Allan's division.

"While you have this number of aircraft, vehicles and people, there is a noticeable increase in the amount of spare parts going through this base," he said in an interview.

Add to this the fact that two of his corporals were sent to Sola to help in the Air Lift Control Elements of the operations, and it was easy to see why eight additional civilians had to be hired to help keep the number of men balanced.

Food Preparation A Real Challenge

The first question that comes to mind upon entering the massive kitchens at CFB Trenton's Food Services division is . . . how does one put a touch of home cooking into a light lunch for 450 men and women, without going completely off the deep end?

Well, it's not exactly easy, but members of 197 chefs, cooks' helpers, bakers, and mess managers do manage to do it. "In fact, it's miraculous, the types of meals they get," base food services officer Captain Suzanne Armstrong said during a recent tour of the kitchens.

Everything in the kitchens and bakery rooms is equipped on a massive scale. While mothers in civilian life worry over the cost of a good sirloin roast, the chefs at the base forces kitchen each week turn out enough roasts of beef, pork, ham and lamb, chops, steaks plus flocks of roast turkey and chickens, to keep several families well fed for better than a year.

And it's not like one would imagine. Naturally, mother's home baking touch is missing. It would be virtually impossible to find that in a mass production kitchen. But it's not far off.

Large printed menus show a surprising variety of hot and cold plate meals offered during the week, with enough garnishes to keep the dinners from getting completely bored with the fare. There are even ethnic variation, from Italian to Chinese-Canadian dishes. The menus are prepared on a six-week rotation cycle.

Several doors away, civilian bakers are kept busy all day, preparing sheets of muffins, cakes and pies, baking in giant ovens . . . the plates then stacked in trolleys, ready for the next meal.

Captain Armstrong says the kitchen handles approximately 900 meals a day. This figure was raised to 1,258 during the recent Strong Express exercise. Both regular and special meal preparations include the mess meals and boxed lunches prepared for personnel unable to get to the messes.

She claims while the food is definitely more spartan than home fare, they are better and more balanced meals.

All the cooks go through training for production of mass quantity meals, at the base food services division.

The pace is beginning to slow somewhat now. From a total of 5,000 extra hot rations in the first week of the exercise, plus the regular 5,000, the number is rapidly dropping during re - deployment. For at least two days before the next exercise, the number of meals will be back to the regular 900 meals per day.

Master Warrant Officer George Lafontaine, deputy food services officer, informed visitors that as well as the regular sit-down meals, approximately 8,000 special in-flight meals were provided. The crews get hot meals; the military passengers get box lunches.

This added dining schedule not only required a 24-hour-a-day meals operation, it kept kitchen helpers searching for space to store the additional cardboard cartons for lunches, and tables for the mess.

Merits of Post Office Plan Are Debated at OMB Hearing

By IAN ROBERTSON
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — Future plans for the old post office site in downtown Trenton, may for the third time in recent years, be put to the voters Dec. 5, pending decision of the Ontario Municipal Board, which met at the Trenton Community Gardens yesterday.

The request for a plebiscite was the strongest suggestion raised by Toronto lawyer R. B. Tuer, acting on behalf of 11 objectors to the town's plan for a three-storey combined covered parking garage and municipal offices on the site. At present, only the clock tower remains, following demolition of the former stone federal building.

First witness for the town was deputy clerk Arden Royce who explained the $258,447 cost of the project, which would be paid for on an approximate $345,000 or $114,000 split to be shared respectively by the town and the parking authority.

Mr. Royce quoted a September town author's report which stated the parking authority's revenue from present and new meters would prove adequate to meet their share of the expense, to be determined over the next 20 years. He added, a preliminary expenditure of $30,000 would be made immediately.

Town treasurer Brian Fagan called after the noon recess, said the town also was in a financial position to meet its cost obligations, but would require a 3.6 mill or approximate $82,000 tax increase to the ratepayers.

David Simpson, chief draftsman and architectural engineer, for the consulting firm of Lassing and Associates, who'd prepared plans for the proposed building, used an illustration to explain his design.

The building would consist of two floors of covered parking plus a first floor consisting 7,500 square feet for all municipal needs including offices, committee rooms and council chambers.

Although there would be no windows on the ground floor, the building would present a recessed column face to Dundas Street, allowing light and ventilation, as well as a restricted view of any cars within. Exhaust fans will also be installed.

A total of 61 parking spaces would be available.

Mr. Humm explained Lassing Associates are also designing the future Bank of Montreal building on the site of the former Shue's Men's Wear Store, with a design compatible to that of the proposed complex.

Mr. Fagan also told OMB chairman H. H. Lancaster an additional $32,467 for engineering fees and interim financing, were being paid out of current revenue. Other figures quoted were the original land acquisition cost from Crown Assets, of $41,646, plus $9,200 for demolition of most of the building.

It was Mr. Royce's contention, based on evaluation of present municipal offices on Dundas Street, that approximately $22,000 could be realized from sale of the former building factory.

Mr. Royce explained the town first bought the old post office in 1967, when the federal government made known its intention to construct a new federal building on Front Street. The government was approached for the lown, offering the site at a cost of $54,000. The town refused, counter-offered $1.

The government called for tenders, the highest being picked by former councillors and developers Gerald Weaver and J. W. Cook, the government, as announced, gave the town the chance to purchase the site for the price offered by the highest bidder, and the town accepted.

This move has been one of the major issues debated by Mr. Weaver, who admitted under steady questioning by town solicitor J. D. Tompleman of Belleville, that he still been one of the prime movers in the development by the town on this site.

The town then presented two proposals to the electorate. In 1968, the votes accepted a plan to retain the old post office, to be renovated at a cost of $251,000. Consultants Revenue Properties did not proceed with their detailed working plans and a second firm was called in.

In 1970, the plan of Linden consultants, calling for construction of a new building under a combination plan, was accepted by voters, for land acquisitions, necessary requirements for this concept were not made.

Mr. Weaver later told the board the Linden plan included part of his land, adjacent to the post office building, which had cost him $30,000 and not been renovated since he sold it to the town for $1 and been gazetted on by the town.

Original tender accepted by the town was for a two-level parking garage and offices complex, totalled $425,- 813. Mr. Royce explained this figure was reduced to its present level of $344,447, by not applying the mechanical layout, electrical requirements, and location of the amount of the performance bond, a change in materials, plus reduction of the municipal office space size from 12,500 square feet to approximately 7,000 square feet.

Mr. Royce also said approximately $200,000 was chopped out of the 1972 budget by deleting several items, improvements, sewer work and a hospital grant of $100,000. Although treasurer Brian Fagan added several of these would have been required in the future, such as the construction of the complex.

This matter now rests entirely in the hands of the Ontario Municipal Board, Chairman H. H. Lancaster feels it will return a finding so sooner than a month from now.

The board must rule on whether the building can be constructed; whether deficiencies can be issued, and whether the matters must again be asked for their approval.

Car Kills Horse

PITTON (Staff) — A horse, owned by a Picton man, was destroyed last night after a car struck it on county road eight near Union Street.

The two-year-old black mare owned by Carl Markland of RR4, Picton, was put down after being hit by a car driven by Russell Cole, 35 of RR4, Picton.

Mr. Cole was unhurt.

The animal was valued at $250, damage to the car was negligible.

Odorous Lagoon Now Under Control

TRENTON (Staff)— Pollution has been a real problem in Trenton in recent weeks.

It all began when effluent from the Dover Packaging plant on Marmora Street . . . so-called white water . . . was pumped into a recently completed 25-million-gallon biological treatment agpon built at the request of the provincial department of the environment. Previously, this effluent had been pumped into the Trent River.

The provincial officials suggested during periods of low water flow, the white water be stored in the lagoon to be discharged into the Trent at times of high flow. Dovatar agreed, basing their decision on reports that the anaerobic bacteria which thrives in the white water, would not bring down an odor for approximately a week, giving them enough time to ship in quantities of lime to be added to the water.

This supposition lasted only eight to 10 hours, when the unpleasant odors arose, permeating the air.

Approximately 200 tons of lime were added to the 25-million-gallon lagoon, of which 120 have been added to the 12 inches of water over the past four days. However, much of this type of lime remains on the surface of the water, and must be constantly agitated.

Dovatar's efforts at building through the lagoon proved dangerous. They almost lost a machine.

A hovercraft, chartered for the job, blew up on contact with water, the pilot was drenched.

A raft built by the company requires at least three first for the outboard motor and the water level in the lagoon.

While plant manager Frank Mortimore and production superintendet Robert Campey stress the lagoon was never designed for holding, they claim the problem is now under control, with the raft in operation.

Said Mr. Campey: "This was an unfortunate incident in which we were polluting the air by preventing pollutio of the water."

Hockey Learning Experience

The hockey - is good for your - school of education might have come as a shock to traditionalists.

Education minister Robert Welch yesterday addressed a group of principals and teachers across Ontario to let their students in on the secret experience of world championship hockey.

He was a little late.

Hockey in the classroom had become routine in Hastings county by the time the last game brought Quinte to the final seconds of Thursday's game.

What was it education?

A principal stoutly maintained it was, and gave examples of the way teachers used hockey matchs to get more learning across.

It boiled down to a sophisticated adaptation of the make - use-of - whatever-you-have philosophy of the beleaguered teachers in the old one-room school house.

"Our pupils noted the time difference first — the Moscow games were played in the evening, but we got them at noon hour," said John Murphy of Maple Public School.

"So away they went in an exploration of time zones, with a lot of arithmetic thrown in for good measure.

Next, the pupils noticed the land marks of Moscow in documentary shots of the city. They went to the library to identify the prominent buildings and soon could tell them and their associations when they flashed on the screen.

From there it was a discussion of Russian products and politics.

But all that is geography and history. What of the minutes when Team Canada was on the ice? Forgetting the bad manners, never tolerated on a school ground, what did the actual play have to teach children?

"Nationalism!" said Mr. Murphy.

Davidson Fire Cost $12,000

TRENTON (Staff) — The official cause of a fire which gutted a Davidson Pontiac, Buick on Elgin St., Thursday morning, has been released by the Trenton Fire Department.

Workmen were draining gasoline from a car gas tank for repairs, when a spark from a nearby acetylene torch rising used in the construction of the building, ignited fumes, causing a flash fire.

Humor and Memories

Service clubs are bastions of male chumminess and humor ranging all the way from outright corn to keen wit. Indeed if some members were not caught up in this or that profession or business they might have made it as script writers for television comedy.

A typical exchange at Rotary recently went like this: David Smith, chairman of the business and industry section and Grier Alan Capon, Picton bureau chief of The Kingston Whig-Standard, was expressing satisfaction that here was another Canadian author in their midst. "We can take it you are a Canadian," he said to the British-born Mr. Capon, a native of Ipswich, England. Mr. Capon was indicating this was so when Harold Mott of the counselling staff of Belleville Collegiate spoke up. "You should see some of the movies I get," he said.

It was one of those Rotary days with Mr. Mott at his dry-humored best. And among those exchanging knowing smiles among those exchanging knowing smiles were South American exchange students Dale Tuinder and Sonja Johnson, who both attend the Collegiate.

The newspaperman from Picton had been talking about "The Incredible John Hughes" — he has written a book on the first world war Militia and Defence Minister called "His Faults Lie Gently" — and recalled some interesting personal reminiscences of Hughes and his family in Lindsay from Trenton's Cecil Newton.

As a boy Mr. Newton knew the Hughes family, Mrs. Hughes and her children being his customers of a store where he was serving his apprenticeship. In 1899 Mr. Newton watched the Midland division leave Lindsay to service in the Boer War. He was there when it returned about two years later, to be greeted by a torchlight procession and he recalls the brooms dipped in tar for the torches. He recalls attending a meeting in the Collegiate Institute in Lindsay when Hughes described his experiences in South Africa. Hughes showed the audience a leg wound he was supposed to have received, a gesture that apparently was greeted with some skepticism, given his reputation as something of an eccentric. But author Capon regards him also as a national hero whose worth was never fully acknowledged.

Mr. Newton passed on some counsel Hughes gave him in those days. "I would advise you," he said, "to keep yourself well in debt if you want to make a lot of money." There was present at least one businessman who was heard to say this was a true saying.

Spitz for Movies

So Mark Spitz is going into movies. Certainly the multi-gold medal winner of the U.S. Olympics swimming team has suave good looks and it is possible that as a Jew he bears some resemblance to the Egyptian-born movie actor Omar Sharif. It seems that initially he is to appear on the Bob Hope show and Mr. Hope has frequently swapped jokes and insults with sports personalities on his show. Spitz could be one of the more effective performers in this regard, judging from a recent interview. "My Dad," he said, "always said when you are studying much you are not thinking of the girl next door . . . and when you are with the girl next door you sure aren't thinking of math."

Glass Doors

Every so often we read of someone being injured as a result of running through a glass door: A seven-year-old Trenton girl was such a victim the other day. It seems incredible that one so young could cause such damage. Yet she did and she was badly cut in the process. Twenty-five stitches were required to close her wounds. Anybody else having glass doors should examine them and if necessary post suitable warning signs, if not change them for something more easily identifiable especially by children.

Accident Scene

Four cars were involved in a chain reaction accident on the Dundas Street bridge near the intersection with Front Street the other day. One policeman was directing traffic on the city-bound lane where the accident occurred while another was making notes. With him were Belleville's two Trainee women police officers. Women police are a common enough sight in other Canadian cities and abroad and their presence there marks another step forward for Belleville.

Soft on Separatist Line in Quebec

Is NDP's David Lewis Trying to Hide Something

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — It has ever occurred to you that one of the reasons New Democratic Leader David Lewis is doing all this shouting about what he calls "corporate welfare bums" might be to drown out the rising murmurs over what everone knows is the socialists' softness on separatism.

For soft they definitely are.

As soft now after their Quebec membership waltzed down, as they claimed, their "independence" manifesto, as they were when the party's Quebec leader was so gung-ho for plain unadulterated, unqualified separatism.

All the Quebec New Democrats really have done now has been to change the label on their separatist prescription so that David Lewis might be able to choke it down.

And swallow it he has.

This despite the obvious fact that the New Democrats never have got anywhere in Quebec and it must have been clear they will get nowhere this time.

But David Lewis seems to think he must accommodate his separatist Quebec wing with the hope of winning some sort of a toehold in French Canada to give the socialists across a still questionable credibility as a truly national party.

It must have made such talented non-socialist New Democrats as Waterloo's Max Saltsman cringe to see how David Lewis compromised in appeasing Raymond Laliberte, president of his still - separatist Quebec New Democratic bloc.

Laliberte independence now, says Raymond Laliberte, is a subject to be decided by Quebecers in a provincial election and is no part of a federal election campaign.

Or, as Raymond Laliberte put it:

"We have maintained and reaffirmed our right to construct our own platform and our right to self-determination. New Democratic representation for Quebec in the House of Commons will be in the advantage of Quebeckers if a succession agreement might one day have to be negotiated."

Which means that self-determination — a fancy word for separatism — is the private business of Quebec and its provincial New Democrats, and not the business of Canada nor the national NDP.

The idea apparently being that if the New NDP Quebec separatism under the provincial rug, who is to see it and know?

David Lewis probably has been worried that the party's Quebec wing campaigning on a platform appearing to favor separatism, would lose the party votes in other sections of Canada.

It is by any sort of a realist, he should be acutely aware that this tacking of the issue under the rug is not going to hide it.

Because the Quebec NDP will not let it be hidden.

Not only did President Raymond Laliberte make that pretty clear, his provincial NDP secretary Pierre de Bellefeuille, the Quebec super-nationalist, underlined it.

Said he:

"We are not going to ask our supporters if they are federalists or separatists.

"We consider that exclusively a provincial question."

And Mr. de Bellefeuille promised that while New Democrats in Quebec were free to be separatists if they wished, they at least would not talk about separation during the election campaign.

Nice of them, what?

Mr. Lewis seemed to think so.

For now that New Democrats in Quebec have given up displaying their separatist convictions he felt separatism would be no issue because all four party leaders felt the same way about a united Canada.

All four leaders may be in agreement, but only the New Democrats shelter separatists in their midst.

Real Caouette and his Creditistes campaign hard — and long have — against separatism.

Robert Stanfield and his Conservatives openly harbor no separatists.

And Pierre Trudeau and his Liberals have a Quebec provincial wing dedicated to federalism.

"First the good news from our survey—54 per cent of the people polled never heard of you . . ."

Task Force Will Tackle Litter Problem

By DON O'HEARN
Queen's Park Bureau

The government now is taking what appears to be a very practical approach to the vexing problem of litter.

It didn't do this at the start: a few years ago when in the grip of a national wave of concern about the environment we suddenly became litter conscious.

Then George Kerr, the minister at the time, pledged quick action and was talking about banning non-returnable bottles and various other measures.

But nothing resulted. Mainly for the reason that it was discovered that really nothing practical could be done. Nothing that is, which would work.

Other jurisdictions rushed into litter control. Notably B.C., which tried to force the return of non-returnable bottles. Only to find out that their laws and programs weren't practical.

Everett Biggs, deputy minister of the environment, in a major speech Monday to the Soft Drink Association, outlined the government's thinking in and policies in litter.

An aim, he said, was "to make litter-bug socially unacceptable as spitting on the sidewalk."

This is one goal. And the only aggressive action taken to date in litter has been to work towards it through a promotion campaign.

But beyond the social aspect there is the problem of the actual litter that really exists. The bottles, tins, paper and other materials are increasing so greatly all the time and are already straining our capacity to deal with them.

Straining not only pocket books (garbage disposal now is one of the major items in all municipal costs) but even actually space, land, in which to get rid of them.

Mr. Biggs in his speech made it clear that the government definitely intends to do something about this. And eventually perhaps make that its quite radical.

Recycling of all materials possible is the ultimate objective, one would gather from the emphasis he put on this.

But first, insofar as possible, the government is going to know where it is heading and why and how.

And to serve it being appointed representing the packaging industry, consumers and environmentalists and municipal engineers (who in the end have to get rid of litter).

And this force is being given a definite directive: come up with answers, with new answers, with solutions no matter how novel or apparently extreme they may be.

The mandate is "to do it or else." The force has been given nine months in which to bring forth solutions. And it has been told if it doesn't produce them then the government will.

As was said at the beginning this seems to be practical.

Often one can be cynical about task forces. But this is an occasion on which one should be suitably awe. How thinking is needed. And the best source of this should be the people most closely connected with the problem, which the members of this task force are.

It is perhaps a slower approach than many people would like. But it also is a rational one and should be more constructive in the end than the knee-jerking efforts other jurisdictions have made.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

Chief William Bain, and a year later was promoted to sergeant.

Mrs. G. Bergstrom of Colville, Wash., is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Pugh, following a four-month trip through England, Sweden and France.

Mrs. A. Arbuckle and C. McGrath were among the out-of-town guests who attended the Freeman-Kerr wedding at St. James-Bond United Church in Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Hyde attended the annual convention of the Ontario Association of Plumbing Inspectors and affiliates, in Leaside.

Mrs. Eileen Watters attended the funeral of her uncle, Charles K. Cooper, Toronto.

30 YEARS AGO

September 29, 1942

Walker R. Fromer, member of the Belleville Police Department and more recently sergeant of the Trenton Police Department, today was named Chief Constable of the Belleville Police Department. Chief Fromer, who is a native of Toronto came to Belleville in 1928 as a special officer with the CNR, and six years later resigned to take a position as constable with the Belleville Force. Only a few months later he resigned to accept a similar post with the Trenton Police Force under Lewis Laliberte, president of the Quebec New Democratic Party, is shown with Pierre de Bellefeuille, the Quebec super-nationalist, underlined it.

Said he:

"We are not going to ask our supporters if they are federalists or separatists.

"We consider that exclusively a provincial question."

And Mr. de Bellefeuille promised that while New Democrats in Quebec were free to be separatists if they wished, they at least would not talk about separation during the election campaign.

Nice of them, what?

Mr. Lewis seemed to think so.

For now that New Democrats in Quebec have given up displaying their separatist convictions he felt separatism would be no issue because all four party leaders felt the same way about a united Canada.

All four leaders may be in agreement, but only the New Democrats shelter separatists in their midst.

Real Caouette and his Creditistes campaign hard — and long have — against separatism.

Robert Stanfield and his Conservatives openly harbor no separatists.

And Pierre Trudeau and his Liberals have a Quebec provincial wing dedicated to federalism.

Norwegians Vote Against Common Market Membership

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Norway's decision by referendum to reject membership in the European Common Market is unlikely to be that country's final word on its future relations with Europe. Some key power of the industrialized centre is likely to exert increasing influence on the weakened periphery of the continent in the years to come.

But at the moment, the Norwegian majority not only has thrown the country into a political crisis with the announcement of the resignation of the government of Prime Minister Trygve Bratteli, but it raises fresh doubts about the attractiveness of the Common Market in other countries. It poses fresh pressaurs and emotional reasurent on a number of national leaders.

The most immediate impact is on the Danish referendum to take place Monday. Pollsters had indicated a comfortable majority for Denmark's Common Market entry but now that there is fear voters will be influenced by the Norwegian decision and wreck their chance.

The outcome of the Norwegian referendum was not entirely a surprise. The country had been sharply divided on the issue for some time, though for Prime Minister Bratteli, who staked his government on Common Market entry, the decision is a severe blow.

A similar result in Denmark would be more of a continental shock. It would mean that the one member of the Scandinavian region will be represented in the Brussels council of ministers.

The present members of the Market are France, Italy, West Germany, Belgium, Luxembourg and the Netherlands. Norway, Denmark, Britain and Ireland have been invited to join in January.

The tendency in case of Danish refusal would be for the continuation of some form of Scandinavian free trade area grouping but experts strongly doubt that a regional market would be comparable with the attractions of an enlarged European community.

Scandinavia would have to find some new way linking with the European community, perhaps initially through a tariff-free agreement and gradually enlarging relations where full membership becomes inevitable.

But for the moment the political embarrassments and the blow to Common Market prestige are of more concern to national leaders. In Britain, opponents of Common Market entry have launched another campaign for a referendum before Britain takes up membership next Jan. 1.

Prime Minister Heath maintains the traditional method of testing majority will is through Parliament. After a long debate he has obtained approval of the membership bill. He will continue to oppose further demands for a referendum, thereby losing double if member Britons, given a free vote, would really favor membership.

Heath has often pointed a picture of great wealth and opportunity awaiting Britain after Market entry. But as the Norwegian vote seems to indicate, the prospect of material gain is not the only factor weighing on the public mind.

Colonialism's Ugly Legacy in Philippines

By JOHN D. HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

"Three hundred years of the convent, 50 years of Hollywood and 20 years of the slum."

This comment was made to me recently by a former Manila newsman from The Philippines Republic, now in deep social and political trouble. It conveyed his message that current problems are due to the alien colonial regimes of Spain (conventa) and the United States (Hollywood).

The Spanish ruled the heavily populated areas in fact their Filipino have yet ruled themselves, from the reign of Philip II, king of Spanish Armada fame), to Madrid's defeat in the Spanish-American War in 1898.

The Americans arrived, as much for military bases to assist to the contrary, as military conquerors and imperialists. The first thing they had to do after defeating Spain in Southeast Asia, was to put down a bellicose rebellion of Filipino republicans who thought freedom from Spain would mean independence for the Philippines.

It took 10 years and thousands of Filipino lives before the British, Dutch, French tradition in Asia, let me remind you of the decisive song invented by the U.S. Marines in the islands, "the monkeys have gone to Zamboanga."

Zamboanga was—probably still is—a scruffy second city of the Philippines and was once both a Spanish and American outpost against the Moro tribesmen. The song was one of those nasty tunes invented by soldiers to relieve the British had many in India and you can guess whether monkeys actually meant monkeys or Moros, that is the indigenous peoples.

All this is to help understand why the modern Philippines, heirs of centuries of the government, massive corruption from Manila and the American about the rule-of-law, is in such deep trouble in 1972.

President Fernando Marcos, who has been re-elected more than once with large majorities, took desperate action in a country normally democratic, and declared martial law a few days ago.

A brave and newly-determined man, a result of the struggles and the bullet-in-the-back ambushings and public violence of the last three years, Marcos is making promises for a new political system while he prepares to defend the republic against Communist guerrillas and a possible left wing coup.

Public disorder has become so bad in the republic of many islands that the Communist party-line is an armed camp and the homes of Manila's wealthy are protected by barbed wire and heavily-armed hired guards.

The short-term causes for the decline of the Philippines are partly the fault of President Marcos himself. In 1970 he tried to forestall the widening gap between rich and poor by increasing the money supply almost 25 per cent, partly to pay state employees.

Election Perspective

Ottawa Journal

Now that the election campaign is on the road, let's have a look at it in perspective.

The public hopes the campaign will concern itself with issues rather than images and harangues.

The public is not as shallow as the politicians and extremists and parts of the media seem to think.

The campaign will have thrust upon it the manner of side issues, red herrings, trivia and overblown personality puffs and vanities. They will come sometimes in solemnly impressive guises, sometimes as grotesque as sneerers.

Yet all will serve to distract attention from the things that count and some will gain credence.

The politicians themselves bear much of the blame. Too many permit things to be said or done in their name which they know to be unfair or irresponsible. Too many say such things on their own. Too many, in their public utterances and promises, are unhibished by facts. Too many avoid the main issues.

Hospital Addition

Kingston Whig-Standard

In keeping with its goal of excellence in improved hospital care, Kingston General Hospital is planning to add a wealth unit to rehabilitation centre. The centre is expected to be in operation early January.

This centre, which will provide both in-patient and out-patient care, will be equipped to assess and treat 65 handicapped children in Kingston and surrounding area. (Larger facilities are planned for Queen's Health Sciences Centre.) A medical director will oversee care and treatment within the centre.

The rehabilitation unit will include a classroom as well as facilities for social workers, occupational therapy, physiotherapy and special therapy. It should be noted that visiting teachers from the Frontenac County Board of Education will provide instruction for the young pedestals. But as the operators of the centre point out, in addition to providing education the teachers are also aware of the concept of a child's need and potential.

As a result, the government is faced with severe inflation and a staggering debt which foreign experts of Philippine natural resources products can no longer hope to pay for. Government officials at all levels, except the highest, are woefully paid, the police and soldiers of the Manila receiving about $45 a month.

And lingering in the hills where earlier anti-guerrilla efforts pushed them, are the Hukbalahap or simply "Huk" Communist guerrillas who emerged as the most powerful underground force in Asia during the wartime occupation. Now reconstructed into the so-called "New People's Army," they might still have the power, with wide support from so many poor and dispossessed Filipinos, to take over the government.

President Marcos has placed key communications facilities, airports and docks under military service under army rules. It is a desperation measure.

Writing, Photography Workshop October 14

A workshop for aspiring writers will be held Saturday, Oct. 14 at Loyalist College.

The one-day seminar will give participants an introduction to writing for newspapers, magazines, radio and television. Club press reporters will learn how to keep the name of their organization before the public and camera buffs will have a chance to learn the fundamentals of news photography.

The workshop is sponsored by the Toronto branch of the Media Club of Canada — its first to be held outside the metropolitan area.

Workshop leaders are all working radio, television, newspaper and magazine writers or photographers. Participants can attend their choice of two seminars, one in the morning and one in the afternoon.

Subjects include writing for newspapers and interviewing techniques, how to write magazine features, how to prepare radio and TV scripts, how to do public relations work for your club or organization and how to take pictures for newspapers and magazines.

Jo Carson of the Globe and Mail will conduct a workshop on newspaper writing. She has written for small and large dailies, handling everything from working write-ups to political coverage, features and editorials.

Canada's leading medical reporter, Joan Hoddon of the Globe and Mail will conduct a seminar on interviewing.

Jean Durard, travel editor of the Financial Post will discuss feature writing. She has worked for Maclean's Magazine and for the Imperial Oil Review. Sharing the features seminar with her will be Lyn Harrington, a freelance writer who has published 15 books and more than 2,500 articles, radio plays and short stories. She now teaches a creative writing course at Northern Vocational School in Toronto.

Christina MacBeth, a lecturer at Ryerson Polytechnical Institute, will give a course on the writing of radio and television commercials and the format for a TV script. She has written material for the CBS, is heard Saturdays on radio, and is owner-publisher of a weekly newspaper.

Former Globe and Mail reporter Barbara Whales will conduct the workshop on public relations. She now owns her own public relations business, Words Unlimited and also teaches public relations to third-year journalism students at Ryerson.

An award-winning newspaper photographer, Fred Ross of the Toronto Star will discuss photography. He worked for the Kingston Whig-Standard and the Globe and Mail before joining the Star, and has won the Picture of the Month award from Canadian Press several times.

Cost of the day-long workshop is $30 for adults and $5 for students with secondary school identification cards. The fee includes the choice of two seminars, two coffee breaks and luncheon at the college. Registrations can be made by writing to Media Club of Canada, Toronto Branch, Box 3235, Station A, Toronto 1, before Oct. 6 and a limited number of registration forms are available at The Intelligencer.

Council Votes to Retain City Inspection Services

Construction safety, fire safety and septic tank inspections should remain a municipal responsibility in Belleville rather than have these functions performed by provincial personnel.

This is the feeling of city department heads and, with the sanction of city council, a recommendation to this effect will go to the provincial-municipal Liaison Committee set up in July to make a province-wide review of the inspection field.

The recommendation is that municipalities the size of Belleville would be better served if the above inspections were maintained at the local level of government with the provincial government providing financial assistance.

The report of department head views presented to city council this week by City Manager J. R. Reynolds noted that a fire prevention bureau had been established in the city fire department some years ago and was providing a very real and worthwhile service. Inspections were carried out year round to ensure that possible fire hazards are eliminated as far as possible.

It was felt the city would not receive this level of inspection if it was carried out by the province.

The report suggested the same thing could hold true if construction safety inspections were carried out by the province.

With the inspection function assumed by the province, faulty construction might take place because of inadequate inspection through lack of sufficient staff and, because of inadequate staff, delays in inspection could hold up construction.

This, it was claimed, would not only cause inconvenience, but would also result in increased costs to contractors and to the public.

Septic tank inspections in Belleville are carried out by the health unit and it was felt this function should also be retained at the local level.

Matching satin ribbon highlighted the waistband of the A-line skirt. White baby 'mums were worn twined in her hair and she carried a bouquet of white carnations, white daisy 'mums and baby's breath interspersed with ivy.

Miss Rosemarie Hicks, sister of the bride was maid of honor chose an empire styled sleeveless gown in turquoise chiffon with the neckline and waist trimmed with silver braid. Anniversary Dinner

Plans were completed for the dinner on Thursday, Sept. 28, combining a celebration of the 30th anniversary of the founding of Marmora Chapter and an area meeting. Mrs. E. C. MacKay, Provincial president, will be the guest speaker and at least 10 members of other chapters have indicated they will be present. Following a social hour the dinner will be held in Sacred Heart Church Hall.

The education committee chairmen Mrs. Bennett reminded the members that an annual shipment of toys and games for the children at the Marmora Chapter's adopted Indian Residential School at Davis Inlet must be shipped in October if it is to reach its destination in time for Christmas.

A donation of $5. for prizes at the Marmora Agricultural Fair was authorized.

Mrs. G. Bennett displayed the I.O.D.E. scrapbook that are available to members.

Several money raising events were planned: a rummage sale on Oct. 19 and 20; a bake sale and boutique table in November, and a raffle for a basket of groceries in December.

A canvass for the blind will be undertaken in Marmora during October. Mrs. Bennett has agreed to be convener again and requested the help of I.O.D.E. members and other interested citizens.

Savage officiated at the September 23 wedding ceremony in Emmanuel Baptist Church of Patricia Francey, daughter of Mrs. Doris Francey of Belleville, and Terry Hunt, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence (Skeezy) Hunt of Belleville. Attendants were Miss Nancy Maher and Mr. Robert Murray. A reception was held at the Belleville Shrine Club.

Previous to her recent marriage, Mrs. Raymond Howe (nee Arleen Barchild) was honored at several showers. Mrs. Pat Kammer held one which was co-hosted by Mrs. Judy Kammer. Baptist Women Confer

A Baptist Women's Conference using the theme His Word and His Work was held at Victoria Avenue Baptist Church last Friday evening and Saturday.

Mrs. Rodney Barr from the host church welcomed 150 to many women from Emmanuel Baptist, Cobourg, Calvary, Campbellford, Brighton, Picton and Kingston Baptist Churches.

One of the directors of the Conference was Mrs. Ruth Bates from Toronto who is the president of the Baptist Women's Missionary Society of Ontario and Quebec, and the former vice-president of the Baptist World Alliance. She has served on the executive of Baptist World Alliance for two decades, organizing six continental Women Unions, thus spoke with authority about the Baptist World Movement in world mission. She said the "whole church must take the whole gospel to the whole world".

The other director Miss Lois Tupper from Hamilton, had been the director of the Baptist Women's Leaders in a Training School at the Baptist Divinity College, Rochester University for 28 years, and also recently retired as a professor from that seminary. She led thought-provoking worship periods and an inspiring Bible study.

Skits about home and overseas missions clarified problems and also illustrated Task Force, the spearhead of the future of mission enterprise. Task Force members, all nationals, who remain the supervisors, request the type of missionary they need to assist them for five to 10 years only until the nationals can get along by themselves.

There was also a demonstration on how to make a mission study topic interesting by using slides, tape and a skit.

Coffee and tea were served before and after each session, conversed by Mrs. F. Travis and Mrs. M. Dobson. Everyone brought a box lunch on Saturday noon.

Mrsgt Ed. Burn presented Dr. Bates and Miss Tupper with a money gift in appreciation of the inspiring leadership they gave. The inspiration of this conference and the fellowship enjoyed was deemed rewarding to all.

These two women travel extensively throughout the world and it was felt by those in charge that it was indeed a privilege to have them visit Belleville.

Art Show Attractive

TWEED — Two attractive art displays in the Avenger Electronics Office on Tweed's Main Street (Victoria) have attracted considerable attention and received a great deal of favourable comment this past week.

One window shows a number of watercolors, charcoal sketches, oils, pastels and pencil drawings, while the second window contains items of weaving, rugmaking, pottery and glass flowers. These are some of the items that students attending the community workshop classes to be held in Tweed, will have an opportunity to make for themselves.

The classes, sponsored jointly by the Tweed Council of the Arts and Crafts and Loyalist College, Belleville, began classes on September 25. Registration was held in the Hungerford Township Hall from 1.30 to 7.30 p.m. Friday, September 22.

A full page ad in this week's issue of the Tweed News, gives particulars regarding the courses available. Officials of the Council are hoping that a large number of persons in Tweed and surrounding communities will take advantage of the courses offered.

Ann Landers

Secret Stuffer Suffers

Dear Ann Landers: I am a college student who is in desperate need of help. I have been stuffing myself secretly until I get sick, and then I make myself throw up. This has been going on nearly every day for two years. I've gained 30 pounds. I hate this horrible habit but sometimes can't even see and I just have to do it.

Sometimes my head aches and my stomach hurts and my throat feels sore from the severe vomiting, when I know I should stop. I'm afraid if I don't stop this I will injure myself permanently — if I haven't already done so.

I hope you will consider my letter seriously even though I'm probably only one of thousands. You are the only one I dare confide in. And only you can publish a pamphlet that I have to see. Thank you. — Stuffy City

Dear Stuffy: The questions that must be vomited are these: Why are you bulimic? Why are you trying to punish yourself in such a self-destructive manner? Why do you feel unloved on a daily basis? A psychiatric help needn't cost anything if you are a student. The fee you pay for the psychiatrist usually includes counseling. Get going. The self-hatred vomiting is a symptom of deeper problems.

Dear Ann Landers: You have a problem that is driving me crazy. Some fool in an office who whistles all day long is piped in over the PA system. I've suggested ear plugs or that "you" be told you can't be married. If an employee had a problem that required a deodorant, I'm sure you would see that it was corrected. If you have any suggestions, we whistled compassionately. Please answer soon. It is quite pathetic at its worst. Did it occur to you that the whistler may not be aware that he/she is whistling at all? I say, ask him/her politely to stop and see. — Divorced but Remarried in Yes

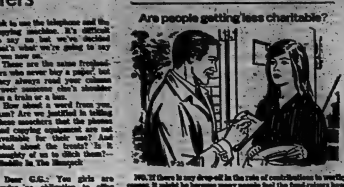
Dear D But It: You are right. I love it. Your answer sounds like something from Solomon. Send a bib on my face. Thanks for the tip.

Dear Ann Landers: We have a great office. There are several of us who have been friends nearly all our lives. We lunch and socialize on the day. I don't mean just a mean good treat. When someone is sick, we all chip in and send flowers. The office has an appointment officer for an opposite sex office (not for us) and try to make them comfortable.

Each of us has frequent callers have got into the habit of calling everything is right. They also help themselves to the bringing in Christ into the life of the community. We are the first person responsible for bringing Christ into the community. We are to be like Mary. She was the first priest. — Mary

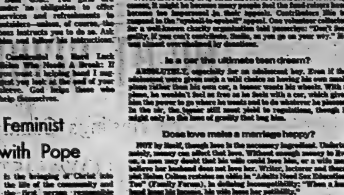
"They have tried to rebuke it, but they have no argument with this. All they say is that women are inferior.

Women have not stood up and said to the theologians, 'get-bugs.'



There are some theologians who now believe that this doctrine of Mary's role cannot be denied.

"Another factor is that the church has always maintained that the church is made up of male and female. They've always talked about male and female influence. Then this is doubled in the priesthood when there are no women."



Miss Wallace says she prefers to let the invitation to the Catholic Conference remain open, but her commitment is becoming increasingly unacceptable to many feminists.

"I haven't got a theology degree. Anybody in the church can write a letter to the bishops, but now we have this bill that only professional theologians can offer an opinion.

"The average Catholic does not even know he can write to the bishops if he has a problem. The Canadian Conference is the national body that the Canadian bishops to-gether."

Are people getting less charitable?

NO. If there is any drop-off in the rate of contributions to worthy causes, it might be because many people feel the fund-raisers have become too aggressive. Some of the "charities" you're asked to give to in the "street-corner appeal. One volunteer collector for a well-known charity expressed the opinion: "I don't feel guilty. If you can't contribute, thanks, so you go on your way." He was almost correct. Almost.

In a car the ultimate boon dream?

ASSOCIATION — especially her association with Ford. Even if the automobile were given such a wild choice as having his own Ford Thunderbird Turbo Coupe, Jackie Stewart would be hard-pressed to choose either from his own cars, a luxury model like Vista 4 Door, he wouldn't find as true as his Scots with a car, which gives him the power to go where he wants and to do whatever he pleases in his car. Ford has a car for all tastes and inclinations, though it might only be the love of quality that long lists.

Does love make a marriage happy?

NOT by itself, though love is the necessary ingredient. Tolstoy, Smiles, Sartre, Shaw, Freud and others have said much the same in so many words. Love is not enough. Love is necessary but not sufficient. Love is not enough necessary but not sufficient. Love is not enough necessary but not sufficient. Love is not enough

Lewis

Feud Continues With MacMillan

PORTAGE LA PRAIRIE, Man. (CP) — The battle between NDP Leader Lewis and MacMillan Bloedel than the figure claimed by the LAC, which erupted earlier this week in Vancouver, continued unabated Thursday as the two clashed in Manitoba town.

Mr. Lewis, on a one-day campaign swing in Manitoba in support of the provincial NDP, accompanied MacMillan Bloedel's chairman, J. V. Clyne, was "being less than honest" in his latest defence of his company's tax position.

Earlier in the week, Mr. Lewis added the big forest products company to his "three list of corporate welfare bums," saying it had paid only $123.3 million in income tax on profits of $612.9 million from 1963 to 1971—an effective tax rate of 23 per cent.

Mr. Clyne, who touched off the battle when he called the fellow businessman to defend the corporate tax system against the NDP leader's criticism, shot back Wednesday that the company has paid $226 million on average of only $53.3 million before taxes.

In his rebuttal Thursday, Mr. Lewis said the chairman was "devious" — a word Mr. Clyne also has used against Mr. Lewis.

The NDP leader said the profit figure claimed by the company is $262 million less

The NDP account for intangibles, like mine development costs, but "not those that can be amortized."

Douglas said Wednesday.

"Instead of hiring investigators to search out fraud, he should investigate the inept competency and inefficiency of the unemployment insurance program.

"Trudeau has made a scapegoat of the unemployed," Mr. Douglas said. "He has thrown thousands out of work instead of using the resources of this country for the benefit of the people."

Mr. Douglas, speaking to reporters in Parliament Fri. Mackenzie-Cotterdam-The Pas, said the Trudeau government created unemployment to discipline labor, had "ended up with both.

"The past few years have been a disaster for labor ... many years of Trudeau will be a catastrophe," Mr. Douglas said.

"Our economy is in the worst shape ever. The government has no policy to change. Inflation was out of hand. It has failed to grapple with pollution control."

The Job Debate: . . . 'PM Should Apologize'

MANAIMO, B.C. (CP) — Former New Democratic Party leader Tommy Douglas says Prime Minister Trudeau should apologize to the Canadian unemployed for Liberal Jobcompiler.

"Instead he blames the unemployed, for the condition he has put them in," Mr. Douglas said Wednesday.

"Instead of hiring investigators to search out fraud, he should investigate the inept competency and inefficiency of the unemployment insurance program.

"Trudeau has made a scapegoat of the unemployed," he said.

. . . 'NDP Means Job Wipe-out'

QUESNEL, B.C. (CP) — Minister of State Pat Mahoney said Wednesday that federal New Democratic Party policies under leader David Lewis would wipe out millions of Canadian jobs.

Mr. Mahoney told a service club in this central British Columbia community that "Mr. Lewis's policies would turn northern and Western Canada into an economic desert and it wouldn't do much for the Gaspe Peninsula either."

"Once you accept the basic socialist doctrine that the state can run things better than the private sector it is pretty easy to accept the thesis that incentives to private enterprise are a rip-off," he said.

Mr. Mahoney added: "In our private-enterprise system, his policies would mean a wipe-out—a wipe-out of commercial fishing products and completely the international market place, a wipe-out for millions of Canadian jobs."

Mr. Mahoney, MP for Calgary South in the last Parliament, said the federal government ensured the tax rate of manufacturers and processors who continued to work particularly "not by way of a handout to business, or by way of any corporate welfare, but in order that Canadians could service, produce and support, keep their jobs competitive, provide more jobs and sell to the world."

"It is not corporate welfare but human welfare."

Wagner Blasts Goyer's Policies

TRENTFORD - MINES, Que. (CP) — Claude Wagner, Quebec campaign leader for the Progressive Conservatives, Wednesday said he was alarmed about Canada's rising crime rate and promised a "no holds barred" crackdown on the problem if his party is elected.

Representatives of the Social Credit Party, the Parti Quebecois, Quebec Justice minister on an open-line program on a French-language radio station, Mr. Wagner said, a strong attack against existing Liberal policies.

Dangerous criminals are being set free too soon, he said, and the future of a man, whose a man, sentenced to 25 years in prison, was released after one year.

He criticized Solicitor-General Jean-Pierre Goyer's policy of rehabilitation, saying "we do everything for those in need outside the penitentiary."

Prisons need reform, he said, "but not the soft approach" being for those in need outside the penitentiary."

Prisons need reform, he said, "but not the soft approach being for those in need outside the penitentiary."

Mr. Wagner mentioned unemployment, inflation and economic problems before launching a blistering attack on Canada's rising crime rate.

The campaign of his opponent found that earlier this month more than 1,000 persons had been convicted of indictable offences committed in Quebec City, and two recent acquittals in murder cases in Montreal and Quebec City.

Social Credit supporters used this campaign stop to re-elect Mr. Wagner, who quit as a Superior Court judge to run for the Conservatives, the fourth time in the by-election campaign.

Food Study Not Taken Claims Andras

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal prices and incomes commission carried out no special study on food prices, the office of Consumer Affairs minister Andras said Thursday.

The minister was answering a question in the Commons.

The statement was early study submitted to the government, until a statement issued in reaction to charges made Wednesday by Conservative Leader Stanfield in Delhi, Ont.

Mr. Stanfield said the Liberal government is keeping secret a report on food prices in Canada.

The Andras statement noted that the commission released an interim report on kitchen and price stability last June and a final report in August. Both were available to anyone who wanted them.

"No doubt in the preparation of the report many internal memoranda, were generated on various aspects of price movements. It is possible Mr. Stanfield is referring to such internal memoranda."

Students at North Addington Educational Centre at Cheese are sponsoring a Walkathon on September 30 for new physical education equipment. The Walkathon will begin at the school and proceed in the hamlet of Kaladar.

Horner Says Macleans Using Smear Campaign

MEDICINE HAT, Alta. (CP) — Jack Horner, Conservative MP for Crowfoot, says Macleans's magazine editor Peter C. Newman "and his friends in the Liberal party" are waging "a vicious smear campaign" against him and his family.

"The Liberal establishment in Ottawa knows it can't defeat me in a fair political contest, so it has resorted to smearing me and my family all across Canada," Mr. Horner said in an interview Thursday.

He gave as an example "the disgusting, disgraceful article" about him and his family in the current issue of Macleen's magazine. The article is by Heather Robertson.

Mr. Horner said he was interviewed for the article last Feb-

Communist Platform Outlined

VANCOUVER (CP) — William Kashtan, leader of the Communist Party of Canada, said in here Thursday that a Communist government would work for proportional representation in the House of Commons.

He said his party would not alter basic election processes but would try to make them more democratic.

"We would try to ensure that a community with 5,000 people, for example, could not elect as many representatives as one with 15,000," he said.

A Communist government would nationalize all natural resource industries and financial institutions and at election time would put forward a four year plan for economic development.

Canada wouldn't have the problems of Russia or China in converting to communism, Mr. Kashtan said, since Canada already has the wealth and skilled labor necessary to ensure a good standard of living for all.

He claimed that free enter-

Politicians Said Playing Wrong Game

THORNBURY, Ont. (CP) — Unemployment figures are wrong in Alberta and some areas of Ontario by people who earn enough for 70 weeks of the year to qualify for unemployment insurance, Agriculture minister H. A. Olson said Thursday.

This means the problem was not unemployment but the unemployed.

However, Mr. Olson told a political campaign meeting it is important that all of Canada should have a reasonably of finest condition.

"We are living in a higher level of disposable income than ever before in history," he said.

Mr. Olson said some politicians "play one against west, English against French, labor against management."

"That's the kind of politics some are playing in 1972.

"It is a real disservice to Canada to traffic in that kind of attitude which would pit one against the other. If that kind of political division succeeds, it will be a detriment to Canada."

On trade and marketing, he told the meeting, in support of Lindsay Inglis, Liberal candidate for the Oct. 30 federal election for Grey-Simcoe, that: "It was our prime minister who led the way in communication and trade with China, sich sugh it was not a popular pleasilon."

Early Soviet Jubilation Later Became Despair

Henderson Changed Fans' Tune

MOSCOW (CP) — Before the game even five minutes had passed from 18,000 emotional Canadian hockey fans were chanting "Let's go home, let's go home," to their team.

Later, with only 34 seconds left on the clock in the first period, they were cheering in wild disbelief as Canada tied the game which gave them a 6-5 win and victory in the hard-fought eight-game series—and a chance to fly home with one foot.

Tonight—the victory was heard, fast hockey that revealed Sunday Cup play in intensity.

Phil Esposito scored twice with the other goals coming from Yvon Cournoyer, Brad Park, Bill White and Paul Henderson, who got the winner. It was the second game-winning goal of the series for Henderson.

Canada fought off early penalties and survived two spheroids on the ice to come from behind four times for the victory.

The Russian goals were scored by Alexander Yakushev with two, and Vladimir Lutchenko, Vladimir Shadrin and Yuheri Vasiliev.

The first period ended in a 2-2 tie and the second with Russia ahead 5-4.

Esposito said of the winning goal:

"I was behind the net and I saw Henderson flying in. I fired on the net and the rebound went out to Paul and he put it in great."

Said Henderson:

"This is the happiest moment of my career."

Esposito agreed: "I was more emotional in this series than I ever was in the Stanley Cup. The thing that did it for me was that first game, which we lost 7-3. Then that was the one we took in the pocket, and everybody booing us."

But the game that began with the Russians playing circles around the western hats to the Russian players, and Hockey Canada commissioner Alan Eagleson, who toted team gate to the Soviet Ice Hockey Federation, were the only after diplomatic interaction.

And before it was over, winger Jean-Paul Parise had been thrown out of the game for going after referee Josef Kompalla and stick-swinging Canadian players had to hold team director Alan Eagleson away from a group of angry police.

Parise was ejected for disputing an interference call early in the first period. He pounded and Kompalla called a 10-minute misconduct. Play ers restrained Parise from attacking the referee, who then threw him out of the game.

At this point, the Canadian bench threw a stool, then a bench chair, on the ice. Then, when Kompalla started to leave, someone in the bench area floored a skate.

It was at this point that the tense, unhappy if a pre-game compromise on the naming of officials to work the game broke their only chance of a happy home."

The Eagleson incident erupted when the goal light behind Russian goalie Vladislav Tretiak failed to come on when Cournoyer poked in the tying goal midway through the third period.

Many in the crowd, including the volatile Eagleson, thought the goal was being disallowed. Actually, the light had failed—it didn't work on Houterson's game-winning goal, either.

Eagleson said he was ordered to the timekeeper's bench to discuss the situation when "about 18" Russian police interrupted him. The playmaker of the ice—led by Pete Mahovlich—went over the boards to try to rescue their leader.

Coaches Harry Sinden and John Ferguson Jr. were also hit and pulled Eagleson away from the rookies and escorted him across the ice to the player box.

Eagleson said later he was not as concerned about the treatment he himself as he was at the fact the wife of Canadian Ambassador Robert Ford was pushed by a policeman during the game.

Park, playing his best game of the series, gave Canada a tie-breaking out of the first period.

Shadrin took 31 seconds of the second to put his team back in the lead 3-2. White tied it up 10 minutes later. Yakushev made it 4-3 the Russians skated for 10 minutes after that, then Vasiliev stretched the lead to 5-3 with Phil Stapleton off for cross-checking but the Russians were held scoreless there five for fighting.

Russia played two men short for a brief period when Valtsev got two minutes for tripping Bobby Clarke, but the Soviets killed the penalties.

Paul Henderson scored the third and comments later

Esposito got one back with 6:43 to play, added another a minute after that, then Vasiliev and Bill Gilbert and Yevgeni Mishakov went off for five minutes for fighting.

Russia played two men short for a brief period when Valtsev got two minutes for tripping Bobby Clarke, but the Soviets killed the penalties.

PAUL HENDERSON

No Shock To Gregory

VANCOUVER (CP) — "Surprised? No I'm not surprised—he scored 31 goals for us last year."

That was the reaction of Jim Gregory, Toronto Maple Leafs general manager, to Paul Henderson's series-winning goal in the eighth game Thursday of the Russia-Canada hockey series.

"I guess we got off the place at just the right time," Gregory said.

The Leafs missed all but the first five minutes of the game because they were flying to Vancouver for a pre-season National Hockey League game against Vancouver Canucks.

Gregory said that although there were other players better-known for their goal-scoring abilities, "Henderson's series had any trouble putting the puck in the net."

"He'd probably have even more goals in the NHL except sometimes he plays defence as much. He and Bobby Clarke and Rene Robert probably suited the style of play the Russians don't like because most of the other members of Team Canada," the Toronto executive said.

"We're really proud of him and of Rennie Ellis and of Brian Glennie too."

Tea Time For Mom

LUCKNOW, Ont. (CP) — When Paul scored that goal it was like an atom bomb going off," said Evelyn Henderson in the aftermath of Team Canada's 6-5 win over Russia in Moscow Thursday.

"It was the most exciting moment for me in Paul's hockey career, and I'm certain it was for him, too," said the mother of Paul Henderson, the Toronto Maple Leaf winger who scored the winning goal with 34 seconds remaining in the game.

"I'll celebrate with a cup of tea," Mrs. Henderson said when asked how she planned to mark the occasion.

Czechs Next

MOSCOW (AP) — Canada's victorious hockey team left for Soviet Union today for Prague where it faces the world champion Czech team for a friendly match Saturday.

The Canadians won their eight-game series against the Soviet Union when they defeated the Russians 6-5 Thursday, winning four games, losing three and drawing one.

Soviets Destroy 'Myth'

MOSCOW (AP) — The Russians beat their hockey tormentors again against Canada's professionals, but Soviet sports writers insisted today the "myth of the Canadian pros' invincibility has been destroyed."

The eight-game series ended Thursday night when Team Canada defeated the Russians 6-5 in the decisive match, giving the professionals four wins, three losses and one tie.

The series was to have been a battle of giants: professionals vs. Soviet "amateurs." And with a defeat on its hands, the government-controlled press screamed "Foul play," "Hooliganism" and "Unethical play."

The Canadians were repeatedly labelled "professionals," while the Russians came off as "Soviet sportsmen."

The labor union newspaper Trud found conviction in the Soviet squad's playing which "confirmed our greater maturity and higher level of collective attack."

But it said the Canadians "won the last match only with great difficulty, which both proves their talent and persistent character."

Petes Bounce Baby Hawks

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP) — Peterborough Petes opened the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A season Thursday night by defeating St. Catharines Black Hawks 6-4.

St. Catharines opened the first goal of the game, but fell behind at the end of the first period 2-1. The Petes had a 4-1 lead at the end of the second.

The Petes, who outshot the Black Hawks 32-31, were led in scoring by Doug Gibson and Jim Jones with two goals each. Rick Chisnick and rookie Jim Johnston had single goals.

Series Views Vary

DEREK SANDERSON

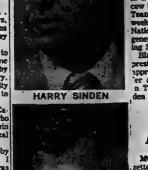
"There have been exciting Stanley Cup playoff games down through the years, but nothing absolutely nothing to compare with the Canada-Russia series which ended in such a dramatic note in Moscow last night," says Jim Vipond in today's Globe and Mail.

"They (Russians) were ready for the best Canada had to offer and, in retrospect, every amateur hockey man in this country should have been aware of it. . . . Yet we took them lightly. . . .

"But their readiness, proved beyond question in the first game in Montreal which they won 7-3, shook the far-from-ready Canadians out of their frolic days and into serious training. . . .

"Team Canada members . . . take their hockey peers, whether imagined or genuine being their equals. . . . They respected the hard way.

"That they were able to realize potential, overcome the emotionalism generated by frustration in a foreign country, and settle with the majority of them that is—is a tribute to their Canadian heritage.



John Robertson, the only Canadian sports columnist who followed the Soviet team to each the series, says in the Montreal Star:

"Okay, I lost my bet—by 36-odd seconds—but I think I won the point I was making in this space yesterday. Rather, Uncle Al Eagleson was us a bunch of barbarians, being led by a man who badly flies as a walking diplomatic disaster. . . .

HARRY SINDEN

"What is of more consequence? Showing the world what kind of hockey game we produce? Or showing the world what kind of people we produce? . . . I looked on Paul Henderson as a bunch of barbarians, being led by a man who badly flies as a walking diplomatic disaster. . . .

WHA Gets Television Contract

TORONTO (CP) — The World Hockey Association received Thursday a multi-year television contract from Global Sports Enterprises Ltd for about $3 million and said that CBC-TV would televise six games during the 1972-73 season.

WHA president Gary Davidson said at a news conference the games the CBC will show in its national network will originate from Canada rinks and will primarily involve Canadian teams in the 12-team league.

The CBC will televise the league opener Oct. 14 Saturday when Alberta Oilers will be the visitors. Other games are Quebec at Winnipeg Nov. 28; Ottawa at Winnipeg, Dec. 16; Houston at Ottawa, Dec. 2; Cleveland at Ottawa, Feb. 17; and Alberta at Quebec, March 25.

Gauthier Goes To Raiders

NEW YORK (AP) — Veteran defenseman Jean Gauthier, who played the 1971-72 season with Baltimore Clippers of the American Hockey League, has been signed by New York Raiders, the World Hockey Association club announced Thursday.

Sanderson's Jump Upheld by Judge

BOSTON (AP) — A United States federal judge said Thursday professional hockey "would seem to be" subject to antitrust regulations and therefore refused to prohibit former Boston Bruins standouts Derek Sanderson and Gerry Cheevers from jumping to a rival hockey league.

U.S. District Court Judge Andrew Caffrey refused the request from the National Hockey League Bruins for a preliminary injunction. The court's action opened the way for Sanderson and Cheevers to play with teams in the World Hockey Association. The WHA is about to begin its initial season of play.

Bruins' president Weston Adams said he was disappointed with Caffrey's ruling and said lawyers for the Shoney Cup-champion Bruins will appeal the decision Monday to the 1st U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Boston.

In a memorandum attached to his ruling, Caffrey said: "Because of its particular international character, hockey's several teams in Canada, as well as the United States, professional hockey would seem to be the leading candidate for a ruling that it is subject to federal anti-trust laws."

Cheevers, a goalie, has signed a seven-year contract with the Cleveland entry in the WHA which Caffrey's memorandum said spreads $1.4 million to $2,800,000 annual installments. It said the Bruins had offered Cheevers $70,000 plus bonuses for the 1972-73 season.

Sanderson, a controversial character, signed a 10-year contract with the WHA's Philadelphia Blazers for $2.25 million, the memorandum said.

In addition to other benefits, the memorandum said Sanderson would receive $200,000 each of the first two years of the contract, $160,000 each of the next five years, $125,000 in eighth year and $250,000 each of the final two years. It said the Bruins offered Sanderson $90,000 plus bonuses for the coming season.

Sinden New Bruin GM?

MONTREAL (CP) — Ted Blackman of The Gazette says in a column written from Moscow that coach Harry Sinden of Team Canada will return next week to Boston Bruins of the National Hockey League as general manager of the defending Stanley Cup champions.

Blackman says that Bruins president Weston Adams Jr., "disconnected Sinden with the latter at the Team Canada camp in Toronto last month and Sinden accepted.

Stapleton Had Enough

MONTREAL (CP) — The Gazette says Pat Stapleton, all-star defenceman with Chicago Black Hawks of the National Hockey League, plans to retire from hockey after Saturday's game against Czechoslovakia in Prague.

The newspaper says in a story from Moscow that Stapleton, a father of four, feels he's not spending enough time with his family, has grown tired of professional hockey and has enough other activities

Stapleton also has a distaste for hating and hockey fights in Chicago which produces an image he wants to shed. He is 29 year for him, the newspaper said.

Blames Fans

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (CP-AP) — Vic Hadfield, who left Team Canada in Moscow before the fifth game of the international hockey series, says unfriendly fan reaction in Western Canada was more upsetting to the players than losses to the Russians.

Hadfield defended himself against criticism of his decision to quit Team Canada when coach Harry Sinden did not put him in the lineup for the sixth game against the Soviets in the fifth game.

What Exactly Did Canadians Prove?

by

Maurice Switzer

Sports Editor

Scene: Toronto's Maple Leaf Gardens.

Time: Aug. 21, 1972.

Enter Harry Sinden, coach of Team Canada, training for an eight-game hockey series with Russia, sore assed by reporters.

Coach Sinden: "I am singing at winning every game."

* * *

Well, Harry, at least you weren't the only one. Such hockey experts as Scotty Bowman and Alan Eagleson forecast that the Soviet National team wouldn't earn a point in the eight-game set-to.

And your confidence was bolstered by scouting reports turned in by such shrewd judges of hockey horseflesh as John Bassett and Bob Davidson — men who make a living out of deciding whether or not a hockey player has any ability.

They returned from a Soviet Union sightseeing tour heaped with delight over the fact that Russian National hockey team is goal-tending, shooting, and bad rusty skate-blades.

* * *

But Canada's hockey bubble was burst convincingly the evening of Saturday, Sept. 2, when those same Soviets stamped the pick of the National Hockey League litter 7-3 as the series opened in Montreal.

Really, nothing after that mattered.

Even Paul Henderson's goal in the eighth and final game only proved that the Canadians had remarkable powers of recovery.

The series, which was supposed to be a walkaway, was a cliff - hanging, toe-to - toe bout down to the outcome of a Stanley Cup series go down to the final 34 seconds of an eight-game marathon before a winner was declared.

* * *

Sure, the 4-3-1 outcome in Team Canada's favor gave us something of which all Canadians could be proud. Playing performances by Phil Esposito, Paul Henderson et al will go down in the annals of Canadian sport as truly remarkable achievements.

Team Canada is to be applauded for a courageous comeback in the face of adversity on the longest road trip a hockey team can make.

And they are to be chastised for committing some of the most uncivilized public acts I have ever witnessed on a playing surface, frozen, asphalted, or turfed.

* * *

Is the answer to officiating of dubious merit to shove a referee, swipe a hockey stick within inches of his face, or call him obscenities that can be lip-read on television 9,000 miles away?

When a player will not be accommodating as to get involved in a fist fight; is the appropriate response to make such coke gestures as slicing one's hand across one's throat?

Even when did the coaching manual include busting of chairs onto the ice? If Harry Sinden pulled a stunt like that in a National Hockey League game, he'd be suspended by Clarence Campbell.

And the coup de grace: Alan Eagleson and his compatriot slipping across the Lenin Sports Palace ice rinkside decked in Canadian sweaters.

* * *

We can assure you, hockey fans, that raising the middle finger skyward does not signify: We're number one.

And, no, this is not one of your sour grapes commentaries — just a realistic look at every bet he made on the series, with wagers falling on both sides of the fence. I also forecast a 6-1-1 verdict in favor of Team Canada in this space.

It's just that I find it difficult to be proud of a victory so tainted with cry-baby tactics, revenge, violence, and downright boorishness.

The Russians could give us many lessons in civilized behavior as they could in the fundamentals of hockey.

CJBQ Radio will be broadcasting the ceremonies live, beginning around 7 p.m., and it also running buses for fans interested in hailing the conquering hockey heroes.

Inquiries for the 30 return trip, leaving the Market Square at 3 p.m. Sunday, should be made to Rawson's Travel Service.

Rutherford Runs Wild Through BCI Defence

BCI strollers found that it just takes one player to spoil a perfectly good football game. That one player was Moira's Dave Rutherford who scored four touchdowns to pace his team to a 34-6 Bay of Quinte COSSA win Thursday.

The speedy halfback gave the Collegians a preview of things to come by notching 34 yards for a touchdown on the Trojans' first offensive play. He later added scoring runs of 66, 45 and 6 yards, which coupled with two converts by Gordon Reynolds provided all of Moira's scoring.

The lone BCI major came on a two-yard plunge by Dick Bell. Charlie Geen caught a two-point conversion pass.

Rutherford, who played both ways the whole game was Peter Slabkowski were top Trojan backs, while linemen Jim Struthers and Pat Macnicle also contributed heavily towards the win. For BCI, the top players were two-way lineman Jeff Rae and tackle Steve Conway.

The Moira juniors also came up with a lone offensive threat in the person of fullback Rick North. The first-year player scored two touchdowns, in leading the Trojans to a 14-9 win.

North scored on a four-yard plunge, after setting up the score with a 58-yard kick-off and later galloped 40 yards for his second major. Rick Barbeau added a two-point conversion.

Middle guard Don Gutoski and center Hugh Sedore were the line standouts for the winners.

"We'd might as well go home. You've made all the damage!"

Canucks Shade Leafs

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Greg Boddy and Brian McSheffrey scored less than two minutes apart early in the third period Thursday night to break a 4-4 tie and send Vancouver Canucks to a 6-5 win over Toronto Maple Leafs in a National Hockey League exhibition game at Vancouver.

In the only other game, Mike Murphy snapped in his own rebound to give St. Louis Blues a 3-3 tie at Philadelphia against the Flyers.

Dave Balon, Bobby Schmautz, Don Tannahill and Gerry O'Flaherty scored the other Canucks' goals. Brian St. John, Darryll Sittler, Dennis Dupere, Murray Heatley and defencemen Mike Pelyk replied for the Leafs.

Garry Unger and Andre Dupont scored the other St. Louis goals as the Blues trailed only briefly in the game after Jean Potvin sent Philadelphia into a 2-2 lead at 9:12 of the third period.

Murphy connected just 47 seconds later.

Final Swings Over

By ERIC EMERSON

Sports Staff

The Commercial Softball League season closed with a bang last night. In fact it closed with several of them.

Hits were a common occurrence in the Rollins Construction — Howard and Robert Printing battle, at least until the eighth inning. Rollins' outfielder Carl Bonnshaver opened that frame with a single.

Once on first, Bonny apparently discovered that he had three elbows attached to various parts of his body — one of them, he claimed, belonging to Howard and Robert first baseman Gary Coyer.

The pair began discussing the alleged missing infection, at the same time engaging in a stint and fisty-type public match. Coyer adjourned preliminary arguments by tagging Bonnshaver, which brought Rollins' catcher Ralph Pinno to the scene in roughly .05 seconds. That pair continued to argue the finer points of difference without chuckling, tagging players as both benches cleared. Somehow, Coyer and Pinno were all ejected from the fracas.

And, oh yes, the score was 2-0 for Rollins, giving them their second consecutive championship and marking them as first winners of the Alexander Cup. The win was a tribute to former Rollins' coach Gerry Alexander, who was the man responsible for the Rollins Commercial's first pennant winning and league champion team.

The Reds capped an outstanding season for Rollins, firing a three-hit shutout. It struck out 10 batters and did not walk one. Bob Lindsay, who had earned the Printers' only decision in the five-game set, was pitched-to by the six hit loss. "Chad" fanned nine batters between innings to record equally impressive control.

The game's only scoring came in the bottom of the first, when Bonnshaver made he base on a bunt single. Two batters later, Robert servers, sandwiched around Steve Legg's base hit, were enough to provide Rollins with a pair of unearned runs.

That proved only other scoring threat came in the second when Al Ferguson led off with a single only to have Eblen retire the next three batters in order. The Printers' pitcher tripled in the third, but was tagged out at the plate, attempting to score on a passed ball.

The other Howard and Robert scoring chance came in the top of the eighth when Pat Augustine poled a lead off single but was forced out after Waite handcuffed the next three batters. The losers' only other safety was a single by Eblen.

Trevino Lurks Near Leaders

BETTENDORF, Iowa (AP) — Lee Trevino lurked just two strokes off the pace of a pair of youthful, long-shot leaders today as officials attempted to complete the storm-interrupted first round of the $175,000 Quad Cities Open golf tournament.

Jack Lewis, 25, and Don Iverson, 26, non-winners on the pro tour, posted four-under-par 67s Thursday several hours before a violent storm forced suspension of play with about two dozen pros still on the course for a 3-2 victory over Detroit Tigers.

Gibby Gilbert, with a 68, and Trevino, completed their rounds moments before the storm, packing close-striking lightning, hail, wind and heavy rains, forced suspension of play.

Gary Bowerman of Toronto shot 33-37-70, Wilf Heemskerk of Winnipeg and Ben Kern of Toronto both shot 35-35-70.

Players who were still on the course were to complete their rounds this morning before the start of the second round in this event that is being played as a major tournament for the first time.

Trevino, the British Open champion, No. 2 money winner on the tour this season and the heavy favorite to take the $28,000 first prize, was tied at 69 with Craig Dear and Martin Rosenlof.

Deane Beman, who won the Quad Cities last year, was five strokes back at 72.

Oakland Clinches West

One Flag Still Loose

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

The happy Oakland Athletics and balkanish New York Yankees went at opposite ends of an emotional see-saw today at baseball's 1972 season' heeded into its final regular week of play.

The Athletics, wearing the American League's West Division crown, were happy that they hadn't backed into the title and the Yankees, still nursing an outside shot at the AL's East title, were grateful that they hadn't backed out of their chance for the other division championship.

Oakland wiped out a seven-run deficit and clinched the West with an 8-7 victory over Minnesota Twins while the Yankees, precariously at the fate of instant elimination, fought back for a 3-2 victory over Detroit Tigers.

The Tigers' loss, combined with Boston's 7-1 victory over Kansas City Royals, moved the Red Sox 1½ games ahead of Detroit in the AL East scramble. Each team has six to play including a season-ending three-game series against each other.

The Yankees are third, 3½ games behind with five to play and idle Baltimore Orioles slipped to fourth place four behind with four to play.

In the only National League game played Thursday, Philadelphia Phillies topped Pittsburgh Pirates 2-1 as Steve Carlton became the eighth pitcher in major league history to strike out 300 batters in a season.

Oakland, rallying by seven runs in the first 4½ innings tied the score on Angel Mangual's two-run single in the eighth inning.

In the ninth, leadoff batter Sal Bando was hit by a pitch and then circled the bases on Dal Maxvill's double for the winning run.

Roy White's 12th-inning homer gave the Yanks the victory and kept them mathematically alive.

New York beat Mickey Lolich, dealing the Tigers a tough blow, in order to catch Boston Detroit will have to win two more games than the Red Sox.

The lost left Lolich with a 21-14 record— 4-8 since the all-star game.

In the only National League game Carlton spun a six-hitter and struck out 11 to beat Pittsburgh. It was the 26th victory of the season for the Phillies' ace left-hander and gave him 300 strikeouts. The only other National League to reach the 300 plateau was Hall of Famer Sandy Koufax.

One of the hits off Carlton was the 2,999th of Robert Clemente's career. Clemente's keeping his word that he would try for No. 3,000 in Pittsburgh.

Writer Forecasts TV Winners, Losers

NEW YORK (AP) — Only one show figures after the hasty burial of television's premiere week: the Sonny and Cher hour, which sent it zooming to the top of the ratings charts, and probably will succeed or fall in the months to come.

The forecast is drawn without reason to rating charts or pay its bearer and is strictly a personal guess. Here it is:

Sunday — CBS: Anne and the King, dramedy of M-A-S-H, may Bogart a fall season, but a questionable starter next fall. Sandy Duncan, replacement prominent in mid-season.

Monday — CBS: Bill Cosby will rank with Sonny and Cher. ABC: Paul Lynde Show, an unknown cut. John Andrews' Show, an hour of the can stand with a $4.50 chance of a second season. Search, with at for a long, long time

What the Stars Say

By JEANE DIXON

Saturday, Sept. 30

Aries (March 21-April 19): Endless discussions resolve no issues, but make clear to all the character of those doing the talking. Do not make promises.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): You still are on a delay-detour pattern. Relax, as your impatience is at work digesting recent experiences.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Property entrusted to you should not unnerve during your stewardship. Take caution in your social activities.

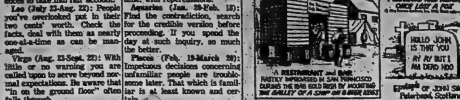
Cancer (June 21-July 22): Open your mind and heart to the friendly people you know, expecting many sorts of differences to take into fair account.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): People you've overlooked put in their two cents' worth. Check the facts, deal with them as nearly one-at-time as can be managed.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): With little or no warning you are called upon to serve beyond normal expectations. Be aware that "in on the ground floor" often falls through.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Your poise while waiting for observation to be demanded will astonish you, and create an image that will help later.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): See yourself as stronger than momentary irritation, discipline your impulsive tendencies. Care in legal actions is critical.



Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): This weekend is no time for a selling decision. What seems solid proves fuzzy in a shifting sand soon. Others opinions differ from yours.

Capricorn (Dec. 23-Jan. 19): Union is not favored today. What is brought together now tends to split up in a fairly short time, with rejuvenation.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Find the contradiction, search for the credible version before proceeding. If you spend the day at such inquiry, so much the better.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Impetuous decisions concerning unfamiliar people are troublesome. That which is familiar is at least known and certain.

Patient Best Judge Of Recovery Time

By G. C. THORTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thorteson: Can you explain why some operations have longer recuperative periods than others?

My doctor said it would take six months to a year to recover from removal of part of a kidney (kidney stones that would not pass on their own).

The doctor said to judge activity by how I feel. Be down when tired, etc. I get along on less sleep now, am doing more housework and am finishing a college course by correspondence.

The only difficulty is explaining or apologizing, especially when I feel fine. Incidentally, is a long time and especially since I am feeling better and better all the time that I am trying to be sensible.—G.T.O.

Well, just keep on being sensible—and I'm blessed if I see why you should either apologize or explain to anybody.

You are, as your doctor said, the best judge of how much activity you can tolerate. Don't anybody tries to push you into more exercise than is good for you, tell 'em, "My doctor says I shouldn't."

Also, the rate of recuperation, it depends on several factors, not the least of which is the type and extent of surgery. Having part of a vital organ like the kidney removed is a far cry from something as relationally simple as removing an appendix.

If infection is present, that not only depletes your vitality but makes demands on your system to battle suppressing the infection. If there is no infection, we have heals quite rapidly.

Other factors which may or may not apply in your case are age, state of health before the operation; to some extent the type of anesthesia; type and amount of tissue removed.

Then, too, and for quite some time, the complaints I've been on "early ambulation"—getting a patient up and moving about as soon after surgery as is safe.

If for some good reason the patient has to remain still for some time after the operation, a slow recovery is a price that has to be paid for the enforced sedentary and inactivity. Muscles like their use, and the whole human organism tends to slow down.

The longer the patient has to remain bedridden, the more fatigue he begins to complain of when he does start getting around. It takes time to regain the lost muscle tone and stamina.

Sounds it me, however, that you're doing very well, considering the operation you had.

Dear Dr. Thorteson: I had a heavy lifting, or most competitive sports.

Rates Are Frozen On Farmers' Loans

OWEN SOUND, Ont. (CP) — Agriculture Minister H. A. (Bud) Gibon announced Thursday a decision to freeze interest rates on loans to farmers, fishermen, small businessmen and Indians.

Mr. Gibon said lending rates on direct government loans of government-assisted lunch groups will be held at their present level by an order-in-council until March, 1973.

He said a news conference the federal government will announce the seven-per-cent interest rate on loans for improvement of land and machinery, purchase of farm land and purchase of land under the Veterans' Land Act.

The federal government also will freeze the 6¼-per-cent rate for the purchase of farm equipment; and also for loans under the Small Business Loans Act and the Fisheries Improvement Act. Loans under Indian economic development regulations also will be held at 6% per cent.

If the federal government had not intervened, he said, the rates would have increased by about one per cent.

Tories' 'Blue Machine' Predicts 40 Ontario Seats

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario's big, blue Tory machine is running the federal election campaign in the province for Robert Stanfield with plenty of political expertise, lots of workers, but little hard cash.

Funds needed to run the Ontario show are being raised by the local federal riding associations, with some from the national party where needed.

Any deficit after the Oct. 30 election will be the responsibility of the national Progressive Conservative party, and not its provincial counterpart, said Paul Weed, organizer in charge of the campaign in Ontario's 88 ridings.

It means that the Ontario party is providing leadership and the team to help Opposition Leader Stanfield win one of the 19 seats the Tories held federally in the province at dissolution of Parliament.

The contribution by Premier William Davis to the campaign is significant in that this is the first time that the normally aloof, the fiercely-independent provincial Tories have given more than token assistance to their federal leadership in a national election.

Mr. Weed, who helped master-mind the campaign that returned the Tories to power in the province a year ago, said flatly:

"I think we've got more people activitated across the province now than in the provincial campaign." He declined to estimate how many, but said it was "in the hundreds."

An informed provincial source, however, said that the current campaign won't cost as much as the one last fall, the price of which has been estimated between $3 million and $5 million.

Mr. Weed was floor manager for Mr. Stanfield in the convention fight five years ago that provided the Nova Scotian with the party leadership.

He is the only expert from Mr. Davis's personal staff to be let loose for the federal fight. However, he is backed up by the same 21 regional chairmen who worked with him in the campaign last fall, and he has the advice of such Davis strategists as Hugh MacIntyre, Claire Westcott and Ross Dobson.

Normally, Mr. Weed is aided and in executive-director Dr. Geer, in charge of constituency organization.

Both he and Mr. DeGeer were hired by Mr. Davis after their campaign for Al-an Lawrence in the provincial party leadership fight in February, 1971. Mr. Lawrence, a long-shot candidate, lost the leadership to Mr. Davis by 44 votes, and recently left the provincial cabinet to contest the federal riding of Northumberland-Durham for the Conservatives in the current campaign.

Mr. Weed believes his team can increase the federal PC representation in the province to 40 seats.

If he's right, Ontario might give Mr. Stanfield the majority he needs to win the election. Prime Minister Trudeau's legions held 63 Ontario seats at dissolution.

Mr. Davis's personal aides will take the form of personal appearances with Mr. Stanfield. The first of these was at a gala rally last week in Oakville. Others are planned, but on a day-to-day basis, and where Mr. Davis's busy schedule can be fitted in with the national leader's visits to the province.

Mr. Weed has been working on the federal campaign at since Feb. 1.

Since then, he and his workers have roamed the province, stirring up enthusiasm among riding executives and workers, and providing advice on how to run their local campaign.

When Mr. Davis announced a big commitment to Mr. Stanfield in late winter of 1971, Paul Weed immediately phoned his 21 regional chairmen and "I didn't get a single refusal."

One of his first moves was to reorganize the regional structure set up for Stanfield's 1971 provincial ridings. Some of the 21 chairmen were appointed his deputies, with special duties.

Among them are Jean Woods, a former MP, who was put in charge of eastern Ontario ridings and women's events.

George Jodoin runs the show in major southwestern Ontario regions, such as Kitchener and Windsor.

Ed Kowal, a Toronto lawyer and former president of the Ontario Young PCs, who looked after the Pringe Toronto ridings in last fall's provincial campaign, took over some key ridings in eastern Ontario, as well as Hamilton and the Niagara Peninsula.

George E. Nori, a Sault Ste. Marie lawyer, was put in charge of 16 northern ridings. Paul Yates, an insurance salesman, and another of Allan Lawrence's campaign managers, looks after all 21 Metropolitan Toronto ridings. Mrs. Gerry Vander was assigned to the tough Sudbury-Nickel Belt area.

All these deputies have regional chairmen under them.

"These are pretty people, people we've made available," said Mr. Weed. "They are all fiercely political people who know what it's all about."

Mr. Weed's team have been moving into ridings that previously were Liberal strongholds.

One such riding is Algoma, held by former Liberal prime minister Pearson.

"We never did get much of an input in there," said Mr. Weed. "But this time it's a whole new ball game in Algoma where we are definitely going to be a factor."

Mr. Stanfield's Ontario tour is controlled from the down-town Adelaide street offices, where the whole operation is centred.

How much help Mr. Davis's commitment will mean to Mr. Stanfield in Ontario has been a matter that debate.

One rival strategist said the Davis input can't be translated into any more than 25 seats.

"It's true that the big, blue machine exerts psychic romantic provincially, because of favors to important people, appointments to boards, and the like. But they haven't anything like that kind of umch in federal politics."

Care For Your Car

Fall-Winter 1972 BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 29, 1972

Inventors Still Busy in Automobile Industry

The Automotive Information Council, supported by the major segments of the motor vehicle and motor vehicle service industries, for several months has been gathering data about current accomplishments and future technology and service refinements planned by the industry. A few innovations which one day may become an integral part of your vehicle include:

A braking system which results a straight - ahead controlled stop without skidding or sliding even on wet pavement during a "panic" stop.

A device to aid in steering which automatically compensates for wind gusts and crack holes, adapted from car space guidance systems.

A unit on the dashboard which monitors tire pressure while driving, activating a warning light or buzzer when the pressure on any tire falls below a prescribed level. One study shows that a tire under-inflated by nine pounds of pressure loses 25 per cent of its life. In 1970, according to the same study, underinflation wasted an estimated 13 billion tire miles.

These are but a few of the more sophisticated innovations which may be available on the vehicle you buy in the near future.

A man who has stayed for "one too many" weaves through the bar door and lurches into his parked car. He's heading home, or so he thinks. But in order to start the car he must first correctly punch up his personal five-digit identification number on a small dashboard computer.

If successful, for a two-second interval another set of numbers totally foreign to him appears which he must memorize and duplicate on the computer. He has three chances at the second test. Correct answers will activate the ignition system.

He can then start the car by pushing another button which also activates the computer into a rapid series of pre-driving diagnostic tests of vital operating systems, reporting any signs of trouble. If unsuccessful with either test, no one can start the car for at least one hour.

Far fetched? Not at all. The technology is here. The "psychological tester" designed to prevent drunk drivers from starting their automobiles and to reduce the approximately one million vehicles stolen annually is one of many new systems in various development stages by motor vehicle and vehicle component system manufacturers.

And one of the most important industry products is the new breed of service technician equipped with the ability to maintain today's sophisticated power systems and those earmarked for future vehicles.

To supply this continuing need, vehicle and component manufacturers are re-training tens of thousands of experienced technicians every year. The vocational schools, and colleges are graduating thousands of young men annually who will become tomorrow's technicians.

And as the number of vehicles on the road grows each year, the industry is helping meet this service manpower demand by working closely with schools at "career day" assemblies, advising administrators and instructors on new teaching procedures, and providing industry sponsored schools.

Frenchman Was First

During 1763-1769 he built two steam -driven carriages, one of which was still on exhibit in Paris in recent years.

How do you know other rustproofers won't run out before their guarantee does?

You don't.

Someone who's been in the rustproofing business for two years might give you a lifetime guarantee. But his guarantee might last a lot longer than he will.

Ziebart has been in the rustproofing business 18 years. We pioneered rustproofing. And we've inspired a lot of imitators.

In the first place, our special compound is patented.

Secondly, it's not only what we use, but how we use it. Ziebart coats every critical area of your car. So there's no possibility for rust.

Finally, our process is so effective we guarantee it. If you have your car Ziebartized before it's been driven 3,000 miles, we'll guarantee it won't rust through for ten years. No matter how many miles you drive it. We put it in writing.

And if that's not enough to convince you, just ask someone who's had it.

Because he's got a rustproof car. And our long guarantee. Which is our guarantee we'll be around a long, long time.

Electrical System Is Key To Peace of Mind

Does the thought of wrestling with a stalled engine this winter give you chills? You can avoid this seasonal hassle by putting into practice a few basic guidelines for getting your car under way smoothly.

But well before winter arrives, every car owner should take his car in for a complete tune-up and inspection. Especially important is a check of the car's electrical system.

Batteries should be checked frequently. At 32 degrees, cranking power is about 66 per cent less than when the temperature is at 80 degrees; and at zero, about 40 per cent less.

During extended periods of cold weather, starting the car and running the engine at least every other day at sufficient RPM's to charge the battery is good insurance against battery failure. If this is done in a garage, be sure to open the garage doors wide enough to protect against the threat of carbon monoxide poisoning.

Do install snow tires well before the first snowfall, and have chains ready in case of a severe snowstorm.

Once the inspection has been completed, and that first cold morning has arrived, here is how to get your engine started with a minimum of trouble:

Make sure the shift selector or gear shift is in neutral. If the car has a manual shift, depress the clutch while starting.

Avoid a "battery strain" by making certain all electrical accessories (radio, lights, heater) are turned off before using the starter.

Depress the gas pedal all the way down to the floor once, then hold it halfway down as the starter is engaged. Do not pump the gas pedal, because this can result in flooding.

Turn the ignition key to "start," but don't hold the key in the start position for more than 30 seconds at a time. Continuous grinding of the starter can damage the battery, and even drain a fully charged one.

Depress the gas pedal slightly as soon as the engine runs. If the engine starts and then dies a number of times.

If the engine becomes flooded depress the gas pedal to the floor and hold it there while engaging the starter. Keep your foot on the pedal until the engine starts again. Then release it slowly. Remember, do not pump the pedal.

Getting your car moving in a heavy snowstorm shouldn't present too great a problem if you follow these tips.

Start with an "easy" foot on the accelerator and slip the clutch in second gear on cars with standard shift. Don't spin the wheels. You'll find that traction is greatest just before the wheels spin.

If the wheels should spin, try rocking the car forward and backward. If you've dug yourself into a pocket, use sand or traction mats to get out. Keep the front wheels pointed straight ahead when possible.

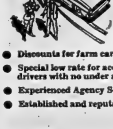
Once the car is under way, keep going.

Lowering tire pressure does not increase traction. And it can result in a loss of control.

Snow Tires: Big Aid in Winter

Car Boom Continues

The car industry is basic to North American economy.



Its vital role had tiny beginnings. In fact, statistics show in 1895 the first four vehicles were registered on the continent.

By 1900 there were only 8,000 cars registered in the United States. But the boom had started. By 1913, registrations had passed the million mark. Just 25 years later—1938—there were more than 30 million cars and trucks registered.

Gently Does It

If your car goes into a skid on a wet or icy street, turn the steering wheel in the direction of the skid. Do not jam on the brakes but pump them gently.

Antifreeze: Up to Strength?

Cooling System Needs Attention

If your car is more than a year old, you're in line for cooling system problems or trouble. Could be a simple thing like a worn or cracked V-belt, a hose that's getting soft or brittle, a radiator cap that's not holding pressure. But, one thing's sure — when one part is about to give way, you can count on others needing attention, too.

So, don't stop your winter cooling system protection with just an anti-freeze check-up. Ask your service technician for a Tune-Up No. 2.

Here's what he'll do:

He'll thoroughly inspect and check all cooling system components — hoses, V-belts, water pump, thermostat, radiator caps, hose clamps. Then he'll replace worn or malfunctioning parts and set you up for care-free driving in any weather.

Why is a cooling system tune-up so important? Remember, the cooling system of your car plays a vital role. It keeps the operating temperature of your engine at a level at which it performs at top efficiency.

To do this, automotive engineers came up with a pressurized cooling system. This permits the coolant to rise well above the normal boiling point without "boiling over." Modern engines, for example, are engineered with cooling systems that must withstand pressures in excess of 17 pounds plus underhood temperatures ranging as high as 278 degrees. Keep in mind that the boiling point of water at sea level is 212 degrees!

These high heats and great pressures are bound to put a strain on all parts of your car's cooling system. Just one defective or worn part can cause your engine to overheat with possible extensive and costly repairs following quickly.

So don't let the fact that you may be driving a late model car lull you into thinking nothing can happen. A cooling system tune-up is even more important to your car, simply because its higher running temperature makes cooling system parts wear fast.

I've made a thorough exploratory on the General Safety-Jet Tire and my diagnosis should give you complete assurance that its internal qualities are as sound as its exterior is handsome. I found full 4-ply rating nylon protection which showed less bulkiness, even flexibility, and cooler running characteristics. If your budget is on a diet, consult with me today!

For Safety's Sake: Alignment Once-over

Jumper Procedure

Using a jumper cable to start a car with a run-down battery is a relatively simple matter. That is, if you know what you are doing and take some simple precautions.

Battery technicians suggest teh following procedures when using jumper cables.

Start the engine of the car used as the "booster." Connect one end of the positive cable to the positive terminal of the booster battery. Then put the other positive cable to the positive terminal of the disabled battery. Connect the negative cable to the negative post of the booster battery. Then connect the other negative cable to the bumper, frame or engine block of the car to be started. Now try to start the "dead" engine.

Do not connect with the negative post of the disabled battery. The spark created by the connection could create an explosion if there is an excess of gasoline fumes or raw gasoline present.

Positive terminals are usually designated by plus sign. Negative terminals are usually identified by minus sign.

One last word of caution. If you are not certain you re doing it correctly, don't do it. Instead, call a professional service man. It could save you expense and trouble in the long run.

CALLING A CAB? What looks like a telephone dial is actually a device to test whether a driver is in condition to operate the car. Developed by General Motors, the Physiotor requires "dialing" a set of numbers in rapid sequence before ignition is possible. The Physiotor also can help deter car thieves.

Cosmetics Help With Trade-in

If you're thinking of trading in your car, a few dollars and a few ounces of elbow grease can increase its value considerably. Assuming your car is in good mechanical condition, the following cosmetic touches should help bring you top dollar on your trade-in.

(1) Clean engine block of excess grime.
(2) Scrub out the trunk.
(3) Touch up nicks and wax the car.
(4) Clean floor mats and replace them if badly worn.
(5) Clean upholstery.
(6) Clean the headlining and dash board area.
(7) Clean scuff marks from the door siding.
(8) Make certain all lights and turn signals are working.
(9) Polish chrome trim and remove rust from pitted area.

Esso CAR WASH

DUNDAS STREET WEST ACROSS FROM FOUR SEASONS

It's more than just a slogan.

Much more. Winter tests on motorists' cars showed that untuned cars had over twice the "won't starts" tuned cars had.

A major reason for this is worn spark plugs. They demand twice the voltage of plugs in good condition. And on a cold day, your battery supplies less voltage. When the supply can't meet the demand, your car won't start. No matter how hard you try.

So please consider our "slogan" and see your mechanic for his engine tune-up now—before trouble strikes. You'll enjoy dependable starts. Plus better acceleration and gas mileage. And reduced emissions, too.

Unique winter starting tests certified by the United States Auto Club involved 110 motorists in Sparta, New Jersey. Half of their cars were given a tune-up while the remaining cars were left in "as is" condition. After three months of normal use, the untuned cars had over twice as many "won't starts" as the tuned cars. The untuned cars averaged 5% poorer gas mileage, too. These wasted gas dollars—plus the cost of just one "won't start" service call—could just about pay for a tune-up!

Driving Techniques Must Change with Season

If you want to avoid wintertime motoring mishaps, here's some advice to follow — but don't follow too closely.

The Canada Safety Council says maintaining a proper following distance no matter how inconvenient this may be and maintaining a speed geared to the conditions will prevent three accidents.

The crux of the problem is the vehicle's contact with the road surface, often slippery in winter driving conditions. It can take up to nine times as long to stop on glare ice, for example, as on a dry surface.

Many drivers count on their snow tires to reduce their stopping distance on icy surfaces. They won't, Canada Safety Council tests demonstrated, although they improve traction on snow.

Studded tires reduce the stopping distances, especially in glare ice conditions, but can engender over - confidence because not all cars have studs so cannot stop in such a short distance.

A correct following distance gives the driver time to stop without hitting the car ahead or being struck by the car behind in both normal driving and when the car ahead makes an unexpected move. The driver needs plenty of room in which to manoeuver in winter driving, especially when the visibility is poor.

In dry surface driving conditions, the correct following distance is one vehicle length for every 10 miles an hour. Or use "the two second following distance formula.

Pick an object such as a telephone pole beside the road ahead. When the car ahead passes that object, start counting "a thousand and one, a thousand and two." If your car passes the object before you've finished counting, you're not keeping your distance. A formula good at any speed.

This following distance should be increased up to four times in winter driving conditions. Fresh snow is especially slippery. When ice conditions prevail, the speed should be reduced sharply and following distances increased up to nine car lengths for every 10 miles an hour of speed.

Speed too fast for the conditions and following too closely are involved in all rear-end collisions. Excessive speed is also responsible for many other winter accidents such as striking fixed objects beside the road.

Patience is the right attitude for winter driving. Starting off slowly and accelerating only as the driver feels the tires gripping the road surface. Patience when stuck, rocking the car back and forth gently rather than tire spinning.

Patience when driving going only at the speed at which you can feel the tires gripping the road surface. Patience when stopping which takes much longer on slippery surfaces and should be executed by pumping the brakes so that steering control is maintained.

Winter driving requires great attention to the problem of seeing and being seen. All windows should be cleared of snow, even if the driver has to stop in a snowstorm to clean them.

Front and rear lights should be visible at all times. Because winter driving conditions are often dirty, windshield washers should be maintained at the ready with the inclusion of anti-freeze solution.

When snow driving makes driving impossible, motorists should wait it out for snow ploughs. But they should ensure there is some air circulation to prevent gassing by carbon monoxide, the silent, odorless killer.

To prevent accidents, drivers should always be aware that winter driving is more hazardous and alter their driving habits accordingly.

What's New Under the Sun?

So you think the automobile crops up with the twentieth century?

Think back say 300 years.

One of the earliest attempts to propel a vehicle by mechanical power was suggested in 1680 by Isaac Newton.

Another early inventor was Christian Huygheens, a Dutch scientist, who proposed the first 'internal' combustion engine in 1678. Motive power was obtained by placing gunpowder in a cylinder — and applying a match.

ONE OF 82 MILLION — Eighty-two million calls for help were answered by AAA road service trucks last year. And almost half of them were the result of starting failures. AAA recommends a pre-winter tune-up as one step in making sure your car starts on even the coldest winter days.

Don't Let Tires Down

Remember how Dad always used to let some air out of his tires when the snow got over two inches deep? Grandpa had told him this would increase his traction.

Now, a new generation has come along to tell it like it is. It's like this: Your tires actually lose some of their bite when you let air out of them.

If you want good winter traction, put on a set of snow tires — maybe studded (where legal) — or buy some chains. However, you do it, do not experiment with your tire pressure. Besides the traction situation, underinflation can waste 20 per cent or more of your gasoline.

Here is another interesting phenomenon about tire pressures. If you leave the cold north when the temperature is down around zero, driving into the tropical south where it is a lovely 80 degrees, your tires could become as much as eight pounds overinflated.

Conversely, your tire pressure will drop a like amount as you go from a warm temperature to cold. The drop is about a pound for each 10 degrees.

This is why you should not check tire pressures in a heated garage and why you should have the pressure checked about once a month — especially as seasons change.

The advantages of proper tire pressure checks are increased safety, better handling and longer, more even tread wear.

We finally came up with a beautiful picture of a Volkswagen.

It won't freeze up. Because its engine is air-cooled.

It won't bog down. Because its engine is right over the back wheels for traction.

Minor Damage Can Become Big Problem

A minor scratch can develop into a serious infection when left unattended. This applies to cars as well as human bodies.

Possibly you have experienced something like this with your car. The minor paint chip, fist dent or split upholstery seam, which upset you considerably at first, gradually become part of the scene.

You get used to it after the initial jolt and tend not to worry about it after that. The same with subsequent dings and dents.

Unfortunately, the appealer with that brand new shine particularly appealing when you start shopping for a new car. A well maintained automobile may bring several hundred dollars more at trade-in time than one that has been allowed to deteriorate.

Sometimes the neglect of a car's appearance is not deliberate. A few scratches you may not have noticed, covered with dirt and salt through the winter, suddenly appear as rusty gouges when you get around to giving your car its spring clean-up.

Rust, which usually does more to depreciate a car than any other single factor, is ravenous. It moves in fast, feeding on chips and scratches, until what started out as a minor scrape (possibly one that you might have been able to fix up yourself) now may require considerable grinding and refinishing to make the car presentable.

In terms of protecting the substantial investment you probably have in your car, quality body repairs can pay big dividends at resale time. Watch for minor scrapes and scratches and take care of them before rust does.

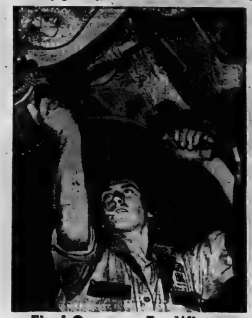
Belleville Car Sales Well Ahead in Year

The economy isn't exactly running on leaking tires — if this year's car sales in Belleville are any gauge.

Dealers in both domestic and foreign models say the public has been buying steadily, and are optimistic that 1972 may end as a record sales year.

"Canadians have spent more on automobiles than ever before. This is somewhat in contradiction to some of the things you read about the economy and purchasing power," says one import-car dealer.



John Trudeau, vice-president, Trudeau Motors quotes official car registrations to claim a five-per-cent across - the - board increase in sales by all Belleville outlets. His firm already is up about 15 per cent over last year and looks to 1972s last three months to help set a record for the year.

Other dealers project similar buoyancy.

"I think, generally speaking, the market in this area has been exceptional for everyone, whether with domestic or import models," says Manfred Koschin, president of Auto Haus Bell-Ton which markets Volkswagens.

The trend also shows Canadians increasingly opting for smaller cars — whether foreign or home - manufactured compacts, he believes.

Chet Vader, of Vader Motors, expects year - end totals will show a 20-25 per cent sales increase in another foreign-name model his company markets — Japan's Datsun.

Every Car Owner Has Responsibility

If you drive a car, you have more than the steering wheel in your hands.

As a motorist, your actions or lack of action can help determine the state of the motoring world in which you drive. And in doing so, you can make owning and operating a car a happier proposition.

In the simpler world a generation or so removed, car ownership was a relatively uncomplicated matter. Laws governing the automobile mainly dealt with its safe operation and licensing.

It is almost superfluous to note that things have certainly changed. Today, hardly a week passes that some legislative body is not weighing the passage of a new restriction on car ownership or car manufacturing. It's practically a full-time activity keeping up with new developments.

Reasons for this fixation on the car are not difficult to fathom. Traffic fatalities and injuries continue to remain at the same dismally high levels. Damage to the environment, resulting from vehicle emissions remains a serious problem.

While the auto makers have made and are continuing to make dramatic strides in solving these problems, the men and women behind the wheel have demonstrated little interest in carrying their share of the burden.

If this were not so, why do half of the cars undergoing simple vehicle safety checks fail in at least one critical component? If this were not so, why do three out of every five cars require simple engine maintenance that could reduce harmful emissions by a startlingly high percentage.

This lack of maintenance on the part of the car owner could almost be understood, if it were merely a matter of civic pride or good neighborliness.

It is obvious that self preservation ranks head and shoulders above concern for one's fellow man.

But caring for one's car pays handsome dividends in helping oneself. Perhaps the concern for one's family's safety is not that tangible an idea. It's comforting to believe "It can't happen to us." The non-use of seat belts is but one example of this apparent lack of concern.

On a dollar and cents basis, car care does pay tangible dividends. That low-emission tune-up will do more than help clean up the air. It will also save on gasoline consumption and on time and money expended when the car won't start.

Simple, low-cost procedures such as changing oil and filter and lubrication on a regular basis can forestall costly engine and drive train repairs. Cooling system attention can prevent mishaps that in some cases would ruin an engine completely.

Attention to the cleanliness and soundness of the car's body actually can mean several hundred dollars more at trade-in time.

But perhaps if each of us were to care for our cars and drive them safely another bonus could befall us. Taking the automobile out of the problem area takes it out of the legislative arena. The long list of "thou musts" and "thou shall nots" could even dwindle to a mind-easing level.

Who knows, a lot of the pleasure of owning and operating an automobile might reappear.

Take the first step by bringing your car into your favorite service outlet for a thorough check-up.

Pre-winter Checkup For Car Circuits

Power Steering Checklist

Safe winter driving insurance involves many pre-season checks, but one vital system that's often overlooked is your car's power steering.

How can you tell when something's wrong? It's easy. You can feel trouble. And, you can see it.

Your hands on the wheel are a pretty sensitive indicator of steering problems. Does your car steer hard in one or both directions? After you make a turn, does your car "straighten out" readily? Does your car "wander" on the straightaway?

Trouble is easy to hear, too. Any rattling, chattering, knocking, squealing or howling you hear when you make a turn indicates a problem.

Next time you park your car for awhile, check the pavement under your car. A spot of slippery - feeling fluid on your garage floor or driveway could very well be hydraulic fluid that's dripped from your power steering system.

Mazda On Upsurge

Another Japanese make, Mazda, also has shown a "tremendous increase" over last year, says its Belleville Auto Dealer Paul Ainsworth.

Walter Elliott, of Elliott Motors, one of the city's big, long-established dealers, also agrees it looks like a record year, with indications that business is up at least 14 per cent from last year.

Al Motorland Chrysler, Al Lyons expects the biggest year yet for sales while 1973 models just recently in the sales rooms already have received a "good reception."

Wayne Petti, Stevenson Ford Sales general manager, agrees that public acceptance of 1973 models is good and momentum of 1972 sales should continue.

A spokesman for Al Waterson Ford Mercury also looks to a big percentage increase for the year because of "excellent business" and much interest in 1973 automobiles.

Many dealers also quote the shortage of trade-ins, and offer various reasons. Biggest factor here is that many families apparently have decided to go two-car, simply by keeping the automobile they once would have traded as routine practice.

One dealer points out that changes in provincial highway laws prevent dealers accepting older, unsafe cars. Some people may try to evade the law by selling such vehicles privately.

Dealers agreed that buoyant business in the past 12 months is linked either to brighter economic conditions or greater confidence in the economy.

Front End Alignment Is Vital to Safety

Just as there are timing and ignition gap settings that combine to provide a well tuned, efficient engine, there are camber, caster, and "Toe" settings to maintain the operating quality of the chassis.

These are adjustable angles that must be maintained to provide a true running front end that will allow tires to give their maximum service life.

The camber angle is a measure of the tilt of the top of the front wheels to or away from the vehicle body. Ideally, for long tire life, the wheels should be close to a true vertical position when the car is in operation and at its stable riding height.

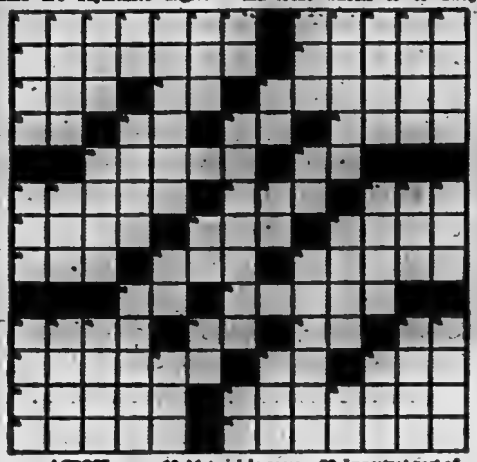
This prevents excessively high pressure on any portion of the tread where it meets the road that could cause unusual tire wear on one section of the tire surface.

Caster is the alignment angle used to measure the forward or rearward tilt of the steering axis of the front wheels, when checking from the side view. Its effect on the vehicle is mainly concerned with steering and handling.

Only under very extreme condition can caster be a tire wear factor.

Other handling problems calling for front end service would occur before tire wear became a problem.

Of the three adjustable alignment angles "Toe" has the greatest effect on tire life. The "Toe" specification concerns the ability of the wheels to roll ahead freely without scuffing across the road surface.



The ability to hold the proper "Toe" setting is directly affected by the condition of the parts in the steering system. This chassis system which includes the idler and pitman arms, tie rod ends, and centerlinks, connects the two front wheels and has the job of transmitting the driver's directional desires to them.

Although the parts in the steering system don't support a great deal of weight, they are subject to jarring, twisting, and turning forces that tend to wear them and create looseness. The change in the relationship of the parts to each other that is created by this wear can lead to variable or incorrect "Toe" settings that are a real hazard to tire life.

Maintaining the proper "Toe" and camber alignment in a vehicle is critical to obtaining the longest possible life from your tires, but alignment alone is not the whole story. Wheel bearing condition, tire inflation, shock absorbers, wheel balance, and driving habits, all have a big effect on tire life.

All these factors have to be considered, and corrections made when problems exist, before the wheel alignment can be really successful at helping prolong tire life.

And sag factors, alignment should be checked periodically. Be sure that the wheels are running straight and true; this is the way wheel alignment saves tires.

United Way Starts . . . And Thanks To You It's Working

By BRIAN AMARON
Staff Reporter

This year's United Way campaign doesn't officially begin until Monday, but already there's $25,000 in the bank.

That figure is good news to the campaigns 13 participating agencies which were counting on pledgements for 1972 should reach $145,000.

Last year at this time, only $13,000 had been pledged. The effective eventually fell short of its goal by more than $15,000.

The improvement is partially due to increased contributions from labor and business.

But campaign organizers are also striving to speed up and shorten the drive. This approach, they feel, will intensify the United Way concept in people's minds, rather than have it linger and fade away.

What is that concept? It is best described by this year's slogan: Thanks to You, It's Working.

The account is on achievement with a promise of continuing excellence if funds are available.

Here is a list of the 13 agencies and some of their accomplishments:

—Belleville Association for Retarded Children: They ran a workshop for the mentally retarded, average for residential care and conduct educational programs.

—Belleville Y M C As: The area's recreational agency. It gave free memberships to 120 youngsters last year, trained leaders for such activities as the Hillcrest recreational program, and provided certificate facilities to community groups.

—Belleville Minor Sports Association: One authority estimates registration fees would cost between $13-$15 instead of $8 for the 3,000 boys and girls taking part in baseball, hockey, track and field and other programs were run for the help of the United Way.

—Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society: As well as giving to research, funds help provide patient treatment at Belleville General Hospital and house physiotherapy service.

—Canadian National Institute for the Blind: 66 registered blind persons in the Quinte area enjoy regular visits and home teacher service in Braille, typing, cooking, sewing and personal care.

—Canadian Red Cross: It operates a homemaker's service, sickroom equipment loans, blood donor programs, aids disaster relief here and around the world, and co-operates in a water safety program.

—Central Volunteer Bureau: A lesser known agency, it recruits, trains and places volunteers for other needy agencies. Coordinates Christmas sharing and handicapper exchange programs, provides weekly meals for 70 shut-ins and conducts pre-retirement conferences, last year for 120 four-year-olds.

—Civic Action Committee: It helps pay for clothing, drugs, food, fuel, rent, utilities, transportation, medical supplies, dentures, hearing aids, glasses and other needs.

Rains Cut Road

Traffic was cut to one lane on Highway 2 west of Belleville today as rains — totalling more than an inch in 24 hours — washed out part of a road detour.

The washout came at Potter's Creek near Wallbridge - Loyalist Road where traffic is being detoured as the highway is broadened to four lanes between Belleville and Trenton.

The lane still usable was inches deep in water.

Provincial police said no accidents were caused although city police report several minor accidents on slippery streets.

Plugged sewers were causing flooding in three areas around the city. Heavy accumulations of water were reported in the vicinity of Bridge and George Streets, Dundas East and Burnham, and at the corner of Campbell St. police station.

Construction equipment in the Moira River — which crews are installing a sewer — was partially submerged due to high water levels.

The Quinte district woke to rain and showery skies for the second day — although local weather forecasts predicted a letup later in the day.

The Canadian Forces Base Trenton office forecasted that Sunday would be mostly sunny. Temperatures will remain cool with high of 55 degrees and a low tonight of 45.

Belleville filtration plant reported a rainfall of 1.61 inches in 24 hours.

Candidates Must File

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

In 21 remote ridings along Canada's coasts and across the North, candidates in the Oct. 30 federal election must file their nomination papers by Monday, the deadline.

Nominations close at 2 p.m. local standard time in the 21 large, sparsely populated ridings among Canada's 264. Candidates in the other 243 have until Oct. 16 to file.

The Canada Elections Act provides that candidates in these remote ridings must file a week ahead of the deadline so four weeks before election day because the communities they contain are difficult to reach and distribution of material for a federal election—ballot boxes, ballots and voters' lists—takes longer.

Gasoline War

TORONTO (CP) — The price of regular grade gasoline has dropped below 40 cents a gallon in a service station price war in one section of the east end of Toronto.

Many of the stations are charging 39.9 cents a gallon and there's already been one casualty with a station displaying a large "closed" sign nailed to the door. The stations still list the price at 51.9 cents.

Four Win On Sweepstake

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Four Canadians won prizes of about $120,000 each with Irish Sweepstakes tickets drawn Saturday, winner of today's Canterbury Handicap at Newmarket, England. Three Canadians won about $24,000 each on Derbyna, third-place winner, while there were no Canadian ticket holders on Roy Bridge, who finished second.

Rain, Rain Go Away

That's the rhyme construction crews will be singing when they return to work in the Moira River Monday morning. Heavy rainfall — totalling more than an inch in 24 hours — left equipment more than a foot deep in water where crews are installing a sanitary sewer.

Controls On Drugs Criticized

FORT ERIE, Ont. (CP) — Allan Lawrence, former Ontario justice secretary, Friday attacked the Trudeau government for what he said was its lack of policy on the control of drugs.

Speaking to a Progressive Conservative party fund-raising dinner, Mr. Lawrence said the federal government has been "sadly negligent" in not spearheading an international movement to stop the manufacture and importation of drugs into Canada.

"If those initiatives require more money, perhaps even to finance law enforcement and control work in other nations with their consent, then I see only benefit to us all in spending that kind of money. Some nations do have some sort of economic interest in being lax in this field. Our interest should be the opposite. Better detection and customs procedures at our border entry points certainly should not be beyond the realm of our technical ability. If the Trudeau government only had the will to develop them. But our government lacks that will."

Enrolment Down 2,000

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Enrolment at the University of Western Ontario is down by about 2,000 from forecasts, forcing an immediate budget revision to shave $1.9 million off proposed expenditures.

Train Lands in Gorge

CAPE TOWN (Reuter) — At least 42 persons died and 144 others were injured when a crowded South African passenger train plunged off the rails on a curve near here Friday night. The front coaches jack-knifed into a gorge. With rescue work in the tangled wreckage still going on several hours after the crash, the final toll was expected to be much higher.

Warden Appointed

KINGSTON (CP) — Douglas Chinnery, 48, was appointed Friday acting warden of the prison for women. Mr. Chinnery, formerly acting deputy director at Kingston for 18 years. The prison for women has been without a warden for several months since C. A. M. Edwards resigned to join the National Parole Service.

Hydro Makes Proposal

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Hydro Friday offered a new proposal to striking members of Local 1000, Canadian Union of Public Employees. The proposal involved a referral to the courts in an effort to resolve the impasse over its insistence that its striking union refrain from imposing any penalty on members who crossed picket lines.

Stanfield Opposes Airport

TORONTO (CP) — A Conservative government elected Oct. 30 would cancel plans for second airport for the Toronto area, Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield indicated today. He told a news conference that such an airport, agreed to by the Conservative provincial government and the Liberal federal government, is impractical. He undertook to review the need for a second airport if he became prime minister but added it would take "a lot of convincing" to persuade him one was needed.

Incentives To Save Encouraged

TORONTO (CP) — A spokesman for the insurance industry said Friday tax incentives should be offered to encourage Canadians to save more.

J. A. Bland, president of the Canadian Life Insurance Association, told the Rotary Club that Canada will need huge amounts of new investment funds to support the economy and to complete projects that he abred.

"This is a serious problem. No doubt we shall have to continue to rely on external funds to make up this shortfall. We know the problems that this creates and we should, therefore, be trying to increase the rate of domestic saving.

"This might be achieved through additional tax incentives that stimulate people to save a higher portion of their income."

Teaching Role Is Approved

The "brick and mortar stage" is over at Belleville General Hospital and the institution is ready to concentrate on its teaching role.

Its board Friday gave approval in principle to use of the hospital by Queen's University for training of medical students in family practice.

But the university will probable not send students to BGH for field experience for three or four years, if the medical faculty at Queen's is expanded by that time.

Servicemen Get Pay Hike

OTTAWA (CP) — The government passed out a bundle of goodies to Canada's armed forces Friday, raising the pay of most servicemen by about 10 per cent.

All personnel except those in the rank of general will have their pay increased this Sunday under a program announced by Defence Minister C. M. Drury, brings basic pay for a private recruit to $298 a month from $270.

In keeping with an established trend in the Canadian armed services, the new structure puts heavy emphasis on technical qualifications of personnel as distinct from rank.

Thus a chief warrant officer — the senior non - commissioned rank — with three years in that category and credentials as a topographical surveyor, will get $1,223 a month compared with $1,213 for an artillery captain with six years in the rank.

A corporal who is also a radar technician will continue to get more than a lieutenant who carries the same machine engineer: $857 as compared with $805.

Revisions in air, submarine and sea duty allowances are included in the package.

An air duty allowance of $75 a month, regardless of rank will be paid to the following categories of personnel when employed in flying duties: pilots, navigators, flight engineers, technical crew, observers and flight attendants. The allowance also applies to officers undergoing pilot training.

A defence department spokesman said it was not possible to provide exact comparisons in every category with allowances paid until now, since in some cases the allowances absorb other types of differential.

However, the effect would be an overall increase.

Loadmasters, for instance, face ships to a maximum $30 a month from $50.

For privates, master and chief warrant officers serving in submarines, the allowance goes up by $60 a month.

Pay increases also have been authorized for the reserve armed forces, effective Sunday.

A class A private at the highest level will be paid $10.10 a day compared with $8.30 until now.

A class A second lieutenant goes up to $13 a day from $10.30.

Five Killed In Ireland

BELFAST (AP) — Five persons died and at least 28 were wounded in gunfighting and rioting in the last 24 hours as Northern Ireland entered another stormy weekend.

The casualties were a prelude to a huge protest rally of Protestant militants set for Sunday in Belfast, the castle outside Belfast where the Protestant-dominated government of Northern Ireland Britain suspended it in March and put in charge of rule from London.

About 60,000 Protestants were expected to gather amid fears the Irish Republican Army would strike back to avenge recent bombings in Roman Catholic areas.

Adults Match Youth In Abusing Alcohol

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Drug and alcohol abuse seems to be equally common among adults and youths, an Ottawa psychologist said Friday.

Dr. Neville Taylor told teachers at a professional development conference for teachers that "pill for pill and ounce for ounce, the adult is running neck and neck with the young population" in abusing drugs and alcohol.

Dr. Taylor, chief psychologist at the Ottawa separate school board, said after his observations, he now believes fewer students are using hard drugs and slightly more are using marijuana and alcohol.

David Pratt, a professor at Queen's University in Kingston, told the conference that schooling deliberately is made inadequate to keep children in school as long as possible.

The psychologist suggested a 12-year education conceivably could be reduced to one year by eliminating useless information and by improving instruction.

Dr. Parratt said school keeps children out of the parents' work force and workers from job competition from school-age children, and prevents mass unemployment in the teaching profession.

Security Chief's Comments Raise Hackles of British MPs

LONDON (AP) — Angry MPs put the heat today on the spy who came in from the cold, the coalition mastermind of Britain's counter-espionage agency who provoked many members of Parliament bad links with Soviet and other foreign agents.

Political sources said a major parliamentary storm is brewing following the allegations that politicians and well-connected journalists have inadvertently passed on damaging vital information to agents who "devoted a great deal of time and money" cultivating them.

The man the MPs are gunning for is 80-year-old Sir Martin Furnival-Jones, director-general of the MI-5 security service for seven years. He retired last May.

He made his charges in testimony before a government-appointed committee reviewing the Official Secrets Act last November while he was still head of the spy-catching network.

The committee did not name him in the report it published Friday, but the shroud of official anonymity with which he had been cloaked was torn away by newspapers who named him today.

He testified foreign agents picked up profitable information from politicians and journalists whom he claimed were potential weak spots in Britain's counter-espionage chain.

He told the committee, which recommended changes in the act to allow more openness in the handling of official information, that the Russians were seeking to recruit a promising MP to get their own man into the government. The security chief—known as DG in official circles—strongly opposed changing the act.

The spy-catcher maintained that "very many" MPs were in touch with "very many" intelligence officers.

"The Russian intelligence service can recruit a backbench member of Parliament and he continues to hold his seat for a number of years and climbs the ladder to ministerial position. It is obvious that the spy is home and dry. That is certainly one of the objectives."

The former director-general said Russian agents were active around Parliament, "anxious to pick up information which never finds its way into print.

Indignant MPs protested Labor member Tom Driberg warned:

"We could be seeing this overblown official called to the bar of the House."

Marcus Lipton, another Labor member, said most MPs could spot intelligence agents "after two or three sentences of conversation at embassy cocktail parties."

Members from all parties demanded "the fullest investigation" into the onetime security chief's allegation.

But such a second might not be pressed too hard. For Furnival-Jones testified only a few months after Soviet master spy Oleg Lyalin defected in London and handed over a list of hundreds of Communist agents operating in Britain. It was believed Lyalin also disclosed the methods his agents used and the names of some figures they found useful.

Big Barge Is Stalled By Rough Bay Weather

The biggest commercial craft to ply the Bay of Quinte has made its second smooth delivery to Belleville industry.

But rough weather unexpectedly ruffled its departure Friday.

The big, tug-powered Chicago barge Phoenix — which launched a new style in kingsize water traffic on the Bay earlier this year with a million-gallon chemical delivery to Union Carbide — had its return voyage interrupted.

Veteran tugboat skipper Capt. Thomas Bell shepherded the barge's big bulk back to Belleville to wait out a smoother passage.

High winds and choppy waters made him reluctant to chance the navigational intricacies of Telegraph Narrows — the slender, winding exit from the Bay near Deseronto which leaves little margin for safe maneuvers in troublesome weather.

With his twin - screw tug, James Turecamo, a powerful tugboat of modern barges like the Phoenix, permits massive shipments at lower cost. Only manpower required is that on the tug. The Turecamo has a seven-man crew.

A company spokesman said shipments — originating in Chicago and taking 4½-days to reach Belleville on a direct trip — will be renewed next year and continued as long as barging proves a more economical delivery method.

The barge was whipped by 45-mile-an-hour winds, said the captain. Radio reports also warned of difficult seas in Lake Ontario with several ships in distress.

He headed back, anchoring the barge in mid-stream off Belleville then tied up the barge at the city's harbor commission wharves. The stay would be put to use — for some maintenance work on the Turecamo's radar equipment, said Capt. Bell.

However, such means of industrial transportation is ideally suited to shallow Bay waters, indicates Capt. Bell, long time sailor who once manned craft delivering oil to Belleville.

Size and shallow-draught potential of modern barges like the Phoenix, permits massive

Callary and Cunningham Speak To Young Voters

CARRYING PLACE—Young Canadians, voting for the first time, could tip the balance of charge in many ridings, Stephen Callary, national director of the Liberal party's First Time Voters Campaign said last night.

With the voting age lowered to 18 there are 3 million new eligible voters in the Oct. 30 election — a 20 per cent increase.

In 1968, political parties won 49 ridings by five per cent of the votes.

"So we think how these people are going to vote could determine who the member of parliament will be in a lot of ridings," said Mr. Callary.

The 26-year-old law graduate, himself a first - time voter, spoke to 30 young people in support of George Cunningham, Liberal candidate in Prince Edward - Hastings, at the home of Dr. Terry Wells.

There are 8,000 young people voting for the first time in the riding, said Mr. Callary.

Petition on Sandbanks

PICTON (Staff) — William Silver, president of the Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce this week announced the majority of Chamber directors support quarrying by the Lake Ontario Cement Company Ltd. at the Sandbanks.

A petition supporting the sand mining is being prepared for circulation and will be forwarded to Natural Resources Minister Leo Bernier.

Mr. Silver spoke during a dinner meeting of Chamber members and said in his opinion the cement company has been harrassed unfairly.

Bean Crops On The Increase

AMELIASBURG — Apple production is still the major business in the township with corn growing, bath table and cattle feed, almost equal as an agricultural endeavor.

But, in the last two years, white bean growers have been doing their best to change the order of leadership with their enterprise.

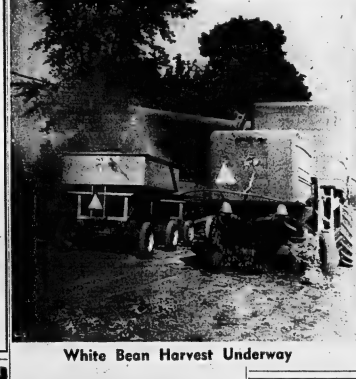
His returns of one ton to the acre are considered above average by the government expert keeping an eye on the venture.



"I'm really pleased with the results," commented Mr. Cairns in an interview in the field yesterday. He introduced the crop to his big mixed-farming operation first in 1971.

An undertaking of Mr. Cairns' magnitude involves an assortment of specialized equipment. The harvest of the crop includes pulling the plants, gathering them into rows for the combine to pick up and thresh.

Weather plays an important role with a period in the fall free of rain the ideal situation the grower looks for.

Finally, the crop is shipped to London, Ont. where the White Bean Producer's Marketing Board takes over. The Board is supervised by the Ontario Department of Agriculture.

In the end, most white beans find their way into cans as a table food.

waterfront facilities last year to learn self-reliance and physical fitness through a program of practical seamanship and water safety.

—United Community Services: They identify present and future social needs in the community, then bring volunteers and public departments together to satisfy these requirements.

—Victorian Order of Nurses: These nurses work in the home providing nursing care, rehabilitation for convalescents, pre and post-natal supervision for mothers.

In past campaigns, agencies stated financial requirements before the drive got under way, often to find themselves short when the money was in. But since last years' operating deficits will not now be subtracted until the campaign is nearly finished and more realistic goals can be determined.

Chairman George Zagoras feels the key to a successful campaign is the number of people involved.

"What we need is participation. Once we get that, the contributions will come in by themselves," he says.

Weather Balloons Check Lake Weather

From the Toronto Bureau of The Intelligencer

Six balloons are now drifting high over the areas of Lake Ontario to give us a better idea when to expect storms and heavy amounts of snowfall.

This project is called the atmospheric water balance study and is a joint effort of Canada and United States governments. Readings will be transmitted from three balloons launched on each side of the lake. The balloons lifted simultaneously on Tuesday from six locations including Confederation Park in Hamilton, the Atmospheric Environmental Service station in Scarborough, and Presqu'ile Provincial Park near Trenton.

The other three sites are on the New York side of Lake Ontario. They were scheduled to ensure at least three of the balloons would be hovering above the lake at one time.

The program is part of the International Field Year on the Great Lakes activities which began April first this year. The weather study will produce readings from the atmosphere up to 8 times a day.

"It is well known that the nearly 100,000 square miles of water area of the Great Lakes system has a profound effect upon the weather and climate of the surrounding land areas. To make the most effective use of this valuable real estate, these lake influences must be well understood and accurately delineated," said Lloyd Richards, Canadian co-chairman of the Field Year's steering committee.

The readings from the balloons will be used to calculate the amount of water vapour stored in the atmosphere. This is expected to tell us that great amounts of water from the Great Lakes are lost through evaporation. Previous estimates indicate the amount of water evaporating daily on Lake Ontario alone is about 70 times Metro Toronto's water needs for one day.

The balloons will also provide readings to improve predicting corrective storms which develop over the Great Lakes in fall and winter.

The project will cost about half a million dollars to the Canadian government and slightly more for the United States, who will provide most of the computer programming and data analysis.

Metric System Coming

BLOOMFIELD (Staff) — Children now in the primary grades will grow up in a metric world where kilograms, litres and kilometres replace pounds, quarts and miles.

William Anglin, educational consultant, mathematics, region 8, Kingston, Thursday told Prince Edward elementary teachers the metric system will be implemented within five to 10 years.

A primary workshop held at Pinecrest Memorial school, Bloomfield Thursday focused on Mathematics with Young Children and emphasized the need for a standard unit of measure to facilitate communication.

The workshop was attended by 58 teachers from the county's elementary schools, as well as several parents, health nurses, teachers from St. Gregory's Separate School and staff members of Prince Edward Heights.

Mr. Anglin said the metric system already is in use in many hospitals and eventually will be introduced in other areas of daily living.

He said teachers now should increase their awareness of the metric units and noted confusion probably will result when the new system is presented.

Teachers should read all available material concerning the metric system and stress to children in primary grades the need for a standard and why it is "a very arbitrary thing."

Children in the primary grades initially should be aware of the fact that a litre and a quart are the same measure just as kilograms relate to pounds and kilometres to miles.

Mr. Anglin predicted the switch to the metric system "will play havoc with prices." He said a Canadian committee sponsored by the federal government now is advising the government concerning the move toward metrication.

Paper sizes automatically will change and three ring binders will become four ring binders under the new system.

Mr. Anglin brought with him a selection of materials designed to demonstrate to teachers how they can be employed in a mathematics program.

These items included books, activity cards, games and a dinosaur which usually creates marked student interest.

The education consultant said geometry should be introduced to primary students through a study of architecture and nature.

Mechanical building projects are especially important at the primary level and this activity was described by Mr. Anglin as "very mathematical."

Special services co-ordinator for Prince Edward schools, Russell Williams, said Mr. Anglin's remarks stressed the importance of focusing on individuals. The child's vocabulary must be boosted to permit him to understand concepts and to communicate them.

Activity cards were shown by the education consultant who said they provide youngsters with the concept of symmetry and mirror image. Used with a small mirror the cards offer a variety of images.

Mr. Anglin used buttons and an egg carton to demonstrate how children can learn at an early age about numbers and language.

He said if the youngsters are asked to sort the buttons and place them in compartments they must develop a rule for sorting.

From a language point of view the child can explain, "why".

From a numbers point of view he can tell the number of buttons in each pile and discuss how many would be in any two piles combined.

Through use of the buttons, the pupil readily examines counting, addition and subtractions.

"How many washers does a dinosaur weigh?" is an inventive question that can be used as teachers employ simple weighing equipment for comparisons.

A toy dinosaur was used by Mr. Anglin as a prop for his explanation of using the weigh scale as a teaching aid.

He also discussed games that can be played in the classroom to illustrate mathematical concepts.

The workshop, one of four to be presented at Pinecrest this fall, was attended by education director John Halsted.

Other workshops this season included Young Children and Science and Sensory Learning. On Wednesday, October 4, the final workshop, Creative Activities for Young Children, will be held.

The workshops were organized in Kingston by Fran Rahman, educational consultant, Primary, Region 9 and locally by Russell Williams, special services co-ordinator.

Technician Checks Early Readings from Balloons

Free Choice System For Students Defended

The much derided "cafeteria style" education in Ontario's secondary schools may not become the staple school diet.

Students free choice of the options they want in study for graduation credits is universal in the province for the first time this year. But selected schools have operated under the flexible, free-choice-of-subjects system for as long as four or five years on a pilot project basis.

The ministry of education's director of curriculum, J.C. Crossley Thursday outlined the reasons for, and the results of, flexible system. He was in Maple to address a gathering of Centre Dufferin elementary, secondary, public and separate school teachers and explained his ministry's reason for the free-choice style of schooling following a banquet.

"There is no precedent for flexibility in the history of the world," he said of the system that allows each student to choose only those subjects he wants to study each year.

"How do you research it, if it isn't in existence?"

So Ontario brought it into existence, learning the displeasure of many parents and some teachers.

But there is a silent majority on the other side.

Those schools that have used free options for several years report positive results, says Mr. Crossley.

"What preparation for living does the traditional school give you?" he asked.

Under the flexible system, maturing students are given expanding freedom and responsibility to equip them for the working world.

"Research, analysis and questioning skills are better under the flexible system," said Mr. Crossley.

There has been confusion between flexibility and permissiveness, he said.

"We can be flexible without putting up with bad manners. Schools are working out better ways of handling flexibility. More teachers are observing individual pupils and seeing they behave."

But, indicated Mr. Crossley the free choice of options program may be amended after this year.

It all depends on the results of this first-time-in-history experiment.

The rumor that the pendulum will swing back toward authoritarianism in the schools is "premature — for this year," said Mr. Crossley.

But flexibility versus authoritarianism is not Mr. Crossley's prime worry.

He is concerned that schools may return, under pressure for performance, to testing based on students' skill in reaching certain academic objectives. Compounding his concern is reliance on technical pupils' patterns of learning."

The alliance between the demand for accountability and technology could result in schools measuring only those achievements that can be easily analyzed by computers, Mr. Crossley said.

Gathering of a simple set of facts is a small part of learning. And unless the trend is reversed, "the multi-faceted learning of children" will be lost.

Education should be dissociated from the gross national product, he said.

"We used to believe the economies of countries were based on the level of education of their people," Mr. Crossley told the teachers. "That bubble has burst."

KSO Program

Symphony, Soloist To Play in City

Quinte music lovers will be treated to a feast of classical harmony next month — with a distinguished guest enhancing the occasion.

The season of music will be those of the Kingston Symphony Orchestra which, conducted by Alexander Brott, will present a concert Oct. 16 at Centennial Secondary School.

Guest artist will be Gary Karr, the world's leading double bass virtuoso, a musician whose career has been as unique as his choice of instruments.

Since his New York debut in 1961, Mr. Karr has appeared as soloist with more than 75 orchestras. During that time he won international repute with the contrabass, an instrument which is not a common choice of musicians, let alone concert artists.

Having taught at Yale, the New England Conservatory of Music and Manhattan's Juilliard School, he surprised colleagues by suddenly taking a sabbatical from his concert career. He exchanged the platform for a job with the Halifax School Board and began teaching music in elementary classrooms. Youngsters between five and 13 years thus had the benefit of some of the finest music instruction on the continent.

The concert artist said he felt he could achieve more with younger students because of their individual flexibility.

Since its founding 1953-54 season, the KSO has grown to more than 60 members. Dr. Brott, one of the country's outstanding musicians, has been its conductor since 1965, guiding it toward its goal of a regional symphony orchestra.

He is professor of music and conductor in residence at McGill University.

The orchestra's Belleville concert includes Rossini's William Tel overture, Barber's Adagio for Strings, Dragonetti's double bass concerto and a selection of Brahms Hungarian Dances.

Tickets will be available at McKnight's Variety Store, Front St.

Slack Discipline

We were reading somewhere that a newly-elected school official had suggested discipline should be tightened in the schools.

We think there is always room for improvement in this direction. Doubtless it varies from school to school, but there should be some norm, some basic principles applied to schools everywhere that will ensure a reasonable level of student discipline.

By discipline we mean not only acceptable behavior but increased direction in academic matters from the staff. It may be that with open classrooms and other innovations placing greater responsibility on the students there is a tendency for them to slacken their efforts.

There is really no substitute for a good classroom atmosphere with a teacher who knows what he is talking about and can put it across meaningfully.

As to discipline things might have been overdone in earlier times, as at the West Lake co-educational boarding school established by the Quakers early in the last century. Our Picton correspondent told recently of the teacher from Ireland, a William Hamilton, who instilled fear in his pupils and on one occasion thrashed a lad for what he considered incorrect pronunciation.

If the girls there was emphasis on manners as well as on academic achievement, as indicated in this extract from the prospectus: "the manners of young ladies will receive paramount attention and due cultivation, as no qualities in the fair sex seem so pleasing as modesty, amiability — no qualifications or attainments so ornamental as ease, gracefulness and suavity in address and deportment."

Well times certainly have changed. It is not that young women students lack for manners today, but rather that the old emphasis on them is gone. Young people could benefit from a little more attention to the social graces and shown all to cultivating a genuine interest in others.

Moreover, we doubt if in those early days there were so many young people hooked on smoking. Despite all the warnings from medical sources there are more youthsters smoking today than ever before. We believe that this is a matter of sufficient seriousness that vigorous steps should be taken to make teenagers aware of the long-term danger to health posed by smoking. The schools seem like the best place to begin such a campaign but we do not see any evidence that this is happening. There will always be people who smoke, but the level at which they will be being lowered all the time. Meanwhile doctors warn that this will result eventually in an increase in the numbers of people suffering from respiratory diseases.

Kindergarten Capers

Speaking of good manners we recall some words of former U.S. vice-president Hubert Humphrey. "The first quality of a good education," he said, "is good manners. Some people flunk the course."

And the letter from the letter from "Concerned Parent" on this page recently the makings of such failure begin early these days — like in kindergarten where he said his five-year-old daughter found herself in an atmosphere of four-letter words and questionable behavior by some small boys.

Parents and teachers must correct this sort of problem immediately, for it is in these early years that children are the most impressionable. Language and behavior of this nature they can do without.

They Made It

So Team Canada made it in the end, winning the eight-game series that began on home ground in short while ago and continued through many a hassle, defection, long face, tiredness and politicking to final victory. Both sides and both sets of hockey fans and officials have learned a lot. All's well too that ends well.

From Down Under

Bundaberg, a city north of the Queensland capital of Brisbane is home to two Australian teenagers, Rosemary Downs, 16, and Rhonda Clarkson, 17, who are due in Belleville next January under the Rotary Club's exchange program.

A port located on the Pacific coast ten miles above the mouth of the Burnett River, it has sugar refineries and sawmills. Population a decade ago was 23,000 which means that today Brundaberg is likely comparable in size to Belleville.

'One-Upmanship' on the Air

Rival Parties Manipulate Hot-line Radio Shows

By RICHARD JACKSON
from The Intelligencer's
Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Prime Minister Trudeau and Conservative leader Stanfield are fighting — or trying fought for them — a hind-the-scenes war - of - the-air.

It is not the war of competing television blurbs or radio spots, the paid advertising-on-air of the election campaign.

And both leaders are doing at least one, sometimes two or even three a day.

Now the basic idea behind the hot-line show is to cast the leader in a sympathetic light "to get the listener's feeling, if not sorry for him, at least feeling for him.

The way to do it?

Arrange in advance for the hot-line show host to be unnecessarily overbearing, aggressive, abrasive, even rude.

That way it gives the impression that the leaders, Trudeau or Stanfield, are sort of brave, put-upon by some kind of a Lout.

And right away, the listeners think how come a rich guy like that has to submit to such a demeaning going over by such a political Ignoramus?

Some hot-line hosts seem born slightly hostile, others appear to cultivate a curbing manner, while some openly appear to rejoice in being on the nasty side.

The chippier or ruder the host, the more successful — tactically the guest candidate can be made to sound.

The campaign game-plan is to come on the air as "that nice Mr. Stanfield", or "that charming Mr. Trudeau".

Then rabble, and there still is a carnage for the phone lines to be jammed by incensed calls from cranks and oddballs, of which there is seldom a hot-line shortage.

So the screwball comes on with an upright and haunting question and the Prime Minister or the Conservative leader wound up and fired comparison when they respond with low-key reason.

The more far-out the hot-line nut-calls, the better the opportunity for the smooth-as-silk, sense-making, and most important of all, hopefully vote-winning response.

Both the Trudeau and Stanfield camps have been very much alive to the possibilities of this sort of manipulative free-time radio audience participation campaigning.

So alive, in fact, they have been busy refining it.

Each side not only has been trying to pack their own hot-line shows with provocative nut-balls — but packing the other side's with what the radio trade might call sweet-little - old - lady-types.

The idea here is for the Stanfield radio campaign strategists to line up — as many as possible — dear old ladies who'll lyrebird the call in and tell Mr. Trudeau how wonderful they think he is, how concerned they are, how exciting, and how they feel so secure when they know he is the Prime Minister.

Line up enough of these old dears and there is not time for the nut-calls.

And how, in all modesty, can the Prime Minister's staff possibly refuse with all he hears is his name being asked?

In retaliation, Trudeau radio planners have been trying to find the toughest hot - line shows with the same sort of old darlings to one how handsome and magnetic the Conservative leader is, how dynamic and inspiring, and how it is such a privilege to speak of him being in Parliament.

And what on earth can Stanfield say in reply?

"I still can't figure out who'd put you down as being 3 years younger in this publicity brochure, Bob."

PC Campaign Has Yet to Catch Fire

By DON O'BEARN
From The Intelligencer's
Queen's Park Bureau

Progressive Conservative members here aren't putting as much betting money on the election. Not yet.

Almost without question, it seems, PC members are not committing themselves, at least in private when they are saying what they really feel.

They feel there definitely will be some improvement in the party's leading of federal ranks in Ontario.

But just how big that "some" will be is the question.

They want to see more of the campaign.

One old and wise pro expressed it a day or so ago when he said "It's just too early yet. In this election the campaign is going to be unusually important.

At least some of the veterans believe the showdown will come in the ridings.

They are not at all impressed with the party's Ontario Central organization here in Toronto.

They call it bumbling, amateurish . . . you name it, they will have said it.

The nucleus of this organization, of course, is Premier Davis' much glorified Big Blue Machine which supposedly was such a power-house in the provincial election.

If the comment is to be believed, in this federal campaign it is more a chicken without a head than a machine.

Workers tell of phoning in for information or direction and being met with raising but confusion.

There is one story going the rounds of the receptionist trying to bar George Hees until he just shoved by her.

And it is said there is nothing going out to the ridings.

This, of course, could be not much more than griping on the part of veterans who don't hold the importance they once did since the new group has moved in.

Also the best effort of the machine in the provincial election was in advertising and promotion.

Practically none of this has surfaced at this stage. So there is still time for it to prove itself.

But until it does, and until there is more evidence of the trends in the ridings, the party pros are holding back.

Which augurs well for Ontario assumed to be the key province, or may be heading for a cliff-hanger.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

September 30, 1952

The annual meeting of the Belleville Branch of the Upper Canada Bible Society was held in Holloway Street United Church with a large number in attendance. Canon J. B. Creegan, the president, presided at the meeting.

George MacKenzie, former lecturer at McGill University and recently employed by the Bank of Montreal as industrial adviser, spoke to members of the Rotary Club at the noon luncheon on the matters of business failures in relation to management. The speaker was welcomed by Stan Goodfellow and thanked by Ed. Bernstein.

One of the interesting spectators at the junior softball game between the Belleville Glen Rays and Windsor Local 195 in Windsor was an old Belleville boy who renewed one or two acquaintances in the Belleville party. He was Billy Biggs, who is well known in this city although he has lived in Windsor for a number of years.

30 YEARS AGO

September 30, 1942

While the extent of the damage has not as yet been fully estimated, farmers and potato growers on the city market stated that grade and blight are taking toll of the potato crops. The early variety escaped the ravages of the disease which has been noted in various parts of the district, but it is feared the late crop will be seriously affected by the scourge.

Robbers broke and entered Shell gasoline service station, operated by Stanley Wilson at the intersection of Dundas St. and Foster Ave. Break-in was discovered by Mr. Wilson as he passed the premises to resume business today.

MPs Retain Privileges During Campaign

By FARMER TESSINGTON
From The Intelligencer's
Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—There is always confusion in the public mind about the status of members of Parliament once Parliament is dissolved and a general election called.

The chief clerk of the Commons, Alistair Fraser, explains that as soon as Governor General Michener dissolved the 28th parliament, there were no longer any Members of Parliament. Members of the last house cease technically refer to themselves as MPs or as the incumbent representatives of their ridings. They are, officially, ordinary citizens with no greater status than the candidates of other parties seeking election.

However, by agreement and practice, the former MPs do get the Shell gasoline service station, operated by Stanley Wilson at the intersection of Dundas St. and Foster Ave. Break-in was discovered by Mr. Wilson as he passed the premises to resume business today.

Bus Drivers Earn Praise

Editor,
The Intelligencer

A letter in your paper recently suggested the Mayor and members of Council spend a day riding the bus routes in Belleville. I heartily concur with the idea and seriously recommend that the members of the Transit Commission also go along for the ride.

As a passenger for more years than I care to tell I can say honestly that the bus drivers are the courteous persons of this city. I ride the bus daily, having no car. It is my only means of transportation and I can't say enough in praise of assigned an office and secretarial help.

The system appears to strike a fair and reasonable compromise between public generosity and practicality although there is some question about payment of indemnity for about two months when they are not members of Parliament and there is not a Parliament of which they could be a member.

Eyebrows were raised here when Prime Minister Trudeau appointed five new senators minutes before Parliament died. Three of the appointments were expected, being retiring or former MPs or ministers, and one a Liberal party worker. The surprise was Martial Asselin, Progressive Conservative MP for Charlevoix and member of the Diefenbaker cabinet for a short period in 1963.

The story is the prime minister offered the membership to Mr. Asselin in the morning of dissolution. After discussing it with Mr. Stanfield and others, he accepted but only on the understanding he would run a campaign vigorously for whoever won the Progressive Conservative riding. Mr. Trudeau accepted this condition.

Mr. Asselin suffered a shocking family tragedy on Jan. 8, 1963 when his wife and two of his three children died in a fire at a time when he was away from home. Mr. Trudeau undertook will allow him more time with his children and his law firm as well as permitting him to devote greater attention to his law practice.

Haiti Remains Poor

By JOHN D. HARKSON

Thomson News Service

Black barbarism, like white barbarism knows no boundaries. The inhumanity currently shown by Idi Amin and other black against Ugandans who are literally in the same kind of cruelty in our own hemisphere—namely Haiti.

Under the late and unlamented President Francois "Papa Doc" Duvalier, the Western Hemisphere experienced brutality, murder, pillage and torture on a national scale unequalled in other Caribbean countries.

The agent for these, following orders from the late medical doctor who became president, was the Ton Ton Macoute (Creole for bogeyman), a secret police who kidnapped and killed for him.

Long before anyone heard of Uganda's General Amin and his undisciplined troops, Duvalier and his Ton Ton Macoute were perishing by the score, almost 100-per-cent-illiterate Haiti. Like Uganda, Haiti had—still has—the lowest per capita income of any country in its region. It's notable there are a few in Africa, like the Gabon or Mali, who have per capita incomes even lower than Uganda's.

But a figure less than the Haitian 28% income means the country is existing totally beyond the money society.

Duvalier was succeeded last year by his fleshy, indulgent young son Jean-Claude, called "Meathead" by his enemies and Haitians in exile. He's the new ruler indicated changes—none the slightest one could only be for the better. It was assumed the much-feared Ton Ton Macoute could possibly disappear, or at least lose power.

In fact, they never went away or lost power. The 21 year old Duvalier is exercised by black brutality is exercised by black brutality is exercised by black brutality

Simplicity of Jesus' Parables Adds to Their Effectiveness

By Rev. Gordon C. Smyth

The inscription on one of the frescoes at the eastern entrance of Rockefeller Centre in New York City reads, "Man's skill no doubt deserves applause, but whether he can learn wisdom from the use of new discoveries and conquests, but on his knees and with bowed head, is a question that time upon two thousand years ago." So he heads conference this tribute to Jesus.

He used, with unrivalled charm, the ancient storyteller's technique of speaking in parables. He knew well that in man, His parables had a quality that cannot take away. Young people still learn home for a fling of the sensations from the banks. Rich fools — and you ones too — still believe money will buy all that matters. Individuals and nations still try to justify themselves before God by idolatry and wait by the Jericho Road. The parables of Jesus speak to us today.

The simplicity of His thought inspires applause and life too. Our Lord might never have been asked to deliver "the chancellor's lecture" in John 3:1-11-16). In fulfilling His imperial destiny, Jesus could indeed wear many" crowns. One is the diadem of Authority. For instance the Parable of the Vineyard (Mark 12:1-11). It speaks language that transcends history. It embraces eternity. Jesus Christ has the decisive place in humanity's relationship with God. It is what God means by "man". He is what man means by "God".

The symbol of Christ's crowns is the diadem of Ideal Witness.

Around the world each week more believers gather in church than possess His presence than for any other voluntary activity. In response to His command, they give money and time to the betterment of humanity than all other free - will organizations combined. Then, having paid homage to the King of glory, they respond to His commission to go out into society to make a personal witness. Their witness is imperfect. However, you might well shudder at the thought of what life would be like if the rug of their influence were suddenly pulled out from under it.

On Christ's head are "many diadems". These include a crown of Victory. The Second Assembly of the World Council of Churches was held in Evanston, Illinois. It ended its sessions with a message to fellow Christians and fellow men everywhere. The message had a title: "Here where we stand, Jesus Christ wins us. He came to us, true God and true Man, to seek and to save. Though we were the enemies of God, Christ died for us. We crucified Him, but God raised Him from the dead. He is risen. He has overcome the powers of sin and death.

The global message continued "A new life has begun. And in His risen and ascended power, He has sent forth into the world a new community, gathered together by His Spirit, sharing His divine life, and commissioned to make Him known throughout the world. He will come again as Judge and King to bring all things to their consummation. Then we shall see Him as He is and know as we are known. Therefore, in this time of expectation we wait for this with eager hope, knowing that God is faithful and that even now He holds all things in His hands."

You and I cannot know what is coming on the earth. But we can know Who is coming. He is sealed on a white horse. He is Faithful and True. On His robe and on His thigh He has a name inscribed: "King of Kings and Lord of Lords." Amen. Come, Lord Jesus!

Taking Bible Literally Is Bewildering to Many

A Sunday school teacher was dealing with the story of the Ascension (Acts 1:11). Intrigued as well as fascinated, a boy asked "how fast was Jesus travelling into the heavens?" Mystified at first, but not to be outdone, the teacher caught her breath and replied. "We know He was not travelling any faster than the speed of sound because the Bible says He spoke words of blessing to the apostles as He left them." The youngster, more of a space age product than his teacher, sallied back, "Well, then, He must be out there yet!"

It takes literally, special symbolism in the Bible. ..eeds and hymn books is a source of bewilderment to the average twentieth century person. The teaching authority in public, church group needs to differentiate between pre-Copernican forms of thought and the subtle experiences behind those forms. What is meant by "lifted up" in a movement in time like "now you see Him, now you don't." The First Russian cosmonaut's remark that he had not encountered God in Heaven supports the skepticism many people feel.

The Ascension means that the ministry of Jesus Christ, God Incarnate, is not limited to the work of a man who once lived, but is extended through His activities in every generation. It is as the Anglican Bishop of Woolwich, England, Dr. John Robinson, says "... a sign that God has put in the window of this House of Time a Notice: 'Under New Management.'" It is as the prophet wrote, "Then I saw heaven opened, and behold, a white horse! He who sat upon it is called Faithful and Truth ... On His head are many diadems. ... On His robe and on His thigh He has a name inscribed, King of Kings and Lord of Lords" (Revelation 19:11-16).

In fulfilling His imperial destiny, Jesus could indeed wear many" crowns. One is the diadem of Authority. For instance the Parable of the Vineyard (Mark 12:1-11). It speaks language that transcends history. It embraces eternity. Jesus Christ has the decisive place in humanity's relationship with God. It is what God means by "man". He is what man means by "God".

The symbol of Christ's crowns is the diadem of Ideal Witness.

Around the world each week more believers gather in church than possess His presence than for any other voluntary activity. In response to His command, they give money and time to the betterment of humanity than all other free - will organizations combined. Then, having paid homage to the King of glory, they respond to His commission to go out into society to make a personal witness. Their witness is imperfect. However, you might well shudder at the thought of what life would be like if the rug of their influence were suddenly pulled out from under it.

On Christ's head are "many diadems". These include a crown of Victory. The Second Assembly of the World Council of Churches was held in Evanston, Illinois. It ended its sessions with a message to fellow Christians and fellow men everywhere. The message had a title: "Here where we stand, Jesus Christ wins us. He came to us, true God and true Man, to seek and to save. Though we were the enemies of God, Christ died for us. We crucified Him, but God raised Him from the dead. He is risen. He has overcome the powers of sin and death.

The global message continued "A new life has begun. And in His risen and ascended power, He has sent forth into the world a new community, gathered together by His Spirit, sharing His divine life, and commissioned to make Him known throughout the world. He will come again as Judge and King to bring all things to their consummation. Then we shall see Him as He is and know as we are known. Therefore, in this time of expectation we wait for this with eager hope, knowing that God is faithful and that even now He holds all things in His hands."

You and I cannot know what is coming on the earth. But we can know Who is coming. He is sealed on a white horse. He is Faithful and True. On His robe and on His thigh He has a name inscribed: "King of Kings and Lord of Lords." Amen. Come, Lord Jesus!

United Bible Societies Meet in Addis Ababa

ADDIS ABABA (CP) — The first world assembly of the United Bible Societies was opened this week by Haile Selassie, emperor of Ethiopia.

Selassie sponsored the translation of the Bible into Amharic, the official language of Ethiopia, 19 years ago. He has given land for the erection of a new Bible House in Addis Ababa.

About 170 delegates from more than 70 countries attended the assembly. Half were Bible Society staff from around the world, the others representatives of Christian churches and related organizations.

"Let the Word Speak" is the theme of the assembly. Preparatory studies were done in study groups, predominantly of young people. The purpose was to enable the 50 Bible Societies which form the UBS to communicate effectively the message of the Bible to the modern world.

Founded in 1946, the United Bible Societies is the result of the earliest and most effective forms of ecumenism. It co-ordinates the work of national societies in translating, producing and distributing Scriptures in the languages in everyday use. So far there are 1,67 translations and the annual world distribution of scriptures is 178 million copies.

Five more national societies will join the UBS here. They are from Bolivia, Iran, Kenya, Thailand and the West Indies.

Ethiopia has a vigorous Bible Society, of which Emperor Haile Selassie is the patron. There is a Bible House in Asmara as well as in the capital.

Seven ostrich eggs transfixed on a seven-pointed star are a common sight at the Christian presence in Ethiopia. This distinctive version of the Cross usually crowns the roof of the circular Orthodox churches.

For 1,500 years the Ethiopian Orthodox Church has been the dominant influence; today 35 to 45 per cent of Ethiopia's 23 million people belong to it.

The term Coptic applies only to Ethiopia's sister Church in Egypt. The Ethiopian Orthodox Church was one of the first members of the World Council of Churches.

Protestant and Roman Catholic churches also are found in Ethiopia.

The largest Protestant group, with 175,000 baptized members, came into being in the 1920s through the work of the Sudan Interior Mission. It exists mainly in the southern and traditionally pagan part of the country. Protestants and Roman Catholics work with the Orthodox Church in supporting the Bible Society of Ethiopia.

Canada is represented at the UBS assembly by Rev. Kenneth G. McMillan and Rev. DeCarcy H. Rayner, Dr. McMillan is the general secretary of the Canadian Bible Society. Dr. Rayner, editor of The Presbyterian Record, serves on the executive of the Canadian society.

From Singapore came a native of Toronto, Rev. R. Russell Self, a full-time staff member of the United Bible Societies. Present from Hong Kong was Rev. Edward Cline, a native of Hamilton, Ont., who served the Bible Society in Vietnam for several years before taking up his present position with the UBS.

This first world assembly meets in Africa Hall, a modern conference centre with facilities for simultaneous translation. The official languages are English, French and Spanish.

U.C.W. Meetings

COLLEGE HILL UCW

President Helen McLaren conducted the September meeting of College Hill UCW and opened with the UCW purpose.

A short business period followed in which minutes were read by secretary Annis Dickens and treasurer's report by Mary Byrd. A decision was made to hold the bazaar November 8 and members will assist at the Hastings Manor bazaar to be held October 14. An executive meeting is to be held October 3 in the church.

In the social convenor's report by Miss Neal it was noted that two weddings require catering and volunteers were requested. Myrtle Bush announced in her report that supplies are needed for the Tuesday morning coffee party. Members voted for an amount of money to be donated for this purpose. There was also some discussion regarding teachers' meetings with Mrs. Leona Bailey asked for volunteers to make aprons for the bazaar.

The theme for the devotions was Personal Development with Marilyn McIntosh, June Bush, Helen Walker and the pianist Leona Bailey taking part.

Tasty refreshments were served at the close of the meeting.

Presentation from Quin-Mo-Lac will be given in place of a speaker. The White Mum — the Mission of the Church in the morning. The Church at Work with Youth, in the afternoon.

Mrs. Ellen Kerr reported that an Open House will be held at Camp Quin-Mo-Lac on Thanksgiving Sunday, October 8, from 2:30 till sunset. Special tours to the Bear Caves the fossils, the chapel are planned, so bring along a picnic supper and see the fall colors at Camp Quin-Mo-Lac.

FRANKFORD UCW

The general meeting of Frankford UCW opened with a delicious potluck supper on Tuesday in Rose Lowery Hall. Mrs. G. Savage, president, extended greetings prior to the reading of the previous meeting by Mrs. C. Partington.

As previously suggested, a morning Bible study class commenced on, Wednesday, September 20th with those attending to read the book of Romans.

It was agreed that they pay their portion towards the purchase of a new duplicator. Everyone was reminded of the need for used stamps, and also the church Christmas cards which still remain to be sold.

Coming events discussed were a wedding at which the UCW will cater, and a coffee party and bazaar, with proceeds from the party to be donated to Frankford Recreation Committee.

Rev. R. Brown conducted the Bible study from Romans. This book, which was written by Paul to Corinth, relates to much the same problems and conditions as exist today. It was their belief at that time, that the sins of a man were passed from generation to generation. Because of the original sin by Adam, all men were then sinners.

Rev. Brown also pointed out that God made man with a mind to choose — as a result, man chose the easy path of sin rather than follow God's way.

At the conclusion of this study, Rev. Brown asked that they take their Bibles to church each Sunday, so everyone may participate with more spirit in the scriptures.

The group then dispersed for individual craft meetings.

An invitation was read in which the president will be invited to pour tea at the bazaar and help on Quilting Afternoon, Sept. 23, at Holy Name of Mary Church, Marysville.

The attention of all by members was drawn to the fact the refrigerator donated by Lorne Cavanagh, a request will be made for them to take care of this matter.

Rev. Hendry spoke briefly of Dr. Mackenzie of Africa and his career as a devoted Christian minister.

The request to cater to an early wedding was turned down due to the fact he is would not be available since it was during the holiday weekend.

Next meeting will be held in the church basement with the afternoon unit as hostesses.

Social and Personal

Prior to her recent marriage, Mrs. Wayne Brown (nee Sandra Crane) was honored at a number of showers. A miscellaneous shower was held by Mrs. Linda Walker. Mrs. Irene Crane was hostess for a shower in her home with Mrs. Carol Jones as co-hostess. Miss Olive Roote entertained at a linen shower for neighbors and friends of the bride-to-be. A presentation was made to the bridegroom by his co-workers at Northern Electric. A party was also held in his honor and he was presented with a gift of money. Mr. and Mrs. Wayne H. Brown Sr. entertained at a rehearsal party in their home.

MR. AND MRS. WAYNE BROWN

Brown – Crane

Tabernacle United Church was the scene of the recent wedding ceremony when Sandra Lynn Crane, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Crane of Belleville exchanged vows with Wayne Albert Brown, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne H. Brown, also of Bellerville. Rev. J. Leslie Dean officiated at the double ring ceremony. Mr. Brian Yealland rendered contemporary organ music.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, selected a floor length gown of white silk-faced peau de soie. Alencon lace applique enhanced the wedding band collar as well as the sleeveless bodice and extended down the front panel. The gown had a skimmer styling and featured a cape edged with Alencon lace that swept to a full cathedral train. Her six-tier illusion veil was caught to a floret headpiece trimmed with seed pearls. She carried a cascade bouquet of pink roses, white carnations, baby's breath and trailing ivy.

Mrs. Sharon Green of Toronto was her sister's matron of honor. She wore a floor length sleeveless gown of georgette in shades of mauve with dainty floral pattern and fashioned in an empire A-line style. A lilac velvet ribbon enhanced the high waist and long streamers accented the front of her gown. She wore a lilac muhair hat trimmed to match her dress with ties extending at the back. A cascade bouquet of pink, mauve and white 'mums interspersed with baby's breath and ivy completed her ensemble.

The bridesmaids, Mrs. Linda Walker, Miss Lynne Brown Miss Janice Crane and Miss Patricia Stapley were dressed identically to the matron of honor in gowns of lace with floral pattern and trimmed with lilac velvet ribbon. They each wore lilac hats with ties to match their gowns. The bridesmaids each carried bouquets similar to that of the matron of honor.

Al Walker attended the bridegroom while Vern Wales and Tom Pierce ushered the guests. Ring bearers were David Crane and Jeffrey Brown.

For the reception held at Club Canara, the bride's mother greeted the guests wearing a floor length turquoise gown. The hemline and short sleeves were bordered with a deeper shade of imported lace and accented with pearl pearl. Silver and pink accessories with a corsage of white carnations and pink rosebuds completed her gown.

For the honeymoon trip to Niagara Falls, the bride donned a floor length skimmer of Arnel jersey in multi-colors accented by purple and orange with a V-neck, square collar and low cut back. She wore a corsage of mums in shades of yellow and bronze to complement her outfit.

Mr. and Mrs. Brown will reside in Belleville.

Home And School News

PARK DALE HOME AND SCHOOL ASSOCIATION

On September 25 Mrs. Selma Buchholz, president of Park Dale Home and School Association welcomed parents to the first general meeting for 1972-73.

Some lively discussion took place during the business part of the meeting. Mr. Wright, principal, introduced his staff for the year.

The program for the evening was a short film produced by students at Loyalist College. The theme was Music and Movement and was put together by Mrs. R. Buckner, a music teacher from Wellington, with the cooperation of Geoffrey Calvert, a member of the communications department at Loyalist College and Mrs. Faulkner, who teaches music at Park Dale School. All the children in the film were from Park Dale School.

Mrs. Buckner who has spent many years teaching music and movement both in England and Canada gave an outline of the film before it was shown. Music and movement is an important aspect of growing up, helping children in the areas of muscle coordination, co-ordination and control. This broadens the audio-visual memories of the body. It is especially useful for the release of tension and aggression while, at the same time it is extremely therapeutic. It is a posture builder and is an 'extension' of physical education' by the film. Mrs. Faulkner showed how much the children learn during the first three years at school. Park Dale is fortunate for having a music program.

The film demonstrated how much the children enjoyed it and yet the benefits and extensions to every day learning are obvious.

It was announced that the date of the next meeting of November 28 would be on environment and pollution.

Second Glance

By Viva Richmond Graham

SOME CANADIANA: HERE AND THERE

"Man is the measure of all things." — Protagoras.

While speaking with Mr. J. Roger Cooke, proprietor of "Cooke's Gourmet World" at 214 Front Street, a bit of interesting Canadiana came to light concerning "Cooke's" the parent store, in Kingston, well-known there and surrounding district. It was founded by the Henderson Brothers in 1868.

"The store still has the same mahogany counter," says Mr. Cooke, "which extends the full length of the store. Originally, however, no opening permitted the head clerk, his two junior clerks and the three counter-boys (one for each clerk) to come from behind the counter to the other side.

Some Canadiana — here and there.

"When a lady customer drove up to the store in her carriage, in those early days" she would enter and seat herself on the customer's side of the counter, then proceed to order her list of groceries from the clerk attending her. He in turn would call out the items to his counter-boy, who would take each item in his shelf and slide it along the counter to be wrapped by him. When the order was ready, the counter-boy would skilfully swing himself over the counter with the groceries and place them in her carriage.

"My grandfather, Hoith G. Cooke, started to work at the Henderson Brothers as a counter-boy. He became the owner in 1915, and one of the reasons he made was to provide an opening in the counter to allow clerks and counterboys to pass from one side to the other with ease and comfort.

"My father, John R. Cooke, carried on the store, and as I say, the counter is still in service; a witness to the ebb and times and ways of serving the customer who no longer comes by horse and carriage but by motor-car."

One reflects, during such moments, on the customs of the old days; that of gracciousness — which lingers, as a haunting fragrance. As will appreciation — a higher court. Their name is Tregaskis, a word meaning stumped, cut, core, or the little piece left over that you threw away.

MR. AND MRS. RAYMOND HOWE

Howe – Burchill

Rev. J. R. Utley performed the September 16 wedding ceremony in Christ Church when Arlene Paula Burchill became the bride of Raymond George Howe. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Burchill and the bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Margaret Howe, Belleville and the late Mr. Howe.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, selected an empire styled white satin floor length gown with long sleeves. A white lace coat with an attached hood accented her gown and she carried a bride's bouquet of talisman roses.

Upon their return, Mr. and Mrs. Howe will reside at 85 Octavia St., Belleville.

Mirror of Your Mind

by JOHN CONWELL

Does a happy wife feel secure?

YES—most of the time. Occasionally, however, shadows of doubt and insecurity can cloud the picture for the happiest wife. She may possess the world at home or in an outside job and wonder where she and her husband and their children are going. As long as each thought doesn't cause her to panic, though, a wife will regain her confidence in herself and her marriage. All it takes is a response from her husband or her children.

Should only parents see new babies?

THAT would be impossible, and unsupportable since parents themselves are proud of their new babies. New mothers and fathers, however, pay the price of showing off recently born babies. First there is the "cease" factor as in count the toes and fingers and then the big barrage of suggestions as to whom the babies look like (just the mention that Junior has Uncle Tom's shapeless nose, and the new parents can be crushed).

Can business rivals be friends?

OF COURSE; look at all the business associates who are not only friendly competitors but fast friends in private life. Indeed a businessman can readily see the ability and talent of a rival, and it might be his understanding of those qualities that makes him want to know the other individual not only as a competitor he can respect but also as a person he wants to know better and whom he feels he is proud to call his friend.

Government Alert to Shoppers' Grievances

By DORIS CLARK

Did you know that there is a department of government which is on the alert to hear about grievances from shoppers who think something should be remedied? It is the Canadian Department of Consumer and Corporate Affairs.

If you happen to live in a city where there is a branch office, you may telephone them. But the Consumer consultants, who are ready to go to bat for consumers at the drop of a hat, are hard pressed people, usually.

The best way to reach them and get their attention is through the mail. When a story is written on paper, giving all the known facts, the consultant has a head start in being helpful.

I have a list of the names of these consultants in each of our provinces. If you'd like to be in touch with one of them, with a legitimate inquiry or complaint, I'll be glad to supply name and address to anyone enclosing a stamped, self - addressed envelope.

Dear Doris: Next year I will graduate in medicine: I am in love with Jane, who will also graduate next year, with an art's degree. We hope some day to marry.

Right now she is hamstrung by a clinging widowed mother. She expects Jane to look after her for the rest of her life. Jane is completely brainwashed and feels that if we were to live in another city after we were married her mother would have to be brought too.

She feels oppressed by her mother but has been so thoroughly indoctrinated that she feels guilty about leaving her even to take a holiday.

I know it is not too late to back out but I don't want to. After all I am in love with her other than this we are a remarkably good match. — Puzzled and Perplexed

Dear Puzzled: This business of over - possessive mothers has been known to ruin a person's complete life; to cancel an engagement, to ruin a career, and to squelch a young person's efforts in self-expression.

Jane has to be emancipated from her present guilt feelings. She has been taught that she is a good girl when she does what her mother says and that she is a bad girl when she does not.

The mother's influence is bound to wane as Jane comes into her own and as your influence becomes more and more important. One or two talks with a trained counselor could set the two of you on better paths. Meanwhile let Jane know you have complete confidence in her as an independent, capable adult.

I doubt if you will ever actually change her mother.

Dear Doris: I have been asked to propose the toast to the bride and have no idea what should be said.

It is a neighbor's daughter and I would not like to disappoint her. We have always been good tillicums: she is almost a daughter to me. She is 25 and I'm 65 and a bachelor. — Speechless

Dear Speechless: Did you say tillicums? Sounds pally, but I can't find it in the dictionary.

I am sending you my 20-cent leaflet Wedding Toasts—Order and Content, which contains an outline for a toast in the bride. You will have to give it your own personal touches: if merely provides a pattern to go by. Happy speechling. Tillicums!

Ask Doris for the information you need. If she doesn't know she'll find out from one of her consultants. Enclose a stamped, self - addressed envelope for private reply.

Ann Landers

Second Phone Eases 'Black-Cord Fever'

Dear Ann Landers: Recently you ran a letter in your column from a woman who said her teen-ager tied up the phone from 3 a.m. until 10 p.m. and she was furious about it.

"I'm a 15-year-old girl whose mother is on the phone constantly. Once I got sick in school and the secretary tried to call my mother to ask her to come and get me. She dialed for 45 minutes and couldn't get through because the line was busy. Finally she decided to drive me home in her own car.

When my boyfriend calls for an hour straight and is unable to get through, he gets ticked off. He can't understand how anybody can gab that long. Frankly, neither can I. Several of my girl friends have tried to reach me for an impromptu party and I've missed out because our line was busy and they gave up.—

So please, Ann, don't make it look like teen-agers are the only ones who have "black-cord fever." Some of the grownups are just as bad, or worse.—Hot Line U.S.A.

Dear Hot Line U.S.A.: In families such as yours, where the telephone is a major source of entertainment, a second line is well worth the money. It is unfair for one member of the family, either teen-ager or adult, to tie up the only phone in the house for an hour at a time.

Dear Ann Landers: I pray that you will print my letter for every parent and animal lover in the world.

I am sick to death of the kids I see here in California. I'm talking about 12- and 13-year-olds who are turned loose with B.B. guns. I have a horse that I keep in the country in Fairfield. There are many horses out here, as well as cows, dogs, and cats. Yesterday I came out to feed my pets. My favorite kitten failed to show up as usual so I went looking for her. Ann, I thought my heart would break. I found that dear little ball of fur crawling out from under the barn with two B.B. holes in her leg. She was in pain and struggled desperately to get to me. It was apparent that someone had shot her for kicks.

I have seen of my own. I would not sooner turn my boys loose with a B.B. gun than I would cut off...my right arm. What is the matter with parents that they buy such "toys" for their children? And why don't they train their youngsters to respect, if not to love, all living things?

There is a strange emptiness in people who have no feeling for God's creatures. Children who take a delight in seeing animals suffer are potential criminals. They have seeds of destruction that could lead them in do hideous thing. Please, Ann —c a y something.—California Reader

Dear Reader: What can I say? You have said it all—and very eloquently. I agree, the whole gun scene in our country is a nightmare. After that outrageous attempt on Governor Wallace's life you'd have thought there would be an immediate demand for stricter gun laws—but so far, nothing. What more must happen before we wake up?

Clemente Denied Hit No. 3,000

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Roberto Clemente thought he had it. Then he didn't. Now he's not sure he wants it that badly.

The Pittsburgh Pirates' outfielder appeared to have reached his 3,000th lifetime hit in a game with New York Monday night — the official scorer ruled an error on the play.

"If I don't get the hit by Sunday, I won't get it this season," said Clemente after the Pirates lost a 1-0 decision to the Mets in National League baseball action. "I won't play anymore after that until the playoffs.

"Having rested for the playoffs is more important to me than getting 3,000 hits."

Clemente was hitless in four trips against Tom Seaver, but he reached base in the first inning on a play that confused everybody at Three Rivers Stadium, including Clemente. Although second baseman Ken Boswell bobbled Clemente's slow bouncer past the mound, the fans and umpires momentarily thought that it was hit No. 3,000.

The player was even presented the ball and he shook hands with Pittsburgh's first base coach, Don Leppert.

Then the "error" sign flashed on the scoreboard.

Elsewhere Friday, St. Louis Cardinals turned back Chicago Cubs 4-1. Cincinnati Reds trimmed Los Angeles Dodgers 4-1. Houston Astros defeated San Diego Padres 5-2 and San Francisco Giants routed Atlanta Braves 14-3. The game between Philadelphia Phillies and Montreal Expos was rained out.

Hardthrowing Seaver allowed two hits in winning his 20th game.

Clay Carroll tied the major league record for saves with 37 pulling out a game for starter Jack Billingham, as Cincinnati defeated Los Angeles. Carroll's ninth-inning relief work tied the record shared by Sparky Lyle of New York Yankees, who made the mark this year, and Wayne Granger of the 1970 Cincinnati Reds.

Bosox Finish Off Baltimore, Yankees Find Selves on Ropes

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Baseball's American League East pennant scramble is down to three teams, one of the survivors barely holding on.

Boston Red Sox finished off Baltimore, eliminating the Orioles 4-0 Friday night on Cy Yastremski's two-run 10th-inning homer.

Second place Detroit Tigers remained 1½ games behind with a 12-5 romp over Milwaukee Brewers while New York Yankees, idle Friday, slipped four games behind and retained only a mathematical chance of forcing a playoff for the division crown.

In other games, Kansas City Chiefs battered Oakland Athletics 9-2, Chicago White Sox downed Texas Rangers 5-1 and California Angels nipped Minnesota Twins 2-1.

With five games left for both Boston and Detroit, the Red Sox have a magic number of four to eliminate the Tigers and clinch Detroit's last remaining division race. The battle, almost certainly, will go down to the final three-game series between the two teams in Detroit next week.

Luis Tiant tossed a five-hitter for his fifth of the season and end Baltimore's three-year reign as the American League.

It was Tiant's 10th victory of the season and 11th triumph in his last 12 decisions over Baltimore, 21-16, took the loss.

The Tigers kept pace, hosting three Milwaukee pitcher for 11 runs in the first three innings and rounding past the Brewers. Jim Northrup led the romp with five runs batted in. Willie Horton contributed a two-run triple to trigger the finger barrage and Tony Taylor added a two-run pinch double.

It was Yastremski's 11th homer of the year and seventh this month that finished off the defending champion Orioles and beat Palmer.

"My pitch was where Palmer wanted it—high and outside," said Earl Weaver, manager of the Orioles, "but Yaz went out and got it."

The victory gave Boston a 5-3 record in the September stretch run and "maintained the Sox' two-game edge over Detroit in the loss column. To catch Boston, the Tigers would have to win two more games over the final five than the Red Sox do.

Manager Billy Martin, enjoying the heavy hitting his club displayed against Milwaukee, wasn't even thinking of those numbers. The only thing on his mind right now is the season-ending showdown series with the Red Sox beginning Monday.

"I'd like to go into that Boston series swinging bats as good as that," said Martin after the Tigers had matched their biggest single-game run production of the season.

A seven-run third inning wrapped up the victory with Taylor's two-run double by Northrup the big hits.

John Mayberry drove in four runs, reaching 100 for the season, as Kansas City belted Oakland. Three of Mayberry's RBIs came on his 25th home run of the season.

Vida Blue, 6-10, took the loss for the American League West champion Athletics while Paul Splittorff earned the victory with a 4-2 effort.

Carlos May and Tony Muser drove in two runs apiece, leading the Chicago White Sox to a 5-1 decision over Texas. It was the 16th consecutive loss for the Rangers.

Jack Hiatt drove in both California runs with a second-inning triple and the Angels nipped Minnesota. Jim Perry and Wayne Granger combined to slow California just two hits but lost.

Olympic Head Appointed new president of the International Olympic Committee said Friday the existing victory ceremonies at the Games remote "the worst type of nationalism."
Lord Killanin, who succeeded Avery Brundage as head of the Olympic movement, said: "I have my great reservations about these playing of anthems and putting up flags every time someone's got a gold medal because I think it devalues the flag; I think it devalues the medal and it increases the worst type of nationalism."

Trounce First Metro Opponents

Bobcats Relish Win...for Now

By MAURICE SWITZER
Sports Editor

Belleville Bobcat coach Murray "Moe" Hunter told his charges to bask in the glory of their first junior hockey win of the season Friday, but not for the usual reason.

"Enjoy it now," Hunter told the Bobcats after they romped over Whitby's Metro Junior B League entry 10-4. "You won't get that sort of a chance much this season."

The Bobcats, making the jump from Eastern Ontario B ranks to the tough 19-team Metro group this winter, constantly scrimmaged, outmanned and outmuscled Whitby, in addition to outscoring them.

Shorthanded six players due to jobs, the visitors drowned nine skaters in addition to their two goalkeepers.

By contrast, the Bobcats suited up four complete forward combinations, and three defence pairings as they prepared to make some weekend cuts.

That numerical trimming will definitely not include Pierre newcomer Jim Graham, who potted three goals; hardworking two - way standout Robbie Foster, defensive returnee Tim Yokn, and nifty rookie centre Rick Belanger, each of whom contributed two goals to the landslide.

Centre hopeful Larry McQuaid added the other Belleville tally in an offensive outburst that saw the homesweaters outshoot their fabled guests by a 57-37 margin.

Bill Cooke, Graham Barton, Brian Grubb, and Wayne Madison replied for Whitby. Cooke's goal at 14.54 of the first period tied the score after Rob Foster had opened the scoring at 4.56 on a play started by linemate Rick Meagher.

But the visitors were only on an even footing for 45 seconds before Tim Yohn put the Bobcats in front for good.

Belleville held period leads of 3-1, 5-2, and outscored Whitby 5-2 in the final 20 minutes alone.

Holmes, the sharpest Bobcat around the Whitby goalmouth, missed out on a fourgoal night when referee Ivan Ogden ruled he steered in a power - play point shot with his skate early in the second period.

Holmes were plenty of power - play opportunities, with Belleville drawing 12 of 18 minor penalties assessed, all but two coming in the chippy opening two periods.

Trenton midget graduate Neil Turner sat out three sentences for some rowdy play that kept Whitby heads up when in his vicinity. Turner further depleted the visitors' bench strength in the final period when his foul was on the dispensing end of a broken nose.

Foster and Meagher were the standout Bobcat skaters, whether playing on a line with right winger Jim Richardson, who earned assists on three of their goals, or paired up in a penalty - killing role.

Rookie defenceman Wally Dainard was impressive on several end - to - end rushes, while Yohn gave a steady two-way showing from his blueline post.

Starting Bobcat goalie Bob Moore had some tough shots to face while Whitby's sparse lineup was still relatively fresh, successfully handling all but one of 16 in his period-and - a - half of work.

Replacement Tom Grobowski was nicked for the other three Whitby goals, including a third - period flubs that rebounded off the mouth - end screen, struck his back, and trickled in behind him.

Tony Cannella and Jeff Solkoll split the losers' net duties, with the latter being unfortunate enough to come into the game when the teammates were beginning to run out of steam.

The Bobcats, who host their opening exhibition 4 - 3 to Peterborough Lions, meet Kingston Frontenacs of the Metro Junior B Tier 2 League in a 7.30 Sunday night game at the Memorial Arena.

McConnell Welcome Sight for Quintes

He's not exactly a new senior hockey face, but Wayne McConnell will be a sight for Belleville Quintes' new eyes.

The rangy winger is back in town after two weeks at Ottawa Nationals' World Hockey Association training camp and a likely starter in Sunday night's 7.30 exhibition in Kingston.

"It was a good camp for me — it's just that I found out they had already signed six right wingers," McConnell explained his return.

McConnell, whose 34 goals made him the Belleville seniors' second - highest scorer last season, said he would be joining the other Quintes at tonight's second and final September test session at the Armories, and would likely be dressing for Sunday's game.

The Quintes will be looking for their second exhibition win in three starts. They dropped a Tuesday home match 4 - 2 to Kingston's senior Aces, following a 5 - 3 upset of the Central Pro League's Tulsa Oilers.

WAYNE McCONNELL

Tidy in Front

Belleville Bobcat defenceman Dave Flesch keeps the sidewalk clean while goalie Bob Moore minds the store against Whitby attacker Brian Grubb. The Bobcats trimmed their short-handed visitors 10-4 in an exhibition Junior B hockey game Friday at the Memorial Arena between the two Metro League entries. The win was the first of the season for the Bobcats, who play their third exhibition Sunday at home to Kingston's Tier 2 Junior A Frontenacs.

Gananoque Drivers Won't Lack Rooters

It's Gananoque Day at Frontenac Downs Sunday afternoon and such Gananoque horsemen as Doug Stacey, Charlie Higgs, Russ and Art Charles will be looking for continued success at the McAdoo's Lane Plant.

And if they do there should be plenty of friends on hand to see them, with all Gananoque residents admitted free of charge for the 18-race card.

All in all the eastern Ontario community 28 miles east of Kingston should enjoy a fine day at the races, what with the featured eighth race pitting a Kingston horse returning from Garden City against two other hopefuls.

Orval Gibson's Roger Lee, winner of the 1971 Eastern Ontario Fair Colt Stake is back from the Joplcey Club Circuit and will be driven by Bernie Corcoran in the race.

Competing against him will be Bell Carey (driven by Bob Cornelius); Yankee Jet (Ernie Hunt); Dandy Duke (Hugh Wemp); Galety's Jule (Chris Storms); Two Mountain Dear (Orley Coville); Cool Charm (Erwin Stewart) and Jim Dusty (Ben Wemp).

The 22nd card of the season will institute the flight of the 50 cent parking charge in the parking lot.

Post time Sunday is 1:45 p.m.

Trenton Wins On Rebound

Trenton Junior Tigers, looking like a good bet to repeat as OCSSA finalists from the Bay of Quinte high school football conference, clawed their way back from a 12-9 half time deficit Friday to hang a 13-12 defeat on Centennial Chargers.

"I couldn't believe how poorly they were playing in the first half — it was a case of too much individualism," assistant coach Don Sinclair explained the halftime score.

Halfback Dave Lewis started the Trenton hall rolling toward their third win of the season against no losses with a plunge from inside the Centennial five.

With just over three minutes remaining in the game, quarterback Dave Lewis galloped 22 yards on an end-around keeper play to salt away the comeback win.

Halfback Dennis Kamada's 20-yard romp accounted for the most convincing first-half touchdown for Centennial, who now sport a 1-1 record.

Meanwhile, Trenton's Senior Tigers pulled their second win in three starts out of the bag, captain halfback Nick Alexander's last-minute heroics.

Alexander's 25 - yard offtackle sprint gave the Trenton seniors a 12-6 verdict over Centennial who have split their two decisions.

Defensive end Mike Saucier gave the Tigers a 6-0 second-quarter lead on a blocked punt, but with three minutes remaining in the game, Centennial quarterback Phil Easton hit fullback Dave McMullen on a 29-yard scoring aerial.

That set the stage for the last-minute major by Alexander, whom coach Tom Nigro applauded for some tough ground grinding.

Shares Glory

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Until recently Bruce Henderson was just another worker at Chrysler Canada Ltd. The fact his older brother Paul plays in the National Hockey League didn't attract that much attention.

But Paul Henderson's heroics for Team Canada in its series against the Russians have changed all that.

It's been a strange week for Bruce, 24, at the plant.

"Unbelievable what's been happening there," he said Friday in an interview. "People cheering when I come in and everything. I feel real embarrassed."

And what about Paul's action as a Toronto Maple Leaf?

"Well, he never would be happy if he got a raise. I know that," said Bruce.

Racing Dessert Course

Belleville and district host racing fans will get their palates tickled as a dessert, rather than first course this year.

For the first time in four years, the Quinte Hydroplane Racing Club didn't offer a Victoria Day racing program in the Belleville Harbor.

But the best has been saved until Sunday, when the Belleville speedboat enthusiasts are host to the 1972 Canadian National Stock Hydroplane Championships at Oak Hill Lake between Belleville and Stirling.

Highlight of the program, to be staged at Dempsey's Canteen, will be an open Grand Prix event. Wellington driver Doug Thompson, who this summer established a world record 78 mile - an - hour time over a five - mile Illinois course, will be entered in the event, which could see straightaway speeds as high as 100 mph.

Welcome Mat Weaved

TORONTO (CP) — Chess will clubs and police worlds Friday on ways to combat the suspected hockey hysteria when Team Canada returns from Europe Sunday.

A civic reception planned for Maple Leaf Gardens — "home of Paul Henderson", he switch-board operators call it—has already been shifted to Nathan Phillips Square outside city hall.

Organizers said they felt the Gardens, with a capacity of 28,000 if seats were put on the ice surface, would be too small.

"People have been calling in here . . . they too lost, overwhelmed us," said Gardens spokesman. "There have been Americans as well as Canadians wanting to find out where they can pay tribute to the players."

"We felt that the Gardens would be too small and there might be some trouble with a crowd that size too large. The police say the square and the area around it can hold up to 300,000 people."

Only about half of the 33 players will be present at the reception Sunday.

Dennis Flynn, city information officer, said he was told by Team Canada— director all Eagleson and a telephone call from Prague that said the players would get off the two team planes in Montreal.

He said Mr. Eagleson told him that only a small aircraft will come as far as Toronto, many players have reasons to rejoin their families and get on to training camps with their National Hockey League clubs.

"We're going ahead with the plans where will be a reception and they will get a big welcome back in Toronto," said Mr. Flynn.

As soon as the players arrive at Toronto International Airport, they will be whisked away in a motorcade that will take them downtown.

Once downtown the motorcade will proceed along University Avenue to the civic square.

Mayor William Dennison and team members with the city's official gold cufflinks. The cuff links are made by hand by tele-vision hockey personalities.

Health Minister John Munro will represent the federal government and Premier William Davis of Ontario is also expected to attend.

Hull Restrained

CHICAGO (AP) — Circuit Judge Francis Delaney issued a 30-day restraining order Friday enjoining Bobby Hull from playing for any hockey team except Chicago Black Hawks. But Hull was granted permission to practice with Winnipeg Jets of the World Hockey Association until a hearing Oct. 6.

Hull is fighting a suit by the Black Hawks in the National Hockey League which would prevent him from playing for the Jets.

Hull has signed a $1-million contract with the Jets which goes into effect Oct. 1, one day after his present contract with Chicago expires.

Blazers Happy

PHILADELPHIA (AP)

The president of Philadelphia Blazers of the World Hockey Association has called a federal court ruling permitting two National Hockey League stars to jump to the WHA. "We are thrilled with this decision," said James Cooper, in reference to the refusal of a U.S. district court judge in Boston to bar Boston Bruins stars Derek Sanderson and Gerry Cheevers from playing in the new league.

Du Hamel Okay

ONTARIO, Calif. (CP) — Yvon du Hamel, Canadian motorcycle racing champion from Montreal, escaped serious injury Friday in a crash on the Ontario Motor Speedway in a qualifying run for Sunday's $100,000 race. Du Hamel was leading in the qualifying race when he lost control. Rawsnail crashed. He remains the favorite for Sunday's race despite starting in 33rd position.

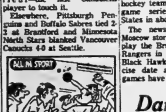
The Winner!



Canadiens Overpower Bruins

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Montreal Canadiens scored two power-play goals Friday night en route to a 4-2 win over Boston Bruins in National Hockey League exhibition play at Boston.

The final score was at the expense of Boston defenceman Nick Beverley, who inadvertently flipped the puck into the Bruins' goal, a score that was credited to Montreal's Guy Lafleur's one-timer. Canadiens' power to touch it.

Elsewhere, Pittsburgh Penguins and Buffalo Sabres tied 2-2 and Brantford and Minnesota North Stars blanked Vancouver Canucks 4-0 at Seattle.

"That's Henshaw's ball. He bowled a 300 game last week and had a gold plaque!"

Theismann May See Action

Toronto Argonauts, who have been losing football games although they were waiting for Joe Theismann to come back and win it all for them, could not even find extra motivation.

Theismann suffered a broken ankle in the Argos' Canadian football League season opener two months ago and he could be back in the Argos' backfield uniform against Edmonton Eskimos.

The Argo home stand is set for 8 p.m. EDT and the game will be televised on the CBC national network.

In other Eastern Conference action, Hamilton Tiger-Cats try to regain a share of the conference lead when they travel to Ottawa to play the Rough Riders in Ot tawa. The Cats—always they visit the Rough Riders in Ottawa—are playing a game that work will carry the game be ginning at 8 p.m. EDT.

Gabler is likely to start tonight's game but Theismann

Iverson Leads

BETTENDORF, Iowa (AP)

Don Iverson, who never before has challenged seriously for a major title, wasn't at all surprised to find himself with a two-stroke lead going into today's third round in the weather-plagued, $100,000 Quad Cities Open golf tournament.

"I'm not surprised to be leading," the 26-year-old pro said Friday after battling cold, blustery winds for a par 71 and a 138 total on the 6,561-yard Crow Valley Golf Club course. "I think I'm capable of leading a tournament."

Iverson, winner of $39,200 at the satellite Shreveport Classic title this season, was two strokes in front of a quartet tied at 140.

Toronto's Gary Bowerman was the only Canadian to make the halfway cut with a 75 Friday and 145 total.

Recaps Soviet Series

Sinden Ponders Hockey Future

PRAGUE (CP) — Team Canada has only one more game to play—against the Czech national team tonight—and Harry Sinden, the coach who came out of retirement to build a club to challenge the world, said he doesn't know what the future holds for him.

"I don't know—at this point, I really don't," said the man who took Boston Bruins to a Stanley Cup, only to quit to go into a business that later crumbled.

"I'm still considering an offer to go into business. I may not go back to hockey.

But it's an open secret that Sinden has had personal doubts of coaching and managerial goals.

He looked reflectively at what he accomplished when he got together with NHL individualists and set out to win back international hockey prestige for Canada.

"If I were to do it over, might change the format," he said. "Usually, you fall flat on your face when you pioneer anything."

Team Canada didn't fall flat—but it came close. They won four, lost three and tied one in eight games and finished in Russian. In Sweden they tied one and won one.

Tonight they go against the defending world amateur champions, although admittedly a club that hasn't had time to get into shape this summer.

Sinden said he was "concerned from the beginning" about meeting the Russians.

"We were a new team. We'd never played them. We knew it would be tough.

Speaking of the 7-3 defeat in the opening game of the Russian series in Montreal, he said:

"We didn't expect to lose and we certainly didn't expect to get whacked."

Emotion on the team was "as high as it will go before the game—higher even than in the final game."

In the final game in Moscow Thursday, Team Canada won 6-5 on the last minutes on a goal by Paul Henderson, his third game-winning goal in a row.

Sinden said the four games in Canada could be likened to exhibitions. It was only over experience."

"Game 2 we didn't expect to win 4-1, but it was Game 3 in which we thought we'd run away and hide. We got a tie."

But the Vancouver game was the worst. It was more even than the opening game, he said.

"That was the toughest night," he said.

Team Canada lost again, and Sinden was upset over the 11 shots Vancouver allowed in the 2nd period.

"By Vancouver, we knew the 25 players we needed out of the 35 were carrying."

A big plus for him regard, he said, was the Stockholm series of two games, which "was a great stop we took toward becoming a team," he said.

It was in Stockholm that the Canadian players had a meeting at which they decided to bury their differences and work together. Team captain Peter Bob Haggert took up the theme.

"The big problem was putting together guys who have been coach other for the last 12 years, players from Montreal Canadiens who fought with Toronto Maple Leafs, Detroit Red Wings who battle Chicago Black Hawks, New York Rangers, traditional enemies of Boston.

"We did it, but how are these guys going to shrug all this off when they get back home?"

Sinden laughed—"That's their problem. It's all over on Monday."

The coach looked ahead to tonight's game with the Czechs and said Czech Monsevic this must be a most difficult game for the players."

"I don't know whether I'd want to play immediately after the game."

He described the Canadian victory in Moscow as "massive" despite the closeness of the scores and said: "We beat them in every area in their own rink. That's a pretty good victory."

If he had it all to do over—provided he'd taken the job in the first place—he'd assemble a shorter series, using the Stanley Cup champions against the amateur champions.

And he, as a coach, learned from the series in other respects.

"I think the way the Russians handle the puck is an area in which the NHL could spend a lot more time on than it does. As for physical training, I don't think we could better Quebec system entirely, but we could borrow from them.

"You see, they have a shooting machine over here—like the pitching machine in baseball—that fires a puck every three seconds and speeds up to 100 miles an hour. You can sight it on any part of the net."

That, too, was something the pros could use to advantage.

But the place to start is with the 16-and-16-year-olds. Canadian of kids that age just don't have the time to spend on after-practice.

"We've got to start with the youngsters—lots of them getting good coaching," he said. "Really, it's a numbers game."

Soviets Say Goodbye

MOSCOW (Reuter) — Moscow said goodbye to the victorious Canadian hockey team Friday with a mixture of admiration and accusations.

The Canadians left for Prague the morning after their last episode 6-5 win over the Soviet Union which gave them the eight-game series four matches to three, with one game tied.

Tass news agency, summing up the series, said the myth of the Canadians' hockey invincibility existed no longer.

While paying tribute to the Canadians' skill, Tass said:

"One must return to their rough play on the ice, which is apparently their tactical policy. Perhaps not four times, but a broad enough team in this country. There is no end to the deliberate cruelty, used as a means of frightening and neutralizing the opponent.

This moment was not shown on Soviet television which switched abruptly to the test card after the final hooter.

Soviets Stop Uso Tour

MONTREAL (CP) — The Canadian Russian national hockey team will play a three-game series in the United States in about four months.

The newspaper says in Moscow story the Russians will play the Bruins in Boston, the Rangers in New York and the Black Hawks in Chicago. Precise date and times for the games have not been set.

Dancer's Image Loses

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Dancer's Image, the big colt that streaked to victory in the 1968 Kentucky Derby, officially lost his purse Friday to the runner-up, Forward Pass.

John Tarrant, lawyer for Churchill Downs, said a cheque for the winner's share was mailed to Calumet Farms.

Cheques also were sent to the owners of Top Knight, Mr. B Commercial and Kentucky Sherry, the third, fourth and fifth finishers in the controversial race.

All were moved up when the Kentucky Appeals Court upheld the state racing commission's contention that Peter Fuller's colt had a forbidden medication in his system when he won the Derby.

The Boston sportsman had until today to take his case to the U.S. Supreme Court, but one of his lawyers said Friday: "We have no intention of going any further with the case."

Fuller, however, is continuing his fight to obtain possession of the $5,000 gold cup awarded the winner. That issue is still before the racing commission which was asked to make the decision by the Downs.

Fuller, who spent thousands of dollars "to clear my horse's name" emotionally attacked the findings of state chemist Kenneth Smith, who reported that phenylbutazone was present in Dancer's Image at the time of the race. The analgesic is used in the treatment of sore legs.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Forthright action, even without consultation, brings results. Financial moves need special attention, may yield extra income.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Education is the main theme now. New business contacts are promising; settlements, financial moves are better than proceed.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan 19): Do your work as that it comes to full attention, including changes you have prepared. Marital and partnership agreements are firm.

Aquarius (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Nature is your best guide, with more listening and learning on your part than dictating and teaching. Young people lead the way.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): The most direct path to success may be beyond your idea of what is normal. Pause for a moment's reflection and plunge in.

To Your Good Health

Feel Lightheaded? Causes Are Many

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Will you explain what syncope is and the treatment? My husband has had the doctor didn't explain.—Mrs. G.D.

Syncope is a technical term that covers either fainting or severe lightheadedness.

There are many causes, and I rather suspect that your husband doesn't have a "predisplained" it because it can take some study to track down the specific cause. It isn't always easy.

Some interference in circulation to the brain is one possibility, but even that doesn't pin down the specific cause.

For example, if an older person is the wise to suspect anemia, which is a lack of red blood cells or a continuing blood loss. Anemia will be shown by a blood test, of course.

But then again there may be some obstruction or narrowing of the carotid arteries in the neck, which carry blood to the brain. Or some irregularity in the heart block, or interference with the rhythm and rate of the heart beat. An electrocardiogram would be necessary to determine this.

Sensitivity of the "carotid body," are a special tissue in the neck, also can be a factor in syncope. That is, circulation can be interfered with if the "carotid body" is upset by pressure. This can happen, in individuals with that problem, by such simple things as a snug collar or even turning the head in a particular way.

What most of the bladder causes proves to be the right one. Sometimes a combination may be required to track down possible neurological disorders.

Dear Doctor: What is the best therapy for a person who has had a rectal examination? Is an enema in itself adequate for a thorough examination of this kind?—Mrs. H.B.

The patient should be on a liquid diet the evening before the examination and an enema should be used the evening before and the morning of the examination in order to thoroughly cleanse the bowel. This preparation is used prior to x-ray examination of the colon as well as for a proctoscopic procedure.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I read the letter and reply about hippies and the bugs they leave behind.

The implication that so-called hippies don't use soap and have unsanitary habits makes me wonder what type of person you classify as a hippie. If hippies are people with poor hygiene habits, they are found in every age, race, class and sex.—B.H.

If your point is that some hippies are clean and don't have bugs, I am not disposed to argue with you. I'm sure there are clean ones.

Call them "hoggies" instead, if that will make you happier. The terminology isn't important.—Certain habits are.

Sex habits, swapping clothes, living in communes, moving from group to group and city to city—all of these have a bearing on the spread of crab lice as well as other varieties of lice.

I'm not much concerned with the exact definition of a hippie. I am concerned over the increasing number of letters from young people who are having troubles with "the cruise." Druggists, skin specialists and others confirm that there is a substantial increase among young people with this kind of infestation.

Unity Still Key Issue

HALIFAX (CP) — National unity remains a key issue in the current federal election campaign, Senator Paul Martin, government leader in the Senate, told two Nova Scotia audiences Friday.

In an address here to students at Saint Mary's University, Senator Martin maintained that it is vitally important for federal policies to guarantee unity among all segments of the population.

Feelings Run High Over Trenton Plan

TRENTON (Staff) — Object tors to plans for the former downtown post office site in Trenton, Ontario, to build a civil everything from a "lane duck council" to "stupid" in their acceptance of a projected municipal office and indoor parking garage complex.

One of the major objectors, whom town solicitor J. D. Templeman of Belleville, labelled a prime mover against any and all town plans for this site, was former councillor and ex-Mayor Gerald Weaver.

Mr. Templeman directed much of questioning of those who spoke in opposition, against Mr. Weaver, whom he said had "fought the town tooth and nail from the outset, because you wanted the property yourself."

Countering, Mr. Weaver said he and partner J. W. Gould, also a former councillor, had placed their bid in October in 1967 after learning the town had not made an offer for the post office property. A letter signed by Mr. Weaver was referred to by Mr. Templeman, quoting him as saying he felt he had been "suckered" out of the lightning rod sale. The 1970 letter to council said "justice being done" if the town offered the land for sale at their original purchase price.

The federal government had reserved the right, in calling tenders, to offer the land to the town at the same price as the highest bid received. The town accepted, paying $41,046.

Mr. Weaver said he objected to the town being allowed to purchase the property because they "didn't know what they were going to do with it and still don't."

Mr. Templeman charged Weaver had tried to obtain the land at "extraordinarily deflated prices," to which the land developer countered, saying that in 1970, the price of $41,046 was viable with price trends. The town solicitor told the Ontario Municipal Board the chairman land adjacent to this property, now being developed for the Bank of Montreal, had sold for between $100,000 and $125,000.

Answering a further question, Mr. Weaver admitted voting in favor of still town acquiring this site without a stated purpose, while on council in 1964.

It was his contention that the voters should be approached again because the plans now up for consideration are entirely different ones from those previously accepted.

OMB chairman H. H. Lascaster called for both opposition remarks from the gathering of between 75 to 125 persons who attended the hearing, which began at 11 a.m., adjourned for noon, and concluded at 7.30 p.m.

Speaking against the project were:

—Charles Hilton, chairman of the Public Utilities Commission, and one of the 11 Trentonians who acted as clients of opposition lawyer R. B. Tuer. He said he had spoken to many people who are sincerely opposed to the downtown parking garage concept, which he referred to as a "parking palace of concrete."

He suggested businessmen who are in favor of the project should "chip in and pay for a parking lot."

—Mrs. Carol Harvey, 66 Crown Street. She said the complex calls for "the waste of an expenditure to taxpayers."

—Mrs. Dorothy Read, also one of the 11 opposition clients. She felt "a parking lot should not be located in the most prime building lot in the town of Trenton."

—Vago Lange, former councillor, car dealer and one of the 11 clients, said he had approached councillors, no one of whom he claims suggested an open public meeting on this "controversial issue."

Mr. Templeman, referring to numerous opposition petitions, said a good many were based on "fantasy figures." While he said most were sincere and honest efforts, it was his contention that many were led by influential objectors. He said, "from the outset have had personal profit motives . . . leading opposition to develop these expensive delaying tactics." Several witnesses who initiated petitions, the lawyer said several were prepared by "me or two strong-minded men who have quickly made up their minds to oppose something without investigating the matter properly . . . signed by people, many unofficial, who didn't weigh the pros and cons."

MAN IS INDIFFERENT

TORONTO (CP) — Man's greatest enemy is indifference, Rev. William Hurse of Advent Lutheran Church said in a recent sermon. "The problem in our time is not rampant atheism, nor is it a wilful desire to do wrong. It is indifference—a lack of the will to live meaningfully."

Lesvesque Book Cornerstone Of Campaign

MONTREAL (CP) — Parti Quebecois leader René Levesque unveiled a 30-page booklet Friday called the "crux of federalism," which he said will form the cornerstone of his party's "anti-campaign" in 80 meetings scheduled around the province before the Oct. 30 federal election.

He told a news conference he hopes the party's membership of 33,000 will swell to 60,000 as a result of the meetings and said the PQ is out to prove Quebec is not the "kept woman of Confederation."

The booklet cites the Quebec government's 1970 Montreal Metro, claiming $200 million of the province's taxes were siphoned off to Ottawa from 1960 to 1966 without any corresponding federal expenditures in Quebec.

About $100 million supported Ottawa's bureaucrats when it could have provided Quebecers with 18,000 jobs, the booklet says.

Quebec received only $13 million of federal laboratory research work as compared to $200 million done in Ontario, it says.

The standard of living of the average Ontario resident is listed as 40 per cent higher than that of the average French-speaking Quebecer.

The booklet also says that, over the last four years, Quebec paid 25 per cent of federal taxes and received 36.5 per cent of federal expenditures.

"There's so much lying propaganda about Quebec being the kept woman of Confederation," said Mr. Levesque.

"We can prove that Quebec has never been kept by anyone and, in fact, has been carrying a lot of the freight."

Man Killed

KIRKLAND LAKE (CP) — Motorcyclist Richard Yolland Ross, 19, of Earlton, Ont., was killed Thursday night when his machine crashed head-on with a car 40 miles south of here. Two occupants of the car were injured.

Map to Jail

BELO HORIZONTE, Brazil (Reuter) — Brazil former Jet Herald published a map to would-be consumers of his popular honey-faced marijuana, so they could find his plantation in the north-east and, if they could get there—and arrived, to take him off to jail.

BOW TO BLANCH

To blanch vegetables, lower them into boiling water, cover it, leave for a short time then immerse the vegetables in cold running water to chill.

Lewis
Processing Said Needed Here

TIMMINS, Ont. (CP) — David Lewis, Ontario New Democratic Party leader, said Friday night.

Mr. Lewis said a news conference that an NDP government would pass legislation to require more resource processing and secondary industrial development in Canada.

Mr. Lewis charged that corporations have been threatening the public that they would close if forced to shoulder a larger portion of the tax burden.

He said Finance Minister John Turner's claim that an NDP government would force cities like Timmins into ghost towns if it nationalized resources forced to pay their fair share of taxes was "a big scare."

The NDP leader said "mining companies are here not because of tax concessions but because there are great sums of money to be made by mining copper and nickel."

He said as long as there are minerals in the ground, and there is demand for them, firms like International Nickel Co. of Canada in Sudbury, Ont., would continue to operate.

Unemployment insurance might last and part but I don't believe they would close," he said.

At a Liberal dinner meeting in a union hall Mr. Lewis told about 200 supporters that the NDP would make unemployment insurance program "is peanuts compared with corporate welfare."

He said it is odd the Liberal government can't see its way clearly down on those who abuse the unemployment insurance program at the middle of an election campaign.

Trudeau:
Foreign Policy Has Key Role

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau entered the final 30 days of the election race Friday with a proud defence of government foreign policy and a swing at economic nationalism.

For good measure, he got into a fight-hearted booze game at the Dante Club in Timmins, Ont., prior to a more serious question-and-answer session, and found himself an unwitting spectator in a local mayoralty contest.

In Toronto, Mr. Trudeau described his government's foreign policies as the key to heightened Canadian independence. But that independence could be threatened if a "massive freak wave" was made on any one particular issue such as Arctic sovereignty, Canada's economic rules in broadcasting or control of foreign investment.

He specifically fingered economic nationalism in a speech to about 1,200 at the Empire Club as a matter which must be dealt with in the same context used by the government has tackled other issues.

"If it is basically wrong under all circumstances . . . for Wall Street to dominate Canada's economy, then it should probably follow that it is totally wrong for Bay Street to dominate Quebec's economy," he said, referring to the main business streets in New York and Toronto.

"The response you make in one case cannot be inconsistent with steps taken in another."

Later in Timmins, Mr. Trudeau went back to the kind of campaigning that has marked the race during the first three weeks.

He fielded questions from an overflow crowd of about 800 in the Dante Club on a number of issues, including unemployment, pollution, unemployment insurance and Quebec separatism.

On the latter, he reiterated government opposition to legislating such things as compulsory and bilingual, but said there is "no absolute right" to the government's more lenient stand on such other drugs as alcohol.

He warned that if civilization had to do it all over again the attitude to all drugs, including alcohol, would be much harsher. He said he sees many adults don't realize as well as young people seem to, the dangers in drugs and pop pills.

Stanfield:
We're Treated Like Children

TORONTO (CP) — Robert Stanfield said Friday night that the Liberal government of Prime Minister Trudeau is incompetent, insincere and capricious and must not be allowed to stay in office.

"Surely we are all aware of the fact that the Canadian taxpayers and Canadian voters are being treated like children," he said to 650 Conservatives and their supporters at a $25-a-couple banquet in suburban Scarborough.

The Canadian people surely have a right to know the cost and the magnitude and the consequences of incompetence."

He said the real issue of the Oct. 30 federal election campaign is whether Canadians can afford another term of the Trudeau government.

Mr. Stanfield's speech were new but his speech was a reiteration of his oft-repeated theme: that the government has not done enough about unemployment. He has provided incentives for people to get off welfare, has unshackled the unemployment insurance scheme, will not tell the Canadian people the exact size of the deficit of the schemes.

As he has been doing all week, the Conservative leader needled Prime Minister Trudeau in a four-letter obscenity in Vancouver last week.

This time he said that through government policy and legislation and his own "pollsceptical lectures about a non-work ethic, Mr. Trudeau has attempted to reduce the concept of work to something he apparently can deal with—he has attempted to reduce work to just a four-letter word."

Mr. Stanfield was introduced and endorsed again by William Davis, Conservative premier of Ontario, as being himself a golf and country club in the Toronto area constituency of Rosedale, which he represented Parliament by Labor Minister Bob O'Connell.

Mr. Davis said Mr. Stanfield is "my leader and a man of integrity, and ability with the leadership qualities to make a great prime minister."

Restigouche To Be Fixed

OTTAWA, (CP) — The defence department has determined that it is "cost-effective" to repair the controversial destroyer escort Restigouche.

In a statement Friday, the department said the Restigouche was disabled by hydrochloric acid used to clean its boilers during a refit before a two-year refit at Halifax Shipyards.

The statement, briefly summarizing the 400-page report of a board of inquiry, said the acid "produced general corrosion and pitting throughout the system, resulting in the sticking of some valves and linkages."

The probable source of damage to the carrier was the acid cleaning of the steamer's record, it added.

The word carryover was used to describe the refusal of Earlier reports said, however, that acid was carried through the ship's steam system "during the post-refit trials."

Initial trials which took place in June.

A detailed engineering examination of all components and/or the ship's steam system, "leading to the recommended replacement as determined necessary," will be undertaken without delay.

"It is therefore not possible to estimate precisely the value of the damage," said the statement. "However, it is considered that it is cost-effective to proceed with the repairs."

There has been speculation that the board of inquiry would lead to a decision to scrap the Halifax-based Restigouche, rather than spend the money needed to get it back in the water.

Inventions No Longer Easy to Develop

LAKE JOSEPH, Ont. (CP) — The old image of the lonely inventor in his garage-laboratory creating "Eureka" and the world then beating a path to his door no longer is true.

Dr. Donald Chisholm, president of Bell-Northern Research, said Friday these myths must be abolished because innovation in industry today is done by "relatively different ball game."

He told delegates to a Chemical Institute of Canada seminar on innovation that in research and developmental today, it is necessary to bring together "the technical wealth-producing reality of the market place and the reality of social wants."

"Clever ideas are rather easy to come by. Complex ideas are rare. Usually they are both," he said.

The young innovator must recognize that society often is ready to buy a technical innovation manufacturers he thought he interested. Dr. Chisholm said.

When a manufacturing man says that new idea, he vie unless his lovely, stable, efficient production line is at chaos."

The main reason 98 per cent of the significant innovative research ideas come from industry research is that large companies can plan a course of development that is technically sound, economically profitable and still in line with society's goals, Dr. Chisholm said.

"Unfortunately, the choice is not between going it alone too fast or going a little slower, but going at a viable rate or going Japanese."

Flies Home

McLuhan Confusing

OTTAWA (CP) — Marshall McLuhan, once described as "Canada's delphic oracle of communication," can probably be described as being internationally confusing.

A Rabbin Ishak, Singapore's foreign affairs minister and one of about 50 foreign participants here for Canada-ASEAN symposium on cultural and linguistic diversity, offered his impression Friday of a special seminar involving Mr. McLuhan Thursday.

"Last night I attended what they said was supposed to be a seminar . . . with Mr. Marshall McLuhan." Mr. Ishak told Canadian and foreign participants.

"I'm not really sure whether I was lucky or unlucky to have been there."

Mr. McLuhan had offered the visitors what he called his "non-viewpoints," a term Mr. Ishak referred to as "something new I have learned in Ottawa."

But there was a meeting of minds on one point at least. Mr. Ishak quoted Mr. McLuhan as saying he didn't care much for the great powers of the world, but valued understanding between men.

"And that, I think, was the only part of the discussion I thought I appreciated," Mr. Ishak said Canadian and foreign participants.

Flight Agency Is Long on Hogs

TORONTO (CP) — The Canada Development Corporation found itself long on hogs Friday and is starting to sell 7,000 of the animals to get rid of them.

The hog holders were transferred when the federal agency took control of Connaught Biosciences Limited, a pharmaceutical firm owned by the University of Toronto.

Purchase of the laboratories, which produce insulin, was announced by the government May, for a price of about $23 million.

Connaught's piggery near Bolton, north of Toronto, was designed for research at the University of Toronto system. It was once called "the ultimate in hogs."

The development corporation, set up by the federal government to promote Canadian public investment in Canada, has been criticized from time to time for its investments.

Its chairman, Jean Casgrain, said: "We're not in this business to make money. We're in the business of playing a role in the development of Canada."

Voluntary Testing

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario social workers, denied licensing power by the province, are protesting voluntary self-regulation.

Mae Herman, executive director of the Ontario Association of Professional Social Workers, said Friday the province should pull before the members' calls for periodic testing to weed out those who cannot give the public an adequate level of service.

"We do this, they want to act like an Ontario College of Social Work, which would have the same academic requirements as the association, but be stricter on professionalism.

"It's a matter of establishing standards," she said. "We should have established them a long time ago. We have to intention whatsoever of keeping people out of the field."
